35 FRENCH PREMIERS AT HELM SINCE 1905

Paris, July 17.—(AP)—Thirty-five premiers have been at the helm of the French government since 1905. Twelve of them came into power since M. Clemenceau, the tiger of France, relinquished the premiership in 1920. This period, incidentally marked the end of the sacred union prevailing during the war and a renewal of bitter warfare between the many political groups in parliament.

During that period (1905-1926) France also has had half dozen presidents, beginning with M. Laubet and followed successively by M. Fallieres, Raymond Poincare, Paul Deschanel, Alexandre Millerand and Gaston Doumergue.

The record of longevity is held by Georges Clemenceau, who presided over a ministry which curiously included M. Briand as minister of education, and M. Caillaux, as minister of finance, from October, 1906, until July, 1909.

Paris, July 17.—(AP)—Premier Aristide Briand's tenth cabinet, whose fate was tied up with the Caillaux bill for extraordinary powers to allow the government to cope with the financial crisis, without parliamentary interference and delays, toppled to a fall early this evening under combined full front attacks by M. Herriot, leader of the radical socialists, and M. Marin, leader of the moderates. The vote was 288 to 243, the government thus having a minority of 45.

No time was lost by M. Briand and his colleagues in presenting their collective resignations to President Doumergue. On leaving Elysee palace M. Caillaux smilingly remarked: "Nobody's lot is happier than mine."

Herriot to be Called.

It is understood that M. Herriot, despite the severe lacing M. Briand administered to him today, will be called on by President Doumergue to form a new cabinet, and it is rumored in the lobbies of the chamber that he already has succeeded in obtaining enough provisional acceptances of portfolios to constitute a "cabinet of republican concentration."

When M. Briand departed from the palace, he said to the correspondents: "Surely you do not hope to see me succeed myself every time. Anyway, I cannot continually live in an at-

Debt Cancellation Opposed in Letter By Treasury Head

Government Would Be Shirking Duty to Taxpayers If It Sanctioned Plan, Says Mellon.

ASSURANCE GIVEN FRENCH CABINET

Government Is Told United States Has No Intention of Commercializing Agreement on Debt.

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The American government would be shirking its duties as trustee of the taxpayers if it sanctioned cancellation of war debts, Secretary Mellon contended in a letter made public as the administration's final reply to such proposals.

With the exception of Great Britain, Mr. Mellon declared all debtors had actually received cancellation of the loans given them before the armistice as the result of their debt agreements with the United States. Moreover, he added, Europe is closer today to a solution of its economic troubles than at any time since the war.

Answers Cancellation Plea.

Mr. Mellon, who is chairman of the American debt commission, wrote the letter to Frederick W. Peabody, Ashburnham, Mass., in answer to one by Peabody to President Coolidge proposing cancellation of the war debts, as a legal, equitable and charitable proposition.

In connection with the debt situation it was learned today that the United States government had assured France it had no intention of taking advantage of Article 7 of the debt agreement permitting it to commercialize France's obligations.

The provision must stay in the settlement, Finance Minister Caillaux has been informed, to comply with the law by which funds were raised here for the loan to France but the treasury believes it would be impracticable to utilize the provision.

Discussing debt cancellation, Mr. Mellon told Mr. Peabody that "if these foreign debts are cancelled the United States is not released from its obligation to pay the very bonds which were sold to our citizens to make the advances to the foreign governments."

Must Collect Through Taxation.

"We must collect through taxation from our people," he said. "If our debtors do not pay to us what they can. You must know the duty of a trustee. Were trustees as certain as you seem to be that the American people demand cancellation of the debts, it is within the province of popular government to carry out the mandate.

"But neither generally from the people, nor in the press, nor at all from the chosen representatives of the people in congress has come this demand.

"As a matter of equity," Mr. Mellon said that France, Belgium and Italy, the only nations beside Great Britain to get loans during the war, actually will repay to this nation an amount equal only to their loans received after the armistice.

Loans to England.

"In the case of England, post-armistice advances with interest amounted to $660,000,000," he said, "and the present value of the entire debt settlement is $3,297,000,000. Our loans to England were not so much to provide war supplies as to furnish sterling for home and foreign needs and to save England from borrowing from its own people."

The present value of the debt settlements of France, Belgium and Italy were given by Mr. Mellon as $1,681,000,000, $192,000,000 and $426,000,000 respectively. He said the loans given to these countries after the war with interest amounted to $1,655,000,000; $258,000,000 and $800,000,000.

The secretary denied Mr. Peabody's contention that the advances to the European nations were offered as gifts and pointed out that with the exception of Russia each nation has recognized the debt and has offered to pay.

SOUTH IS SCENE OF OPENING FIRE IN G. O. P. FIGHT

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, July 17.—While President Coolidge fishes in the Adirondacks, republican politicians with ambitions are doing another sort of fishing or rather are casting about to see if they can fish profitably. Democrats will not be idle either.

The summer is always dull in the capital, but this summer promises to be lively politically in other sections of the country, not only because of the congressional elections this fall, but because of that other election two years hence toward which presidential-minded persons are beginning to look longingly.

The activity this summer will be of the speech-making and "feeler-conference" variety. Definite activity in the republican camp must wait until developments show just how strong Coolidge will be some months later and what he intends to do about another term, the latter of course depending somewhat upon the former.

Borah Speaks at Augusta.

The activity is just beginning. Senator Borah, of Idaho, always a potential presidential candidate, will open a summer speech-making campaign at Augusta, Ga., on Sunday, with an address on prohibition, while Speaker of the House "Nick" Longworth, from the pivotal state of Ohio, and C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to the president, are preparing for an automobile tour of the south, whose republican delegations were solidified behind Coolidge at the last republican convention by Slemp.

Republican votes in the south are negligible, but republican delegations in the nominating convention are highly necessary.

Borah will swing west later in the summer, and will level the guns of his oratory against the world court.

Other Speech Makers.

There will be other speech makers. Vice President Dawes intends to continue his campaign for revision of senate rules, regarded here as a dead issue. He may use the opportunity to talk on other topics. He is scheduled for an address in Indiana on farm relief. When the vice president deserted the administration on this issue some weeks ago, and joined the supporters of the McNary-Haugen bill, he was credited with presidential hopes, along with Senator Watson, of Indiana, and former Governor Lowden of Illinois.

Democrats are centering their attention on efforts to capture congress at the fall elections. If they do, the booms will begin to flourish. There is always talk of Governor Smith, of New York, and William G. McAdoo, whose delegations deadlocked each other out of the nomination in 1924. Recently, the friends of Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, have begun to talk again, and in a few months many others will be actively entered into the race by their friends.

MARKS IN BLOOD MAY INVOLVE TWO IN MACON SLAYING

BIBB COUNTY JAIL HEAVILY GUARDED

Macon, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—Bloody fingerprints found on the car in which Miss Hilda Smith and E. W. Wilson were shot to death a week ago tonight tally with those of Bars Davis, one of five men in the Bibb county jail, charged with violating the prohibition law, according to the report of a fingerprint expert to Sheriff J. R. Hicks tonight.

Bail has been refused for Davis, C. L. Cobb, C. C. (Preacher) Bonner, Joe Bonner and A. B. Bond, alias Barnes.

The sheriff failed in an effort this afternoon to obtain a further confession from Ed Glover, negro, held for the murder, and who has made a confession that he fired the shots that killed the couple. The negro said that he did not drive the car away from the scene.

Fingerprint experts found that the fingerprints on the windshield of the murder car were those of Glover. The blood-stained fingerprints found on a pay envelope, in which Miss Smith had drawn her pay the night of the killing, were identified as those of Davis, according to the fingerprint experts.

Grill Davis.

Sheriff's deputies admitted that they were endeavoring to obtain admissions from Davis, but thus far had not succeeded in breaking down his former statements. They obtained no additional information from the negro, Ed Glover, who confessed to the actual killing.

It has been known for several days that the sheriff's investigation has centered around Bars Davis, one of the first of the five white men arrested in the case, all of whom are still in jail without bail, though only a charge of violating the prohibition law has been placed against them.

Davis was alleged to have been in charge of the liquor distribution in the woods where the killing occurred. The theory has been advanced that

Divorce Suit Again Started By Symington

New York Millionaire Clubman Charges Wife Misconduct.

Belaire, Md., July 17.—(AP)—Thomas H. Symington, millionaire New York clubman, has filed suit here for an absolute divorce from his wife, Mrs. Ida May Symington, it was learned today. The suit was filed July 7 in the circuit court of Harford county acting in equity.

Mr. Symington charges misconduct on the part of his wife with Talbott Chambers and Maurice Fatio, of New York city, and "with divers others unknown to him."

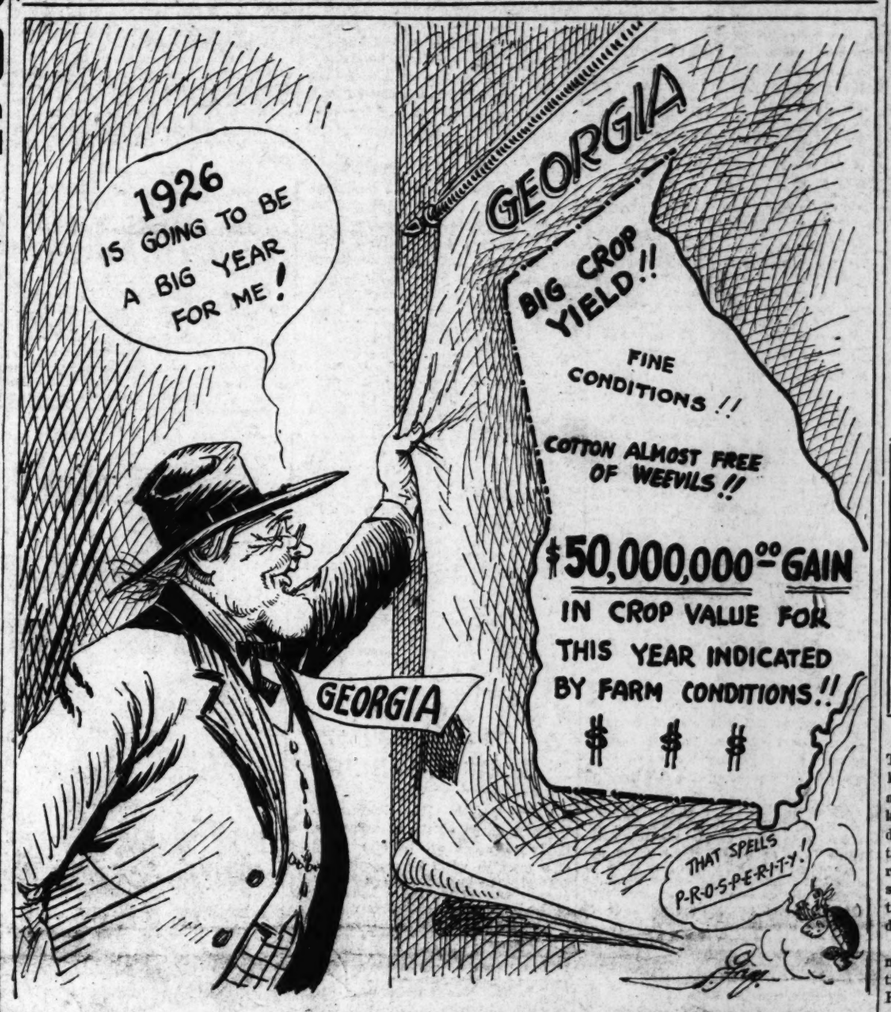

The suit is the second brought by the clubman against his wife within the past two years. Divorce proceedings instituted in New York in 1924 charged Mrs. Symington with misconduct and also named Chambers and Fatio.

In the bill filed here Mr. Symington stated that he and Mrs. Symington, formerly Mrs. Ida May Weber, of Massachusetts, were married at Falmouth, Mass., August 10, 1919 and that a second marriage was performed in New York city May 3, 1922.

No children have been born of the marriage, the bill states, but under the laws of New York, Mr. Symington in June, 1922, adopted Dorothea Weber, a daughter of Mrs. Symington by her former marriage.

Mrs. Ida May Symington is the clubman's second wife. He obtained a divorce from the former Miss Clare Randolph in Chicago in 1919, on the grounds of desertion. The suit was not contested.

FOUR QUESTIONED IN DARING MURDER OF CANTON EDITOR

Canton, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—Foiled at virtually every turn in his groping thus far for clues to the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher and anti-vice crusader, Chief of Police H. R. Lengel tonight began interviewing known leaders of the underworld in the hope of uncovering evidence.

Mellett was assassinated from ambush early yesterday at his home here. Police and investigators declare he was the victim of an underworld plot because of his unrelenting campaign, through the Canton Daily News of which he was editor, against vice and crime here.

No arrests were to be made at once, unless a definite clue is stumbled upon, he said, but those thought to have any possible information concerning the crime will be taken to police headquarters for questioning. Four alleged members of Canton's underworld were questioned this evening. So far as known the chief of police has no information from them which might lead to the arrest of the slayers.

Outside Help Sought.

Simultaneously Stark county and Canton authorities turned for help to special investigators. Although the censorship was still clamped down tight on the exact maneuvers of officials, it became evident during the afternoon that "outside help" would be sought. Conferences to this end have been arranged.

Unless the inquiry sweeps to a sudden climax within a few hours, bringing the murderer, several special investigations soon will be under way.

Representatives of former Governor James M. Cox, Dayton publisher and owner of the Canton Daily News, of which Mellett was resident publisher, and Mr. Cox and his associates "will not be satisfied or ready to have the matter dropped should local authorities fail to find the murderer."

Rewards offered for apprehension of the gunman who killed Mellett at his garage door early yesterday total $24,500. Included in the amount is

Britten Plans To Legalize Sea Weddings

Illinois Congressman Would Bar All Such Future Unions, However.

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The stir kicked up by the legal opinion of the shipping board that American skippers had no federal authority to perform marriage ceremonies at sea found a quick reaction today on Capitol Hill, where Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, announced he would press for legislation validating beyond question all such previous marriages but preventing them in the future.

Commerce department officials backed up the shipping board opinion, by asserting that, so far as federal authority goes, a stevedore has as much right to officiate at an ocean wedding as the captain of the Leviathan. However, it was pointed out, laws of the states where ships were documented might give the captains the legal power to satisfy the wishes of those desiring the romance of sea nuptials. As to the state laws no information was available, and the department of justice observed a discreet reluctance to comment on the situation.

Mr. Britten objected to what he termed the "glamor" attached to sea weddings. "Movie actresses, limelight artists, and others fond of free advertising," he said, "may court the idea of marriage aboard ship, in balloons and in airplanes. Marriages performed under such circumstances have a touch of frivolity and I can see no need in them."

It was agreed that the actions of sea captains in performing such ceremonies was the outgrowth of an age old custom. At the department of justice it was said no test of the validity of marriages under such circumstances ever had been made so far as known. n some quarters it was suggested that court action might be necessary to determine the question finally.

NO ALABAMA LAW ON SEA WEDDINGS.

Montgomery, Ala., July 17.—(AP)—While no provisions governing marriages at sea are incorporated in the Alabama statutes, a common-law marriage is held valid in the state, it was announced by Judge A. A. Evans, assistant state attorney general.

YOUNGSTOWN STEEL MILLS BREAK RECORD

Youngstown, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—Steel mill operations in the Youngstown district next week will break all records for the summer season, with the exception of world war years. It was revealed today in schedules made public by company officers.

The mills throughout the district will be running at an average of 85 to 90 per cent of capacity beginning Sunday night.

G. O. P. SECRETARY CALLED IN PROBE OF ILLINOIS VOTE

George E. Brennan and Others Asked To Testify When Primary Inquiry Opens July 26.

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—Roy O. West, secretary of the republican national committee, will be summoned to appear before one of the first sessions of the senate campaign fund investigating committee, which will begin an inquiry into the April senatorial primary in Illinois here on July 26.

Subpoenas for those to be heard at the Chicago sessions were received from Washington today by United States Marshal Palmer E. Anderson.

West, a Chicago lawyer, long has been a close political ally of United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, whose forces he led in the primary fight between Senator William B. McKinley and Frank L. Smith, the nominee.

Others for whom subpoenas have been received:

Samuel Insull, wealthy utility magnate.

George E. Brennan, democratic national committeeman from Illinois and Smith's opponent for the senate seat; William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago.

Charles V. Barrett, lawyer, and Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, who unite in leadership of a republican faction, and Edwin H. Wright, former president of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., July 17.—(AP)—Tom Mix, motion picture actor, was slightly injured near here today when he dropped 20 feet from a moving train during the filming of a picture.

The scenario called for Mix to jump from the train and catch a tunnel warning sign, hanging there until the train backed up to remove him. He lost his hold and dropped to the tracks, receiving a severe shaking up. His injuries, doctors said, were not serious.

TRAGEDY CAUSED BY SERMON ATTACK ON TEXAS MAYOR

Noted Pastor of Fort Worth Baptist Church Is Given Release Under $10,000 Bond.

CHIPPS WOUNDED BY THREE SHOTS

NORRIS ONCE CALLED TO ATLANTA CHURCH

The Rev. Frank Norris, who shot and killed E. D. Chipps in the study of his church in Fort Worth Saturday, is well known to Atlanta Baptist leaders. About 10 years ago he was tendered a call to the Baptist Tabernacle, but declined to accept and assumed the charge in Fort Worth, Texas. At that time he preached at the Atlanta church.

Fort Worth, Texas, July 17.—(AP) The Rev. J. Frank Norris, widely-known exponent of fundamentalism and revivalist theories, shot and killed D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumber dealer, in the office of the First Baptist church here late today. Mr. Norris, pastor of the church, immediately surrendered to authorities and told them he had shot Chipps in self-defense.

Murder was charged against the minister in a complaint filed in justice court by District Attorney R. K. Hanger, after Mr. Norris made a statement claiming that he shot Chipps in self-defense.

Authorities released him on $10,000 bond, furnished by friends and permitted the pastor to return to his home. He said he would preach his regular sermon tomorrow.

Story of Norris.

Mr. Norris, who is editor and publisher of The Searchlight, his personal organ, told newspapermen that Chipps came to his office and protested against statements he had made from his pulpit and printed in The Searchlight concerning Mayor H. C. Meacham, a friend of Chipps'. Asserting that he tried to "avoid trouble," the pastor said he found it was "necessary" for him to shoot to defend himself against Chipps.

Detectives after searching the personal effects of Chipps, who died soon after being taken to a hospital, said they found no weapon. He had been shot three times.

Police announced the pistol used by Mr. Norris was found in the church office. It was empty.

Threat Is Alleged.

In his statement to newspapermen in the district attorney's office, the

BOYCOTT IS URGED IN RELIGIOUS ROW

Mexico City, July 17.—(AP)—The National League of Defense of Religious Freedom has announced plans for a vigorous campaign throughout Mexico against the new religious regulations when they become effective July 31. It is declared the league intends to produce an intense economic crisis, thus forcing the government to cease enforcement of the regulations.

A circular issued by the legislative committee of the league appeals to all "liberty loving" Mexican people to open a campaign beginning July 31 to "create a grave situation, paralyzing as much as possible the economic and social life of the country."

The circular urges Mexican citizens to carry out a joint boycott by refusing to buy newspapers and refusing to advertise in newspapers not supporting the league, silence being considered a lack of support.

The people also are called upon to avoid luxuries, buying only first necessities and these in the smallest possible quantities; avoid use of automobiles and other vehicles, refrain from attending private and public amusements, use the least possible amount of electricity, refuse to send their children to the public schools and become active propagandists for the boycott, punishing those who attempt to break or weaken the campaign.

"These drastic measures need to scare or awaken the scruples of the people, because it is a life or death struggle being carried out against the Catholic church of Mexico," the circular says.

SIX CATHOLIC SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Mexico City, July 17.—(AP)—Dispatches from Puebla say that representatives of the federal government closed six Catholic schools there, charged with having violated the constitution by teaching religion.

Considerable excitement was caused when troops searched the churches for foreign priests while services were being held, the dispatches say. The search was fruitless, they add.

Vera Cruz dispatches say 50 nuns, two of them Mexican, and the others believed to be mostly Spanish, sailed for Havana on the steamer Cristobal Colon. Seven Spanish priests were also on board, leaving the country because of the religious situation.

MARY AND DOUG WAIT TWO DAYS ON RUSSIAN TRAIN

Warsaw, July 17.—(AP)—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks spent two days here waiting for the train to Moscow which runs only three times a week.

They will remain only three days in Russia and then will return to New York by way of Poland and Germany with Miss Pickford's mother who has not been well. The American couple had planned to go to Japan directly from Moscow, by way of Siberia, but the poor health of Miss Pickford's mother, who has been left in Germany, caused them to postpone their Japanese trip.

Mr. Fairbanks and his wife are investigating the possibilities of opening a studio in Europe, but have formed no definite plans for this as yet. They were going to Moscow to try to arrange for the direct sale of their pictures which, until now, have been handled through German agents.

On their return from Russia they will take with them the Polish actor, M. Ordynski, who will work in their studio in the United States on Polish stories.

DESTROYER FINDS DESERTED CRAFT

Philadelphia, July 17.—(AP)—The destroyer Childs, which arrived here today with naval reservists from battle maneuvers off the New England coast, reported having picked up an abandoned motor speedboat off Montauk Point, L. I., last Thursday with 105 five-gallon cans of alcohol. The boat and contents were turned over to the coast guard station at Montauk Point.

Some of the cans were spattered with what appeared to be blood and the raincoats and hats found in the boat seemed to have been cut with a knife.

Seaman Arrested as Runaway

:: HAD HARD TIME PROVING HE WAS INNOCENT ::

Husband on Woman's Mistake

San Francisco, July 17.—Thrown into jail five weeks ago on the unsupported word of a woman who claimed him as a runaway husband, Robert Hamilton at last has proved that he is not the man wanted. Now he is stranded in a strange city, penniless and hunting for a job.

The woman in the case is Mrs. Belle Clyde. Hamilton came ashore from his ship, a Puget sound lumber schooner, to attend a movie. Mrs. Clyde had him arrested on a charge of grand larceny. She claimed the seaman married her in 1923 and then deserted her after borrowing $1,000 from her father.

Hamilton said he "never even had a sweetheart, let alone marrying anybody." He was in the army, stationed in Hawaii, at the time of the alleged marriage, he explained. But he was locked up in the city prison and his ship sailed without him.

In the five weeks since his arrest Hamilton has gathered photographs of his company, taken in Hawaii four days before the supposed marriage, witnesses who were with him in the islands at that time, and army records showing he had had no furlough which would have enabled him to visit the mainland. It was on this evidence that the court dismissed the case.

Former Veteran Missing; $13,000 Awaits Return

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Listed on the roster of missing men at the veterans' bureau is Frank Vincent, formerly of Riverton, Neb., who has $13,000 in compensation and automatic insurance to his credit. He was last heard of in October, 1920, in Kansas City, Mo., where he had been selling lead pencils.

Fearing that he may have been committed to an institution without identification, the bureau tonight called upon its regional offices and field hospitals to aid in the search.

Since his disappearance, Vincent's father has died, and his mother, now over 80 years old, crippled from paralysis, is unable to obtain government aid because of a provision that a man must be missing seven years before he can be declared officially dead.

Vincent, as a member of the Wyoming national guard, was injured in April, 1917, by the accidental discharge of his rifle at Crystal Lake, Wyo., the bones of his left foot were shattered and subsequent bloodpoisoning necessitated its amputation below the knee. The poison spread to his right arm and that also was amputated. He was discharged August 15, 1917, on a surgeon's certificate of disability. If living, Vincent is 37 years old. He had dark brown hair, blue eyes, fair complexion and was five feet seven inches tall. He used an artificial leg.

WOMEN BLAMED FOR POPULARITY OF SEX NOVELS

Boston, Mass., July 17.—The sex novel, with which the market is flooded today, is the result of a demand on the part of the feminine public, according to Professor Robert E. Rogers, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Professor Rogers, who is a member of the English staff of M. I. T., believes that men prefer the more serious type of book. They often devote most of their reading time to classical and instructive works, he says, while women, in most cases, will take the sex novel in preference to the standard work.

The public libraries are catering, according to the professor, to the people of ordinary intelligence, to nine-tenths of the population.

Such writers as Bocaccio should be included in the modern libraries as well as medical books and classical works for students in various lines of research, if the professor's suggestions for libraries are followed.

BISHOP WILL ADDRESS STEWARDS OF ATLANTA

Bishop W. B. Beauchamp will be principal speaker at the meeting of the Atlanta Methodist Stewards' association Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at St. John's church at Georgia and Central avenues. Other speakers will include Judge John D. Humphries, president of the association, and John M. Slaton, vice president.

Prince and Wife Are Entertained By Navajo Dance

Shiprock, San Juan Indian Agency, New Mexico, July 15.—(AP)—Swedish royalty rested tonight in the heart of the Navajo Indian country before continuing a journey that shall take them tomorrow into Mesa Verde national park, the center of some of the most historic of all aboriginal ruins in the United States.

Tonight, on the banks of the San Juan river, the royal pair were entertained by a Navajo Indian "squaw" dance. In this dance the squaw becomes the aggressor, choosing her dancing partner from the bucks surrounding the dance ground and claiming a forfeit of money from him in the event he is unwilling to continue as her partner. Since his arrival in this country the prince has been looking forward eagerly to an inspection of the cliff dwellers' ruins in the Mesa Verde. The most outstanding of this group are the cliff palace, more than 300 feet long; spruce tree house, more than 200 feet long and containing 114 rooms, and the sun and fire temples, seats of religious worship by the ancient folk.

Superintendent Nusbaum, who has pioneered in the work of excavating the ancient ruins, will be the prince's guide throughout the trip, and hopes that the Swedish heir, an ardent archaeologist, may add something to the already existing knowledge and theories on the life of these prehistoric peoples.

NEW "MESSIAH" OF FASHION PLATE SEEN BY BISHOP

Chicago, July 17.—Krishnamurti, the new christ of the theosophists, is likely to upset all popular pictures of a messiah when he arrives in Chicago this summer with Dr. Annie Besant who is making a lecture tour of America with her protege.

Fashionably turned out in neat Oxford bags and wearing a monocle, Krishnamurti will speak with crisp Oxford accents—perhaps between puffs of a cigarette—according to a description offered by Bishop Fisher, of Calcutta, who is here attending a world service meeting of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"On the theory that proper education and training would create a new Messiah," Bishop Fisher said, "the theosophists took Krishnamurti as a baby and prepared him carefully for the difficult role he will have to perform. They sent him to Oxford for his education and he returned well coached, fastidiously dressed, an intelligent young fellow but artificial and none too deeply religious.

"With Ghandi it was different. He was a successful lawyer before he was influenced by the life of Tolstoi. He sacrificed everything to head the movement against modern industrialism.

MANY ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RAIDS

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., July 17.—(AP)—Federal prohibition officers, armed with warrants for arrests and search warrants, swooped down on this city last night in one of the largest raids ever staged in this vicinity and arrested 28 men on charges of violating the prohibition laws, captured a number of automobiles and a quantity of liquor, said to have been mostly homebrew.

Citizens who chanced to be nearby were deputized to assist in guarding the prisoners and liquor, according to witnesses and the prisoners, numbering seven negroes and 21 white men, were loaded into cars and taken to Fort Pierce. A large van was used for the negroes. The agents established headquarters on one of the main thoroughfares to which the prisoners were brought as arrested and hundreds of spectators gathered about during the raids which lasted hours.

Miami, Fla., July 17.—(AP)—Prohibition agents, narcotic inspectors and secret service men returning here today from Fort Lauderdale, unofficially reported the capture of 29 prisoners, several automobiles, a truck, a boat and a quantity of liquor in a series of raids in that city and Broward county last night.

The officers, working in several groups, were unable to give the names of any prisoners and refused to divulge the nature of the raids. The drive was said to have been the result of several months investigation by the three government forces through this section.

LIST OF DEAD IN HOTEL FIRE RAISED TO 17

Haines Falls, N. Y., July 17.—(AP) The list of known dead in the fire which destroyed Twilight Inn here early Wednesday was increased today to seventeen, with the finding of portions of two more bodies in the ruins and the death of Mrs. Frederick Backus, of Forest Hills, L. I.

Rose-Pink Lingerie Find

:: SCOTLAND YARD ATTEMPTS TO UNRAVEL MYSTERY ::

Leads to Murder Theory

London, July 17.—A squad of Scotland Yard detectives are trying to unravel what newspapers call "the mystery of the rose-pink lingerie."

A complete set of expensive clothes, apparently taken off by a woman and folded neatly, was found near a hedge in a field at Little Totham, Essex.

Everything was there—dainty chine underwear, beige silk stockings, a flowered cretonne frock, a picture hat, and a pair of new gloves. Everything but the woman.

There are three theories regarding the discovery, murder, suicide, and a practical joke, but there is no body, and while a woman's footprints lead up to the spot where the clothing was found, there are no footprints leading away from it.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—A galaxy of American millionaires sailed today for Europe on the Majestic.

J. P. Morgan, head of the banking house of that name, sailed with Charles Steel, one of his partners; Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, left for a tour of France and Italy, and Clarence W. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company, was bound for a hunting trip to Scotland.

Another passenger was William S. Vare, victor in the recent senatorial primary fight in Pennsylvania. Mr. Vare and Mr. Mellon shook hands cordially as they met on board. Mr. Vare, who was traveling with his daughter, Miss Beatrice, said, "we are going over like most people, just for a vacation and I don't want to talk politics."

Mr. Mackay also sought to avoid avoid newspaper men but finally was prevailed to come from his suite, and said: "I am going abroad for a holiday and I hope you have nice vacations. Good-bye and God bless you."

Others who sailed were Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British consul general in New York; Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, and Mrs. Edge; John Hays Hammond, Jr., and Count Laslos Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States.

JUGO-SLAVIA FLOODS ALARMING OFFICIALS

Belgrade, July 17.—The flood situation in Sombor, in the province of Batchka, has reached alarming proportions.

Troops were dispatched there today to construct dykes to prevent the flood waters, which have caused thousands of dollars of damage to crops and other property in Jugo-Slavia within the past 24 hours, from flooding other cities and villages.

Members of the cabinet have arrived on the scene to personally direct relief measures. The Danube river is swollen as a result of heavy rains and has inundated large harvest areas.

As yet no confirmation has been obtained of reports that 54 persons had been drowned when the dykes between Apatin and Neusatz broke.

Cloudbursts have disrupted railway, telegraph and telephone communication between Oujitze and Sarejova.

It is estimated that the cloudbursts have inundated 40,000 acres in addition to those areas which were flooded during the past month.

TAYLORSVILLE CHURCH IS WITHOUT PASTOR

Taylorsville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The local Baptist church is again without a pastor. Rev. J. H. Harris, of Cave Spring, who recently accepted a call to the church, has resigned for the purpose of opening a college for girls in northern Illinois.

BELGIUM ASSUMES CONTROL OF RAILWAYS

Brussels, July 17.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today voted 98 to 4 for a bill providing for the industrialization of the state railways, which will not be operated privately. The measure is part of the government's scheme to aid in stabilizing Belgian finances.

The chamber, after passing the bill, adjourned until October 19, leaving King Albert with full power to issue any decrees he and the Jasper cabinet may deem necessary in financial matters.

BUTTS COUNTY BANKS ARE IN FINE SHAPE

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) The banks of Butts county are in splendid condition, as revealed by the statements just made on the call of the superintendent of banks. Deposits are holding up well for the summer season and the total resources show the institutions to be in a sound and healthy condition.

There are three banks in Jackson and one at Jenkinsburg and two at Flovilla. Butts county enjoys the unique distinction of never having had a bank failure in its entire history.

HARBOR SURVEY IN SOUTH ORDERED

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Commander R. S. Patton, chief of the division of charts of the coast and geodetic survey, has been ordered to a number of cities on the southeastern and gulf coasts to confer with local officials relative to the charts of their harbors. He will visit Savannah, Jacksonville, Palm Beach, Miami, Mobile, Gulfport and New Orleans.

The object of the trip will be to discover whether any changes, either natural or artificial, have taken place in the harbors and in event any such changes are found they will be indicated on the harbor charts, thus obviating the necessity of sending survey parties to these ports.

FRANKLIN SEDAN

NEW PRICE $2790

FULLY EQUIPPED F.O.B. FACTORY

A Matchless Concentration of All that is Finest and Farthest Advanced in Motor Cars

PAY more if you want to. But you cannot get finer materials—more careful workmanship—smarter and more enduring style. And you cannot get as much comfort—as easy handling—or cover as many miles in a day!

Pay less if you have to. You can get transportation. You can get a good standardized appearance. You may possibly equal Franklin's 18 to 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. But you cannot get the true and eventually greater economy that lies in Franklin's ability to keep out of the repair-shops, and in its exceptionally low depreciation—you cannot get the serene satisfaction and pride that only a fine car can give!

Concentrated in the Franklin Sedan today are more clear-cut performance advantages—more advanced construction and design—more sheer owner delight—than in any other car in the world. And its new price is the lowest by far at which any fully equipped Franklin Sedan has ever sold!

Aviation Proves Supremacy of Air-Cooling

No other sedan is cooled as the newest airplanes are—as Byrd's North Pole engines were—by air: no radiator worry, work or expense!

No other sedan has so many means of dissipating road bumps—of securing comfort. Franklin has not only balloon tires, Watson Stabilators, four-point body suspension and the deepest seat-cushion springs, but—far more important—full-elliptic springs, a flexible chassis frame, less proportionate weight below the springs than any other!

Exclusive Features Give Greatest Roadability

No other sedan has so many features to take the strain and exertion out of driving. It has less bulk—less weight—to hamper the driver, than any other of equal size—it has a steering-gear that allows it to turn with one-finger pressure—it has an extremely low-hung body—it has the marvelous non-skid transmission brake: surest, fastest, easiest-operating of all!

What these features mean in sustained speed over the road, Franklin's long list of road records bears witness. What they mean in economy, Franklin's life-long reputation for low upkeep costs testifies. And what they mean in endurance is shown by this: 75% of all Franklins built in 25 years are still in service!

A trial drive will demonstrate what Franklin principles do—and what an amazing value the Franklin Sedan at $2790 is. Come in and make the motoring discovery of your life—today!

The latest Franklin can be owned on terms which make it the wisest investment and the easiest fine car purchase today.

FILIPINOS DEMAND REMOVAL OF WOOD

BY PARKE BROWN.
(Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Manila, July 17.—The Philippine legislature, under weight of the apparent hostility of some leaders to Governor General Leonard Wood, has created a situation which will preclude the enactment of any legislation which the governor general proposed in his message yesterday.

"An impasse exists and will continue to exist as long as General Wood is governor," said one of the biggest politicians in the Philippine Islands.

"The legislature will not pass any law asked by Governor Wood because of the feeling against him and since it is impossible to remove the legislature, the only cure for a bad situation, hurtful both to the United States and the Philippines, is the removal of Governor Wood.

"The contrast in the feeling of the natives toward Governor General Wood and Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, President Coolidge's representative, was shown in the applause given the latter and the silence that greeted the former before the legislature; also the manifest attitude of the leaders that they will join Colonel Thompson to support any legislation he recommends, insuring its passage."

Some of the more radical independencistas sometime say that any step for the development of the country with American capital will be blocked until independence is assured, but this is considered more the result of emotionalism than cool judgment, the latter promising the modification of the laws to permit rubber development particularly.

ROY D'AUTREMONT SUSPECT ARRESTED

Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 17.—(AP) A man supposed by police to be Roy D'Autremont, wanted for bandit operations in Oregon and other states, was arrested by state police near Gabriels today. According to officers he was found living in a farm house and answered descriptions of the sought for bandit. He was taken to the state police barracks at Malone for questioning.

Opium Discovery Causes Dismissal Of Secretary

New York, July 17.—(AP)—A. S. Saavedra, vice president of Bolivia, was on his way home today, his departure closely following but not hastened by announcement that a package of opium had been found in his hotel suite.

As he left it was announced that passage on the American Legion had already been arranged before a search by federal agents revealed the presence of the opium, existence of which was not known to the Bolivian official or any of his party. Dr. Saavedra was said to feel the incident keenly, although there was no question of any guilt attaching to his party.

Search of the rooms and luggage of Reyes Ortiz, secretary of the vice president, was agreed to by the Bolivians as soon as the situation was explained to them and a 25-pound box of opium was found.

Ortiz explained that he had agreed to bring the package to New York for Jose V. Claure, a fellow countryman he had met in Mexico. Claure was said to have boasted of his cleverness in using an official mission, not subject to customs inspection, for smuggling opium into the United States and his loquacity caused investigation which resulted in the seizure. He was held in jail in Laredo, Texas, today.

Dr. Saavedra had come here to express the thanks of his country to Americans for having sent a special representative to the inaugural ceremonies of the Bolivian president.

Alberto Palacios, Bolivian consul general, announced tonight that Dr. Saavedra had discharged Ortiz from his staff, "notwithstanding that the embassy as well as the American authorities who have investigated the case, believe that Ortiz is absolutely innocent in this case." Dr. Saavedra, the statement said, has sent Ortiz to Bolivia on the steamer Essequibo so that the former secretary "may explain the matter to the Bolivian government."

ANOTHER WARRANT ISSUED IN MURDER

Boston, July 17.—A warrant for the arres of Dr. J. Leo Hanson, Back Bay physician, was issued here late Saturday in connection with the death of Miss Edith Louise Greene, 19-year-old hospital attache.

The warrant, issued at the behest of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, charges Hanson with being an accessory after the fact to the illegal operation that proved fatal to the young woman. Detectives were immediately sent from the district attorney's office in search of the Back Bay doctor.

Five arrests already have been made since Miss Greene's dismembered body was discovered early Tuesday in two cardboard boxes and a burlap bag near a Mattapan cemetery.

Unable to procure a $15,000 bond, Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, of the South End, was still in the city prison tonight, awaiting appearance in superior court Monday on an illegal surgery charge. His wife, Marion, who was arrested with him, had been freed under $2,000 bail.

Others under arrest in connection with the case are "Jimmy" Ford, the dead girl's suitor; his brother, William, and Thomes Tierney, a cousin of Dr. Walsh.

NO SETTLEMENT REACHED IN STRIKE IN NEW YORK CITY

Mamoroneck, L. I., July 17.—Harrassed New Yorkers apparently must continue to suffer further inconvenience caused by the strike of the Interborough Rapid Transit company's motormen, switchmen and power men.

Delegates of the striking subway employees quit a conference with Colonel Herman A. Metz, the public's representative on the I. R. T. directorate, here tonight without having come to a settlement.

The strike leaders insisted on recognition of the new union. This was taken under advisement by I. R. T. delegates and the conference which had lasted 45 minutes, was ended.

Coolidge Presents Al Smith With Three-Pound Pike

PRESIDENT SEES RESCUE OF BOYS

Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 17.—(AP) The relations between President Coolidge and Governor Alfred E. Smith of this state, which had formal expression yesterday in a luncheon at the summer white house when the governor welcomed the president to the Adirondacks, were marked today by Mr. Coolidge sending his compliments to Mr. Smith along with a three-pound pike.

The fish was caught by the president this morning in Sogood lake from the footbridge before White Pine camp, and he sent it, while yet alive, by Secretary Everett Sanders to the governor at Paul Smith's hotel. The governor expressed his appreciation heartily and asked that his compliments be conveyed to the president. He then had the pike taken to the lawn before the hotel and was photographed with it.

President Coolidge caught the pike after fishing for a few minutes from the footbridge, soon after he had witnessed the rescue from the lake of four youths whose sailboat had capsized in a heavy blow a quarter of a mile from shore.

Attracted by the cries of the boys, who included Wilfred L. McDougald, son of Senator McDougald, of the Canadian parliament, whose camp adjoins the summer white house, and three of his companions, 16 and 17 years old, Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, medical officer of the presidential yacht Mayflower, and three secret service men guarding Mr. Coolidge picked them up.

The young men had been in the water several minutes before they were rescued and were thoroughly chilled and exhausted. They had recovered by night, however.

Except for the brief period of fishing, President Coolidge spent the day for the most part on government business, a considerable amount of departmental routine from Washington requiring his attention as well as a heavy mail from the capital and different sections of the country. Spending several hours at his desk, the day presented one of the heaviest he has had to devote to government affairs since he came here nearly two weeks ago. Mr. Sanders was with him much of the time and remained for lunch.

The president and Mrs. Coolidge plan to attend services tomorrow morning at the Saranac Lake Presbyterian church, where they went last Sunday.

Indications now point to their leaving for the president's boyhood home in Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, to be gone for several days.

HUNDREDS FIGHT INCENDIARY FIRES IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, July 17.—(AP)—The torch of the incendiary figured today as a new element in a destructive spread of forest and brush fires in California. Eleven of these fires, set with malice aforethought, were engaging the sweltering toil of hundreds of fighters tonight in two great government timber preserves, the Klamath and the Trinity.

Far to the south a fire of great sweep is raging in the grass and brush lands north and west of the Techachapi valley. Another series of fires is working toward the rich holding of the Walker Lumber company in the Redding region, in northern California. A great blaze, bordering the Lassen Volcanic National park, is sending up flames so high from the pitch field brush that many thought last night that Lassen peak, the only active volcano in the United States, was in a new eruption.

DURKIN'S MOTHER STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR TRIAL FUNDS

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Hattie Durkin, mother of Martin J. Durkin, recently convicted of killing a federal agent and given 35 years in prison, and now awaiting trial on another murder charge, today opened an advertising campaign to raise $2,000 for a new trial, for her son.

Her advertisement, appearing under the heading of "personals" in local newspapers, reads, "Help! Help! Help! I need help to get a new trial for my son; any contributions will be gratefully received. Mrs. Hattie Durkin." Durkin's attorney said the advertising campaign already had met with successful results.

STEAMER RACES SAN JUAN BANKER TO HOSPITAL

Baltimore, Md., July 17.—(AP)—Azelino Vincente, banker and shipper of San Juan, Porto Rico, was in Johns Hopkins hospital for an operation tonight after the steamer Cornelia had raced 300 miles out of its course to place him in an ambulance which met the ship at a Locust Point pier. The Cornelia bumped the pier only long enough for the banker to be carried off and then proceeded to New York, its destination. Vicente is a veteran of the Spanish-American war. He lost a leg while facing American troops.

DRIVER OF TRUCK IS BADLY INJURED NEAR MONTEZUMA

Montezuma, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—H. H. Stonica, 40, a resident of the Ideal district, suffered probably fatal injuries Saturday afternoon when a truck he was driving turned over, pinning him underneath. His back was broken and he is paralyzed from the waist down.

He was carried to the hospital in Plains. The accident occurred at a sharp curve near Underwood's mill.

Ford Runs 57 Miles on Gallon of "Gas"

A new automatic and self-regulating device has been invented by John A. Stransky, H-534 Stransky Building, Pukwana, South Dakota, with which automobiles have made from 35 to 57 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It removes carbon and reduces spark plug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Mr. Stransky wants distributors and is willing to send a sample at his own risk. Write him today.

No Disturbance In Radio Field Seen for Present

Washington, July 17.—Most radio fans can tune in this summer without fear of disturbance from too many broadcasters, despite the freedom of the air from any kind of regulation.

New York and Chicago principally will be worried by the confusion which has developed as a result of the court decision depriving Secretary of Commerce Hoover of regulatory powers, and the rest of the country will be comparatively peaceful.

The majority of radio fans touch only local stations in the summer, because of the static, and Chicago and New York are the only areas where programs are being broadcast on duplicated wave lengths. Within a 60-mile radius of New York there are 40 stations, and nearly as many in Chicago and the immediate vicinity.

A new license issued today to Peter Prinz, Jamaica, complicated the New York situation still further. Numerous stations using low wave lengths also have changed to higher wave lengths, in order to reach more people, causing further confusion.

The department of commerce cannot stop this practice. The only recourse is self-regulation of the industry or private lawsuits for damages.

Though there will be a respite in most parts of the country during the summer, trouble will begin again in the fall, when static disappears and the radio becomes popular again. Hoover hopes that congress will pass a regulatory bill soon after it convenes in December.

INDIAN TRIBES BEGIN FESTIVAL TO "SUN GOD"

Pocatello, Idaho, July 17.—(AP)—Indian ceremonial of the ages was revived here tonight when a score of braves of the Shoshone and Bannock tribes began their homage to the sun god.

As the slanting rays of the sun left the bottomland meadow on the old Fort Hall Indian reservation, the beat of tom-toms signalized the beginning of the three-day religious festival. Four years ago the government agents stopped the sun god ceremonies on the ground that part of the ceremonial involved torture to the principals, but on the promise that this part would be omitted, the Indians were allowed again in the fashion of their fathers to return their thanks to the sun god for his blessings, and implore his continued good graces.

MOTHER REVEALS HOW SON LOST LIFE IN BLAST

Dover, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—The nation learned today how a hero's mother can bear her greatest loss when the deposition of Mrs. Laura Clarke was introduced at the naval court of inquiry into the Lake Denmark disaster. Her son, accompanied by Lieutenant Commander Brown, speeded in an automobile to the fire which started the inferno in a futile attempt to prevent its spread to thousands of tons of high explosives.

"I realized they had just got to the building when the first explosion came," she told a friend who called to offer sympathy. "I knew then what had happened, and I knew my boy was there leading the procession."

Mrs. Brown, wife of the commander, courageously drove Mrs. Clarke and 10 others out of the danger zone.

TWO KILLED, ONE HURT AS DITCH CAVES IN

Winchester, Tenn., July 17.—(AP)—Albert Hall and Arthur Allen were crushed to death and George Kelley was severely injured by the cave-in of a wall of a drainage ditch they were digging in the garden of a neghbor, Dillard Harrison, near Marble Hill, yesterday.

Thomas Hall, father of one of the victims, was standing on the bank of the ditch watching operations below when the side of the ditch gave way and buried his son before his eyes.

COTTON TEXTILE INSTITUTE SEEN

Charlotte, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—The general committee from the cotton textile industry that will meet in New York city on July 21 to report plans for the creation of the proposed cotton textile institute, will probably be the most representative gathering of cotton manufacturers ever held in the United States, Stuart W. Cramer, Cramerton, N. C., a member of the committee of 10, declared tonight.

"The structure and functioning of similar organizations in other industries have been extensively studied by the committee for several weeks, said Mr. Cramer, "and many plans have been considered for embodying their best features into the proposed cotton textile institute.

"As would naturally be expected with the wide diversity of production and almost nation-wide geographical location of the units, the cotton textile industry is in almost in a class by itself, but, there are certain underlying principles common to all such trade bodies that have passed the stage of experimentation and whose activities are strictly within the law, which it is believed can be adapted to the needs of the textile industry to bring about a sane and decent and cooperative competition instead of the cut-throat situation that now exists."

Woman Falls In Own Home, Dies in Hour

Mrs. D. S. Butler, 58, of 364 Welborn street, slipped and fell in her home early Saturday night. She was rushed to Grady hospital in an unconscious condition and died an hour later without regaining consciousness. Doctors stated that she died from internal injuries and concussion of the brain.

According to information given to hospital attaches, Mrs. Butler was alone in the room when she fell. Her son, D. S. Butler, Jr., heard her fall and rushed to her aid, only to find her lying on the floor, unconscious. The Grady hospital ambulance was summoned but she never regained consciousness.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Interment will be in Sandy Springs cemetery.

BUTTS COUNTY CROPS BEST SEEN IN YEARS

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Despite heavy damage to the cotton crop caused by the ravages of the flea or hopper, crop prospects in Butts county are better than in a number of years. Present indications point to a large corn, hay, pea and forage crop. Corn planted after hairy vetch is particularly promising and some bumper yields are predicted.

The pimiento pepper crop is somewhat late, owing to the failure of growers to secure plants in the early spring. Good rains have recently fallen in most sections of the county, though there are some areas where complaint is heard on account of dry weather.

The out-turn of the cotton crop is still problematical, but farmers and business men are optimistic and with favorable seasons from now on the 1926 crop will be the best produced here in a long time.

VEGETABLE QUARANTINE HURTS GEORGIA FARMS

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Vegetable growers of Butts county are informed by the state entomologist that shipments of beans and peas will not be accepted for Florida points, owing to the quarantine against this section of the state. The cause of the quarantine against northeast Georgia is due to the bean beetle, it is announced.

Farmers of the county now have an abundance of fresh peas and beans and when shipments were offered the express company they were refused. Protests made by the Kiwanis club and other agencies have not been effective. Vegetable growers stand to lose a considerable amount by reason of the Florida quarantine against Georgia vegetables.

BUTTS COUNTY PEACH CROP REPORTED FINE

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Peach growers of Butts county are now shiping fruit in car lots. The peach movement will be heavy for several days yet, as the late varieties ripen.

The fruit is of an exceptionally fine quality and growers expect the best season they have had in a number of years.

QUAKE RECORDED AT GEORGETOWN

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—A "very pronounced" earthquake beginning at 10:25 a. m. today and continuing until 12:05 p. m. was recorded on the Georgetown university seismograph. It reached its maximum at 10:56, and was estimated by Director Tondorf at 5,000 miles from Washington.

Annual Political Institute Opens Meeting July 29

Williamstown, Mass., July 17.—(AP) Certain "sensitive areas" in western Europe, eastern Asia and Latin America will be focus points for discussion at the sessions of the sixth annual institute of politics. International difficulties arising from competition in raw materials will be the predominant note of the session, according to Dr. Walter A. MacLaren, executive secretary of the institute, following an announcement of the program by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president.

Organized to crystallize the opinions of experts in international economic, political and scientific problems, so that the formation of public opinion may be guided by their conclusions, the institute of politics, convening here from July 29 to August 26, will number between 200 and 300 outstanding Europeans and Americans.

Disarmament and security, competition for raw materials and its effect on public opinion and world affairs, and the future role of chemistry in world problems will be among the subjects discussed. The most distinguished Europeans on the list of speakers are Dr. Albert E. Zimmerman, former commissioner general in Austria for the League of Nations, and Nicholas Politis, now minister to France. Dr. Albrecht Mendelssohn Bartholdy, professor of law at Hamburg university; Sir Frederick Whyte, president of the Indian legislative assembly from 1920 to 1925; Sir James Colquhoun Irvine, president of the University of St. Andrews, Scotland; Dr. Umberto Pomilio, of Naples; M. Justin Dupont, of Paris, and Dr. Moritz J. Brown, of Berlin, are other Europeans who will speak.

On one day of each week, the general conference on public opinion is world affairs will resolve itself into a forum presided over by Arthur S Draper, assistant editor of The New York Herald-Tribune, for discussions of statements made either in the conference or in round table sessions.

Speakers at these sessions will be Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press; Hal O'Flaherty, foreign editor of The Chicago Daily News; James Brown, president of Editor and Publisher, and Willis Abbott, editor of The Christian Science Monitor.

EIGHT KNOWN DEAD IN WISCONSIN STORM

Ashland, Wis., July 17.—A toll of eight known dead, more than a score of injured and heavy property losses have been taken by a cyclone which has been followed by a heat wave in the Lake Superior region of northern Wisconsin and northern Minnesota.

Two young men and a boy were killed in the farming district near here by a cyclone which swept across the northern part of the state last night, bringing with it a heavy torrent of rain and huge hailstones. Two other young women were reported killed and an elderly woman was missing.

A heat wave, believed caused by the storm was spreading over the northern region today, claiming three victims. One was drowned at Minneapolis while seeking relief. Two persons, one at St. Paul and another at Red Wing, Minn., were overcome by heat and died.

THREE DEAD IN HEAT WAVE.

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—Slightly moderated temperatures today gave the middle west and northwestern states some relief from yesterday's hot sun, which in many sections broke records of a quarter century standing. Temperatures of 100 degrees and better were prevalent throughout the northwestern states, while the mercury ranged from 85 to 95 in the middle west.

Two deaths from heat were reported here, while Minneapolis reported the only death attributed to the heat yesterday.

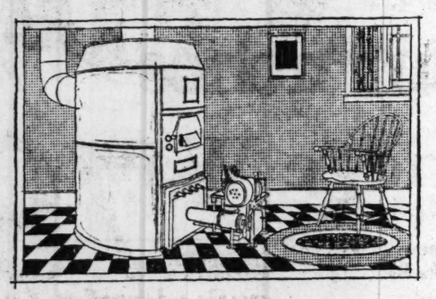

SENATOR ODDIE ON HUNTING TRIP ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Reno, Nevada, July 17.—(AP)—United States Senator Tasker Oddie, of Nevada, was painfully but not seriously injured while on a hunting trip in the wilds of northern Washington, of that state, yesterday.

A shot from a shotgun fired by a fellow hunter struck him in the face below the left eye. Some of the spreading buckshot also struck his breast.

The senator was hunting for sage hen with a party of Reno business men.

Only $50 down

YOU can place the Quiet May in your home with a first payment of only $50—and with no further payment until October! The balance will be extended over a period of one year.

The Quiet May is completely automatic. It heats your home adequately, dependably. Once you've set the thermostat for the temperature you desire, you have only to see that the oil man fills the tank regularly—and your heating troubles are over. Its mechanism is so simple as to be really trouble-proof.

It frees you forever from the dirt and worry of a coal furnace; from early morning struggles with a bed of ashen coals; from the odious task of bedding down the same furnace every night.

Because it rids your cellar of soot and coal dust, the Quiet May gives you an extra room which you can use as a billiard room, or a play room for your children. And it does away with the expense of keeping a furnaceman, with the tyranny of uncertain coal prices.

But perhaps the most welcome feature of the Quiet May is its noiselessness. It is really quiet. It is safe, conforming to all local fire regulations.

Experts to Make All Installations

Experts will install the Quiet May in your home. And if any adjustment should become necessary later on, these same men will give you the benefit of their expert service. You could not buy any oil burner under conditions more favorable.

Investigate this amazing offer! Settle your heating problems now, while there is plenty of time to provide your home with the steady, unfaltering heat of the Quiet May, the perfected oil burner! Mail the coupon today or telephone us for complete information.

Please send me, without obligation, your booklet, "Taking the Quest out of the Question," and full information about your new payment plan. Dept. 8

HAVERTY HOME LIFE CAMPAIGN INDORSED

Indorsement of the advertising campaign of the Haverty Furniture company, which is designed to educate the public to the benefits of beautifying the home and making home life attractive to children and young people, was given Saturday by Mrs. Newton C. Wing, prominent Atlanta woman.

Mrs. Wing declared that she felt that any move which would tend to create a greater interest in home life was commendable, and especially so when a private business took it upon itself to make efforts in this direction.

"I think the idea is a splendid one and worthy of highest praise," Mrs. Wing said. "While too much cannot be said about the value of beautifying the home, we must not forget that one of the most important things is the spirit of the home.

"The proper combination of the two is ideal. To the children the home must be made comfortable and beautiful. There are many ways to do this and those of us who do not do all in our power fail in one of life's most important charges."

The campaign of the Haverty Furniture company will continue for some time. Much attention has been attracted by the advertisements which already have appeared, such as the one which is printed in this issue of The Constitution.

Each advertisement will carry an editorial and an illustration on some subject pertaining to the home and family life. The series runs through almost from the day the first baby is born until he has reached old age.

It is declared to be one of the most unique advertising campaigns ever attempted in Atlanta, and indorsements have been received from numerous Atlantans prominent in the city's educational and social life.

State To Fight Sunday Opening Of Sesqui Shows

Harrisburg, Pa., July 17.—(AP)—First efforts by the state to prevent the operation of the Gladway and commercial features at the Philadelphia sesquicentennial exposition on Sundays was taken today with an announcement by Attorney General Woodruff that court proceedings will be instituted against the exposition. He indicated the action will be started in the Dauphin county courts next week.

The proposed action, the attorney general said, will take the form of quo warranto proceedings to prevent the management from "misusing, abusing or usurping corporate powers" and is the outgrowth of a conference between the attorney general and John Robert Jones, Philadelphia attorney, representing a number of organizations advocating adherence to the Sunday observance laws. He said today that after the conference with Mr. Jones he became convinced it not only was "his power, but his duty to proceed against the corporation in the name of the commonwealth."

He said the governor approved the proceeding.

AUDLEY M. LANE IN COUNCIL RACE IN FOURTH WARD

Audley M. Lane, Atlanta attorney, Saturday anounced his candidacy for the post of councilman from the fourth ward to succeed Dr. J. C. Vaughan, who has announced for another term. Joseph Berman, lawyer, also has entered this race.

"Having been a resident of Atlanta since childhood, a period of 30 years, and having been a practicing member of the Atlanta bar for the past four years, it has long been my desire to serve the city as a member of general council," Mr. Lane said.

"It is not my intention to make a long written platform promising many things that the events of time may make possible or impossible, but merely to state to the voters of our ward that should they see fit to honor me with the office I will at all times endeavor to the best of my ability to serve the city and ward honestly, conscientiously and efficiently, regardless of political influences or affiliations, with the idea of divorcing certain departments of our city government from the political entanglements under which they are now compelled to operate."

ALBANY MAN HEADS 2D DISTRICT MASONS

Arlington, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Sixteen out of the 52 lodges were represented at the Second District Masonic convention held in Arlington Wednesday. The business sessions of the convention were held in the school auditorium.

The feature of the convention for the public was an address by Past Grand Master Charles L. Bass, of Atlanta, at the Methodist church. The address followed a prayer offered by E. A. McHan, of Macon, grand secretary of the state Royal Arch Masons, and a song by a quartet composed of J. M. Allen, W. E. Bostwick, Jr., D. C. Morgan and C. E. Sharp, of this city.

A barbecue and basket dinner was served by the Masons and their families and friends.

In the business sessions of the convention Worshipful Master Roy Seigler, of Meigs, presided, and L. H. Averitt, Jr., of Albany, acted as secretary in the absence of Secretary B. F. Brimberry, of Albany, who could not be present. Mr. Brimberry has been secretary for several years and was reelected by the convention.

The new officers chosen for the ensuing year are E. H. Franklin, of Albany, worshipful master; G. O. Smith, of Attapulgus, deputy worshipful master; C. B. Pooser, of Albany, senior warden; C. L. Allen, of Arlington, junior warden; B. F. Brimberry, of Albany, secretary and treasurer.

The senior and junior deacons and senior and junior stewards are to be appointed by the worshipful master.

Beer Is Losing In Popularity In British Army

London, July 17.—(AP)—Beer is losing popularity in the canteens of the British army and navy, recent sales figures indicate.

"The sale in beer canteens has fallen off about 75 per cent since the war," said Colonel Cecil Fraser, an official of the navy, army and air institutes, which are responsible for catering in the services. "The men are eating more and drinking more tea and coffee."

Colonel Fraser attributed this decline in beer drinking to a great improvement in the food served in canteens and the facilities offered to men who want to play games, write or read.

Sausage and mashed potatoes is the most popular dish in the canteens. Liver and bacon comes next. And with these dishes a great majority of the men now drink tea or coffee. All sorts of sweet cakes are also increasingly favored by the soldiers and sailors.

SUBLIGNA CITIZEN PASSES IN ROME

Summerville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—W. L. Fowler, well-known citizen of Subligna, this county, died Tuesday at a Rome hospital following an operation several days ago. Funeral services and interment were in North Rome Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

He is survived by his widow and six children.

ATLANTA-KNOXVILLE SHORT ROUTE FORMED

Chatsworth, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—At an enthusiastic meeting held here Thursday the Knoxville-Atlanta Short Route association was organized, the purpose of the organization being to push the construction of the road between Etowah, Tenn., and Cartersville, Ga. This road is already on the highway systems of both Georgia and Tennessee.

The meeting was attended by 200 representatives from the several towns along the route, and a number of inspiring addresses were made.

F. R. Webster, engineer of the Tennessee highway department, addressed the gathering. He said there were now five routes leading out of Knoxville to Atlanta, and the proposed Knoxville-Atlanta short route was considerably the shortest, and can now be traveled all the year. The route from Etowah passes through Benton, Tenn.; Tennga, Chatsworth, Fair Mount and Cartersville.

Officers for the association were elected as follows: V. C. Pickering, Chatsworth, president; Ben C. Gilreath, Cartersville, vice president; Robert E. Chambers, Chatsworth, secretary and treasurer.

Another meeting of the association will be held in the near future at Cartersville.

COOLIDGE APPROVES LAHM AND GILLMORE

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—President Coolidge has approved the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel Frank H. Lahm and Lieutenant Colonel William E. Gillmore as brigadier generals in the army air service.

Sofia Denies Revolt Plot In Bulgaria

Geneva, July 17.—(AP)—Reports that a plot has been formulated in Bulgaria to dethrone King Boris, who is now in Lucerne with his sister, Princess Eudoxia, are emphatically denied here from Sofia. The reports are characterized as "malevolent inventions."

In circles closely in touch with Bulgarian affairs, it is believed that the rumors were spread deliberately in order to embroil any marriage projects which the young bachelor king of Bulgaria may have in view. It is also thought that the reports may have been spread to compromise a loan now being negotiated in London for the settlement of Bulgarian emigrants from Macedonia and Thrace.

The situation in Bulgaria is described as absolutely peaceful with the peasants engaged in harvesting crops which have produced a good average.

Latest news from Lucerne say that King Boris has not yet definitely fixed his residence in Switzerland, where he will spend his holiday and that he is still casting about for a suitable place.

R. C. M'INTOSH DIES AT QUITMAN

Quitman, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) R. C. McIntosh died at his home here this afternoon at 3:30. He had recently been quite ill but seemed to be recovering and had been out for some weeks. Wednesday pleurisy developed and he became gravely ill. He was 71 years of age, and was the dean of local business men, having been active in business here over 50 years.

He was vice president of the South Georgia railway and for many years was a director of the Bank of Quitman. He was also one of the largest planters in the county and took great pride in the progressive character of his farming.

He was born at Old Boston, in Thomas county, but had lived here since moving here as a small boy and by his ability had amassed a fortune and had become one of the leading men of the county.

He married Miss Cora B. Lewis, of Virginia, who survives him, with two sons, Lewis and R. C. McIntosh, both of Quitman, and one daughter, Mrs. Logan Vaughan, of Cartersville. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Andrew Sparks, of Atlanta, and Miss Mattie McIntosh, of Boston.

The late H. T. McIntosh, founder and editor of the Albany Herald, was his brother. The funeral services will be held from the residence here tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

SERVEL CAMPAIGN BRINGS "TALKING" MOVIES TO CITY

The unusual experience of "hearing" moving pictures has been afforded countless Atlantans at the King Hardware company, 53 Peachtree street. The DeForest Phonofilm, which projects the action and the voice simultaneously, is being used at the store in connection with the Servel corporation campaign to educate the public in "refrigerating by wire."

The film used in the DeForest machine shows no difference from the ordinary motion picture film except for a series of white and dark lines about an eighth of an inch along the edge of the film. This turns the trick, a light passing through the film showing the varying shadows on a sensitive battery setting up an electric current similar to that set up in a radio receiver. The speaking is necessarily in synchronism with the pictures, making the delusion that the characters are actually talking.

"Ice by Wire" is the title of the picture. The cast includes three characters, a salesman and a man and his wife, who are trying to rid themselves of the evil of a warm ice box. The main scenic effect is the large Servel refrigerator. A demonstration of how ice can me made instantly is shown. The display will continue for six weeks, officials of King Hardware company said, during which the Servel corporation is conducting a special campaign with the assistance of 16 solicitors, who are offering free trials of the Servel to Atlanta housewives.

First Anniversary Of New Morningside Presbyterian Church

Sunday will mark the first anniversary of the Morningside Presbyterian Sunday school, out of which grew the new Morningside Presbyterian church.

With an enrollment of only 24 members, the Sunday school was organized one year ago by Rev. Carl W. McMurray, who later became pastor of the church when it was formed eight months ago. The home mission committee of the Atlanta Presbytery was largely instrumental in bringing about the organization. Today the Sunday school has an enrollment of more than 200, under the superintendency of E. W. Bandy. The first superintendent was W. G. Vaughn.

Sunday school services are held in the dwelling on Morningside drive near Highland avenue which is being utilized as a temporary church. Plans are now well under way for the building of an adequate Sunday school plant.

A suitable site on Morningside drive has been selected for the edifice and grading has been practically completed. At an early date actual construction work will begin under the supervision of P. D. Christian, chairman of the building committee. C. M. Lanham is chairman of the finance committee. It is hoped to have the building ready for occupancy during the autumn, according to the pastor.

Rev. McMurray is a graduate of Columbia Theological seminary, the institution which is being moved from Columbia, S. C., to Decatur. He holds degrees from the Presbyterian college of South Carolina, the University of South Carolina, and from Princeton. During the world war he served as an ensign in the troop transport service of the United States navy and also as a third mate in the merchant marine.

DAIRY MEET HELD ON AMERICUS FARM

Americus, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Fifty Sumter county business men and farmers attended the meeting of the Sumter County Dairy association here Thursday. The meeting was held at the farm of H. B. Greeneley, a leading Americus dairyman.

H. B. Schmidt, a dairy expert, pointed out important points to be considered in the erection of dairy buildings, these points embracing sanitary and economic advantages. H. A. A. Cliett, county agent, superintended a cattle-judging contest and made a talk on dairying.

Winners in the judging contest were H. B. Bailey, A. B. Parker and Edgar Shipp, with J. C. Wise, Jr., James Nicholson and Aldean Countryman winners in a junior judging contest. Harold B. Woodlief, secretary of the chamber of commerce, made a talk on stock judging.

Keep Your Arches Arched!

The Natural Bridge Way

If you are one of the thousands who suffer from tired, ache-y feet, then you will read every word of this advertisement. Keeping the arches arched the Natural Bridge Way brings a new joy to pain-tortured feet, for in addition to relieving the cramping pain, this new scientifically built shoe actually gives aid which helps to correct the troubles. From outward appearance Natural Bridge Arch Shoes look no different from ordinary shoes, yet into each shoe there is built a special "re-bounding" steel arch which gives comfort and arch aid.

When Arches Go Down Foot Troubles Begin

When the arches "go down" foot troubles begin, for the cramping of arch bones crush nerve threads and shut off blood circulation to the toes, which causes leg, ankle and arch pains.

The ordinary "flat arch" shoe makes weak arches weaker and foot troubles more severe. Relief will come only when arches are again arched into normal position and are aided to function in a free and natural way.

Thousands of people who tire easily on their feet have arch troubles. Natural Bridge Arch Shoes will soon be aiding many of them to regain their pain-free, youthful and non-tiring step.

Make your plans now to see a Natural Bridge Arch Shoe dealer and try on a pair of these new foot comforting shoes. They cost no more than ordinary shoes, but are far more comfortable and servicable.

Style and good looks are the guiding principles of Natural Bridge Arch Shoe construction, but foot comfort is the one dominating feature which must be present in every pair.

Style has not been sacrificed to gain these comforting features, for every Natural Bridge Arch Shoe shows distinctive and attractive style lines. But in addition to style and comfort there is still another feature.

According to the standards of Craddock-Terry Company the best of quality in both materials and workmanship must be embodied in shoes that bear their name.

Natural Bridge Arch Shoes, then, are stylish, comfortable, made of good quality, by expert shoe makers and always give long, satisfactory service.

If you have arch or foot trouble in any form, you should wear Natural Bridge Arch Shoes, for they aid, correct and protect your feet from broken arch tortures.

How It Is Possible for a Moderately Priced Appliance to Contain Actual RADIUM

While Radium is the rarest and highest priced substance in the world, it is also the most powerful, consequently a little goes a long way. It is difficult to form a conception of the vast amount of energy stored in even the most minute quantity of Radium.

A one hundredth-millionth milligram will throw out one hundred thousand combined rays in twenty-four hours at a velocity of 12,000 to 180,000 miles per second. Radium will give out light, heat and other forms of energy for an estimated period of 2,500 years before total disintegration takes place.

The Los Angeles Times, March 2, 1923, in a special article, stated: "From a bit of Radium, no larger than the head of a pin, millions of electrons are being erupted continually and these eruptions will continue so long as the radium lasts. From each atom, however, only eighty-eight positive and eighty-eight negative electrons are thrown out, as according to Moseley's law, the Radium atom contains only one hundred and seventy-six electrons of both kinds. The great flight of electrons comes from innumerable atoms one after another exploding their particles into space."

Radium is usually produced from Carnotite ore by a very expensive process. From two hundred to four hundred tons of ore have to be treated to produce one gram of Radium. This can be understood when it is remembered that Radium is a disintegration product of Uranium, there being only one part of Radium to 3,200,000 parts of the Uranium in any ore.

The laboratory of the Radium Appliance Company has succeeded in working out a scientific process whereby Carnotite ore of the highest grade in Radium content is stimulated and fortified by the addition of actual Radium purchased through the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C. Several coats of this very expensive mixture are then applied on the surface of a light, comfortable pad, 4½x11 inches in size.

These pads are thoroughly tested as to Radio-activity before being sold, and being covered with the same Radio-active mixture, there can be no variation in the Radio-activity which they emanate continuously through a period of years.

This process, combined with the almost inconceivable power of an atom of Radium, explains why these pads can be manufactured and sold at a price within the reach of practically everyone.

Thousands Have Proven the Marvelous Effects of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad Without Risking a Penny

Tens of thousands of people have tried out these Pads, with the privilege of returning them if not satisfied. Read what people are saying---these are extracts from just a few of the many thousands of letters we are receiving all the time:

RHEUMATISM

Whitmans, W. Va.

"Some time age I ordered a Radio-Active Solar Pad for my right side. I had been suffering from Rheumatism and could not work. About two weeks after I began wearing the pad I began to feel better and can now say I am a healthy man. I am working every day and do not have any pain."

San Jose, Cal.

"Your pad is all O. K.; it has removed all pain and I think my rheumatism has left. I don't feel any more pain nor any stiffness in joints. I would not give it up for anything. I am sure you have a good thing."

INDIGESTION

Philadelphia, Pa.

"I tell you I was near death's door. I did not know what it was to go to bed and sleep, and in the day time I would almost walk like a drunken person for the want of sleep. Now I get a good night's sleep again and am not bothered with Indigestion."

New Orleans, La.

"Just a few lines to tell you what a wonder your Pad is. I have had less pain in these three months than I had in three years before. I was almost dead when I first sent for the pad. I could not eat anything without it almost cramping me to death, and now I don't have that heavy feeling after eating."

STOMACH TROUBLE

Chicago, Ill.

"After suffering from stomach trouble for 11 years I wore your Pad for a week. I have gained my health back. I am never tired any more like I used to be and I am full of pep. Never in my life did I feel as good as I am now feeling."

SIX AILMENTS GONE

San Francisco, Cal.

"Upon the recommendation of a physician, I purchased one of your Radio-Active Solar Pads, with the following results:

"For seven years past I have been afflicted with chronic lumbago, frequent attacks of pleurisy, neuritis, neurasthenia, rheumatism in the left knee, and indigestion which caused ulcers in the mouth.

"Thirty days after applying pad, I have scarcely any symptoms of any of the foregoing disorders and most of them have been entirely eradicated. I will add that I am over 70 years of age and that I feel as young as I did at 40."

ASTHMA

Rock Island, Ill.

"He had had asthma since he was a young man and he is now past 75 years old. He bought one of your Pads. He began to get better right along—has no more cough and sleeps right along."

Aurora, Ill.

"I am very much pleased with the Radio-Active Solar Pad and I would not think of returning it. I feel different in every way. My asthma and my nerves are improving more by using the Radio-Active Solar Pad than under any other treatment I had ever tried."

BLOOD PRESSURE

Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I have been wearing your Radio-Active Solar Pad for 45 days. It has done me a world of good. I have bought it for high blood pressure. Two years ago I contracted influenza and pneumonia. I have been under the care of four doctors for treatments for high blood pressure and heart trouble. I am a woman 44 years old and have a blood pressure of 245. My blood pressure could be brought down to very near normal, but would not stay down. The reason it would not stay down was because it was brought down too fast. Then I got the Pad, knowing that the wearing of this pad continuously would bring it down slow but sure, which it is doing. Since childhood I have been troubled with Constipation. Since using the Pad it has been overcome. This is only one of the many things it has done for me. It has decreased a thumping of my heart at night which greatly troubled me. It has overcome my poor circulation."

CONSTIPATION

Madison, Wis.

"I am feeling a whole lot better and have more ambition and my bowels move more natural every day now, that is something they have not done for several years."

NEURITIS

Athens, Ga., June 10, 1925.

"I suffered from neuritis of the spine, shoulders, hips, chest and arms for 20 years, and I spent a fortune trying to get relief. At the end of 20 years I was worse. I ordered one of your Radio-Active Solar Pads; after wearing it five days I had no pain to amount to anything. I have been wearing it night and day since January 15, 1925, and I never felt better in my life."

PARALYSIS

San Francisco.

"When I received the Pad I had been paralyzed all on one side of my face—couldn't close my eyes. When I would laugh only one side of my face would laugh and I looked terrible. I would cry every time I looked in the mirror, for I thought I would look that way forever. I took electric treatments every day, but they seemed to do me no good. I saw your ad in the paper and thought I would try it. I had been that way for five weeks. In two weeks my face began to move. Now when I laugh I can laugh on both sides. And I love to laugh, and when I couldn't laugh it was a terrible feeling. I can't express how thankful I am, and I am still getting better every day. Thank you over and over for what you have done for me."

PROSTATIC TROUBLE

Chicago.

"About one month ago you sent me a Radio-Active Solar Pad. The results are excellent for prostatic trouble. I would like you to send me a double strength pad. The pad is worth $1,000 to me."

KIDNEY AND BLADDER

Detroit.

"I certainly would not part with this pad for any amount of money if I could not get another. For 10 or 12 years my back ached me so bad I could hardly move, and I took all kinds of bladder and kidney medicines and did everything I could hear of, but got no relief. I continually had bad headaches all the time, and spent lots of money, but never got any better. It's now a year, I believe, or about a year, that I sent for the Radio-Active Pad. The best money I ever spent. I am now about all right, never have headaches, backaches any more. I am working every day and feel just fine. Sleep now, where before I could never sleep or rest. Eat anything. I am 65 years old in June and never felt better in my life. I do not look care-worn like I did before I got the Pad. If the people that are ailing only knew what these Pads will do for them there would be no hesitating. They are worth a hundred times their price. You really don't know how wonderfully thankful I am that I noticed your ad in the paper."

It is conceded by recognized medical authorities that sluggishness or poor circulation is the cause of nearly all human ailments, and that where there is a perfect circulation disease in any form can not long exist.

When you stop to consider that the one underlying cause of nearly every known malady is CONGESTION—the one remedy CIRCULATION—all claims made for the Radio-Active Solar Pad are not only reasonable, but in strict accord with modern medical science.

Will RADIUM at Last Open the Door of the Great Unknown?

ARTHUR BRISBANE says: "Radium is the one hope of unhappy thousands. Radium is destined to open many closed doors to science."

MADAME CURIE, the discoverer of Radium, says: "The most important property of the rays is the production of physiological effects on the cells of the human organism."

DR. HENRI LETILLION, of the Institute of France, says: "The body of man can be transformed by Radium into a machine of perfect health, vitality and beauty."

PROF. LAZARUS BARLOW, of London, says: "I was never more confident that Radium is one of the greatest agencies in the treatment of disease ever discovered."

DR. E. STILLMAN BAILEY says: "The rays seem to work miracles. One of the principal causes of old age is hardening of the arteries, due to increased blood pressure. The radium prevents this. Acute pains disappear as if by magic. Jaded appetites become alive again. Red blood corpuscles have increased by 250,000 within 48 hours."

DR. C. EVERETT FIELD, of New York, says: "That is what the radio-active treatment will do—stimulate the glandular secretions, the chemical composition of the body, eliminate the danger of the accumulation of poisons and carry us on in health and vigor over many more years than are now considered the normal span of life."

The discovery of radio-activity has to an extent revolutionized the theory and practice of modern medicine, for it has shown the existence of an entirely new and very efficient element, or source from which healing power may be obtained, and which has proven itself to be a powerful accessory in the treatment of various diseases. Numerous ailments and maladies have been treated successfully with Radium emanations.

The great healing power of this wonderful substance is due to the fact that it is what is termed "Radio-Active;" that is, it emits spontaneously rays or waves of energy traveling at a rate of from 12,000 to 180,000 miles a second. These rays have the power to penetrate most substances and they EXERT A REMARKABLE STIMULATING INFLUENCE UPON THE CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD.

The chief effect of the radiations from Radium and its disintegration products is to produce an ionization of the atoms of whatever substance the rays penetrate. Chemical effects follow as a secondary result of the ionization.

Prof. Carl von Noorden and Prof. W. Falta believe that in contradistinction to all other forms of electro-therapy, we possess in radio-active substances the means of carrying electrical energy into the depths of the body and there subjecting the juices, protoplasm and nuclei of the cells to an immediate bombardment by explosion of electrical atoms. We may therefore designate this internal treatment with Radio-Active substances as "internal electro-therapy."

Radium has a distinct physiological effect upon the human system. Clinical and laboratory tests have absolutely proven this. There is a decided beneficial effect upon the circulation. The Radium rays carry energy into the depths of the body, vitalizing every organ and tending to make every cell in the body full of health and vitality.

The natural result of this condition is not only to overcome and banish existing diseases but to increase the resistance of the body to disease attacks to such an extent that one is almost immune. Considering the basic effect of Radium upon the very life cells of the body, it is apparent that the nature of the disease is not material, because Radium puts the body in condition to overcome any disease.

Therefore the makers of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad offer it to the sick upon the unqualified condition that you can try it in your own case and if it does not produce an improvement in your condition during the trial period to your entire satisfaction, it will not cost you anything for the test.

Send the coupon today and learn more about the remarkable healing power of Radium and especially how Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad has restored health to tens of thousands, as evidenced by the reprinting of some of the thousands of testimonials received from among our over 100,000 purchasers.

REMEMBER, no matter what your ailment may be, you can try this Pad without expense.

GUARANTEE

We positively guarantee:

First, that Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad contains actual RADIUM in sufficient quantities to be highly radio-active;

Second, that you may try the Pad for a liberal trial period;

Third, that if it fails to give you satisfactory relief from your trouble, whatever it may be, it will not cost you one cent for the trial.

(A special guarantee is sent you with appliance, signed by an officer of the company, made out to you personally, giving date of trial period so there can be no possible misunderstanding.)

THEFT OF TWO CARS CHARGED TO MATHIEU

A. S. Mathieu, who gave his address as a downtown hotel, late Saturday afternoon was arrested by Detectives W. D. McGee and L. H. Satterfield, charged with larceny of two automobiles. Officers are searching for evidence that may lead to other charges.

When arrested by detectives, Mathieu was said to have been riding on DeKalb avenue with his wife in an automobile which officers charge was stolen from S. H. Gray, a traveling salesman. The coupe was stolen from in front of a local hotel where the salesman was stopping, on July 13.

Another car, officers charge, was stolen by Mathieu and belonged to G. C. Withers, of 49 Luckie street. This car was taken from Luckie and Cone streets on July 8. The Withers car was recovered at Luckie avenue and Gordon street, detectives say, where Mathieu left it to be repaired.

EAST LAKE TO VOTE ON ATLANTA MERGER

The question of whether East Lake will merge with Atlanta will be voted upon at the polls at an election to be held in that municipality on October 9. This was ordered Monday night at a session of the East Lake council.

The East Lake township is composed of about 1,000 residents with a voting list of from 350 to 400. It is bounded on the north by Kirkwood, and Decatur, on the east by Candler road, on the south by Glennwood avenue and on the west by Atlanta.

Mayor R. W. Cranshaw, mayor of East Lake, stated Saturday night that he believed sentiment at this time is about evenly divided on the proposed merger.

While it has been suggested that East Lake merge with Decatur, Mayor Cranshaw said this had only reached the suggestion stage and that only the question of the merger with Atlanta will be acted upon in October.

American Held In Mexico City As Bigamist

Mexico City, July 17.—(AP)—The marital tangle of John F. Howard, 72, manufacturer of Haverhill, Mass., has been further complicated by his formal arrest and imprisonment in Mexico City pending his trial on charges of perjury and bigamy. Howard was arrested in Mexico City and taken to the Curenava jail on the instance of his sons, John C., of Los Angeles, and Albert F., who have been here some time in an effort to secure what they feel redress for their mother.

The manufacturer, who secured a divorce in Mexico and then married Mrs. Eleanor B. Phillips, of Milwaukee, with whom he came to Mexico, has been given the warden's room at the jail and is permitted to send to his hotel for his meals. Mrs. Phillips is now ill at a Mexico City hospital, but her condition is not regarded as serious.

According to information here the sons secured their father's formal arrest after their efforts to effect a compromise of the marital tangle had failed. They said that the arrest represents their final efforts at a showdown and that if their father makes what they regard as a proper financial settlement on their mother, they will not press their charges of perjury and bigamy.

The elder Howard has been maintaining that he is being victimized by his sons for the sake of his property, but this they deny.

Conflict Between U.S. and Europe Seen in Geneva

BY HENRY WOOD.

Geneva, July 17.—Conflict between the United States and a European, or even a world-wide coalition, is seen by men closely in touch with the League of Nations as a possible result of the American isolation policy.

Much of the resentment which league members first felt against American abandonment of the international organization which she forced on the world now has disappeared. There also has disappeared the period in which the league feared to take any action without first consulting the United States, or taking into consideration what effect such action might produce in America.

The bitterness which has disappeared has been succeeded by serious concern over what may develop as a result of continued abstention by the United States from the league and from general international affairs in Europe.

European In Character.

As far as the league is concerned, it has now been demonstrated that it can live and succeed without the United States. But without the United States there is the marked tendency for the league to become more or less European in character and yet bound up with Asia and other continents to such an extent that it might some day be obliged to take direct sides against the United States. There are numerous questions which are becoming more and more vitally important in international affairs, questions in which the United States is greatly interested, and a conflict might arise from any of these. Among these are emigration, the fight for raw materials, racial equality, colonial expansion and equality of commercial rights.

While league members have utmost confidence in America's pacific intentions, they fear the lack of a spirit of collaboration and cooperation which is evident on the part of the United States. Some league members go so far as to point out that all collaboration which the United States has had with the league to date has shown the American delegation lacking in the spirit of international cooperation as that spirit is understood at Geneva.

Convict Forced To Work While Arm Was Broken

Abemarle, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—Testimony that Nevin C. Cranford, former chaingang boss on trial for the murder of two negroes, compelled a convict to work while he was suffering with a broken arm was introduced today before a recess was taken until Monday.

Grady Sides, former convict, stated that after he had broken his arm his mother sent a doctor to set it and that Cranford ordered the doctor away.

The witness said Cranford treated him "pretty good" until he broke his arm and then he "treated me pretty bad."

"Were you beaten before your arm was broken?" he was asked.

"Yes, once."

"Why did he beat you?"

"Because I slept with my pants on."

"How did you break your arm?"

"The tractor kicked it."

"Did you get a doctor?"

"No. I asked Captain Cranford if he wouldn't get a doctor but he said he guessed my arm wasn't broken and that I didn't need any doctor."

"What happened then?"

"Cranford called a man to put it back in place and he did the best he could. He pulled and yanked at it."

"What did you do the rest of the day?"

"Greasing the tractor and throwing rocks out of the road with my left hand."

"Could you use your right arm?"

"No."

103RD BIRTHDAY OBSERVED TODAY BY SAVANNAHAN

Savannah, July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. William Rogers will reach her 103rd birthday Sunday. The event will be quietly celebrated but will be made, as it always is, the occasion of congratulations on the part of Mrs. Rogers' friends and connections.

A beautiful birthday cake was sent from New York by Mrs. Rogers' great grandniece, Miss Caroline Carpenter. It is iced in pink with an ornamental icing design of white roses, and has 103 pink candles, and is even more beautiful than the one she received on her 100th birthday. A special cake has come from New York each year to honor the anniversary.

Mrs. Rogers was born in Savannah July 18, 1823. She was Miss Mary E. Millen when in 1852 she married the late William Rogers, who was the first general superintendent of the Central of Georgia railway.

She is an expert needlewoman and still enjoys sewing. Her eyesight as well as her hearing is good and fine needlework is one of her diversions. She reads and keeps abreast of the times, and enjoys the companionship of many friends, young and old.

CHANDLER TO MANAGE JACKSONVILLE HOTEL

Walter Candler, Jr.

Walter Chandler, Jr., who was recently appointed manager for the new Carling hotel at Jacksonville, the latest addition to the Dinkler Hotels Company, Inc., by Carling L. Dinkler, president, is spending a few days in Atlanta prior to assuming his new post. The hotel will be open September 1.

Mr. Chandler was appointed manager of the Andrew Jackson hotel Nashville, Tenn.; another Dinkler hotel, when it was opened last August and has made an enviable record. He has just returned from a trip to New York city, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and other eastern cities with John Loti, vice president, where they have taken note of the latest modes of handling hotels in metropolitan fashion.

Mr. Chandler states that the business outlook for the south is better than that of the east, and he is looking forward to the coming winter season to be the biggest in the history of Florida. Not only are hotel men talking about the south, Mr. Chandler asserts, but business and manufacturing concerns are sending men down to open up branch offices and southern headquarters and are figuring on opening factories in the south of various kinds.

The Carling is 15 stories high and has 300 rooms with bath, ice cold running water, fans and the latest equipment in the rooms for the convenience and comfort of its guests. It will be operated like all other Dinkler hotels widely known as "dispensers of true southern hospitality."

BUSINESS WOMEN CLOSE CONVENTION

Des Moines, Iowa, July 17.—(AP)—More than 2,000 feminine workers, leaders of their sex in the business and professional world, today were going back to their jobs, which range from managing tea rooms to helping operate railroads.

The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs terminated its four-day annual convention here last night as Mrs. Olive Joy Wright, of Cleveland, retiring president, handed the gavel to Mrs. Lena Madsen Phillips, prominent New York attorney, who was elected president without opposition.

Other officers elected were Elizabeth Fitzgerald, Salt Lake City, first vice president; Nancy Meek Hain, Sedalia, Mo., second vice president; Miss Frances Plath, Davenport, Iowa, recording secretary, and Florence Stone, New Orleans, treasurer.

Conventions will continue to be held annually, a proposal to meet biennially being defeated. Determination of the 1927 meeting place was left to the executive committee.

Oakland, Calif., today was selected as the 1927 convention city. The choice was made by the executive committee. Miami, Fla., and Lexington, Ky., were the other cities asking for next year's meeting. Emma Dot Partridge, New York city, was reelected federation secretary.

Charles Paddock and Bebe Daniels Engaged to Wed

Hollywood, Calif., July 17.—(AP)—Charles Paddock, the sprinter, tonight showed Hollywood his speed as a wooer with the announcement by Bebe Daniels, film star, whom he has known for five weeks, that they would be married but not for a year.

Paddock, holder of 37 world's sprinting records, met Miss Daniels when he was engaged to appear in her support in a motion picture now being filmed. The production marks the champion's debut on the screen.

"Charlie is one of the finest men I have ever met," said Bebe. "We have made no plans other than we expect to be married. The wedding will not take place for at least a year because we each have other plans which will occupy most of our time during the next 12 months. I have another picture to make here right away, then a two months' vacation abroad and then another picture."

COLUMBUS WOMAN KILLED IN IOWA IN CAR ACCIDENT

Burlington, Iowa, July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Steinfeldt, of Columbus, Ga., and Fred Briggs, Mount Pleasant, Iowa, members of a circus troupe, were killed when a tire blew out and upset their automobile near Fairfield today. Mrs. Steinfeldt met instant death and Briggs died soon after the accident.

Mrs. Steinfeldt's two-year-old son, Byron; her father, W. E. Byron, of Cloversville, N. Y., and Olive Martin, of Buella, Idaho, also in the car, escaped with minor injuries.

BYRD UNDECIDED ABOUT FLIGHT TO SOUTH POLE

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd's thoughts have been so concentrated on his recent north polar flight that he has not yet had time to give consideration to his project, a "hop to the antarctic pole.

In Washington today to clear up some "odds and ends" of his arctic venture, Commander Byrd visited the National Geographic society's headquarters and arranged to leave later for Detroit as guest of the Detroit Aviation club.

He came here yesterday with his brother, Governor Harry Byrd, of Virginia. The south polar flight project, he said, is yet vague.

TWO SLIGHTLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Two persons were treated at Grady hospital Saturday night for injuries received during the day in minor automobile accidents. None, however, were seriously hurt and police have no record of the accidents.

Mildred Lifsey, 3, who was knocked down by an automobile on Church street in East Point, almost in front of her home, doctors were told, was treated for injuries to her back and chest.

Mary Harvey, 2, of 176 Hampton street, was treated for several lacerations on her body. An X-ray examination failed to show any fractured bones and she was dismissed after treatment.

Shaver Is Asked To Hold Meeting In Monticello

Richmond, Va., July 17.—(AP)—Clem Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee, has been appealed to in a letter from Mrs. B. B. Munford, of Richmond, to lend aid to a movement to convoke the next meeting of the committee at Monticello, ancestral home of Thomas Jefferson, near Charlottesville, Va.

Mrs. Munford heads a group of Virginians and others who are sponsoring the Monticello meeting movement. Her letter points out that the committee should confer there "where the spirit of Jefferson might descend upon the arbiters of democracy's destiny and enable them to deliberate wisely upon the choice of the next presidential nominee."

Monticello, recently dedicated as a national shrine on the occasion of the anniversary of the death of "the Sage of Monticello" and the sesqui-centennial celebration of the declaration of independence would "place the committeemen in a high and noble mood," and there, amid the surroundings where Jefferson lived while he fought the battle of democracy, is the place "to revive the democratic party's faith in local self-government for the respect of the rights of the individual," Mrs. Munford's letter declared.

Mrs. Munford set forth that, because of the national prominence of the Jeffersonian mansion through the sesqui-centennial celebrations held in the country, there could be no more logical or practical method of reinculcating Jefferson's democracy into the veins of the men upon whom devolves the duty of picking the next democratic leader.

Steals Razor Blades.

Kansas City, Mo.—Nolton Carpenter's uncle, who lives in Texas, has an unusually stiff beard, and one razor blade will give him only one shave. Then it must be thrown away. So Nolton stole 600 blades from a drug store here and was mailing them to his uncle when caught.

MINE CAVE-IN CAUSES WORKERS TO LEAVE HOMES

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 17.—(AP)—Thirty-five families left their homes at Parsons today as a huge mine cave-in on the workings of the Glen Alden Coal company spread, threatening to engulf homes.

Other residents in the streets bordering the cave area also were prepared to leave as cracks appeared in the surface. The settling started during the night.

Traffic on three streets was impossible because of quick sand. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad tracks settled slightly and section crews dumped ashes into the hole so that traffic could be resumed.

The cave-in started three weeks ago when seven men were killed and eight hurt in the Peach Orchard mine of the company. Last Saturday a second drop occurred and since that time there have been other minor settlings.

TOY REVOLVER BANDIT SLAIN BY POLICEMAN

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—A toy glass revolver was the bluff used by Arthur "Blackie" Carmichael, of Milan, Mo., in a holdup of two University of Chicago students which cost his life today. The "weapon" described by Dexter C. Harrison, 23, his companion, was found a short distance from the place Carmichael was brought down by a policeman's bullet, as the two robbers fled.

Harrison, born in Peoria, Ill., but recently from Battle Creek, Mich., was arrested a short time after the robbery on clews obtained from papers Carmichael carried.

Harrison told the police that he was the "extra guy," but insisted that he didn't "do anything." The robbery was suggested by Carmichael, he said, "to get some change," and he just "went along" and "stood by." Carmichael threatened George Gray and Miss La Verne Lane with the glass pistol and took $14 from Gray.

PANAMA CITY FETES MEMBERS OF TEN CLUB

Panama City, Fla., July 17.—(AP)—Members of the Ten Club of Atlanta, an organization composed of leading men of every walk of life, are being entertained by Panama City, following their arrival here yesterday from Atlanta aboard a special train.

At a banquet held at a local hotel, speeches by Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, Judge Samuel H. Sibley and former Judge Arthur Powell featured. Colonel Paxon spoke on "Fellowship," while Judge Sibley touched upon the "marvelous natural advantages" which he said had ben given Panama City and Atlanta.

"Let each city recognize the cooperative value of the other and then go to work," Judge Sibley said. He stressed the importance of what each city meant to the other, and urged that both join hands for the future.

Judge Powell brought applause by saying that Panama City was Atlanta's opportunity for a more convenient port, and that the former's opportunity was in cooperating with Atlanta in making it such. He added that in 30 years' acquaintance with St. Andrews bay, it was only recently he realized that Panama City was the logical port for Atlanta's exports and the most convenient port to increase the Georgia city's imports.

A number of other prominent Atlantans delivered speeches at the banquet. Each guest was presented an appropriate gift.

The visitors, who are engaged in a brief tour, were met by a group of Panama City business men. They planned to spend two days here.

IS INFLUENTIAL ATLANTA GROUP.

The Ten club is an organization composed of a number of prominent Atlanta citizens. It is one of the most active organizations of its kind in the city, taking a leading part in all matters of civic interest and betterment. Many of the members left Atlanta for Panama City by motor several days ago, while others went to Dothan, Ala., on a special Central of Georgia railroad car and were transported from there to Panama City in automobiles.

WIFE TO FIGHT SUSPECT'S RETURN FOR ALABAMA TRIAL

Oakland, Calif., July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Floyd Meyers, wife of a suspected slayer who escaped from the Alabama state prison, today repudiated previous statements to the sheriff's office that her husband is the hunted man and said that she would fight his extradition.

Meyers was arrested at Hayward, near here, a few days ago, and held for the Alabama authorities. The man involved in Alabama was sent to the Alabama prison, police records show, under the name of Louis Bishop, for a murder committed at Bay Minette, Ala., in 1921, and escaped from the prison two months later. Meyers denies that he is the man wanted.

The Meyers have lived in Hayward for two years and neighbors there are inclined to believe that he is not the Alabama escape.

JUDGE DISMISSES ASSAULT CHARGES AGAINST 4 AGENTS

Jacksonville, Fla., July 17.—(AP)—Charges of assault with intent to murder filed against four prohibition agents in Miami in February, 1923, and transferred to federal court here, were ordered dismissed today by Judge Rhydon M. Call.

The dismissal order was entered upon motion of R. P. Taylor, solicitor of Dade county.

The four agents against whom the charges were pending are now all out of government service, attaches of the local prohibition headquarters said.

Fred W. Pine, former solicitor for Dade county, filed information against the agents for an alleged attack they made with a blackjack upon Wilbur Phelps during a raid on February 2, 1923.

FREIDA HEMPEL, OPERA SINGER, GIVEN DIVORCE

Paris, July 17.—(AP)—Frieda Hempel, the opera singer, received a final decree of divorce Thursday, it became known today.

Mme. Hempel charged her husband, William D. Kahn, a New York broker, with abandonment and refusal to support her.

BOILS FOR YEARS NOW ALL GONE

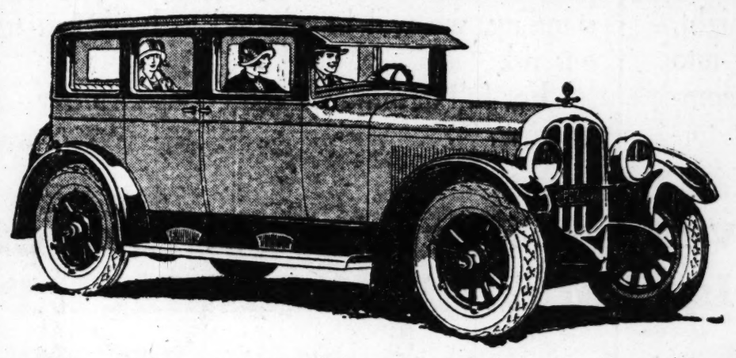

Alabamian Says Dodson's Liver Tone Gave Him Brand New Liver Worth Fortune.

Experience seems to indicate that people store up in their systems certain poisons that break out all at once in a series of boils. Sometimes they are fatal.

Willie Hapes says: "Ever since I grew up boils broke out on me just when the planting season began, and I had to lay up. Blood remedies were worthless. The only known remedy was calomel, but it seemed to turn my stomach inside out. This spring I got a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and I feel sure it put a new liver into me worth a fortune, for it cleared off the boils and for the first time in years they didn't come back."

The reason for this is the fact that a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone loosens up the liver, lets go of a gorge of impurities, sour bile, fermented food and gas and breaks up the most obstinate constipation. And yet it never makes you sick—no gripe, no pain—even though it may drive out quarts of sour bile as black as ink. And this result is absolutely guaranteed.

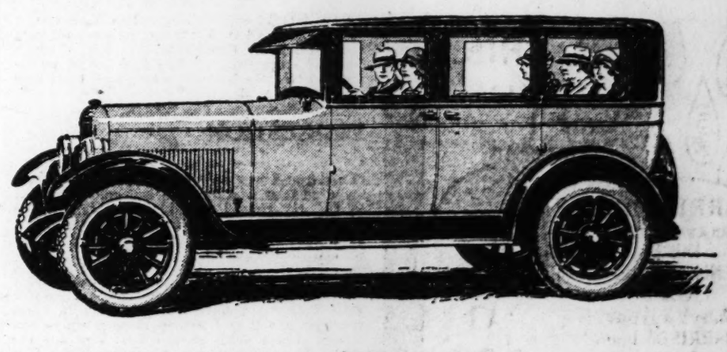

Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel did in all your life, and without griping or making you sick, go back to the store and get your money.—(adv.)

STATE TO AWARD ROAD CONTRACTS

Contracts for 50 miles of new paved highways, several miles of grading and several miles of hard-surfaced roads and for construction of one concrete bridge will be awarded by the state highway commission Tuesday, it was announced Saturday by John W. Holder, chairman of the state highway commission.

Nine projects will be considered at the session of the commission. One of the projects calls for 43 miles of paved roads on the coastal highway between Savannah and Darien. Seven miles of the Macon-Perry road in Houston county will be paved. A concrete bridge will be constructed in Wheeler county.

The projects for which contracts will be let are as follows:

Federal aid project No. 177: Bryan-Liberty-McIntosh counties, 43.45 miles of paving on the Coastal highway between Savannah and Darien.

Federal aid project No. 432-C: Camden and Glynn counties, 4.88 miles of graded road on the Brunswick-Jacksonville road.

Federal aid project No. 407-B: Newton county, 5.31 miles of penetration macadam surfacing on the Atlanta-Covington road.

Reconstruction project 9-8: Pierce county, 8.4 miles of surface-treated road on the Waycross-Jesup road, beginning at the Ware county line and ending at Hurricane creek.

Federal aid project No. 76: Wheeler county, concrete bridge on the Glenwood-Mt. Vernon road.

Federal aid project 401-C: Houston county, 7.058 miles of paved road on the Macon-Perry road.

Federal aid project No. 439-A: Baldwin county, 1.82 miles of sand-clay road on the Milledgeville-Irwinton road.

Federal aid project No. 325: Grady county, 6.714 miles of pebble soil road on the Cairo-Bainbridge road.

State aid project No. G4-59: Washington county, 2.627 miles of gravel surfaced road on the Sandersville-Dublin road, beginning at Sandersville and ending at Tennille.

HEINZ OCEAN PIER OPENED TO PUBLIC

Atlantic City, July 17.—(Special.) Heinz Ocean Pier, partially destroyed two years ago when a government barge cut through it, was formally reopened to the public this month. The damaged section of the pier has been reconstructed and the whole structure was redecorated before the opening.

To mark the reopening of the pier, a new art salon has been established in the end pavilion. Works of art from all parts of the world have been gathered for exhibit during the 1926 summer period. Paintings include the famous thirteen canvasses by Moran, the greatest of America's marine artists, picturing thirteen outstanding episodes in the maritime history of this country, beginning with the landing of Lief Erickson and continuing through the Spanish-American war to "The Return of the Conquerors," a triumphal procession in home waters of the victors of important naval battles.

The large corridor flanked by the art gallery contains paintings by Edward Trembell, America's foremost mural painter. In the salon, there is a life-size group which shows Penn trading with the Indians, by Theodore A. Mills and Serafine Agostini, who built it for the Carnegie museum, at Pittsburgh, through whose courtesy it is shown. A group of notable paintings of foremost American artists from the Grand Central Galleries, New York city, has been placed on the salon walls, these vancases being of a character that is seldom found outside of representative national exhibits.

Custer's Last Rally," John Mulvaney's striking conception of that dramatic encounter, has an honor place in the gallery. This picture is of particular interest in 1926, which marks the fiftieth anniversary of that great tragedy. In the latter part of June, whites and Sioux and Cheyenne observed with unique ceremonies the annihilation of Custer's command. This widely known painting, part of Heinz collection, has been admired in many sections of the country.

In addition to the gallery, there is a sun room, with writing desks, tables and settees, periodicals and newspapers, all for the free use of the public. There is also a lecture room where stereopticon and motion pictures are shown with lectures. The pier provides a delightful promenade out over the ocean, and this and all other departments have attracted large crowds to the institution which H. J. Heinz decreed should be free to the people.

MINERAL LATH USED AS FIRE PROTECTION

Fire protection for the interior of the 24-apartment building being erected in Ponce de Leon street by Ellison and James is to be effected through the use of incombustible mineral lath in place of inflammable wood lath. This material comes in large panels and while it actually is a rock lath still it can be nailed and sawed with the ease of wood.

Its incombustibility is due to the incombustibility of the gypsum from which it is made. It also possesses the natural insulating properties of gypsum rock. Because it is a "closed base," that is, it does not require the "keys" or "clinches" to hold the plaster to it that other bases do—it requires less plaster than other bases. Yet tests have demonstrated that gypsum plaster adheres more tightly to this lath than to any other type.

In all, 58,500 square feet of this gypsum lath are being used in the Ellison and James apartments. It is being furnished by the Campbell Coal company from one of the southern mills of the United States Gypsum company.

La Guardia's Drug Store

CONGRESSMAN REVEALS BEER FORMULA

Party Ignored by Officials

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, July 17.—As a legislator, Representative F. H. LaGuardia, socialist, of New York, is the fair-haired boy—so they say up East Harlem way—but as a drug store brewer—.

Bright and early this morning at a pharmacy on Lenox avenue he mixed a pungent drink from two legalized beverages that packed a 2.75 per cent kick. That wallop was aimed at the Achilles ankle of our limping prohibition law.

A dozen thirsty scribes were accorded places of honor in the crowd that gathered to see the demonstration along with Major "Fighting" Mike M. Kelly, the old 69th regiment, Representative John Morin, of Pittsburgh, and Paul Marion, a bondsman. The last LaGuardia had brought along in the vain hope that his services might be needed.

"First we take two-thirds of a glass of malt tonic—any malt tonic," said LaGuardia, suiting the action to the word. "Then, fill up the glass with near beer. Watch it fizz! The near beer costs 10 cents a bottle, the tonic 35 cents. The total cost of three glasses of beer—good beer—is 15 cents a glass. That's less than folks pay for doctored-up, etherized beer.

"If you want culmbacher beer, the heavy, dark German brew, use dark near beer. If it's Pilzner your tonsils crave, use light near beer and a pinch of salt."

By this time the brew was ready to sample. That last word is used advisedly, for though a few hardy drinkers crowded to the sodawater counter to refill their glasses, there were those who sneaked their refreshment underneath their chairs or out of eye range, behind the perfume counter.

The beer was so heavy that one sip provided a hearty meal. "That beer is a great builder," wistfully observed a husky policeman.

LaGuardia invited two truck drivers to have a drink.

"Fine," they murmured gustily, smacking their lips, "just like old times."

Prohibition Administrator Chester P. Mills, although apprised of the congressional master's acts, made a distinct gesture of hauteur toward them and failed to have Mr. LaGuardia arrested.

Mad Dog Seized In Bare Hands By Man; 3 Hurt

Two children were bitten by a mad dog and a third person was infected before the dog was seized Friday in the Inman Park section by M. L. Johnson, who held the animal until police arrived and killed it. Anita Chapman, 6, of 150 Euclid avenue, and Ben Sims, Jr., 5, of Elizabeth street and Euclid avenue, were the two children bitten by the dog.

Running into the yard at 154 Euclid the dog next bit another dog belonging to Mrs. J. E. Edwards, before it was caught by Mr. Johnson, who held it 20 minutes without receiving any injuries. Mrs. Edwards picked up her dog, which was bitten, and is believed to have received an infection in a scratch she had on her body. The victims of the mad dog are being given the Pasteur treatment by physicians. Mrs. J. H. Chapman, Jr., mother of one of the children who were bitten, stated that it was unknown whether any other dogs in the neighborhood were bitten, which might be a source of danger.

Atlantans To Speak At Secretaries' Meet Planned in Savannah

Savannah, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—B. S. Barker, executive vice president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will make the opening address at the semi-annual meeting of the Georgia Association of Commercial Secretaries. Other prominent Atlantans on the program are Fred Houser, executive secretary of the Atlanta Convention bureau, and Fred T. Newell, secretary of the industrial bureau of the Atlanta chamber.

Mr. Barker will speak on "Organization" and his talk will cover division work, selection of committees, size of groups, secretary's relationship to committees and other paid staff members' contact. On the Friday morning program, devoted to "Georgia," Mr. Houser will cover the subject of "Conventions." He will discuss the securing of conventions, the ethics of convention holding and cooperation required for the successful termination of a convention.

Mr. Newell will appear on the Friday morning program devoted to "Community Advertising." He will enumerate advertising objectives and touch on the selection of media, use of advertising agencies, direct mail, preparation and distribution of literature.

Several hundred Georgia secretaries are expected to attend the convention. They will be entertained with a buffet supper on Friday night by the Savannah Board of Trade and given an excursion to Tybee with a seashore dinner on Thursday afternoon.

ATLANTA BAPTISTS TO MEET MONDAY FOR CONFERENCE

The Atlanta Baptist Ministers conference will meet Monday, at 10 o'clock at the First Baptist church.

Subjects for discussion will be "Tithing" and "What Is the Matter With Georgia Baptists?" The ministers have been engaged in a debate on tithing for four sessions of the conference, Dr. F. C. McConnell of the Druid Hills church, Dr. Charles W. Daniel of the First church, Dr. George Garner, Dr. W. M. Seay and others participating. Last Monday Dr. T. W. Ayers, returned missionary from China, spoke on the subject.

30 COWS STAGGER HOME FROM MASH PARTY; TWO DIE

Joliet, Ill., July 17.—At evenfall the lowing herds come winding o'er the lea—that is generally. But it was a staggering herd that hiccoughed and swayed giddily in from a pasture near here.

The poetic beauty of the returning kine had been ruined by 60,000 gallons of mash, seized in raids by State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn, and which had been dumped out in the pasture.

Thirty cows imbibed. Two died and the rest zig-zagged home ready to sign the pledge.

Senator W. E. Borah To Speak Today At Augusta Church

Augusta, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—United States Senator William E. Borah, who is to deliver an address here Sunday on law enforcement, will arrive in Augusta Sunday afternoon. Senator Borah comes here under the auspices of the Augusta Ministerial association.

The address on prohibition and law enforcement will be delivered Sunday afternoon from the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church.

ANDY KING INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

After receiving treatment for automobile injuries in an Augusta hospital, Andy R. King, former member of the police commission, Saturday returned home with his family. Mr. King was hurt near Thomson Thursday when he was forced to drive his motor car into a ditch to avoid a collision.

With Mrs. King and his two sons, Mr. King was returning from Aiken, S. C., at the time. He suffered injuries about the arms and body and Mrs. King received cuts about the face. Mrs. V. A. Holmes, of Oakdale road, who also was a passenger in the King car, sustained a broken arm, it is stated.

EDISON IS FORCED BY WIFE TO QUIT WORK FOR VACATION

West Orange, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—At the insistence of his wife, Thomas A. Edison today agreed to interrupt his intensive laboratory work for a short motor trip early in August.

Since his return from the south Mr. Edison has been putting in 8, 10 and 12 hours a day in his laboratory on some project which his associates believe will be of special importance when completed. Mr. Edison generally goes on a motor tour each summer, but it was said he has not made any plans for this year's trip. The destination of next month's trip has not been determined, although Chautauqua, N. Y., has been considered by Mrs. Edison.

PHILADELPHIA GETS 50 MORE DRY AGENTS

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Reorganization of the Philadelphia prohibition area was completed today with the approval by Frank Dow, acting chief of prohibition enforcement, of the employment of fifty new prohibition agents.

Mercy of Court Will Be Asked By Charles Morse

Bath, Maine, July 17.—(AP)—The three sons of Charles W. Morse, aged financier, will throw his case upon the mercy of federal court in New York which has ruled he must come to that city next Thursday to answer an indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud. This decision was reached today just preceding the funeral of Mrs. Morse who died Thursday, the same day the New York court ordered the former shipbuilder to appear, despite pleas of illness and infirmities by his counsel.

"We have decided to throw our case upon the mercy of the court. We feel that father's condition is such that the trip might well jeopardize his life, and we are convinced that Mr. Morse is in no condition either to testify or to stand trial. There is no question in our minds that father would be wholly unable to comprehend what was going on, and his arraignment would be a travesty.

"Nevertheless, we will rest our case with the court. We feel that when the judge hears the facts his decision will be fair, and we are prepared to bring father to New York next Thursday if he should so desire. We are determined our opponents will have no opportunity to say we are attempting to obstruct justice."

TENNESSEE COURT SETS REHEARING IN GEORGIA CASE

The state of Georgia's application for a rehearing in its litigation with the city of Chattanooga involving the right of the municipality to extend streets on Georgia property will be heard Monday in Hamilton circuit court of Chattanooga, according to an announcement made Saturday by Attorney General George M. Napier. The case was decided against the state last week, but the application for rehearing was filed immediately after the decision.

If a re-hearing is denied the state still has the power to appeal the ruling to the supreme court and also will have power to seek a supersedeas from the supreme court to restrain the city from attempting to open the streets and destroy state-owned property pending a final decision in the case, according to Mr. Napier.

MANY CANDIDATES FOR CITY OFFICES

With less than one month remaining for candidates to qualify in the city democratic primary, the political pot began to simmer Saturday and indications are that several hot and interesting contests are in the offing.

Exactly two dozen positions are to be filled—a mayor, 13 councilmen, four aldermen, four members of the board of education and two recorders. Entry lists close August 12, and registration lists will close August 22, according to a ruling of the city democratic committee.

Those qualifying with Secretary William J. Laney, of the committee, through Saturday follow:

For mayor—I. N. Ragsdale and Charles M. Ford; for alderman, first ward, Robert F. Pennington; sixth ward, R. E. Gann; ninth ward, Alvin Richards and Oscar H. Williamson; for council, first ward, H. Turner Loehr and Walter Tripp; second ward, John W. Bolton; third ward, Charles L. Chosewood; fourth ward, Joseph E. Berman and Dr. C. J. Vaughan; sixth ward, (short term), Jack Hardy and Harry Roberts; seventh ward, Wylie L. Moore; eighth ward, J. Frank Reynolds; eleventh ward, W. R. Johnson and B. L. Lyle; board of education, eleventh ward, Thomas C. Smith.

Aldermen will be elected from the first, second, sixth and ninth wards, a councilman will be elected from each ward of the city and two will be named from the sixth ward, the term of Councilman Harry York expiring and the other to fill the short term of Councilman M. F. Dowdy, resigned.

A mayor's vacancy must be filled, two recorders elected and four members of the board of education from the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth wards.

POLICE AID SOUGHT TO FIND TWO GIRLS MISSING FROM HOME

Aid in finding Louise Whitmore, 17, and Estelle Southall, 14, who disappeared early Friday from the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Whitmore, of 102 North Lawn street, has been asked of Acting Chief of Police A. J. Holcombe by the grandmother.

According to information furnished the police, both girls are attractive brunettes.

CITY PLANS DRIVE TO COLLECT TAXES DUE IN PAST YEAR

City Marshal Walter C. Harwell announced Saturday that a drive to collect about $150,000 outstanding taxes due for 1925, will begin about August 1, and that his office will begin advertising fi fas at that time, and will take immediate steps to execute them unless they are satisfied.

"This positively is the last warning I am permitted to issue under the law, and I hope that all delinquents will take the matter seriously enough to save us trouble and themselves embarrassment," Mr. Harwell stated.

"LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY" COMPOSER BURIED

New York, July 17.—(AP)—John H. Flynn, composer of "Little Annie Rooney," the popular song hit of a generation ago, who died here Wednesday, was buried today in Calvary cemetery.

Flynn, a bachelor of 57, made his home with his sister. He had lately been writing sketches for motion picture producers.

Hundred Years' Struggle By England for Reforms In Courts Is Revealed

Aided by Powerful Newspapers, British People Finally Secure Desired Legal Changes.

The Constitution herewith presents the first installment of an article by Professor Edson R. Sunderland, of the law school of the University of Michigan, on the history of the English struggle for the reform of legal procedure and the character of the remarkably efficient system by which England now administers justice through the courts.

Other installments will be printed in The Sunday Constitution week by week. It will be seen that the subject is one in which laymen should be as keenly interested as lawyers. The article has been prepared under the auspices of the American Bar association, which contends that, unless the public is willing to do its share in cooperation with the legal profession, this generation in America is not likely to enjoy the benefits of a system of legal procedure comparable in efficiency to that now in effect in England.

BY EDSON R. SUNDERLAND.

The progress of civilization has always realized itself in the development of specialized social functions, and this process has produced a highly complex organization of interrelated social groups. Each of these groups has definite interests of its own, which always appear more or less antagonistic to the interests of other groups, so that the history of society has consisted of a perpetual struggle of group against group for power and privilege.

No other group occupies a position in the social structure of such potential power as the legal profession, for it controls the operation of the laws to which all groups are subject. The physician deals with a single social group, the physically unwell; the clergyman deals with the communicants of the church; the banker deals with those who employ credit; the teacher with those who wish to acquire wisdom. But the lawyer holds in his hand the worldly destinies of all.

The influence of the legal profession is increased by the further fact that it is the most highly unified of all the social groups. This results from the circumstance that it employs a standardized technique which every member is compelled to use. In the middle ages the same thing could have been said of the clergy. Ecclesiastical practice tolerated no departure from approved rituals and sacraments, and the uniformity of ceremony contributed much to the solidarity of the church as a social institution.

With the disintegration of Catholic supremacy this uniformity disappeared, for rival ecclesiastical groups, differing as in their theological doctrines, multiplied and prospered. But in the field of the law no such development has been permitted to occur. The state has insisted upon keeping control of the mechanism for administering justice, making it a public monopoly, and it has pursued the policy of rigidly prescribing rules to govern the practice of the courts.

All Learn Same Rules.

All the lawyers in the state are therefore forced to become familiar with the same rules of procedure, to follow the same sequence of steps, to use the same technical language, and to think in the same logical formulae, such uniformity in training, conduct, and ideas could not fail to produce a class with a highly developed group consciousness.

The monopolistic nature of a technique prescribed by law has, moreover the tendency to produce resistance to change. Those who employ it compete with one another only within the limits of the established rules. No one is allowed to outbid his competitor by offering a new remedy or by using a superior procedure. The question of new rules, therefore, never becomes a professional problem in the strict sense of the term, for it is normally outside the scope of professional activity. Individual success in practice suffers no apparent loss from the use of a defective system, because the handicap operates equally upon all competitors.

Accordingly, immediate self-interest offers no convincing reason for leaving the familiar paths and undertaking a struggle with new problems. Furthermore, the lack of experience with any other technique makes it difficult for the bar to see defects in the current system or to appreciate their seriousness if pointed out. Not until inefficiency reaches a point where it threatens to drive away business does the unreasoning group instinct scent danger and prepare to assume the burden of inevitable reforms.

The problem of group adjustment is therefore in this instance a peculiarly complex one. Compare it with the simple problem of the medical profession! Legislation does not in the slightest degree prescribe the methods to be employed by physicians or surgeons. Established practice crumbles instantly before a new discovery. Regularity counts for nothing in the face of actual results, and professional ingenuity knows no limits except the limits of the human mind.

Has Contsant Incentive.

Every member of the group has a direct, constant and powerful incentive to strive after new processes and to employ them at once in the service of society. The community of interest between the medical group and the public is so obvious that aside from a few prohibitions against malpractice and incompetence the adjustment is almost frictionless.

Can a parallel adjustment between the bar and the public be brought about? Is there in the mutual relations of these social groups a sound basis for the evolution of remedial rights? If so, where is the motive force? Will the public take the lead and either devise a technique of its own to be forced upon the bar, or compel the bar, in order to escape that calamity, to cooperate with it in the development of a more adequate system of practice? Or will the bar take the lead, and with a social vision which recognizes the ultimate identity of interests between the contending groups, admit the justice of popular complaints, emancipate itself from the petty tyranny of stereotyped ideas, and cheerfully assume whatever temporary burdens may result from a reconstruction of procedural processes?

England has just completed a century of struggle for procedural reform, and it is to the energy and determination of the public, and not to the leadership of the bar, that the credit for the present English practice is due.

Nothing in the legal development of modern society is more dramatic than the long war of liberation waged in England against the tyranny of inherited legal traditions. The nineteenth century opened upon a legal system which had inspired the most extravagant eulogies from the bench and bar. The sonorous and resounding phrases of Blackstone still echoed throughout the realm, extolling its "solid foundations," "its extensive plan," "the harmonious concurrence of its several parts," and "the elegant proportion of the whole." (4 Blackstone Comm. 443.) Legal writers still found it difficult to speak with moderation of a system "so wisely contrived, so strongly praised, and so highly finished." Against the chorus of professional praise had been raised the almost solitary voice of Bentham, but it was a voice crying in the wilderness.

Gradually Awakened to Crisis.

Only gradually did the British people awaken to the real character of the crisis which was approaching. When the Edinburgh Review was launched in 1802, judicial procedure was a matter of no critical interest whatever to the general public. (1 Edinburgh Rev. 461, January, 1807). By 1824 the same Review was able to observe that "Legal matters are at this time among the most fashionable topics of conversation. All the newspapers abound with reports of trials, and all their readers freely talk over both the merits and the points, the form and the substances, the preparatory process and the ultimate decision." (39 Ibid. 171, March, 1824.)

Six years later, we find it asserting that "The all-important subject of judicial reform has, of late years, happily occupied almost the undivided attention of thinking men, in every part of the country." "Law Reform—District courts," 51 Ibid. 478.)

It was doubtless with grave misgivings for the future that Lord Eldon laid down the chancellorship in 1827, for it was obvious that the comfortable optimism of the legal profession had rough weather ahead. The technical refinements which obstructed justice, the multiplication of useless interlocutory proceedings, the delays which were running from years into decades, and the centralized monopoly of the privileged London bar, were being viewed by the public with serious concern as a menace to the stability of society.

The issue, at first only vaguely felt, was becoming clear and urgent. The law must be reformed because an efficient court of justice was the ultimate and only guaranty of civil liberty. Upon the effective administration of the law rested the security of the state.

"It has been well observed," said a writer of that day, "that all the costly apparatus of government—the crown—the navy—the—army—taxes—parliaments—powers and privileges, are really of little other use than to maintain the twelve judges in due authority at Westminster." (45 Edinburgh, Rev. 459, Mar., 1827.)

The striking characteristic of the British revolt against the apotheosis of legal formalism was its popular origin and support. The Edinburgh Review, which seems to have led the way, continued for 70 years to argue the cause of law reform in issue after issue, with a tenacity of purpose, and unfaltering optimism, and a masterly ability which commands our unstinted admiration.

Attacks In First Number.

The Westminster Review began publication in 1824, and although it, also, was a general magazine for the lay public, in its first number it launched an attack on the court of chancery as a notorious scandal and took up a critical study of the rather undramatic subject of special juries. In its first ten years it published 28 articles on various technical subjects in the field of procedural law, attacking and explainnig with astonishing boldness and skill the anomalies in the jurisdiction of courts, the absurdities in the rules of evidence, the atrocious technicalities of pleading, the improper use of juries, specific, preventable causes of delay, the scandal of judicial patronage, the extortionate expense of litigation, and the shocking want of education at the bar. For half a century this remarkable journal was an unwavering champion of the public in its struggle for judicial reform.

In the same way the London Spectator and the Saturday Review took a strong position in support of the movement for reform in judicial procedure, and even such a magazine as the Illustrated London News found itself drawn into the fight.

Still more significant was the course of the London Times. In 1825 it was a small newspaper running only 12 columns of reading matter, but even at that early stage of the war against judicial abuses it considered the subject so important, and presumably so interesting to its readers, that it devoted one-third of its entire space every day to reporting the doings of the courts.

By 1850 the Times was giving its readers a little over 30 columns of news, and, of this, from six to eleven volumns were filled with daily reports of the law courts. These reports were not sensational, but gave a simple and readable account of what was actually going on in the various courts of the kingdom, familiarizing the reader with the personality and professional activity of the judges and lawyers, with the nature of the procedure, the delays, the costs, the technicalities and the net accomplishments of the system.

For a hundred years the Times has maintained this extraordinary service, so that the English layman has probably been better acquainted with the work of the courts than the laymen of any other country in the world.

Calls Attention to Abuses.

Nor did the Times rest content with news reports on the administration of the law. Its editorial columns thundered against the abuses of the system and the beneficiaries of those abuses. Year after year it kept public attention fixed upon the vital function of the courts in a fre country, and in the name of the people warned the profession and the government that resistance might postpone but could not defeat the demand of the people for an adequate system of justice.

By 1850 the Times was devoting more editorial consideration to judicial reform than to any other subject of public concern. In the single month of December in that year, for example, it had seven leading editorials on the administration of justice, averaging nearly a column and a half each, and other months duplicating that record. In the course of the long struggle it published literally hundreds of columns of editorial criticism of legal procedure, in addition to hundreds of columns of reports of parliamentary debates upon the innumerable bills by which the public attempted to secure, and the legal profession to prevent, a thorough reconstruction of remedial law.

One is amazed by the violence of the attack which the public directed and maintained for at least two generations through the press. It was not only a war against legal abuses, but a class struggle against a profession which was believed to be responsible for them.

Although, said an early reviewer, "the delay, vexation and expense of English judicature" are very largely avoidable, yet "so successful have been the artifices of lawyers that Englishmen have hitherto almost universally believed . . . the assertion of Sir William Blackstone that these inconveniences are the price we necessarily pay for the benefits of legal protection" (4 Westminster Rev. 60-88).

The technicalities of pleading were laid to the selfishness of the profession. "Not a formality is there," says a reviewer in 1826, "which serves not as a pretext for charges; and scarcely a moment of delay which is not contrived to minister either to the ease or the profit of lawyers, if not to both. . . . Every inconsistency, every groundless distinction, leads to uncertainty, and every uncertainty to lawsuits, accompanied with harvests of fees for lawyers; in short, there is, perhaps, not a single imperfection in the law by the existence of which lawyers are not in some way or other benefited." (6 Westminster Rev. 40.)

Early Action is Demanded.

Shall England, asks the Edinburgh Review, sit still and watch other nations surpass her in their legal systems? "It cannot be so forever. Old men may indeed stand in the midst and for a season stay the plague of improvement. But their night is far spent. The day is coming when there must be a vigorous and unsparing . . . revision . . . of the whole administration of justice in this country." (45 Edinburgh Rev. 481, March, 1827).

The timid proposals of Lord Brougham, it was charged, were calculated to make the evils only worse, his chief remedy being an increase in the number of judges; the whole legal system was alleged to be a plan ideally devised for robbing the public for the benefit of the lawyers; and no reform, it was boldly asserted, would be worth while which left the profession in possession of its power over suitors. (11 Westminster Rev. 447, Oct., 1829).

Of the character of the bar in 1833 a reviewer says: "Imagination, vigor of intellect, eloquence, large views of jurisprudence, or bare knowledge of civil law and the laws of other countries—even the customs of their own country and the laws of Scotland and Ireland—are a dead letter to the greater number of English lawyers. They are mere technical hacks. . . . The truth is that the bar, by dint of its monopoly, is a century behind all others that call themselves liberal professions." (19 Westminster Rev. 66).

The common law bar was declared by the Law Amendment society to "produce with difficulty a crop of fifteen judges of adequate or nearly adequate capacity, and the demand for a sixteenth would be beyond the productive energies of the sail." (Solicitors' Jour. 72.)

The Encyclopedia Brittanica, in its article on jurisprudence, said of the principles and practice of pleading: "This mischievous mess, which exists in defiance and mockery of reason, English lawyers inform us, is a strict, and pure, and beautiful exemplification of the rules of logic. This is a common language of theirs. It is a language which clearly demonstrates the state of their minds. All that they see in the system of pleading is the mode of performing it. What they know of logic is little more than the name." (James Mill, Encyc. Brit. Suppl. 1828.)

Not Exaggerated by Novelists.

We have been inclined to discount the novelists of the time such as Samuel Warren, who satirized the iniquities and technicalities of an ejectment suit in his "Ten Thousand a Year," and Charles Dickens, who exposed the court of chancery in "Bleak House," as representatives of current popular opinion, assuming that they exaggerated the situation under a natural instinct for dramatic effect. But at is evident that the serious reviewers of that period held opinions quite in harmony with those of the writers of fiction.

Jarndyce v. Jarndyce, was guaranteed by Dickens, who was himself a lawyer and a member of the Middle Temple, to be a truthful picture of an actual case, which could be more than matched by others equally authentic, and the chancery judge who assured him, as one of a company of some 150 men and women, that the court of chancery, though a shining subject of such popular prejudice, was almost immaculate (preface of Bleak House) fitted very well into the picture which the public had drawn of the judicial establishment.

So determined were the people to have courts equipped to administer justice, and so aroused had they become over the obstructive tactics of the legal profession, that even the London Times did not hesitate to say: "If the minds of legal men are to be forever perversely directed to the past, if they will not divest themselves of old prejudices, and accept new views and ideas suited to the exigencies of the present times, the public must be content with the attempts made by laymen to improve a system which cannot longer be permitted to remain in its old and mischievous condition. The law and its administration constitute the crying evil of the day. . . . The patience of society is at length exhauste dand desperate remedies will be attempeted in the hope of getting rid of the burden, if well considered and rational plans are not proposed by those who have made the science of law and that of legislation the subject of their special study." (London Times, Dec. 24, 1850.) "Let the . . . bar look to it in time." (Same, July 29, 1851.)

Parade of U. S. Justices

:: JUSTICES HAVE ALWAYS WORN ROBES ::

Has Colonial Background

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—A parade which never fails to attract attention of capital tourists is that of the supreme court justices, attired in flowing robes, as they march from the dressing room to the court chamber.

Chief Justice Taft leads the procession across the narrow corridor, the crowds on each side being kept back by crimson ropes and deputies. As the justices reach the chamber, attorneys and spectators arise while the crier announces:

"The chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court of the United States."

Kept Robes; Discarded Wigs.

The jurists arrange themselves in front of their chairs and the crier resumes with "O Yes," and warning that all who have business before the court must draw near and give their attention. As he closes with the announcement that the "court is now sitting," the justices take their seats.

Justices of the court always have worn robes. When the court was created under the constitution, its members decided to continue the practice which had existed in the courts in the colonies of wearing robes, but discarded the wigs.

One of the present justices says that from the beginning the jurists have worn black robes. There is a portrait of John Jay, the first chief justice, hanging in the robing room of the court, which shows him wearing a robe with scarlet facings and sleeves of the same color.

Jay's Robe an Heirloom.

This robe was borrowed, according to tradition, from Chancellor Livingston, and now is an heirloom in the Jay family.

In some of the higher state tribunals robes with scarlet trimmings were worn as late as 1815. With the Revolution, the wearing of robes by the judiciary was generally discontinued, and there was violent opposition to the resumption of the custom until about 1890. At that time there were only three gowned courts in the United States—the supreme court at Washington, the New York court of appeals, which was the second tribunal to wear them, and the supreme court of Pennsylvania.

Since then, the practice has spread rapidly until now all federal circuit judges wear robes, and many of the federal district judges. The custom also prevails upon the court of claims and most other special federal bodies created to discharge judicial duties.

Debate Reason for Wearing.

In the eighties when the agitation against the wearing of robes was at its height, the question was argued in the law journals and many newspapers. Opponents declared that if the judges were to wear robes, they also should be accompanied by tipstaves bearing poles and the sheriff with a drawn sword. Robes were denounced as "effete remains of feudal times," as inflating the wearer with egotism and as being out of harmony with republican institutions. They insisted that the true dignity of the bench sprung from the reverence of the people for the law.

Public sentiment underwent a seeming reversal in the matter of robes, and in 1897 it was declared that the nation had outgrown its youthful lack of confidence in the ability of its judiciary, which could no longer be affected by the lures of monarchial pomp, and that the people regarded with indifference the wearing of robes.

Marble Possibilities In Summerville Section Boosted by L. A. Downs

Summerville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—That there are tremendous possibilities for the development of the natural resources, particularly marble, in the vicinity of Summerville, is the opinion of L. A. Downs, president of the Central of Georgia railway, who spent Thursday morning here while making a trip over the Chattanooga division of the railroad. He stopped in Summerville and Chattooga county for the purpose of inspecting the marble quarry 6 miles below here, recently opened by Colonel John D. Taylor and associates, and to inspect the Summerville Cotton mills, the Summerville Cotton Oil mill, the new ginnery at the oil mill and the city water supply.

Mr. Downs is known throughout the south not only as a railroad executive, but as a leader in industrial development and a student of economic problem.

In speaking of his visit to Summerville and the surrounding territory, Mr. Downs said: "There are four requisites for the progress of any community and Summerville has them all—adequate transportation, diversified agriculture, natural resources and manufacturing opportunities.

"I spend much of my time in the territory covered by the Central of Georgia and am familiar with what is going on in the different sections, but the variety and extent of the marble deposits in Chattooga county was a revelation to me. It seems altogether possible that there will be a development here to compare favorably with what has taken place in northeast Georgia and the Sylacauga district in Alabama.

"I am optimistic as to the development of the entire southeast and of this section in particular. I do not base my optimism upon hope alone, but upon the advancement that has been made in the past ten years. As an illustration, the business handled by the Central of Georgia railway was 144 per cent greater in 1925 than it was in 1915, and 1925 was our best year. Every month in 1926 has shown an increase in business over corresponding months in 1925.

"The attention of the whole country is centered on the southeast as never before, and it is my firm conviction that we are just at the beginning of an era of great progress."

WOMAN WHO SLEW MATE AT AUGUSTA SILENT ON CAUSE

Augusta, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Lillian Lindley McKie, of Hutchinson, Kansas, who has been in jail here since July 2, charged with the murder of her husband, George A. McKie, whom she admittedly shot and killed, consistently refuses to make a definite statement as to her reason for the slaying. Other than "I shot him" and, upon questioning, "because of family troubles," she has said nothing.

No special session of superior court has been called and counsel for the defense has not asked for a preliminary hearing or bail. Mrs. McKie's attorneys have stated that they will not ask for trial before the regular session of superior court in September or October.

TOOMSBORO DISTRICT VOTES BOND ISSUE

Toomsboro, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) The Toomsboro school district took another forward step yesterday when it voted $10,000 in bonds for the enlargement of the modern school building which was erected four years ago. At the time the building was erected it was thought ample in size for several years, but within one term it had overrun the new building and it became necessary to use the auditorium and domestic science room for classrooms. The trustees have already taken steps toward making the school accredited during the coming term.

MERCHANTS NAME MEMORIAL AIDES

The Atlanta Retail Merchants' association Saturday adopted a resolution creating a standing committee of three to be known as the Stone Mountain memorial committee for the purpose of forming a line of direct communication and cooperation with the Stone Mountain Memorial association.

Following adoption of the resolution, Frank H. Neely, president of the Merchants' association, appointed as members of the Stone Mountain committee, Raymond A. Kline, of Davison-Paxon-Stokes company; Thomas H. Latham, of Latham and Atkinson, and Paul H. Jones, of J. M. High company.

The resolution adopted by the association is as follows:

"Whereas the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, individually and collectively, have observed with great interest and satisfaction the progress made by the Stone Mountain Memorial association in the development of the plans for carving on Stone mountain a monument that will be one of the wonders of the world; and,

"Whereas we deem it incumbent upon us to render the Stone Mountain Memorial association the fullest possible measure of support, cooperation and active assistance in the further development of its plans; therefore,

"Be it resolved by the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association that we hereby create a standing committee of three to be known as the Stone Mountain memorial committee, whose duty it shall be to consult and confer from time to time with the officers and executive committee of the Stone Mountain Memorial association for the purpose of rendering all aid and assistance which they can devise, to the end that this glorious enterprise shall be brought to a successful and triumphant conclusion.

"Be it further resolved that the members of this committee shall be appointed by the president to serve concurrently with him, and that each succeeding president upon assuming the duties of the office shall appoint a similar committee, the purpose of this provision being to establish the committee as a permanent and standing committee of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association."

'BOOTLEG' GROCERS RAPPED IN LETTER TO CITY COUNCIL

"Grocer bootleggers" are attacked in a letter sent Saturday to city council members by the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers' association. The letter asks members of council to take steps to prevent the sale of groceries on Sundays in order to protect those who do not open their establishments on that day.

The communication will be sent to council, and probably referred to the ordinance committee before any definite action is taken.

BERMAN ENTERS CITY COUNCIL RACE FROM FOURTH WARD

Joseph E. Berman, well-known attorney, Saturday announced his candidacy for council from the fourth ward.

JOSEPH E. BERMAN.

Mr. Berman is an alumnus of the University of Georgia, and was admitted to the practice of law in 1921. He was at first associated with the firm of Branch and Howard, and later formed a connection with Mayor Walter A. Sims, and is now practicing as a member of Sims, Berman and Parham. Mr. Berman enlisted in the army in 1918, and is a commissioned officer in the reserves. He has been an enthusiastic worker in some of the most important projects Atlanta has ever undertaken. In the recent bond election for viaducts, schools and a new city hall, he worked to insure passage of bonds.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Berman states that he is in favor of immediate work on the new schools and the providing of the schools with better equipment and facilities so that every child will have an opportunity to attend and to secure the best education and training.

MRS. R. R. WOOD BURIED FROM HOME SATURDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Robert Richardson Wood, Sr., of 63 West Thirteenth street, who died Friday at a private hospital, were held at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the home. Dr. W. W. Memminger officiated and interment was in West View cemetery.

Mrs. Wood, who was a native Atlantan, had been active in church and social life for many years. She was well known throughout Atlanta and had a wide circle of friends here. She was the widow of Robert R. Wood, Sr., who died nearly two years ago, and who was a member of the firm of George Muse and company.

Before her marriage Mrs. Wood was Miss Jane Boyd, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wallace W. Boyd, pioneer citizens of Atlanta. Mrs. Wood was born on the present site of the Forsyth building and has made her home in Atlanta all her life.

She was an active member of All Saints' Episcopal church. She also was a prominent member of the Piedmont Driving club. She was an accomplished musician and her personality made her many friends.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Carroll Dawson, of New York, and Mrs. William S. Goldsmith, of Atlanta; two brothers, Wallace W. Boyd, of Atlanta, and Jim Boyd, of Dallas; a son, R. R. Wood, Jr., of Atlanta; two nieces, Mrs. Charles Cox, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Chauncey Crawford, of Baltimore, and a nephew, William S. Goldsmith, Jr., of Atlanta.

Jeffries' Ruling In Deans' Will Case Is Appealed

An appeal of the decision of Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, who Wednesday ruled that Frank Deans, honor graduate of the University of Michigan, was the son of the late Robert E. Deans, wealthy Atlanta broker, and set aside the judgment of probate of the Deans will, was filed Saturday in the office of the Fulton ordinary.

Judge Jeffries, the ordinary, made his decision following a three-day hearing on a suit brought by Frank Deans against W. O. Deans and Charles Deans, executors of the approximately $50,000 estate of the late Mr. Deans, to set aside the judgment of probate of the Deans will.

Provided the ruling of the ordinary's court is upheld by Fulton superior court, attorneys for Frank Deans have signified that they immediately will file a suit in superior court, alleging that the will is illegal on the grounds that Mr. Deans was mentally incompetent when the document was made, that undue influence was brought to bear by realtives of Mr. Deans and Rheba Lawrence, Atlanta beauty contest winner, whom Mr. Deans named as his heirs. Miss Lawrence was bequeathed a handsome house and lot on Peachtree road and relatives were given the residue of the estate. Young Deans was neither mentioned in the will nor notified of the filing of it for probate, it was brought out at the hearing.

The legal battle which looms in Fulton superior court will be to determine whether Frank Deans shall receive the entire $50,000 estate, a part of it, or whether Robert E. Deans was justified in leaving him out of the bequests entirely. Frank Deans is represented by Attorneys Horace Russell, Ed A. Stephens and J. Monroe Spears, and the Deans relatives by Attorneys Reuben and Lowry Arnold and Clarence Calhoun.

BODY OF FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK TO BE SENT HOME

The body of Hubert D. Wylie, 27, fireman who was killed Thursday when the Louisville and Nashville passenger train wrecked near Canton, will be carried to Emerson this morning.

122nd Regiment Reaches Halfway Period at Camp

Camp Hammond, Tybee Island, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—the annual encampment of "Atlanta's Own" national guard regiment, the 122nd infantry, reached the half-way point at noon today when the first week's intensive training program closed and officers and men alike prepared to rest over the Sabbath.

The half-way post finds the camp in excellent condition, practically no ill among the men and the morale at a high peak. The past week, while used up in the main in a rigid training schedule, has had its pleasures, its opportunities for bathing, dancing at nights and enjoyment of other beach activities. Camp sanitation features are most praiseworthy, officers report; there is an abundance of food of a wide variety; mail from home-folks began arriving in bulks the latter part of the week to cheer men who haven't experienced army life in camps before.

Everybody Busy.

While field officers have followed out their daily schedules, staff officers likewise have been engaged under regular army instructors in working out various problems, writing and solving "battle" orders between the well-known Reds and Blues, the implacable foes in "paper" battles. Major R. T. Rhett is assisting Lieutenant Colonel J. M. Kimbrough, senior instructor, in staff problem work.

During the latter part of next week the annual battle of Tybee will be staged, the regiment being divided into conflicting armies and given positions and objectives, with probably an imaginary enemy attempting to land or landing on the island and engaging land forces. This feature is eagerly looked forward to by both officers of the regiment and instructors, the latter being given an opportunity to see actual results of advice and suggestions, and the former eager to outdo brother officers in maneuvers.

Instructors usually act as referees or judges and the victorious army is designated after careful study and observance of tactics employed in offensive and defensive warfare principles.

The final week's schedule will be resumed at 5:15 o'clock Monday morning, and will be more advanced naturally than the past week's program.

The final week also will bring prize drills, companies, squads and individuals competing for respective best drill awards and medals. Although the date of these features have not been announced, they probably will take place on Thursday or Friday afternoon. Judges in these contests also are instructors.

The forthcoming week also will bring the officers' dance, the Gate City Guard dance and the non-commissioned officers' dance, among social features. These affairs usually are brilliant and informal military fashion. Guests will include prominent officials and society leaders in Tybee and Savannah, a complete list not being obtainable at this time.

Business Camp.

Social affairs, however, do not interfere with the business of the camp, all such events being interspersed between the business and when the training program cannot be delayed or otherwise dispensed with. This was made plain by Colonel Charles H. Cox, commanding officer, at the outset of the two weeks' camp when he emphasized that "this is a business camp and arranged for intensive instruction of men in actual military life."

Distinguished visitors to camp during the past week included Major General C. C. Hammond, chief of the militia bureau of the war department, who was the guest for three days of Colonel Cox; Mayor Harris and other prominent city and county officials of Savannah and Chatham county. Major General Johnson Hagood, of the Fourth Corps area, is expected daily for a short visit during which he will observe his young son as a soldier. Young Hagood is a corporal in regimental headquarters company, of which Captain Jack O'Leary is commanding officer.

During the coming week it is expected that many Atlantans will visit their sons or friends who are members of the camp, incidental to a few days' stay at the popular Tybee beach. Several extra cars of Atlantans are slated to arrive here early Sunday morning for a day's visit.

Next Saturday's dawn will witness camp-breaking, plans being taken up for the return movement to home stations. Late Saturday the regiment will entrain and is scheduled to arrive at Atlanta and other home stations during Sunday.

Every precaution is being taken in all branches of the camp and to date there has not been a single accident reported.

The Third battalion, under Captain Drake, composed of companies from Marietta, Cedartown, Calhoun and Elberton, have won the admiration of the officers of the other companies.

Company A, of Atlanta, holds the record for cleanliness. It is planning to continue to hold. The company holding the pennant the most number of days during camp will receive it as a permanent trophy at the close of camp.

The first inspection of all supplies and encampment equipment has been called for today and the men can everywhere be seen putting the finishing touches on their possession. The inspection is very rigid and everything has to be in first class condition to pass the tests.

An interesting ten-round boxing program was arranged for yesterday afternoon between Mack Capps, of Florida, and Private Laurer of company D. The bout ended in a draw.

Holiday Spirit.

The holiday spirit prevailed this morning at Camp Hammond when, after inspection and setting up exercises, announcement was made that today was to be a holiday and all the soldiers have leave for the day to spend at Tybee, Savannah or wherever they please.

Practically all activities are at a standstill today and tomorrow. There is no set routine announced for either day. Chaplain L. B. Harrell will hold services tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. tent and evening services in the same place at 8 o'clock.

Several of the men have obtained leave and are returning to Atlanta today. This is permissible after eight days of service and if it is absolutely necessary that the men return to their various occupations.

Psychology Lecture.

"The Laws of Life and Their Application" will be the subject of a lecture to be given by Mrs. Rose Mae Ashly, psychologist, today at 3:30 o'clock in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel.

IN THE LEAD

Fisher's engineering experts—skilled beyond their calling by virtue of years of continuous research and experimentation with all types of body construction—unhesitatingly aver that none but Body by Fisher—exclusively used by General Motors for Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars—affords the essential virtues of safety, beauty and comfort which characterize every Fisher product. Quite logically the public knows that when any improvement which really gives an enhanced measure of safety, comfort and luxury is perfected, Fisher will be the first to present it just as Fisher has created and been the first to present every important improvement in body design and construction of the past decade.

Music Professor Admits Slaying Wife With Hammer

:: LEADS DETECTIVES TO GRAVE ::

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Syracuse, N. Y., July 17.—Accosted by his wife as he tapped a barrel of wine in the cellar of his home, Agostino Izzo, music teacher, 51, killed her with a hammer, placed her body in a 4-foot box and had it hauled to a deserted spot on the shore of Lake Onondaga, seven miles away.

"I killed her Tuesday noon while the seven children were away," Izzo sobbed to the police. "Not since then have I been able to rest. I fall asleep and I dream of her."

Izzo burst into police headquarters and told his story. Detectives followed him to the lake shore where he indicated a mound of fresh earth. They dug and found the improvised coffin.

He was insanely jealous of his grown sons, Izzo told police today in a detailed confession of his crime. His wife had argued with him over a check for $12.15 and he was about to drown his sorrows, he said, when she rushed at him with a butcher knife.

Izzo said he grabbed the hammer to defend himself. His wife lunged with the knife and he swung, intending to strike her on the shoulder, he said, but the blow landed on her head. She fell dead.

Immediately Izzo dressed her in her best clothes and dragged into the cellar the biggest box he could find.

There by the flickering light of a plumber's candle he cramped her body into the box, and nailed on the cover.

He told the children their mother had gone to Detroit on a visit and hired a truck man, Angelo Canata, to haul the box out to the lake. Dismissing the cart man, he dug the grave.

"I was mad," he cried, wringing his hands. "My wife loved the boys more than she did me."

HERRIOT IS SEEN AS NEXT PREMIER

mosphere of hostility. Now I have my liberty, and therefore, I am very happy."

In this cabinet, those apparently well informed assert, will be found M. Poincare, M. Bokanowski, M. Tardieu and M. Marin. It is already credited with the intention of demanding full powers from the chamber, like the preceding combination, but in a different manner. In view of President Doumergue's reluctance to hold all night conversations, it will be impossible to foretell the outcome of the efforts to put a new government in the saddle.

Those who listened to today's historic debate saw the burly Herriot desert the president's chair in the chamber and take his place among the members. He then demanded the floor in behalf of his group and launched into a bull-like attack against the government, for which he had voted on several previous occasions.

Demanded Full Powers.

The matter before the house was the government's bill demanding full powers to settle the financial crisis by the issuance of decrees. The financial committee of the chamber yesterday by a vote of 14 to 13 refused to approve such powers, and Premier Briand and M. Caillaux, the finance minister, decided to place the responsibility squarely on parliament.

When the subject came up today Premier Briand made it a question of confidence, and debate began in an atmosphere of tense excitement.

M. Herriot at once took the position that the government's demand for full powers without parliamentary control was an attack upon republican institutions. To this M. Briand, in whose cabinet M. Herriot served in wartime, tartly retorted that he had no lessons in democracy to receive from anybody.

Memorable Debate.

The debate betwten Premier Briand and M. Herriot, himself a former premier, was one of the most memorable in the history of the republic. At one point, addressing the radical leader, M. Briand said: "M. Herriot, listen to me carefully. If tomorrow, thanks to you, the government's work is paralyzed, think of your responsibilities!"

Contending earnestly that the government had no desire to attack republican institutions, M. Briand declared that an encounter between himself and M. Herriot in the present crisis amounted to a tragedy.

"I do not know what will be the outcome of this duel," he said.

"It is not a duel," H. Herriot responded. To this the premier remarked in a grave voice: "One must have courage enough to call things by their names."

Briand Gains Advantage.

M. Briand seemed to gain such advantages by his retorts to M. Herriot that the radical leader's "young Turk" followers during an intermission decided to withdraw their "previous question motion," or to move that the government bill be returned to the committee for further study.

Immediately after the resumption of the session, however, Louis Marin, leader of the moderate group, which had often saved M. Briand in tight situations, attacked the government, declaring that his partisans could not have confidence in the cabinet on four points, namely, the right to regulate by decree such matters as readjustment of taxes, inflation of the currency, contraction of foreign debts and disposal of the metallic reserve of the Bank of France.

M. Marin made it perfectly clear that his friends under certain circumstances accord full powers to a government and finance minister, in whom they had confidence, but declared that, rightly or wrongly, M. Caillaux did not have the confidence of the whole of France.

"What did M. Caillaux do the last time he was in office?" he exclaimed. "Nothing, and when he left, his successors were obliged to ask for new inflation."

M. Marin scored what he termed M. Caillaux's dictatorial aspirations, and cited the minister's famous book, "The Rubicon," declaring that his full powers plan, which the chamber was asked to grant, in nowise differed from the book's conception of it.

Reads Part of Rubicon.

M. Tardieu arose and read part of "The Rubicon," with the object of showing that the government's bill was based on it. M. Marin concluded with the statement that his group would not vote for the government because the bill did not seem to meet the necessities of the situation, and also because it had no confidence in M. Caillaux.

Later a communist and socialist orator had a fling at the government project. The session was one of the stormiest of the present stormy legislature. Vice President Bouyssou replacing M. Herriot in the chair called out to one member: "Go talk in the bar, not here."

WASHINGTON SURPRISED BY FALL OF BRIAND.

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Although surprised by the fall of the French cabinet today, Washington officials did not appear concerned over its effect on the French-American debt agreement pending before the French parliament.

It had been felt here that the program being pursued by Finance Minister Caillaux offered prospect of restoring economic stability in France. Secretary Mellon, who is en route to Europe for a vacation, has expressed the view that France must square its debts with both England and this country before its currency can be stabilized.

Officials, however, withheld comment on the French situation. It was pointed out that final action on ratification of the debt agreement cannot be obtained in this country before December when congress again meets. The settlement has been approved by the house but not by the senate.

DICTATORSHIP OPPOSED BY CHAMBER DEPUTIES.

BY RALPH HEINZEN.

Paris, July 17.—France has decided emphatically against a financial dictatorship at a time when dictatorships are at the peak of popularity in Europe. But tonight her situation is more menacing than at any time since the war.

The tenth ministry of Aristide Briand, which included a pledge to ratify the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement in its program to rehabilitate the country financially, resigned today after it had been voted down on the dictatorship issue, 288 to 243, in the chamber of deputies.

French fears began to increase as President Doumergue accepted the cabinet's resignation, which involves another retirement of Joseph Caillaux, who, as minister of finance, had been regarded by many as the only man to save France from her increasingly serious financial predicament.

"The pound will be worth 300 francs tomorrow!" shouted one deputy as the defeated ministry filed from the chamber.

The pound is now worth about 200 francs.

What the future holds for France, economically and politically, can hardly be foretold. Again and again cabinets have fallen, nearly all of them in the issue of finances, and no solution remains in sight. The financial situation which the retiring ministry leaves behind it is nothing short of desperate.

HERRIOT WILLING TO ACCEPT PREMIERSHIP.

(Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Paris, July 17.—Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, tonight grimly admitted he is not only willing, but will be glad to accept the task of forming a cabinet and expects to do so with great dispatch the moment President Doumergue asks him, which probably will be tomorrow morning.

He is downcast, however, because he was unable to swing more than half the radicals against the ministry of Premier Aristide Briand.

FOUR QUESTIONED IN DARING MURDER

a $2,000 offer by the county commissioners who also authorized expenditure of $5,000 in the inquiry, if a court order is issued permitting it.

Saturday's contributions included $350 in smaller amounts by Canton citizens.

Body Sent to Indiana.

While the search for clues went on, programs for future action were being considered and additional rewards were being offered, Mellett's body was en route to Indianapolis.

At the funeral services at the Mellett home at noon, the Rev. Bertrand F. Brundage, of Calvary Presbyterian church, called the dead publisher-crusader "a martyr" and the Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson of the First Presbyterian church declared "those on the battle field never died more truly for a righteous cause." The Rev. Mr. Brundage urged the city to "turn not to sorrowing but to elimination of the evils that exist among us." The Rev. Mr. Wilson said Mellett's death is a challenge to us of Canton, of the state and of the nation."

All authorities and agencies working in the investigation are following the theory established at the first that Mellett died as the result of his editorials and personal activity against Canton crime and vice.

MELLETT SEEN AS LOYAL MAN.

Dayton, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—Don R. Mellett, slain publisher of The Canton Daily News, was characterized by former Governor James M. Cox, owner of The Canton News, as a frank and loyal man of deep religious feeling in "A tribute to Don Mellett by his employer," issued today.

The statement said: "I never knew a finer moral courage than his. He came to me many months ago with the recital of what he conceived to be fundamental wrongs in the life of the city of Canton.

"No one who reflects upon the situation developed by Mr. Mellett's reformative movement will question that he was each day approaching his objective . . . He has driven the agents and messengers of evil to their lair. Even in their hate, how they must have respected his continuing courage and the clarity of every diagnosis of conditions that he made.

"Driven to their extremity, these unfortunate persons decided that he must die.

"He, and he alone, more than any citizen or any group of citizens in Canton, stood between them and the loot which was dragging their souls to the very gates of hell. What cruel men they must have been.

"In the shadow of his home, with his four little children asleep in their beds, Don Mellett was cruelly murdered. No doubt the men who killed were professional gunmen. Authorities on criminal practices are convinced that on enterprises such as these, they drug themselves in order that they may be steeled against human emotions. These drugs, perchance, were brought to Canton by the very ring which has despoiled government and left its path of misery with unfortunate addicts.

"Don Mellett was not a crusader, bent upon adventure. He sought neither to exploit himself, nor his newspaper. He was moved purely by a sense of duty.

"How foolish were the assassins and those who goaded them on. The taking of a single life in the present circumstances is of no avail. The soul of Don Mellett will go marching on."

C. B. McClintock, Stark county prosecutor, tonight employed Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, to work in the Mellett case. He will be directly responsible to the prosecutor.

Detective Slater was credited with solving the Nesbitt murder mystery at Troy, Ohio, four months ago.

SPARTA GRANITE FIRM INSTALLS ELECTRICITY

Sparta, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The Macken Granite company's plant which was practically demolished some weeks ago by the explosion of the steam boiler which furnished power for operating the air compressor, is now back on full time, having installed complete new electric power equipment.

Two huge motors furnish the power which has been found to be more satisfactory than any other motive power yet employed by the local stone quarries.

The granite industry here is gradually being enlarged and will soon be one of the largest in this section. With unlimited hydroelectric power this expansion can be made as the stone supply has diminished very little.

SUPPORT IS GIVEN TO MUNCIE EDITOR

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—George R. Dale, militant editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, today was handed the first $500 of $5,000 pledged to him to enable him to appeal to the United States supreme court the decision of an Indiana court that "the truth is no defense" in published matter. Dale was sentenced to jail and fined $500 for a recent editorial published by him.

"This is only the beginning. We are going to raise $5,000," Emmet Cavanaugh, spokesman for the group of Chicagoans who offered to aid Dale, said. "We will back you until you get justice."

Dale's editorial criticised the grand jury, the jury commissioners, county prosecutor and sheriff in his trial on a charge of violating the state liquor law. The charge was later dropped, and he was held in contempt of court.

Dale said on Monday his attorney would file a petition for a writ of error before Chief Justice Myers, of the Indiana supreme court at Indianapolis, and if the petition is denied will apply for a writ to take the case before the highest court in the country.

One of the assertions of the writ of error, Dale said, will claim that Indiana magistrates are under complete domination of Ku Klux Klan politicians, and that his case was made unique in the Indiana courts for that reason.

MARKS IN BLOOD MAY INVOLVE TWO

Glover was employed at night as a lookout for moonshiners, although this has been stoutly denied, and that the negro practiced holding up people for money if they chanced to enter the woods. Glover was employed by the Royster Guano company in the day time.

Glover insists that he did not drive the Ford roadster with the two dead bodies from the scene. His confession says that he robbed the victims of the double murder of a handbag, watch, hats and umbrella and carried these articles away, and as he walked down the road leading toward the Royster Guano works, where he was employed and where he was residing with Alberta Pitts, he looked back and saw the murder car being driven across the road.

"I don't know who drove that car," the negro emphatically told the sheriff again this afternoon. "I didn't."

Judge H. A. Mathews has ordered a special session of the Bibb county grand jury for next Tuesday for probable indictment of Ed Glover, negro, who is alleged to have confessed the mrder last Saturday night of E. W. Wilson, 21, and his fiancee, Miss Hilda Smith, whose bodies were found last Monday in a clump of bushes off the Camp Wheeler road here. The grand jury is being drawn this afternoon.

Sheriff J. R. Hicks today refused newspaper men permission to interview the negro, but he still maintains that the negro confessed to him.

Whisky Found.

Raids of the sheriff's deputies in the Camp Wheeler vicinity have resulted in the discovery of large caches of whisky. Cobb's home, where Davis worked, is within a quarter of a mile of the murder scene.

Heavy police reserves augmented a force of sheriff's deputies in the Bibb county jail here today to guard Glover, the confessed slayer, after a riot call for police early today succeeded in dispersing a crowd of men which formed in the vicinity of the jail.

Five men have been arrested in connection with today's crowd and another crowd which formed last night after Sheriff J. R. Hicks announced that Glover had confessed slaying the couple whose bodies were found in a mire a few miles from the city last Monday.

Last night's crowd remained orderly after three men were arrested and heavy reserves of police were withdrawn leaving forty men to guard the jail. Early today while rumors were heard that a mob was forming near the city a band of men gathered on Mulberry street near the prison. Police, summoned from their posts in all parts of the city, arrested two men and the crowd scattered.

Sheriff Hicks declared last night that Glover confessed when officers showed him a watch which had been taken from the pockets of Wilson. Wilson and Miss Smith were engaged to be married next September. They went for an automobile ride last Saturday night and late Monday a passerby discovered the bodies.

Loot Concealed.

The negro denied all knowledge of the crime, the sheriff says, until confronted with Wilson's watch, which had been recovered by deputies yesterday afternoon. He had been living with a negress named Alberta Pitts near the Royster guano plant lately and at her house he concealed his loot.

When the hue and cry was raised after discovery of the bodies at sundown Monday he destroyed all the articles that would burn and concealed the watch in the woods. He went into hiding and commanded the Pitts negress to wash his bloody clothing and bring him other wearing apparel.

Deputies learned of the night rendezvous arranged for the negress to deliver the clothing to him and captured both late Thursday night. It was not until yesterday afternoon late, however, that the negro made confession, according to the sheriff.

HUSBAND OF NORA ASKS INFORMATION ON SEA WEDDING

New York, July 17.—(AP)—Among the first to seek advice today of the opinion of Judge Chauncey G. Parker, of the shipping board, that shippers of American boats have no power to perform marriage ceremonies was B. L. Friedland, who married Nora Bayes, popular comedienne aboard the Leviathan last summer. He asserted that while there was no question in his mind about the validity of his marriage, he and Miss Bayes would be remarried in London next month "if there was the slightest shadow of doubt."

The question of the validity of the sea marriage was raised in New York by Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, in fighting application for alimony to his wife, whom he met and married aboard the Leviathan last October. Supreme Court Justice Ford waived aside the question raised by Fisher and held "there is no question of the validity of the marriage."

KANSAS WHEAT CROP ESTIMATED AT 150,175,454 BUSHELS

Topeka, Kansas, July 17.—(AP)—Pronouncing the Kansas wheat crop as the second best in history, the Kansas Grain Dealers' association tonight estimated total production at 150,175,454 bushels. The estimate is nearly 14,000,000 bushels more than that of the state board of agriculture, which a week ago predicted 140,515,000 bushels.

Arrowhead Reveals Burial Of Twelve Norsemen in 1010

:: FRAGMENTS OF BONE ALSO FOUND ::

Spokane, Wash., July 17.—(AP)—Discovery of an Indian arrowhead and fragments of bone at the spot where Professor Olaf Opajon recently declared 12 Norsemen were buried in the year 1010 A. D., was announced today by the Spokane Chronicle.

Following Mr. Opajon's announcement last week that writings on a rock north of Spokane were Norse runes that described a battle between Norse Vikings and Indians in 1010 and marked the burial mound of 12 Norsemen killed in the battle, excavation of the mound was started under the directions of The Chronicle.

Professor Opajon, who is the author of numerous articles on Norse history, declared today the place marks the burial mound of at least one Viking who died with an Indian arrow in his body more than nine centuries ago.

The arrow was surrounded by fragments of bone.

Bone fragments were found in several other spots when the excavation was widened and lengthened and scattered bone splinters were taken from the side walls at a depth of two and one-half feet, the same level on which the arrowhead was found.

Mr. Opajon said the arrowhead was found in solid earth that appeared to have been undisturbed for ages. While digging was in progress, George Jacobs, past 80 years of age, an Indian of the Spokane tribe, visited the rock and declared the writings had been there for a "long time, long time." He said they were not made by Indians.

Night Aerial Photography Used Successfully by Army

:: FLASH BOMBS WILL BE INVALUABLE IN NEXT WAR ::

Dayton, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—In event of another war it would be possible, officers commanding the United States forces believe, to know with approximate exactitude any material movement of men, ships or airplanes by the enemy near enough in advance of the movement to completely forestall it, provided men and equipment were available.

The airplane and its vital and increasingly important adjunct, the aerial camera, have shattered and penetrated darkness, an army's greatest protection.

Practical perfection for military purposes was attained in night aerial photography Wednesday night when Lieutenant George W. Goddard made successful photographs from a plane at a height of 1,500 feet, using flash bombs and a special camera shutter synchronized with the flash.

"These photographs have such detail as to see groups of people on the streets of Dalton, to note automobiles and street cars and to recognize downtown buildings. Aerial night protographs have been made before in which fair detail and definition were obtained in stationary objects, but moving objects were always streaks or smudges on the film.

The flash bombs used in making the "shots" contain 30 pounds of flashlight power each and are of different colors. Different colors are combined in certain proportions to overcome certain actinic conditions. Some flashes eliminate haze, others do not. Some bring out more detail than others. The best results, Lieutenant Goddard said, are obtained by using quick and intense flashes of colored powders, rather than longer flashes of white powder.

pastor said he fired four shots at Chipps after the latter threatened to kill him.

He asserted Chipps had telephoned him this afternoon saying he was coming to "settle with you."

"I walked to my stenographer's office after hanging up the telephone and got some sermon notes and came back to get matters ready for the Sunday school superintendent's work for Sunday," he continued.

"Soon Mr. Chipps came into my office. He did not knock. He came rushing in and was very angry.

"'I am going to kill you for what you said in your sermon,' he said to me. I remonstrated with him and told him I did not want to have any trouble. I walked to the door of my office and invited him to leave, and as I turned and walked back to the desk he followed me and continued to threaten to kill me.

Reaches for Gun.

"'I mean every word I told you,' he said as he threw his hand behind him. There was a gun in the desk which the night watchman used. I reached in and got it. I saw nothing else for me to do but defend myself. He repeated his statement to me again, continuing to threaten to kill me. I shot him, I don't know how many times."

Mr. Norris said the sermon Chipps objected to referred to Mayor Meacham, whom he had criticized in connection with a civic land deal, and L. B. Haughey, manager of Meacham's department store.

Apprised of the killing, Mayor Meacham said:

"Chipps and Rev. Norris were close friends."

Volunteer to Sign Bond.

The district attorney's office was crowded when Dr. Norris had finished his statement. Many volunteered to sign the bond when the pastor was taken before a justice of the peace.

L. H. Nutt, auditor of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National bank, was believed to be the only other person present at the shooting. He was with Dr. Norris in the study when Chipps came in. Nutt, who was among the persons to sign the slayer's bond, corroborated the pastor's story. He said Chipps had made threats against Dr. Norris before the latter fired.

Nutt said Chipps warned the pastor he would kill him "if you make another statement about my friends."

Dr. Norris replied that he did not "want any more trouble out of you," according to Nutt.

"Norris took him to the door and Chipps said to him, 'I repeat everything I have said.'" Nutt continued.

"Let's Go To It."

When the pastor turned back toward his office, Chipps persisted with "let's go to it," said Nutt.

"Chipps made a move toward Norris. I don't know what Dr. Norris did. I was watching Chipps. First I knew of the shooting was when the shots were fired."

At the inquest tonight it was brought out that Chipps died in the ambulance on the way to a hospital from the church. Two bullets had struck near his heart.

Chipps was born in Bedford county, Virginia, in 1876, coming Texas in 1905 to establish a hardwood lumber mill at Dibold. He came to Fort Worth three years later and has lived here ever since. He was a member of three clubs. His wife was Miss May Murphy, of Texarkana, whom he married in 1908. They had one son, D. E. Chipps, Jr. He was a member of leading clubs and lodges of the city.

Record of Norris.

Norris first attracted nationwide attention when the church of which he was pastor burned in March, 1911, under mysterious circumstances which led to his trial on a charge of arson. After a trial in which many startling climaxes developed, including testimony of a government meteorologist regarding the position of the moon at the time of the blaze, Norris was acquitted.

Norris' congregation, which has followed him through the ups and downs of his career, has been increasing each year. It was only a few days ago that he announced opening of a radio membership for all unable to attend his services in person.

Norris is also editor and publisher of The Searchlight, financed partly by sale of stock and claiming a large circulation.

In recent years Norris has turned his bludgeons against the alleged teaching of evolution in Baptist schools and has been at odds with the remainder of the Baptist churches of the state for some time. At the state conference at Mineral Wells last December his delegates were not seated.

NORRIS CONDUCTED NEW YORK REVIVALS.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—The Rev. J. Frank Norris, Baptist minister who shot and killed D. E. Chipps in his Fort Worth church today, has on several occasions conducted fundamentalist revivals here in partnership with the Rev. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church. At one time Dr. Norris predicted "the destruction of sinful New York in one hour."

His last appearance here was in August, 1925, when he held a series of tent meetings.

Dr. Norris attracted attention at the Baptist convention in Washington last May when he attacked the Young Men's Christian association for opposing "blue laws" and "teaching the young men in army camps during the war to smoke." He was one of the most militant fundamentalists at the trial of John T. Scopes for violating the Tennessee anti-evolution law last year.

Wife of Scott Resumes Fast After Illness

Detroit, July 17.—The starvation drama, being staged by Mrs. Russell Scott to raise funds in defense of her husband who is sentenced to hang in Chicago October 15, tonight completes the first week of its "indefinite" run here.

Mrs. Scott was taken ill last night and was under a physician's care for several hours but today she was back in her glass cage in a local theater fasting for her seventh consecutive day before a curious crowd. The illness caused her to lose three pounds overnight and she is now down to 111 1-2 pounds. At the beginning of the fast she weighed 120 pounds.

Bearing out predictions of Mrs. Scott that box office receipts would be heavier after she had started to suffer, more than 400 curious onlookers paid 50 cents to view the faster during the day. For the first few days the show had drawn only meager audiences.

Worried Chickens Unrelieved.

Lincoln, Neb.—A district court has ruled that the nervous chickens of Emil Clatt must continue to suffer from the whir of airplanes above them. Clatt had asked an injunction against a flying corporation, claiming its planes sailing over his farm worried his hens so much that egg production had fallen off 25 per cent.

NAVAL ARSENAL IN STORM AREA

Dover, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—The navy's great arsenal at Lake Denmark, which blew up a week ago taking a toll of more than a score of lives, is in a section of the country subjected to severe electrical storms, the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster was told today.

Henry Wadhams, chief civilian clerk, whose wife was one of two women known to have been killed, told the court his experience in government stations in other sections of the country leads him to believe that thunderstorms occurred with greater frequency and severity in the neighborhood of Lake Denmark than at his other posts.

On one previous occasion, he said, lightning was believed to have caused a fire on the reservation.

Wadhams said he didn't see the lightning strike in the reservation, but that there were several very vivid flashes.

Wadhams, who handled nearly all the records and technical correspondence at the arsenal, said practically everything of that nature has been destroyed. The station's log, which was kept in the wrecked administration building, is among the lost records, he said. He did not believe any one is in a position to give an accurate account of exactly what explosives were in each building, in the absence of records.

The witness gave the court a history of the arsenal, showing its rapid growth since the war and also described the fire fighting appliances.

William Barris, stationary fireman on watch at the power house the evening of the disaster, gave a vivid account of the inferno.

Man Run Down By Car; Driver Sought by Police

Detectives Saturday began a search for the driver of a high-powered automobile that Tuesday morning struck down and seriously injured McTier Verner, of 715 Oakland avenue. Verner, who was attempting to board a street car on Cherokee avenue when struck by the automobile, was picked up by a passing motor car and carried to his home.

Verner's left leg was broken at the knee joint, and he received numerous lacerations and bruises in other portions of the body. The accident was reported to police Saturday morning by P. S. Wells, who works for the Southern Bell Telephone company. In his report to Captain J. L. Gordon, Mr. Wells stated that the automobile was traveling at a high rate of speed. The driver was said to have increased the speed of the car instead of stopping after striking Verner. A description of the car was furnished in the report and a thorough search is being made.

Fannie Hamilton, negress, who lives in the rear of 57 Hilliard street, was knocked down at Five Points Saturday morning by an automobile driven by J. C. Rowe, of Alpharetta, Ga. She was carried to the Grady hospital in a serious condition, and doctors there believe she is suffering from a fractured skull. Police investigating the accident, reported that it was unavoidable, and no case was made.

WAYCROSS PLANS BONDS FOR SEWERS

Waycross, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—The city commission has requested the city attorney to make arrangements for calling an election to vote on bonds for the extension of the city sewers as early as possible. It is estimated that a $150,000 bond issue will be called for.

The city manager, Abram Cook, has requested that engineers be employed to make a detailed survey of the proposed extensions.

Bobbed Hair and Rouge Voided Weddings in France

:: STATUTE OF 1770 HITS FASHIONS OF TODAY ::

Paris, July 17.—Any modern French miss with bobbed hair, rouged lips, high heels and a perfumed atmosphere who walks down the aisle to the marriage altar is, technically, already divorced.

A Parisian wag with a sense of humor and a wide knowledge of the law looked up the books and found in the laws passed by the parliament of Paris in 1770 a statute dealing with "artificial means" to win a husband. That statute is still on the books, although there has never been a record of its enforcement.

The law of 1770 is detailed and right to the point:

"Whosoever attracts into the bonds of marriage any male subject of his majesty by means of rouge or powder, perfumes false teeth, false hair, steel corsets, hooped petticoats, high heels or false hips will be prosecuted for sorcery and, if convicted, the marriage declared null and void."

Even the establishment of the civil code of 1905 failed to change the statute, it being retained on the books as dealing with "deception as regards the quality of merchandise."

The law is still on the statute books and any husband who feels that he has been deceived in the quality of the merchandise he acquired by marriage has only to apeal to any justice to obtain immediate divorce. The same right extends to any American married in France, either to an American or to a French woman. But the first time that a court would be called upon to divorce a modern Parisian on such frail grounds, the defending lawyer could probably justly remark:

"But, Your Lordship, there isn't one legally married couple in Paris: take a stroll along the boulevards or in the dressmakers' salons at teatime and study the evidence."

Women Stage Parade To Aid British Miners

London, July 17.—(AP)—Women labor sympathizers today staged a demonstration in Hyde Park in behalf of the striking British coal miners.

More than 3,000 of them marched from the Thames embankment to Hyde Park through London's fashionable West End, covering the same route which had been followed by the women's great peace parade and equal suffrage parade on recent Saturdays. The women gathered around three speakers' platforms in Hyde Park and passed resolutions expressing their "deep indignation" at the government's handling of the coal strike.

On the way to Hyde Park the marchers swept past the exclusive club district of Piccadilly and St. James street, where they taunted the clubmen with cries of "why don't you do some work?" and "go and earn your living."

BALDWIN PESSIMISTIC OVER END OF STRIKE.

London, July 17.—(AP)—Premier Stanley Baldwin himself seems to have very small hope of an early settlement of the coal strike. Speaking on this controversy at a political demonstration at Norwich today, the prime minister admitted he had no idea how long the dispute would last. He blamed the owners and miners equally for their refusal to face the facts and was rather ironic concerning the attempts of the bishops and church leaders to reconcile the conflicting parties, remarking: "I hope they will succeed. I shall welcome a solution from any quarter however unlikely."

PRIEST RESCUES THREE PERSONS IN APARTMENT FIRE

New York, July 17.—(AP)—Two women and a boy were carried to safety from a burning apartment house in West 43d street today by the Rev. William M. Burke, of Holy Cross Catholic church. The three fought their way from a blazing third-story apartment to the fire escape. Father Burke heard their calls for help in his nearby church and ran up the fire escape and carried them to safety, one at a time. The blaze was soon extinguished.

NEWPOINT METHODISTS HOLD BIG REVIVAL

Americus, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Revival services are in progress at Newpoint church, near Americus, Rev. C. T. Clark, of Davisboro, is conducting the services, and an old-fashioned Methodist protracted meeting, attended by persons residing in widely-separated sections of the county, has developed.

Man Confesses To Robbing Bank Of $300,000 Loot

Milwaukee, Wis., July 17.—(AP)—Matthew McNeil, of Minneapolis, arrested with four men in Superior, Wis., early this week, will plead guilty Monday in connection with the robbery of the Northwestern National bank here December 8, 1924, when $300,000 in cash and securities was taken.

He signed a confession today telling how six men robbed the bank, but refused to name his companions. He faces the prospect of spending from three to 30 years in prison.

McNeil was arrested as he and four persons drew up in front of a bank. The police had been trailing the car. All were heavily armed. McNeil was identified by the cashier of the bank as the man who had held a pistol on him during the robbery.

"I was there and was the one who jumped over the railing and grabbed the cashier," police quote McNeil as saying. "The man who went over the railing with me was the one who slugged the cashier, and I was the one who carried the black bag and went into the vault and scooped up all there was there."

The robbers took $281,000 in cash and securities, marking the first bank robbery in the history of Milwaukee. Approximately $220,000 of the amount was recovered in Chicago and New York when bonds known to have been part of the Milwaukee loot, were recovered.

DRYS ASK LIMIT ON SALE OF BEER IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, B. C., July 17.—(AP)—The provincial and Vancouver city Prohibition association decided here last night to circulate petitions immediately to limit sale of beer in the glass in this municipality.

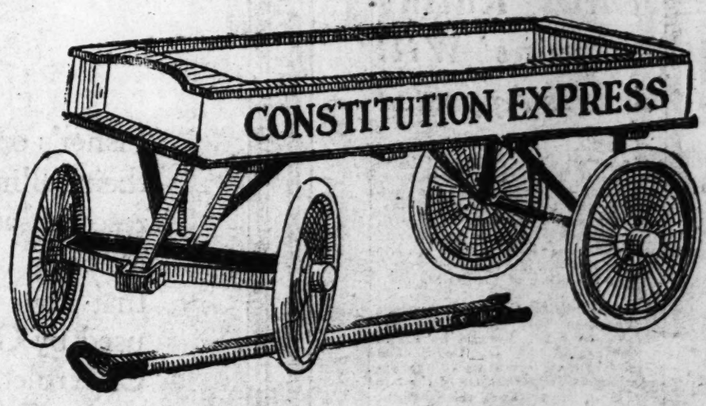

All liquor in British Columbia, is sold by the provincial government. After a meeting here June 8, prohibitionists of the province announced a campaign to make British Columbia bone dry. They voted to imitate the the campaign by eliminating beer parlors here. This sale of beer by the glass was established by a Vancouver plebiscite. The organization was formed following the meeting.

MISSIONARY FIRED ON BRANDING CHARGE

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Dr. C. A. Haysmer, the seventh day adventist missionary charged with branding the cheeks of a Korean boy for stealing apples, has been dismissed by the Far Eastern organization of the denomination, adventist headquarters here announced today. The mission board here approved the dismissal.

PARDON IS SEEN FOR BENNET DOTY

Paris, July 17.—(AP)—The probability that Bennet J. Doty, American world war veteran, will not have to serve out his eight-year sentence for deserting from the French Foreign Legion in Syria was indicated in high quarters today.

The principal secretary to War Minister Guillaumat said htat in his opinion there would probably be a marked reduction in the sentence. Although Doty by his enlistment in the legion is technically a French citizen, the secretary said, the ministry did not want to treat him with undue harshness.

The war minister is not in Paris at present being bound for Mainz to inspect the Rhine army, but at any rate no action can be taken until the court-martial papers arrive from Damascus, where the trial was held.

NICHOLAS RESIGNS FLEET BODY POST

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The resignation of G. K. Nicholas, vice president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, and the appointment in his stead of J. Harry Philbin, who has been head of the ship sales department of the corporation, was announced.

Mr. Nicholas served as vice president of the corporation throughout the administraton of Elmer E. Crowley, recently deposed as president, and before that had been assistant to the vice president in charge of operations.

In announcing the change, President Dalton, of the fleet corporation, said the appointment of Philbin was in line with his policy of filling important vacancies with men of long service with the corporation.

General Dalton also announced he had accepted the resignation of Louis A. H. Chalot as special assistant to him. The post will remain vacant for the present.

A further change announced today was the reappointment as director of operations of James Wilson, who resigned from that position some months ago and whose place had not been filled.

NOTED DIVINES TO TAKE PULPIT IN JONES' ABSENCE

Some of the most eminent divines of the south have been secured by Dr. Carter Helm Jones, of the Second Baptist church, to act as supply preachers in his pulpit during his absence on vacation. Dr. Jones will leave Monday for the Pacific coast where he will remain until after September 1.

Dr. John E. White, of Anderson, S. C., who is well-known in Atlanta, having served as pastor of the Second Baptist church some years ago, will preach August 29. Rev. Walter P. Binns, of Moultrie, state president of the Baptist Young People's union, will occupy the pulpit July 26 and again August 1. Dr. Cecil V. Cooke, pastor of the First Baptist church of Gaffney, S. C., who was closely associated with Dr. Jones during his pastorate in Philadelphia, will preach August 15 and 22. The pastor for August 8 will be announced later.

Supply pastors will preach at the morning services. The congregation will unite with five other Atlanta churches in community services each Sunday evening on the lawn of the state capitol. Dr. Jones will preach his farewell sermon Sunday morning on "The Vision of God."

Fifty years ago The Constitution began the printing almost daily of a negro dialect sketch, featuring the humorous comments of an old black philosopher on human interest events and current public topics.

The sketches were written by Sam W. Small, then and yet of The Constitution staff. They became promptly popular with the editors of the country, and soon were being copied into the daily and weekly press from Maine to California. They were frequently found in English, Canadian and Australian dailies.

The sketches were short, breezy and timely, quaintly expressed in negro language, and carried the title, "Old Si Says"—Old Si being the name Mr. Small gave to his mythical humorist.

Henry Watterson in The Courier-Journal reproduced the sketches regularly and editorially declared that they contained the truest negro dialect that was written in America.

Old-Time Humorists.

In that same period there were a score of newspapers distinguished for humorous features. The producers of them had a sort of mail-order association of "The Newspaper Humorists of '76," and The New York Graphic, the first illustrated daily in the world, assembled the portraits of the leading "funny men" and printed them in the double-page form that we reproduce in the accompanying picture.

The names of those who were then leading the laughing readers of America are given and "Old Si" Small, of The Constitution, is in the middle of the bunch.

So far as Mr. Small knows, all of those pictured are now deceased except Charlie Lewis, of The Detroit Free Press (no longer active) and himself.

Starts Monday.

Beginning tomorrow, the whimsical philosophies of this quaint, mythical old character will appear as a daily illustrated feature in The Constitution—the feature being the combined efforts of Dr. Sam W. Small, the originator 50 years ago of the character, and of Lewis C. Gregg, the talented head of The Constitution's art department.

No man in America keeps closer in touch with the news developments the world over than Dr. Small, and the new comments of "Old Si" will deal largely with those current news developments which are of general interest to all newspaper readers.

Old Si's homely philosophy will enable you to start the day off right every morning. Don't miss him a single day.

Charge of Bribe Demand Features Kidnaping Probe

ORMISTON'S TRAIL LEADS TO NORFOLK

Telegram Bearing His Name Is Sent to Party Whose Address Is Being Withheld for Present.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 17.—(AP)—Police and district attorney's investigators tonight were slowly piecing together the route of a phantom trail which evidence indicates may have been traveled by Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, with or without her consent, after she disappeared at the Santa Monica beach, near here, May 18.

The Angelus temple religious leader has told investigators and the grand jury that she was kidnaped, drugged and imprisoned in two shacks, presumably in Mexico, and escaped and traveled 17 miles afoot across the desert under a blazing sun to Douglas, Ariz., which she reached June 23.

Witnesses Question Story.

Six witnesses have declared they saw her after she was believed to have drowned at the beach and prior to her dramatic reappearance at Douglas, traveling in an automobile away from the beach through Culver City, a Los Angeles suburb; traveling in an automobile through Tucson, Arizona, and getting into an automobile at Agua Prieta, Mexico, in front of a resort there.

Tonight investigators were seeking to establish or disprove reports from Jacumba Hot Springs, San Diego county resort, that a veiled woman, accompanied by two men, who spent a day and a night there shortly after May 18, was the evangelist.

B. L. Vaugh, manager of the Jacumba Hot Springs company, and several of his employees were so impressed with the general likeness of the mysterious woman of the hidden face to Mrs. McPherson that they revealed their suspicions to the police and officers were sent to look into evidence.

Attack on Mayor.

Angelus temple followed up its counter-attack of yesterday against the testimony piling up in opposition to Mrs. McPherson's story with another broadside today, this time directed at the mayor of Agua Prieta.

Ernesto Bubion, mayor, or presidente of the Mexican town, had indicated previously that he seriously doubted the evangelist's tale of her 17-mile desert hike without food or water and today he drew the legal fire of Mrs. McPherson's attorney. They made public an affidavit, said to have been signed by William Appel, interpreter of Agua Prieta, charging Bubion with attempting to extort money from the evangelist as the price of his silence on evidence which he said he possessed controverting her statements.

Ormiston Still Missing.

Kenneth G. Ormiston, formerly Mrs. McPherson's radio operator, and her friend, who has been sought far and near as a possible source of information in the mystery, was heard from indirectly at two eastern points today.

One report said he had been seen in Statesville, N. C., last night, and the second said he had filed a telegram in Norfolk, Va., to an unrevealed address.

ORMISTON THREATENS TO SUE LOS ANGELES.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 17.—A telegram signed "Kenneth Ormiston," addressed to the mayor of Los Angeles and the county grand jury was received from Norfolk, Va., late today and efforts are being made to trace the sender.

The wire reads: "I stand to clean up hundred thousand in Norfolk real estate boom. Will sue Los Angeles if don't stop rotten stories about me. Will not leave Norfolk until boom is over or clean up big. Cut out the bum stuff or will pay dear for it. (Signed) Kenneth G. Ormiston."

GOVERNOR READY TO ORDER CHOIR MYSTERY PROBE

Conference on Course To Be Pursued Will Be Held By Officials in Trenton This Week.

PROBE IS STARTED BY STATE POLICE

Prosecutor Toolan, However, Says That He Sees No Reason for Reopening Noted Case.

Trenton, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—The attitude of the state of New Jersey toward another investigation of the four-year-old Hall-Mills murder mystery will be determined in this city next week at a conference of Governor Moore, Attorney General Katzenbach and Prosecutor Toolan, of Middlesex county.

Governor Moore today announced he would order a sweeping inquiry if the two law officers recommended it. The position of the attorney general has not been disclosed, but Prosecutor Toolan today reiterated statements of yesterday that he saw no reason for reopening the investigation.

State Police Probe.

It was learned today that state police are making a secret investigation in Somerset county, where the bodies of the Rev. Edward S. Hall, rector of the Church of St. John the Divine, of New Brunswick, and one of his choir singers, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, were found riddled with bullets, on September 14, 1922. The bodies lay a few hundred yards across the line dividing Somerset and Middlesex counties.

Both of the victims lived in New Brunswick, which is within the jurisdiction of the latter county.

Interest in the case was revived by the filing of a petition by Arthur S. Riehl, of Roselle Park, for an annulment of his marriage to Louise Geist Riehl, who at the time of the murder was employed as a maid at the Hall home. In this petition Riehl alleged that his wife had knowledge of the movements of some of the principals in the case on the night of the murder. He also charged that she had deceived him about her past.

The petition also declared that Mrs. Riehl received $5,000 for "keeping quiet."

Questions Woman.

Prosecutor Toolan today announced that he had questioned Mrs. Riehl, who lives with her parents, at Davidson's Mill, near New Brunswick, for four hours and that he could discover nothing to lead him to advise another investigation. He said Prosecutor Bergen, of Somerset county, saw Riehl's petition before he went on his vacation and that he was of the same opinion.

Chancery court attaches in this city, where the suit was filed, said the allegations were not sworn to and that the only affidavit accompanying the petition was one asserting that collusion was not involved in the suit.

FAIR, DRY WEATHER SEEN FOR ATLANTA AFTER COOL SPELL

Fair weather with rising temperatures is forecast for Atlanta today by C. F. von Herrmann, official prognosticator for this section.

Cold weather, which chilled the city during the early mornings of last week, has gone and summer weather may be expected today, he said. Fair weather is the prospect and there is little likelihood of rain in the near future, he added.

The thermometer touched 68 degress for the lowest point Saturday morning. Maximum temperature for the day was 86. Only a moderate increase is expected today and the mercury is not scheduled to go as high as 90 degrees.

100 PERSONS KILLED IN BOSNIA LANDSLIDE

Vienna, July 17.—(AP)—Reports from Belgrade say that between 80 and 100 persons were killed when a landslide buried a railroad train near Searajero, Bosnia.

New Probe of Hall-Mills Murder Looms

Marriage annulment proceedings begun against Louise Geist, formerly a maid in the rectory of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall at New Brunswick, N. J., may form the basis of a new inquiry made into the murder of Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, beautiful young choir singer, on September 14, 1922. Mrs. Mills was the wife of the church sexton. Hall and Mrs. Mills were slain on an old farm in the outskirts of New Brunswick. Miss Geist, "Wilile" Stevens, brother of the pastor's widow, and scores of other relatives and acquaintances were questioned.

FRANK O. LOWDEN MAY BE INDORSED BY IOWA G. O. P.

Leaders Expected To Denounce Failure of Farm Relief and Boom Lowden for President.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 17.—(AP)—A movement to condemn the attitude of the national administration on farm relief and indorse Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, as republican presidential candidate for 1928 is to be launched at the republican state convention here next Wednesday.

William O. Payne, a member of the Des Moines delegation, announced today that he would present a resolution criticizing President Coolidge for failure to support the sort of farm relief legislation desired by the midwest, and praising Mr. Lowden's work on behalf of the farmers and declaring him acceptable to the farmers as a presidential aspirant.

Political leaders concede that the convention most likely will adopt a resolution dealing with the farm relief subject and possibly indorsing some specific relief program, but the convention is not generally expected to go so far as to hold the president responsible for failure of farm bills in the last congress, or to consider the political aspects of the campaign.

Meeting a day after the conference, which hopes to agree upon a new farm bill to be presented to congress next winter, the convention probably will have some definite plan, already adopted by farm groups, to incorporate in the party's platform.

Farm Failure Protest.

Following closely upon the primary that nominated Colonel Smith W. Brookhart for the senate in what has been widely interpreted as a protest against the failure of farm legislation, the party convention may center largely about that subject.

The keynoter, Dan Turner, has indicated that the farm situation would receive considerable attention in his speech, and Colonel Brookhart and Senator A. B. Cummins probably will address the convention, dealing with economic conditions as well as political matters.

It will be the first republican convention to recognize Colonel Brookhart since he became a member of the senate, his previous absence being due to his differences with the party organization.

The platform will contain a definite statement, advance reports indicate, on agricultural policy and is expected to strongly support the stand of Senator Cummins and Colonel Brookhart, that the party has neglected to carry out its promises to farmers made in 1924.

Colonel Brookhart's supporters have indicated that he will not attempt to gain control of the convention or the party organization, confining his activities to a continuation of the battle on issues, primarily those relating to the farmer.

FRANK TINNEY LOSES HIS HOME TO PAY ALIMONY

New York, July 17.—(AP)—The home of Frank Tinney, comedian, was sold today by a sheriff to pay "back" alimony.

In the courthouse at Mineola, a sheriff "knocked down" to Sandy E. Fisher, of Brooklyn, assignee of a claim against the comedian obtained by Mrs. Edna Davenport Tinney, the house and furnishings at Foxhurst, their former home at Baldwin, on Long Island. The price was $11,600, the sale was made to permit Mrs. Tinney to recover a judgment of $10,800 against her former husband for alimony due her. They were divorced in December last.

DOUBLE SHOOTING REMAINS MYSTERY AS SONNER DIES

Death of Q. C. Sonner May Conceal Forever Identity of Slayer of Miss Jean Braswell.

Tryon, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—North Carolina probably never will know who slew Miss Jean Braswell, and then shot Q. C. Sonner, Jr., prominent member of a Saluda family, while the two were riding on a lonely mountain road near Saluda on the night of July 7.

Pneumonia claimed young Sonner at 3:15 o'clock this morning at the Tryon hospital, where surgeons had battled for his life since the night of the mysterious tragedy. Death, Polk county officers believe, has thrown an immovable shroud over the slaying that has baffled every effort of detectives to fathom. So far as justice is concerned, the matter is closed. An autopsy over the body of young Sonner may be held, but Polk county officials have not yet decided upon this formality. They believe that an inquest would reveal nothing that might tend to offer a solution of the mystery that probably always will remain just that.

Sonner, who had told surgeons at the hospital that a youth whom he knew only as "Jimmy" killed Miss Braswell and then shot him twice through the chest after a quarrel while the trio viewed the beautiful Green River Cove just as dusk was mantling the Blue Ridge, was believed to be on the road to recovery until Thursday.

A blood transfusion had brought Sonner back from death's door the day after the tragedy. His younger brother, Samuel, furnished the blood that revivified the wounded youth. He recovered consciousness, chatted with relatives and friends who visited him at the hospital and seemed certain to recover. He did not discuss the tragedy again, however, and did not ask whether officers had found any trace of the mysterious "Jimmy."

OPERAS CHANGED, POWERS TO RETURN TO COMEDY CAST

Colorful 'Sari' Will Be Played by Municipal Opera Association During Week of August 2.

With every detail of the brilliant production, "Pirates of Penzance," completed as the offering for the fifth week of the light opera season, General Manager Lewis Haase announced Saturday that the colorful and sprightly "Sari' 'will be the offering for the week of August 2 instead of the older and heavier "Fortune Teller," originally posted.

In this connection, Mr. Haase announced that Lou Powers, popular comedian, will be in the cast of both "Katrinka," week of July 26, and "Sari," week of August 2. Jefferson D'Angelis, who has been making such a hit in "Robin Hood," will play his famous role of the sergeant of police in "The Pirates of Penzance" this week, and after a rest of two weeks will give his great characterization of Mr. Nish in "The Merry Widow" for the final week of the season.

"This is in line with the policy of the Municipal Opera association," Mr. Haase said, "of engaging whenever it is possible, actors and singers identified with outstanding roles to present those roles in Atlanta.

"It was for that reason that Mr. D'Angelis was especially engaged for the Sheriff of Nottingham in 'Robin Hood;' the sergeant in 'The Pirates of Penzane' and Mr. Nish in 'The Merry Widow.' In line with that policy also we have been delighted to engage Mr. Powers for the roles he has helped to make famous in 'Katinka' and 'Sari.'"

"Sari" Big Success.

"Sari," by Emmerich Kalman, was one of the biggest successes of recent years, and many theatergoers will remember how delightfully it was presented with Mitzi in the leading role.

In "Sari" Mr. Powers will play the comedy role in which he originally scored such a hit in New York and on its four of the country.

Miss Louise Hunter, popular little prima donna, will enjoy a role of wonderful opportunity in "Sari." Miss Hunter's work is particularly good in roles created by Mitzi, and as "Sari" was one of Mitzi's most wonderful shows, it is certain that Miss Hunter will have a part which will give her wide range both in singing and in acting.

"The Pirates of Penzance" is most melodious and ridiculous of all the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. It will be the bill for this week at the Atlanta theater, and has every promise of being the most popular work of the season.

While thousands upon thousands of people know and love "The Mikado" and "Pinafore," the even more delightful "Pirates of Penzance" has been performed comparatively little in this country—perhaps because it makes far heavier demands upon a company than the others of the Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire. It was given here by DeWolf Hopper several years ago, in a week of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, and proved by far the most entertaining of the engagement, and Mr. Hopper's characterization of the sergeant of police will never be forgotten by those who enjoyed it.

Jefferson d'Angelis will sing the fa-

UPSHAW DEFENDS RIGHT TO SPEAK FOR PROHIBITION

BETTER FIGHT RUM THAN PLAY POKER

Declares His Defeat Will Deprive District of "Richest Opportunity" and "High Honor."

Assailing "wet" interests in Washington and declaring it was his privilege to spend his extra time fighting liquor and other "devilment" if he chose, rather than play poker and go to the devil generally like some congressmen in Washington are doing, Congressman William D. Upshaw, of the fifth district, fired three guns in opening his campaign for reelection by delivering addresses Saturday at Tucker, Stone Mountain and in East Atlanta. Hundreds heard the speeches.

The congressman spoke at length on his affiliation with the Anti-Saloon league asserting that "press correspondents in Washington—most of them 'wet' and loving sensation, have seized every opportunity to send out something to hurt me politically." At this juncture he remarked, "I certainly have as much right to defend our sober constitution for money as Mr. Steele (an opponent) has to defend bootleggers in his law practice, or as Mr. Sims has to defend redhanded murderers while he is mayor of Atlanta."

Mr. Upshaw defended his Washington record and denounced certain press reports regarding his activities. He gave a long list of what he termed constructive victories, mentioned the establishment of the arcade postoffice, spoke of work regarding veterans of the world war and concluded by outlining future policies and plans he intended to carry out, if honored with the post again.

Just Getting Hand In.

"I think there ought not to have been a campaign this time," he said, "for when a member of congress keeps sober and works hard for his constituents, he should be spared the expense and annoyance of a campaign every two years. If opponents had their way during the seven years I have been serving you, there would have been a new congressman every term. That would mean this great capital of Georgia never would have had any influence in shaping national legislation.

"When my predecessor, William Schley Howard had opposition two out of four terms in congress, he said, 'boys you hadn't ought bother Bill Schley now—for I'm just beginning to get my hand in so I can do my best for you.' Mr. Howard was there much of the time under democratic administration, while I have trailed for nearly eight years hampered by a republican muzzle; but now with the stage all set for a democratic house next time and either of three chairmanships in my grasp, my removal would snatch from you the richest opportunity for service any congressman may achieve and deprive this district of high honor. What folly and what economic waste for these acquirements come not alone because of personal activities, or business sagacity, but through the law of seniority and service. Any new man, though as brilliant as Henry Grady or Alexander Hamilton would have to go foot and spell his way up to head.

Fought By Press.

"In previous campaigns I have never indulged in abusive personalities. They have no place in a high class

STEELE TO SPEAK NEXT AT PALMETTO

"No, I did not 'shell the woods' anywhere Saturday in my race for congress from the fifth district as I have been busy with other matters this week," said L. J. Steele at his home in Decatur Saturday night.

"My campaign is moving along smoothly and satisfactorily. My next speech will probably be at Palmetto next Saturday," he said.

STATE POLITICAL DRIVE SETTLES DOWN TO GRIND

Forces Opposed to J. J. Brown Reported Close To Agreement on Centering Forces.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Candidates for state offices having recovered from voluminous eruptions of Fourth of July oratory and the exertions of the early season of telling jokes, shaking hands and patting babies on the head, Georgia's political campaign during the week just ended began to simmer down to real business and now is entering the early phases of a real general battle, according to a summary of political talk coming from factions in all the races.

Outstanding developments of the week indicated that a season of real political action now is faced. In the races for the United States senate and for governor there has been much marking of time, but in the race for commissioner of agriculture some surprising changes have been made in the last few hours in the situation. One of these was the retirement of James H. Mills as a candidate. The other was the indication Saturday that the four other "anti-Brown" candidates were close to an agreement which would place one single opponent in the field against the present commissioner.

In the race for the United States senate the most interesting development was the challenge to joint debate by Judge Richard B. Russell to Senator Walter F. George. Judge Russell Saturday made public a copy of the letter sent to Senator George. In behalf of Senator George, Ed Dykes, his campaign manager, said Saturday that the senator would have a statement to make concerning this challenge some time during the week.

Judge Russell will deliver a campaign speech at Milledgeville Tuesday, it was announced Saturday at his campaign headquarters. He received an invitation Saturday from friends to come to Milledgeville and speak during the noon recess of court. Other speaking dates will be announced later.

Little action can be reported in the governor's race. George Carswell, after firing his opening gun, has been "non-committal." Dr. L. G. Hardman has been ringing no welkins with speeches, while John N. Holder resembles the prize pupil in a deaf and dumb school as far as talk is concerned. He indicated in the sign language Saturday that his race was doing "quite well, thank you," but had no other information to make public. J. O. Wood, who also is running for governor, issued a short campaign statement.

Commissioner's Race.

But in the fight for commissioner of agriculture there is lots of stepping around. Candidates Eugene Talmadge, of McRae; Charley Stewart, of Atkinson; J. S. Shettlesworth, of Gwinnett, and John R. Irwin, of Sandersville, have been adorning the lob-

UPSHAW PAUCITY OF ACHIEVEMENT RAPPED BY SIMS

SIMS IN HOT SPEECH AT DOUGLASVILLE

Douglasville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Walter Sims touched off the first real fireworks of the fifth district congressional marathon Saturday afternoon when he told some 600 residents of Douglas county that Congressman Upshaw had never done a solitary single thing during eight years at Washington and that Upshaw and L. J. Steele were in cahoots to "trade" the job.

"Vote for Steele and you vote for Upshaw," Mr. Sims said, "and when you vote for Upshaw you vote for a man who has never done anything; who can't do anything and a man who doesn't even live in the state of Georgia, much less the fifth congressional district."

Charges Non-Residence.

Mr. Sims produced sheets from the Asheville, N. C., city directory which showed Mr. Upshaw listed as a resident of that city. He also declared that Mr. Upshaw's automobile sported a North Carolina tag—"and a man who hasn't enough pride in his state to help support it by buying an automobile tag hasn't any business in congress." Mr. Sims said Mr. Upshaw's name appeared in the Asheville city directory for five years, to his own personal knowledge, explaining that he didn't know for sure about 1926 because he didn't have the directory.

"I expect his name is in there, however," he said, "and people who make up city directories don't put your name in them unless you live in their town."

Mr. Sims rubbed this spot hard. He stressed with painstaking eloquence the fact that Mr. Upshaw did not live in Atlanta, the fifth congressional district and Georgia. The candidate also made it as plain as day that he meant nothing personal in any of his remarks about either of his opponents.

Congressman Upshaw and Mr. Steele are in cahoots, Mr. Sims said. He said that Steele and the present congressman had an idea that the office belonged to them and that the people didn't have anything to do with it at all. Mr. Upshaw wrote Mr. Steele two years ago, the mayor declared, and said "if you don't run against me this time I won't run against you next time."

Jumping on this question with both feet, Mr. Sims said Mr. Steele would never get in congress unless he traded for it. He testified further that Mr. Steele has "played out—that's all."

Mr. Sims then attacked Mr. Steele's attitude toward the race, declaring that "the other night at the Peacock cafe he said 'I don't know whether I can do anything for you or not'—do you want to vote for a man who admits that he doesn't know whether he can serve your interest or not, and a man who retired from the race two years ago on the promise that

French Police Called as Mob Booes Herriot

Man Who Caused Briand's Defeat Threatened by Ugly Mob.

BY HENRY WALES.

(Copyright, 1926, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Paris, July 17.—Edouard Herriot was hissed and threatened with bodily harm in the streets of Paris tonight. As he drove by the gates of Elysee palace, an enormous sullen crowd, massed in the Rue Faubourg St. Honore, spotted the bulky, silk-hatted gentleman who did the Briand cabinet to its death.

Hisses and savage cries and ugly threats, rose from the mob and 50 policemen were required to protect the limousine while squads of other police were brought up to clear the street.

A heavy guard was immediately posted in the palace at the president's chamber to nip any further demonstrations.

:: WHISKY IS GOOD TO DRINK, SAYS DRY CHIEF ::

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, July 17.—Study of an accurate bootleggers' map of the union would disclose that the citizens of Florida get the purest liquor in the country, prohibition authorities said today.

According to reports received by Frank Dow, acting federal dry chief, 85 per cent of the booze sold in the state of Florida is smuggled goods. Comparing this condition with that existing in other states, Mr. Dow asserted that less than 5 per cent of the liquor consumed outside of Florida is smuggled in from other countries.

Mr. Dow estimated that 95 per cent of the liquor used for beverage purposes in this country last year was manufactured in the United States from denatured alcohol. While in many cases the poison has been eradicated, dry investigators report that the smuggled goods are much safer to drink than the manufactured liquors.

The whole south, according to the dry officials, is faring better than other sections of the country in the character of the booze it is getting. Reports received by Mr. Dow indicate that high-powered, biting, corn liquor, with the proper head on it, is being manufactured in Georgia, South Carolina and many of the other southern states.

This liquor, dry experts say, barring its rawness, is sound and better to drink than the synthetic drinks of the north. Chicago and other large cities, with the exception of Detroit, are the great sufferers from bad liquor concoctions, according to Mr. Dow. In these cities, he said, less than 5 per cent of the liquor is smuggled in. Virtually all the liquor consumed is made from denatured alcohol from which the poison has been more or less removed by cooking and other methods, he said.

Mr. Dow's study revealed that Detroit and the Pacific coast get better liquor than is sold generally throughout the country. Along the coast it is estimated that about 15 per cent is smuggled through the lines.

Enter Constitution Contest

:: BRILLIANT FUTURE IN MOVIES OFFERED WINNER ::

Now for Cash Prizes and Fame

If there are any young people in Atlanta who have a desire to enter the "movies" now is the time for them to get in the game or to hold their peace for one year at least. The Constitution, in association with the Famous-Players-Lasky company, has arranged to give real screen tests right here in Atlanta in charge of experts from the Paramount studios. These tests will be given in connection with a contest which will be held to select thirty young people as candidates for the Paramount school of junior stars which will be conducted in September.

The week of August 2 is the week when the screen tests will be made and during the same week the work of the winners of last year's tests will be displayed at the Howard theater. On the screen will be the picture, "Fascinating Youth," which was produced by the Paramount studios with the 16 junior stars of last year in principal roles. On the stage will be seen "Alice in Movieland," which was produced by John Murray Anderson, and in which the 16 stars, including Miss Ivy Harris, of Atlanta, will appear in person.

To add interest to the screen contest three prizes will be offered. For the three screen tests out of the thirty which are judged the best by three Paramount directors, D. W. Griffith, Allan Dawn and Mal St. Clair, a first prize of $100, second prize of $50 and third prize of $25 will be awarded.

In addition to these prizes, which will be awarded by The Constitution, each person having a screen test made has an opportunity of being selected as a candidate for the next Paramount school of acting. The Paramount studio, however, does not guarantee the selection of any candidate from any particular city. Screen tests will be made at the Howard theater

FISHER FUNERAL IN NEWNAN TODAY

Newnan, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Funeral services for Harry C. Fisher, 57, formerly mayor of Newnan, who died at his home here will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, at the home.

Mr. Fisher was a native of Camden, S. C., moving to Newnan in 1870. He had taken a leading part in business, social and civic work of the city for many years. He was at one time cashier of the First National bank, of Newnan, and at one time a director of the Atlanta and West Point railroad.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, H. M. Fisher, of Atlanta, and B. Y. Fisher, of Newnan, and two sisters, Mrs. Brader Parker and Mrs. Paul Romare, of Atlanta.

UPSHAW ASSAILED BY MAYOR SIMS

the incumbent wouldn't run against him?"

Hits at Steele.

"No, you don't," Mr. Sims said. "He's got a record and people are betting money he won't carry his own county. A vote for Steele is a vote for Upshaw. I understand he's pussyfooting around and saying that organized labor isn't going to support me. I'll give $5 for every vote cast for Steele by anyone connected with the motormen and conductors, if someone will give me 25 cents for every one against him."

Mr. Sims called on W. A. Adcox, an employee of the Georgia Railway and Power company, a member of the audience, who stated that Mr. Steele had represented the widow of a negro who was shot and killed by a Decatur car conductor. Adcox said that Mr. Steele told the court that the negro had been shot down by a "little upstart of a street car conductor," and that the community "mourned the loss of a respectable citizen."

"Steele voted to kill a bill in the Georgia legislature which was designed to force the railroads to pay its employees every 30 days. Under the old plan", Mr. Sims said, "the railroad man was forced to wait six and seven weeks after the end of the month before he collected his wages. The bill required that he be paid on the first of every month, and it was this bill, Mr. Sims said, that Mr. Steele voted to kill.

"And there's the income tax. I hope I'll never live to see the day when such a tax will be straddled on the necks of the men and women of Georgia. How did Steele vote on the income tax when it came up before the legislature? He voted in favor of it, that's how. Not only did he vote in favor of it but he voted in favor of it when it was brought up for reconsideration. And, also, Mr. Steele—August 16, 1926—voted to bond the state of Georgia to extend the state road to the sea, a thing which would have bankrupted the state."

Attacks Upshaw Record.

Returning to the subject of Mr. Upshaw, Mr. Sims declared that his eight years in congress were represented by "eight great, big goose eggs." Zeros of accomplishment, in other words. The incumbent has done nothing for his district, Mr. Sims said, and will never be able to do anything.

"Let Mr. Upshaw name me a single bill that he introduced into congress and secured the passage of that benefited this district. Just one bill—let him show it to me. There has certainly been need of legislation. Upshaw did not support bills which were framed in an effort to aid the farmer. He was against them. If you are against a thing you've got some reason for it and should have a different plan to offer. If he thought the bills were wrong why didn't he offer an amendment and propose relief for the southern farmer? He supported the Farmers' Loan bank. But that isn't it.

"Your congressman was doing absolutely nothing while 63,000 farms were being deserted in Georgia. Families left by the thousands. With the great financial structure of commerce and industry—the backbone of civilization itself—endangered, if he has done anything, let him put it in the paper. Let him tell the world about it, for the people can't find it.

"Congressman Upshaw can't do anything for you. He has no influence in Washington. Not even enough influence to carry the press box. I quote you an excerpt from an editorial in the Chattanooga Times: 'Maybe the people of the Atlanta district will wake up to the realization of the fact that their responsibility, their prestige and their political intelligence are being seriously impaired in the public mind by sending this misfit to represent them in congress. It isn't prohibition—lots of high class men are prohibitionists—but it is that so important a district in the south should send such a maudlin, one-ideal, mental paralytic to represent them in the halls of congress.'"

Mr. Sims touched briefly upon the Pullman check, made out to a J. W. Upsher, which Mr. Upshaw is reported by the press as having cashed. Mr. Sims read from the newspaper clipping that Mr. Upshaw stated that he was expecting an adjustment from the Pullman company regarding a refund which was due him, and that he cashed the check while the "matter was being settled."

He read several other newspaper clippings, all of them tending to detract either from Mr. Upshaw's ability as a congressman or his conduct.

Says Upshaw Absent.

"I have here before me," Mr. Sims said, "the records of the votes and roll calls of congress during Mr. Upshaw's hopeless eight years. In the 66th congress, second session, there were 104 roll calls and at 30 of them Mr. Upshaw failed to respond when his name was called—one-third of the time he wasn't there. In the 66th congress, third session, 62 roll calls were made and Mr. Upshaw was absent at 22 of them. In the 67th congress, first session, there were 60 calls and at 20 of them Mr. Upshaw failed to respond when his name was called."

Mr. Sims then made some reference to Mr. Upshaw's "honorariums" as a speaker on subjects not in line of his duties as a congressman.

"What have we got him for," the speaker demanded, "and what in the name of common sense are we paying him for? Answer me, men and women of Douglas county, do you believe that your congressman has been faithfully and conscientiously at work?

"Prohibition is not the greatest question for you to consider when you go to the polls September 8. Prohibition, like slavery, is settled. It is a law and congress can do nothing about it.

"One of the greatest questions is relief for the farmers. Every other business has been accorded federal aid, but not one thing has been done for the farmer.

"Mr. Upshaw made a big speech and had his picture in the paper when he said give Italy half of her indebtedness to America and let her pay the rest. Give Italy 50 million dollars. You haven't heard him saying anything about giving the farmers 50 million dollars, have you?

"Let's see these farms rehabilitated. No wonder there are bank and commercial failures in Georgia. Everything is dependent upon the farmer and it's no wonder they fail.

"The biggest thing before us is the preservation of American freedom as our forefathers bled and died for it. If we don't protect our liberty and independence there'll be no state rights to argue about when our government is shadowed and taken over by the world court.

Opposes World Court.

"If the silver tongue of Thomas E. Watson could be heard today, it would say—'don't be fooled, vote against the world court.' Would you create a court here in Douglas county, made up of Dagoes, negroes, Cubans, and whatnots to judge your family and children? Yet your congress voted $50,000 to the support of a court which amounts to the same thing. I'll vote against it if I'm the last man in the world left to vote. Neither of my opponents has had the courage to come out and say just how he felt on the question.

"One of my opponents has stated that he would bury me politically on September 8. If the reception I was accorded in his own home county is indicative of a thing, I'm going to be about the livest corpse he ever officiated over."

OPERAS CHANGED; POWERS TO RETURN

Plot Is Unique.

No other mind than W. S. Gilbert's could have conceived such a plot as that of the "pirates." Frederick, the hero, is an orphan boy who has just come of age and free of his long apprenticeship to a band of buccaneers, who also are orphans and, therefore, generous in their treatment of all orphan ship captains and their orphan crews. His life has been a great mistake, for Ruth, his nurse, had unfortunately apprenticed him to a pirate chief through an error. She has made amends, however, by joining the crew as maid-of-all-work in order that she might watch over the lad's morals. In his years with the black flag, he has never seen another maiden than Ruth—until Mabel comes upon the scene in the first act. And as Mabel is played by Louise Hunter, one can imagine how Frederick's heart is affected.

Louise Hunter, who returns to the cast after a week's rest, will have the role as Mabel which well might have been written for her dainty personality. Anne Yago will be Ruth, the pirate maid, and Arthur Burckley will play Frederick, the hero who woos the beautiful Mabel.

Remarkable Role.

Louis Templeman, the popular baritone, will have the best part of the season, up to this time, as the major general, a typical Gilbert and Sullivan character, with a song which is a tongue-twister. Mr. Templeman, at the frequent rehearsals, has kept the whole company in a roar with that song, and promises to share the comedy honors with Jeff d'Angelis. Vera Myers has a splendid ingenue role, with special dancing numbers; Mary Patterson and Mabel Dumas will be given good parts, and Billy McLeod will be Samuel, a good comedy character.

"The Pirates of Penzance" is Gilbert and Sullivan at their best, written at the height of their fame as author and composer of the Savoy operettas. Never did Gilbert turn out a "book" so full of delightful wit and satire; never did Sullivan produce such dainty music for the love scenes, such grandiloquent measures for the comedy bits; such rollicking choruses as those for the pirates and their enemies, the police.

"The Pirates" will be given every night, with the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Seats go on sale Thursday for "Katinka, the Rudolf Friml musical comedy which will be given next week.

STATE POLITICIANS PASS BUSY WEEK

bies and corridors of the Kimball House for several days. Henchman of them all have been running back and forth; conferences of an informal nature have been in progress, and from all the talk that is heard, it seems to be certain that they will all get together in a few days and agree to support one candidate to oppose J. J. Brown.

The state democratic executive committee has no authority to change the ruling governing the nomination of a democratic candidate for commissioner of agriculture, G. E. Maddox, chairman of the committee, Saturday informed Eugene Talmadge, one of five remaining candidates for the post, according to Associated Press dispatches from Rome, Mr. Moddox's home.

Under the provisions of the primary election law of 1917, Mr. Maddox informed Mr. Talmadge, the candidate is nominated by a plurality of county unit votes, or, in case there is no plurality, by a majority of county unit votes.

Request Made By Two.

The request was made by Mr. Talmadge in conjuction with John R. Irwin, another candidate for the place, that the subcommittee of the state democratic executive committee be called into session and promulgate a rule that the nominee for commissioner of agriculture be selected by a majority of the qualified voters in the primary election of September 8.

In the meantime, Brown is traveling over the state attending various agricultural meetings and other meetings with probably no thought of politics in his mind, but his friends made a statement Saturday that he will establish headquarters at once in rooms 308 and 310 of the Kimball House with James D. Weaver, state senator from Terrell county, as manager.

With his feelings ruffled over the painful desertion of three of his most trusted lieutenants, Lem B. Jackson, Fred Bridges and James H. Mills, calmed down and soothed by the fact that these three doughty and battle-scarred political veterans now are in private life, "J. J." will be called upon to face other issues in the campaign, according to the statements of the "anti-Brown candidates." While the four "antis" had reached no agreement as to a candidate, they were in perfect and happy accord Saturday that they were all whole-souled in earnest in their efforts to break the power of the "Brown machine" in state politics.

Talmadge Waxes Facetious.

Candidate Talmadge added a bit of humor to the campaign Saturday when he vouchsafed his opinion as to "Brown talk" being heard around the state.

"In every county I have visited I have found the Brown talk to sound something like that of the bull frogs on the side of a pond at night," he said. "When you listen to them at night it sounds like a great roar of an army of frogs but when you go there in the day time you'll find two or three little frogs blinking on the bank. In every county I have visited I have found the Brown talk to simmer down to the loud snouting of one Brown oil inspector and a Brown fertilizer agent."

Ed Dykes, campaign manager for Senator George, announced Saturday that Senator George will make his opening campaign speech Monday at Greenville, Meriwether county, and also will fill several other speaking engagements before returning to Atlanta.

"We have received personal assurances, assurances in letters and information by telegraph from all parts of the state, and the situation is one which is quite gratifying to Senator George," Mr. Dykes declared.

Russell Statement.

Judge Russell's campaign committee which is headed by his sons issued the following statement:

"Reports from all parts of the state conclusively show that thinking people everywhere are keenly alive to the importance of the issues involved in the candidacy of Judge Russell. Letters containing assurance of support from every section have been pouring into headquarters from people who supported Judge George on the platform he announced in his former race for the senate, in which he strongly declared his opposition to any compact such as the world court and the League of Nations. These people are now vigorously opposing him for about facing on the question and voting for the entrance of our country into the world court. It is apparent that if the world court is wrong in principle that no number of reservations could justify one who as a candidate declared his 'deep-rooted and unshakable' opposition, in reversing his position after election and deserting the principle on which he was elected by strongly urging that this country enter the world court, and thus make a revolutionary departure from the policy of non-interference with European affairs, followed by this country since its inception.

"So far Judge Russell has received no reply from his challenge to Judge George for a series of joint debates on the world court and other issues of the campaign. While it is sincerely hoped that Judge George will accept this challenge and meet Judge Russell face to face before the people on the stump, we are afraid that he will not face his record before his constituents. He cannot successfully defend his vote in favor of the world court before the people who elected him in 1922, and his position as a senator, upon the great question of relief for the farmers from the stagnant condition now obtaining is equally untenable. However, the people are at least entitled to know from his own mouth what has caused him to change his mind on the world court, and why his great volubility on this question when a candidate in 1922, has relapsed into a sphinx like silence in the campaign of 1926. If, as some of his supporters seem to indicate, Judge George believes that the people have forgotten his promise when a candidate for election, and are blind to the great danger of losing the individuality and sovereignty of this republic in such a witches cauldron as the world court, into which Judge George has voted the country, he is doomed to a rude awakening when the people have a chance to express themselves at the polls on September 8th."

Wood Speeches Slated.

J. O. Wood will begin another active week of his campaign at noon Monday when he addresses voters of Meriwether county in the courtroom of Judge Henry Revell at Greenville.

On Thursday, July 22, the candidate will speak at a barbecue at LaGrange. He will conclude the week with an address to voters of Douglas county at a meeting at Douglasville at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Future speaking engagements include Buchanan, Monday, July 26; Americus, Wednesday, July 28, and Columbus, Thursday, July 29.

Wood's Statement.

In his statement Mr. Wood said he was well pleased at reports reaching him in his office in the Wynne-Claughton building. He said he has no campaign manager to issue statements, but said he had recently received several fine reports from counties which he heretofore was prepared to concede were against him. He said he made no claims of having the race "sewed up," but had received encouraging reports from different parts of the state.

Considerable interest is being shown in some of the other races for state offices, although they are somewhat overshadowed by the races for governor, United States senator and commissioner of agriculture.

Albert J. Woodruff, who is unopposed for the short term of one year on the state public service commission, but who is opposed by W. R. Frier, of Douglas, for the long term, issued a statement Saturday in which he declared an organization of his friends in DeKalb county has been formed to handle details of his campaign. Mr. Woodruff said he had just returned from a tour of the state and had received numerous assurances of support.

Mr. Frier, opposing Mr. Woodruff for the long term, announced the opening of headquarters in Douglas county. He also reported he had been indorsed for the position on the state public service commission by the Douglas Kiwanis club. Headquarters will be established at the Kimball house in August, with J. W. Quincey in charge, he announced.

Talmadge Attacks Brown.

Late Saturday Mr. Talmadge, candidate for commissioner of agriculture on an "anti-Brown" platform, issued a supplementary statement in which he charged that officials from Brown's office had collected campaign funds from appointees and made several specific charges in this connection.

Mr. Talmadge's supplementary statement follows:

"Mr. Brown has vehemently denied that he was assessing his various inspectors 5 per cent of their salaries as expenses for his personal campaign. The only way that we can judge the present and the future is by the past. Mr. Brown cannot deny that in 1922 he assessed Mr. Hillman 5 per cent of his salary together with the other employees of the department as his campaign expenses for that year.

"Mr. Brown cannot deny that last summer while the legislature was in session an official from his office went to Forsyth and demanded of Cobb Holland, an oil inspector of Monroe county, who is a one-legged world war veteran, $40 to be used in fixing the legislature, as they expressed it to Mr. Holland.

Inquires Into Fund.

"Mr. Brown cannot deny that Mr. Holland offered them a check for this $40 and they would not accept it in the form of a check and Cobb Holland had the check cashed and gave them the $40 in money. Cobb Holland is the son of ex-Sheriff Tye Holland, of Monroe county, and this information that I have above cited came from Tye Holland to J. O. Ponder, clerk of the court of Monroe county; Judge Newton, ordinary of Monroe county, and J. M. Fletcher, representative from Monroe county. All of the above men can be reached here by wire or letter to Forsyth, Ga.

"Why did Mr. Brown need $40 from his various inspectors in the legislature while it was in session in 1925 to fix things? Was it to defeat the distillation bill which carried with it the reduction of the oil inspectors to six? And just how much money did they raise by these methods and just where did they use it and place it?

"Come on, Mr. Brown, let us have this information. You cannot disprove the charge that I have just made. Tell us how the money was used and by whom. I wish to say further that I am making no promises of any appointments that I might make should I be elected, nor am I making any promises as to who shall remain as employees of this department, but I do promise to take better care of crippled world war veterans."

during the week of August 2, between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning.

In the contest conducted last year by The Constitution Miss Ivy Harris was one of the winners and the screen test she had made here won for her a year's engagement and a chance to launch her present stage and screen career.

To enter the contest fill out the blank accompanying this article and send it to the Screen Test Editor of The Constitution along with a photograph. Candidates should send in the best and latest photograph as many of these will be used in the preliminary tests.

Out of the list of candidates who send in their blanks and their photographs thirty will be selected to have the screen tests made during the week of August 2. Three among the thirty will be awarded capital prizes, while all will have an opportunity of becoming a candidate in the Paramount school of junior stars.

Following is the blank:

FILM FLAPPERS HIT RED GRANGE FOR KISS CHARGE

Hollywood, Calif., July 17.—Red Grange's sudden retirement from the movies has been accepted at face value but his assertion after four weeks of screen love-making that co-eds knew more about kissing than film flappers, has let him in for some fine criticism, especially from Mary McAllister, his leading lady.

"I think that was just horrid of Red," Mary said tonight. "He knows he doesn't mean it. He just says that because he's going back home to his co-eds.

"I haven't seen any college girls getting by so big in the movies although there have been plenty out here trying to crash the gate. And I don't think a co-ed puts any more pep in her kisses than the girls on the screens. I bet Red can show the girls back home plenty of new love-making tricks that he learned out here."

Red is leaving tomorrow for Wheaton to take back his old job piloting an ice wagon at $18 a week.

"As a movie actor I make a fine ice man," Red told producers when he quit the movies flat today. "I'm just a big screen flop."

FRANK O. LOWDEN MAY BE INDORSED

engaging in fiery word battles over prohibition, farm relief and the world court.

Before election, the politicians are racing for a head start and the agricultural region is alive with oratory.

The reason for this early burst of enthusiasm is not hard to find. The middle west, scene of the corn revolt, home of the so-called radicals and cradle of prohibition, is likely to determine the completion of the next congress. Here is the seat of unrest and here the wise politician centers his first efforts.

George Brennan, the democratic senatorial candidate, is touring Illinois in a private car, stopping at every county seat, country fair or picnic to tell the voters that the "B" in Brennan stand for beer. Colonel Frank Smith, his republican opponent, is just getting started after losing a month in a hospital where he underwent a major operation.

Young Bob La Follette has returned to Wisconsin and is spreading the word that if the voters want to do what his illustrious father would wish, they must nominate Governor John J. Baline to succeed Irvine Lenroot in the senate. The pre-primary campaign in Wisconsin hinges on Senator Lenroot's fight for American adherence to the world court.

Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, the successful republican, and Claude Porter, the edmocratic senatorial nominee, are engaging in a battle for the Iowa farm vote over which nominee would be able to do the corn grower the most good in Washington. Porter has the aid of Senator Daniel Steck, who defeated Brookhart two years ago in a senatorial recount.

1926 Expenses Of Government Have Increase

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, July 17.—Increased expenditures in many of the government departments during the fiscal year 1926 are shown in itemized figures made public today. There were increases in expenditures of the legislative and executive branches of the government and also in the state, treasury, justice, postoffice, and commerce departments, the veterans' bureau, miscellaneous agencies and the District of Columbia. These were offset by decreases in expenditures of the war, navy, interior, agriculture and labor departments.

The detailed figures show that while the total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts as made public immediately after the close of the fiscal year at the end of last month increased by $55,000,000 over the fiscal year 1925, the aggregate outlay by governmental departments decreased by about $10,000,000. Total ordinary expenditures were $3,584,987,873.50 as against $3,529,643,446.09 in the fiscal year 1925. Eliminating from these totals public debt retirements and expenditures from various miscellaneous funds, including interest on the public debt, refunds on internal revenue taxes and customs duties, payments under the soldiers' bonus act, and items relating to the railroads, the shipping board, alien property and the Panama Canal, the aggregate for governmental departments was $1,826,959,870.26 as compared with $1,836,657,359.20 in the fiscal year 1925.

The legislative branch of the government expended about $2,000,000 more last year than the year before, its total increasing from $13,855,064.29 in the fiscal year 1925, to $15,776,220.41 in the fiscal year 1926.

Expenditures of the executive department went up from $411,896.27 to $438,768.06; the state department from $15,054,408.58 to $16,521,348.08; the treasury department from $128,232,421.79 to $136,578,723.67; the justice department from $23,495,738.96 to $23,774,129.23; the commerce department from $25,782,961.39 to $29,152,015.82; the veterans' bureau from $384,715,796.72 to $404,692,185.22; independent agencies from $27,682,657.28 to $32,089,356.30; and the District of Columbia from $32,713,000.57 to $35,410,707.45.

Radio May Determine

:: GEODETIC SURVEY PLANS EXPERIMENTS ::

If Continents Are Moving

Washington, July 17.—Radio experiments will begin this fall all over the world to determine whether continents are moving, a theory that has been advanced by certain scientists.

Experts of the coast and geodetic survey of the department of commerce will cooperate in the experiment with radio stations at widely scattered points. Technically, the experiment will determine the precise longitude of these points.

It will begin October 1 and end November 30. Five years later, the experiment will be repeated, and if the slightest evidence is found to support the theory, similar checks will be carried on indefinitely until the hypothesis is proved or discarded.

"Aside from the natural interest which is aroused by the possibility of the reality of this theory of moving continents, it is considered of the utmost scientific importance for the reason that, if substantiated, it will affect all theories which have been held in the past as to the origin of continents and the causes of the great changes which have taken place in geologic time on the earth's surface," the survey said in a statement.

Explaining the experiment, it stated that "the determination of a difference of longitude between two points is achieved by the determination of the interval of time which elapses between the passage of a star over the meridian of a selected spot on the eastern portion of the globe and its passage over the meridian of another point to the westward.

"In accordance with plans of the longitude campaign, when two such stations have their local time determined, a radio signal sent from a powerful station will be recorded at each of the two points. A comparison of the local clock at each station with the radio signal will tell exactly when the signal was received.

"So accurately will these observations be made that the distance between a given point in Washington, D. C., and another in Paris, will be determined within a margin of 24 feet."

It has taken several years to perfect the plan of this world-wide campaign of longitude determination which first took definite shape at a meeting of the International Geodetic and Geophysical union and the International Astromemical union in 1922.

Additional time was required to arrange for the cooperation of the powerful radio stations which will be utilized during the performance of the work. Under the present plan the experiment will be carried out simultaneously in the United States, the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, Canada, Mexico, Australia, Japan, China, India, England, France, Spain, Belgium, Portugal, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and several other countries, including points yet to be selected on the African continent.

PETROLEUM RATE PROBE IS STARTED

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission has begun an investigation on its own initiative of rates on petroleum and petroleum products within the territory east of the Mississippi, south of the Ohio river and east of the Indiana-Illinois line and between points outside of this territory and points in it.

The inquiry will determine whether such rates are unreasonable. Dates for a hearing will be set later.

UPSHAW DEFENDS PAID DRY TALKS

campaign and yet opposition began the use of personalities because they could not attack my official record. Some of their supporters have gone further than the candidates themselves and it seems that there is nothing left for me but to smash these false charges once for all before giving an account of my stewardship.

"Press correspondents have sought to hurt your congressman because he has fought the liquor crowd without apology in Washington.

"You will remember that in the recent senate investigation the prohibition leaders who had been paid by the Anti-Saloon league for investment of their time and influence in fighting liquor, including the stainless William J. Bryan, were disposed of in press dispatches with just a line or two, but they required a separate story and a whole column to dispose of your congressman.

"Yet with all their belitting efforts they never brought out one line or fact reflecting on my personal or official honor.

"Time Off's Mine."

"Let us get this clear—the government has no control of my time on Sunday or at night after my day's work is done, and if I want to spend this extra time fighting liquor and other devilment and then give every dollar of my money to some form of benevolence, as I do, I would better be spending my time that way than playing poker and going to the devil generally, like some congressmen have done and are still doing in Washington.

"Another illustration of how 'wet' Washington correspondents set out to get 'something on Upshaw' is found in the outrageous story of a perfectly innocent transaction concerning a check I received. Friends of my opponents are scattering that story by word of mouth over this district with the sole purpose of injuring me politically.

"Here are the facts: A check for the paltry sum of $9 came to my office from the Pullman company addressed to 'Honorable W. J. Upsher' without explanation. Occasionally I have received letters addressed 'Honorable W. J. Upsher,' and sometimes 'Upshur' and 'Upshir.' Having failed to get a refund from a Pullman ticket bought some months before and with the record lost and date forgotten, naturally I thought the check was intended for me. So I did what any other man would have done. I said 'If it is my money I will use it, and if not, I will send it where it ought to go.' When I heard from the Pullman company a few weeks later, I promptly sent them a check for $9. That's all there was to it—except some efforts of my enemies to reflect on the honor of a man who has lived an honorable life before the people of this section for more than 50 years.

Aided Ex-Service Men.

"When I measured arms eight years ago with six of the brightest, strongest and most astute political leaders in the district I knew that many good people voted for me with honest misgivings. They said to others, and some of them frankly said to me that they believed in my character and did not doubt my ability to make a good Sunday school or prohibition speech, but they 'feared Upshaw could not deliver the goods on the strictly business side of the position.'

"If there is one realm of activities where my official service has been most widely effective, it has been in behalf of ex-service men.

"Many hundred testify through records of my office that I secured compensation, hospitalization and vocational training for them when all other efforts failed. These men and their families are my enthusiastic supporters. Indeed, while I have had all the normal lines of business which any former congressman had, the work for veterans has constituted more than 50 per cent increase of my office.

"I am proud to remember such cases as Charlie Jones, of DeKalb, and Tyerre Lewis, of Atlanta, for whom I secured checks for more than $14,000 for one and for the other $4,000.

Party Accomplishments.

"As a democratic congressman I am proud of my party's constructive record in behalf of economic and agricultural relief over against the long list of financial tragedies under the republican administration. It was claimed by republican leaders that high protective tariff would work for the farmer's good. I believed they were mistaken and voted against their proposed legislation that makes the rich richer and poor poorer.

"Under a republican regime during the last five years it has been estimated that American farms have declined in value about $30,000,000,000. Thirty billion dollars, while the indebtedness of the American farmer has climbed to $12,000,000,000. Twelve billions—an increase of $8,000,000,000, causing the American farmers to be $38,000,000,000 worse off than they were when the Harding administration took charge of the government.

"There is no contesting the fact from 1916 to 1920 under a democratic administration (even with congress half republican) state bank failures were only 117, but for the last five years state bank failures totaled 1,800 and national bank failures 338, making the shocking total of 2,138 failures under republican administration and 145 for practically the same length of time under the democrats. Verily we find no pleasure in this indictment of the republican administration—it is simply a painful record of facts.

Democratic Aids.

"In looking for a legislative remedy for this appalling condition it is simply a sane and reasonable proposal that we should judge the future by the past. I remind you it was a democratic administration under Grover Cleveland that gave us the department of agriculture which has done so much good in helping the farmer and which would do far more if larger appropriations were made; nearly a billion dollars being appropriated every year to support the army and navy and less than $30,000,000 a year to support agriculture. I remind you with pride as a democrat and a Georgian that it was the same administration under the leadership of that brilliant, dynamic Georgian, Thomas E. Watson, that gave us the great national blessing, the rural free delivery.

"The parcel post, which brought the American consumer to the very door of the source of supply, also came through the democratic leadership of Woodrow Wilson. Other things include the federal reserve bank with its stabilizing power and the farm loan bank, which has already freed the American farmers from their long-time slavery to foreign capital.

"The democratic party also gave the whole country the unspeakable boon of the great federal highway system which has spent more than $600,000,000 in connection with state highways in building good roads. That noble law, the workman's compensation act, likewise came from a democratic administration."

STATE AID SOUGHT FOR BARTOW ROAD

Taylorsville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The Taylorsville district is making an effort to have the road which leads from Cartersville to Cedartown by way of Taylorsville, made a part of the state highway system.

LAST RITES TODAY FOR J. R. SMITH

Funeral services for J. R. Smith, leader in real estate circles in Atlanta and Georgia, who ended his life Friday at his home, 30 Morningside drive, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of First Baptist church, will officiate and interment will be in West View cemetery. Pallbearers will be Paul S. Etheridge, Herbert Haas, Courtland S. Winn, J. L. McLendon, M. S. Rankin and Sam P. Cronheim.

Past presidents and present officers and directors of the Atlanta Real Estate board, of which Mr. Smith was president, will act as an honorary escort. Those who will compose the escort are R. R. Otis, Charles Black, Ward Wight, George M. Brown, Jr., A. S. Adams, Dana Belser, Frank G. Owens, John J. Thompson, E. L. Barrett, Forrest Adair, Jr., M. H. Liebman and A. B. Cates.

Expressions of sorrow at the death of Mr. Smith were made by Frank C. Owens, vice president of the Real Estate board, who said that the death of Mr. Smith was a great loss to the organization and the real estate fraternity of Atlanta.

"His direction of the activities of the real estate board since his election have been most constructive," Mr. Owens said, "and he has with untiring efforts endeavored at all times to see that the organization operated in a manner that would place the profession on a higher plane and serve all its members to an equal advantage.

"The members of the organization feel greatly the loss of Mr. Smith, and it is with profound regret and sorrow that his death came about so unexpectedly. He had been active in affairs of the organization, serving for many years as a director of the Atlanta Real Estate board, chairman of the legislative committee of the board and he also was active in the affairs of the Georgia Real Estate association and in the National Association of Real Estate boards."

LOUISVILLE HOLDS MARKER EXERCISES ON NEXT TUESDAY

On Road To Boneyard

"I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food and that but sparingly, as any food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of ninety pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a bottle of MAYR'S, which I took, and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jacobs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—(adv.)

BANKING HORIZON RAPIDLY CLEARING

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The financial horizon in Georgia and Florida appeared brighter tonight, following a cessation of activities which brought about the closing of more than 80 small banks during the past week.

Virtually all of the banks which closed were members of a chain for which the Bankers' Trust company, Atlanta organization, against which bankruptcy proceedings now are pending, served as fiscal agent.

No closings were reported during the day and state banking department officials expressed the belief that there would be few of the remaining banks in the string which would not be able to make arrangements which would permit them to continue business.

Coincident with the cessation of closing activities in Georgia came the first official announcement of the number of banks that have closed in Florida. Ernest Amos, comptroller, announced that 27 small state banks, 25 of them members of the chain for which the Bankers' Trust company acted as financial agent, had closed their doors.

Authorities at Variance.

Officials of the two states were at variance, however, as to the underlying cause for the closings, although both Georgia and Florida authorities attributed them directly to the bankruptcy proceedings against the Bankers Trust company. Officials of both states agreed that the influences were "outside the state."

Officials of the Georgia state banking department said they had sent auditors to every bank in the state that had closed and instructed them to complete audits of the banks' books as rapidly as possible, with a view to speeding up reorganization and reopening of the institutions.

Mr. Amos expressed the belief that the financial storm had spent itself in Florida.

In his statement, the first he had issued since the succession of bank closings, Mr. Amos said the banks which had suspended operations in Florida had been almost wholly confined to members of the chain served by the Bankers Trust company organization.

"This does not mean," Mr. Amos said, "that all those banks in Florida associated with the system at some time or another are in trouble, or are necessarily involved. Several in Florida have already divested themselves of the connection in time not to be hurt in the collapse, while others have not enough Georgia stuff to amount to anything.

"The effect of the system failures has about spent itself. I have every reason to believe that a number of the Florida banks forced to close temporarily will reopen; in fact, two have already reopened and several others are now completing their plans."

Denies Reports.

He asserted there was no foundation for statements that implied Florida banks had been forced to close because of "real estate paper" in Florida banks. Such statements, he declared, "were calculated to injure the large number of perfectly sound and safe Florida banks in no wise affected by recent developments."

He attributed the trouble to the reserves of "system banks" in Florida which had been placed in Georgia through the financial agents of the system and thus were not available when needed.

Had the Florida banks been able to obtain their money "from the Georgia institutions when called for," he said, "the Florida failures would not have occurred as they did. Let us sit steady in the boat and the whole situation will rapidly right itself here in Florida. The cause of the trouble does not lie within our borders, neither did it affect but a relatively small number of Florida banks."

BANKING SITUATION FURTHER IMPROVED.

With no new application from any Georgia bank that its assets be taken over by the state banking department, the situation following receivership of the Bankers Trust company of Atlanta, involving a large number of small banks in Georgia and Florida, was much improved Saturday, according to a statement issued by T. R. Bennett, superintendent of the state banking department.

W. D. Manley, head of the Bankers Trust company, issued a statement Saturday in which he expressed willingness to aid the Fulton county grand jury in every way possible in its proposed investigation of operations of the company as ordered by Judge G. H. Howard, of the Fulton superior court.

Mr. Manley's letter to Mr. Boykin follows:

"Having noted the statement in the papers that you are asking the grand jury to investigate the affairs of the Bankers Trust company, I beg to say that I am ready and willing to be of whatever help I can in furnishing you, and any other official, with all possible records and information bearing on this investigation.

"So far as my physical strength permits, I am now devoting all of my energy to assisting the state banking department in working out the affairs of the banks that were connected with the Bankers Trust company and in solving the situation which has resulted from circumstances and conditions that I believe are becoming known, and which were entirely beyond my control.

"I will not attempt to force myself on your time and attention, or that of any body or committee that makes this investigation. I do, however, wish you to understand that any official investigating the affairs of this company may feel free to call on me at any time for any information at my command."

THOMAS PRIMARY DATE SET FOR SEPTEMBER 8

Thomasville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The primary for the nomination of officers from Thomas county has been set for September 8, the same date as the state primary. Little interest is being shown in county politics.

Judge H. W. Hopkins, of this city, and Thomas Davis, of Meigs, are the legislative candidates so far announced. Candidates for county commissioners from three of the districts in the county will be voted for. August 4 is the last day for entrance in the county races.

There is very little interest shown here in state politics and the only race that is attracting attention is that for judge of the superior court of the southern circuit, the fight for which will be between Judge W. E. Thomas, of Valdosta, and C. E. Hay, of this city, the present solicitor of the circuit.

BUTTS COUNTY CLUB GIRLS VISIT WILKINS

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) A dozen or more Butts county girls, members of the agricultural clubs, will spend next week at Camp Wilkins, State College of Agriculture. County Agent H. G. Wiley and parents of the club members will take the party to Athens Monday and the entire week will be spent in training.

The local party will be quartered in the Butts county room at Camp Wilkins, this room having been furnished by the Kiwanis club of Jackson. Members of the Boys' clubs will be taken to Camp Wilkins during August.

Falling Tree Kills Negro.

Louisville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Wallace Neely, a negro boy working at the sawmill of G. M. Walden on the Belmont place near here, was instantly killed yesterday when he drove under a tree that was being felled by the stock cutters.

QUIET MEETING OF COUNCIL SEEN

A quiet and uneventful session of city council Monday is forecast by members of that body, who declared that only routine matters of minor importance are slated for consideration and that no unusual features are expected to develop.

The only matters of general public interest, according to predictions, are measures asking ratification of the increased wage scale for negro helpers on city sanitary trucks and consideration of a recommendation of the streets committee of city council that council rescind action already instituted to condemn sidewalk stretches on 18 streets of the sixth ward.

A general strike of the helpers was averted early last week when the finance committee recommended raises of from 15 to 25 cents a day in the wages of the men.

A large delegation from the sixth ward Friday entered formal protest against sidewalk condemnation in the sixth ward. This fight was championed by Councilman Harry Roberts, who is serving the unexpired term of M. F. Dowdy, resigned.

METHODIST REVIVAL STIRS LAWRENCEVILLE

Lawrenceville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The revival which began at the Methodist church last Sunday morning is having its effect on the entire community, and the church is packed both morning and evening, and it is predicted this meeting will result in untold good as all religious denominations are taking part.

The services are in charge of Rev. O. N. Todd and his wife, of Tallapoosa, and they are assisted by the Rev. and Mrs. George Tumlin, of Newborn; Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, of Tallapoosa, and Rev. Calvin Tumlin, of Tallapoosa.

The meeting will continue throughout the coming week.

SAVANNAH PREPARES FOR MILLION BALES

Savannah, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—A business development indicating that Savannah is to enjoy during the next year an increase in cotton business exceeding even that of this year, which is expected to see the million sale mark reached, was announced today in a contract entered into by the John W. Gleason Cotton company with the Southeastern Compress and Warehouse company and the Seaboard Air Line railway.

The Gleason company, it was announced, has contracted with the Seaboard Air Line Railway company and the Southeastern Compress and Warehouse company for the leasing of their modern brick sprinkled warehouses on Hutchinson island, opposite the city. These warehouses are capable of storing almost unlimited amounts of cotton.

The Seaboard now has a force of men at work putting the warehouses into condition, the expenditure on this work amounting to around $25,000. The Southeastern Compress company operates two presses in Savannah, one the Gordon press, the other the Island press, the latter being adjacent to the newly leased Gleason warehouses. The compress company is preparing for increased business, too, and is making repairs and adding equipment to its local properties.

The present cotton year has brought great satisfaction to the port of Savannah, the million-bale mark now being in sight. Already last year's bale mark has been surpassed by more than 300,000 bales. The fact that such a prominent firm as the Gleason company believes next year will be even larger than this will be received with great satisfaction in Savannah.

T. E. Fugate, vice president and general manager of the Southeastern Compress and Warehouse company, is in Savannah from Atlanta today to conclude arrangements with the Gleason company.

LOCAL POLITICS AROUSES INTEREST IN BUTTS COUNTY

Jackson, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) When the entries closed July 15, Butts county had two candidates in the field for representative, C. A. Towles and Dr. R. A. Franklin. There are two candidates for the state senate from the 26th district, J. O. Gaston, county commissioner, and J. L. Lyons, who has represented the county in the lower house of the general assembly for the past two terms.

Mr. Towles is a former representative, having served during 1915 and 1916. He is well known to the voters of the county and enjoys a wide acquaintance over the state. Dr. Franklin, who is a member of the board of trustees of the sixth district school at Barnesville, is a well-known professional man and farmer.

There is no contest for congress nor for judge of the Flint circuit, but it is conceded these purely local contests will arouse a good deal of interest.

Ever since the days of Oglethorpe

Pullmans on fast trains leave Atlanta every night and arrive in Brunswick the following morning. Or, by motor, it is an easy day's drive over excellent roads and through delightful country.

THE year 1556 saw the first white settlement in Georgia, when Menendez de Avillis with his adventurous band of Spanish followers, landed at Santa Catalina — later renamed St. Catherine's Island — near Brunswick.

Then came the English under General James Edward Oglethorpe, who established his colony and Fort Frederica on St. Simons Island, where he met and defeated the Spanish forces.

"Oglethorpe," records history, "did reserve himself fifty promising acres south of Frederica where he did build himself Orange Hall and set an orchard which bore figs, oranges and grapes prodigiously."

And ever since the days of Oglethorpe, have visitors come to Brunswick and Glynn County—finding here an enchanted land.

To sojourn in Brunswick is to experience the soft thrill of having lived in the days of Spanish Gold .... swarthy buccaneers .... red-coated soldiery with ruffled lace ... the minuet. And all this amid scenes of wild, semi-tropical beauty that inspired many of Sidney Lanier's immortal works.

To spend a fortnight or a lifetime in Brunswick and its coastal islands is to find health, happiness, and prosperity.

Resolve to come to Brunswick and select a site for your summer or winter home. There is no evidence of high-pressure exploitation here, but land values are rising in the face of a steadily increasing demand.

Bathing beaches that rank with the best in the world—at St. Simons, East Beach, and Long Island Beach —now connected with Brunswick by a half-million dollar motor highway. Jekyl Island, home of the Jekyl Island Club, whose members represent one-eighth of the world's wealth.

Brook and deep sea fishing. Shooting in the woods and Salt Marshes of Glynn. Golf, tennis, dancing and riding. Unusually reasonable living costs. A cool even climate with no mosquitoes.

GEORGIA'S FIRST DUTY.

On this page is republished an editorial from the Manufacturers Record under the caption, "Georgia Needs To Produce More Food." It incorporates annual production and consumption figures as to the leading food crops, these statistics having been compiled by the Georgia utilities information committee.

The Record's editorial, and the information contained in the statistics presented, should be read and studied and analyzed by every citizen of Georgia.

We are making marvelous strides in food and feed crop production. There is no denying that fact, and the present production figures compared with those of just ten years ago will show a progress that is intensely commendable. And yet Georgia's 1925 cotton crop—a record yield at that—did not pay for the food products that it was necessary to buy outside of the state. That is a statement that perhaps few people stop to realize, and to fully grasp as to its economic significance. If Georgia can in a few years run her poultry production from $5,000,000 in value to $11,000,000, and bring her corn production up from 20,000,000 bushels to 50,000,000, and make other increases in proportion then there is no good reason why Georgia should not grow everything she consumes in feed and food, and provide just as heavy an income from the so-called "money crops" as at present. Then the "money crops" would be surplus crops, and represent genuine profits in the business of agriculture.

For many years—and for the past five years in particular—The Constitution has urged the balancing of production so that farmers may literally "buy from themselves" what they have heretofore mortgaged their growing cotton to buy from the outside. It has fought for the provision on every farm, first of all, of the food and feed necessary to home demands—and for sale, in that poultry products, corn, hogs, etc., can be grown at satisfactory profits where there is a farm coordination so that wastes may be properly utilized. Success is rapidly crowning these efforts, but as the Manufacturers Record says, "Georgia needs to produce more food." The state lacks 17,000,000 bushels of corn to supply its own demands. Corn can be grown as successfully in a large part of Georgia as it can be in the grain belt of the middle west. We need to increase acreage production by giving more attention to corn and we will reach the 17,000,000 deficit. We are away off in beef and pork production, and yet it is admitted by every expert who has surveyed the situation that the state can grow hogs and cattle as successfully as in the west, or southwest, and especially under present small range conditions. We have in the past few years established a number of creameries in Georgia. Some people, without giving it a thought, shouted "too many." And yet we make only 5,000,000 pounds of butter and we consume 50,000,000 pounds. Think of it! If we increased our butter capacity 1,000 per cent then we would simply manufacture a sufficiency for the demands within the state.

These are things to think about, and they are important. Every civic club, trades and farm organizations, and every citizen—and especially those who are farmers—ought to analyze the figures. To "live at home" is the highest ideal of citizen independence, and every farmer should make that the first consideration. And in doing so, ample, and even more satisfactory, provisions can and will follow for making the surplus cash crops.

THE BOOMING SOUTH.

No publicist in the south is in closer touch with actual southern development and progress than Richard H. Edmonds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record. For two-score years he has had his ears to the ground. He heard of the trek of the present unprecedented human migration to the south before it really started. He is enabled, by long experience with southern industry to draw comparisons. In his own front-cover page editorial in the current issue of the Record he says:

"Bankers, manufacturers, merchants and business men generally are showing an enthusiasm for constructive, creative work, which guarantees a more widespread and larger progress in everything that makes for human advancement than the south has ever known before. It is a revival, but on a larger, wider scale, with much more behind it of that enthusiastic, all-conquering spirit which after 1876 took possession of the south until the fearful panic following the Baring failure brought on general depression throughout the nation. This spirit shows a determination on the part of southern people to work for the upbuilding of their own country. Southern capital and southern brains and brawn are being thrown into constructive work with unwonted energy and enthusiasm, and coincident with this is a nation-wide awakening to the fact that the south is the coming El Dorado of American development, unmatched in its resources and opportunities by any other like area in the world."

These are the identical views of every economist in America, and of leading bankers, industrialists, and students of human progress. They are unimpeachable and must be accepted for their face value.

Despite temporary embarrassments that may have come from over-speculating in Florida a year ago, the readjustments will leave conditions sounder and firmer than ever. Miami's building permits since January 1st exceed $20,000,000. Other Florida cities are in proportion. There is no cessation to progress. The house-cleaning that is going on is in the process of strengthening Florida, and not weakening the economic situation in that state.

Georgia is at the threshold of a decade of unprecedented prosperity. Atlanta is leading in substantial development. It is a new and a better spirit abroad in the south, and one that cannot be discounted by calamity-howlers, or by whispering joy-killers.

NEW COOPERATIVE BUREAU

The president made a wise selection in appointing one so well experienced as Chris L. Christensen as director of the new cooperative marketing bureau, which becomes another of the department of agriculture's many specific bureaus, some of which at least should be transferred to other departments.

The bureau of roads, to illustrate, has no business being a part of the multitudinous activities of the department of agriculture. It would fit better in either the department of commerce, the postoffice department or the war department. The federal appropriation covers only post roads, thereby qualifying the bureau for the postoffice department. All federal aid roads—and specifically those in the network known as the "federal system"—are designed for military purposes, therefore this bureau could appropriately fit into the war department. Its efficiency is not disturbed by being a part of the agricultural department, and it operates very much without as an entirely independent service unit, and yet it encumbers the department of agriculture's reports and necessarily throws a responsibility upon the secretary of agriculture that is not in his particular line of thinking.

The bureau of forestry is another that has no place in the department of agriculture. It ought rather to be under the interior, and possibly would be today but for a factional fight that was conceived in political jealousies some years ago.

The new bureau of cooperative marketing, however, belongs specifically to the department of agriculture, and it is fortunate that Secretary Jardine is so earnestly and sincerely in sympathy with the movement that is spreading so rapidly and doing so much to stimulate profitable production in other than the few old staples that were at one time regarded as the only "money crops" grown by American farmers.

The tremendous advance in California production, in poultry products, fruits, cereals, etc., has been due to the earnest and thoughtful application of the science of cooperative marketing. That is, not only orderly distribution so as to spread properly any particular marketing product over a territory ready to consume, but grading, packing, standardizing and the exploitation of trade marks. The latter, of course, is accomplished by vigorous and systematic advertising, and, as in all successful advertising, the maintenance of standard as advertised.

There are 12,000 cooperative marketing organizations in this country. Most are good—and all are good in principle. Some are weak, possibly through weak management. Some perhaps are bad through bad management. Like a bank, a cooperative cannot be any stronger than its management. It is hoped the new federal bureau, in its direct contact to be established, will make its first duty to weed out, if by indirection, all the weak cooperatives. The great principle will be better conserved. It has a powerful opportunity for good, and Chris Christensen is a good man in charge.

CRIMINAL LAW REFORM.

The Constitution begins today a series of informative articles on the history of the long struggle in England for reform in legal procedure, by which unnecessary court delays might be elminated, and sure and speedy justice meted to criminals.

They are prepared, as a result of exhaustive studies, by Professor Edson R. Sunderland, of the University of Michigan, who was delegated by the American Bar association to do this work in the hope that a cooperative spirit among press and public and judiciary might be evolved looking to a reform of the system of legal procedure in this country. Admittedly our system is worse, in that there are more opportunities for trial delays, through technicalities, and too often looseness in judicial control, eventuating frequently in the miscarriage of justice, and in the stimulation of crime and law evasion, than at any time in England, even before the crusade for procedure reform was begun.

Today England has fewer crimes in a year than any of the metropolitan cities of America have in a week—and the reason is unmistakable. The English would-be criminal, since the success of the struggle for reforms in the judiciary system, knows that there is not only no escaping the law, but there is no possibility of cheating justice by interminate delays, dilly-dallying with petitions, new trials, stays of execution, and the various and sundry other schemes that tear down the law, and scoff at justice in this country.

Positive knowledge that there are no legal loopholes through which a criminal may escape the penalties of crime is a crime deterrent. Therefore, however black may be the heart, or covetous the will of the would-be murderer or the potential thief, in England crime is restrained, and the public is safe from the menace of a crime wave to a remarkable, and most commendable extent.

The articles of Professor Sunderland are interesting and entertaining and of peculiar value in showing just how England accomplished the reforms that have so revolutionized crime conditions, to the interest and welfare of the nation, and all the people.

America's system of legal procedure must be revised along the English plan. It will take an aroused conscience of the people to do it, but it must be done.

We are today the most crime-ridden nation of the world. And it is the weakness of our system of legal procedure, built more to shield and defend the criminal than to protect society, that is the chief cause of it.

CIRCLING THE GLOBE.

The quick travel record just established by Edward L. Evans and Linton Wells by circling the globe in 28 days 14½ hours is of significant interest. It pulls down the former record, made by John Henry Mears in 1913, a full 7 days and 7 hours, or a ratio of 25 per cent of the time record just established. It emphasizes the progress the world is making in rapid transit—and particularly in the utility of the air for dependable travel service.

Within the memory of some of those living it took 28 days to cross the American continent and just 25 years ago it took 28 days to cross the Pacific ocean, and half that time to cross the Atlantic. At the same time it took 28 days to go from central Europe to central Asia—that is, to pass from the zone of the Occident to the zone of the Orient.

The development of the surface motor has resulted in the development of hard-surfaced highways. The old steamship of one screw and an average speed of eight or ten knots an hour has given way to great monarchs of the deep that churn the sea at the speed of 35 to 40 knots an hour. The gradual development of air navigation has established its general utility and its security on as dependable a basis, for light capacity, as surface transportation.

The dash around the planet just completed within the schedule originally set was made by coordinating all of these modes of travel. Its successful accomplishment makes us realize that we live in a new age. The fantastic fiction of Jules Verne's day is far more than a reality today—the result of progress in applied science. "Around the world in 80 days" was regarded as a wild and visionary theory as far from the grasp of practical accomplishment as the suggestion of practical radio communication that originally came out of the theory of mental telepathy, and then the gradual mastery of science over the air waves. Now a sight-seeing tourist can circle the globe in 80 days and see the side lights of every great national capital from Washington to Tokio. Or if in a mood to speed up he can go around the world twice in 80 days, and for a change of scenery take entirely different land routes on each trip. We live in a fast, progressive age, and it takes a progressive people, backed by progressive national policies, to keep in the procession.

CUMMINS ON COOLIDGE.

The statement of Senator Cummins, of Iowa—made apparently without reservation—that President Coolidge will not be a candidate to succeed himself, naturally enough created consternation among the president's closer political friends and advisers, and something of a TNT explosion among the half dozen outstanding statesmen who even now are canvassing the field with the hope of being 1928 convention candidates.

In the meantime the president is fishing up in the white pine woods and his official spokesman has nothing to say. In Washington, however, the few of his cabinet who are brave enough to stick the eastern heat wave out are quick to challenge the Cummins statement, and insist that Calvin Coolidge will not only go before the convention, but will be nominated. They insist that the two-term rule applies only to elective terms, and that the two years inherited from the late President Harding must not be included.

That Illinois will present either Lowden or Dawes is certain, and it appears equally certain that the one presented to the convention will have the hearty support of the other. That Ohio is planning to enter Speaker Longworth is quite apparent. Senator Borah, it is assumed, is feeling out the entanglements of the "no man's land" that is directly between the regular and the radical factions, hoping for a compromise opportunity. Of course Governor Pinchot wants to be the "dry regular" to be considered, but recent disclosures in Pennsylvania will perhaps exclude him.

When President Coolidge catches a few more pickerel and a lively trout or two runs away with his hook, the novelty of his summer camp may have sufficiently worn off to permit his official talking machine to run off a reply record to the Cummins statement.

TRIBUTE TO WATKINS.

Edgar Watkins, the first president of the City club, and a member whose unselfish devotion to its success has been both inspiring and resourceful, was recently presented with a loving cup. The presentation address was made by Joel Hunter, the present president of the club, and the response by Mr. Watkins, who was taken wholly by surprise, was most touching in the depth and tenderness of his appreciation.

The tribute was worthily bestowed. Edgar Watkins is outstanding as a lawyer, a citizen, a civic worker, and an exponent of every good and worthy cause. His personal sacrifices in bringing the City club to its present position of usefulness in Atlanta are well known. That he should have been thus honored by its members is but fitting.

The Atlanta City club is one of the most useful civic organizations in this community. It is unlike other luncheon clubs in many respects, particularly as to the expenses of maintenance, the amounts of membership dues, and the rotating features qualifying membership. It is like the other civic bodies in being a strong, vigorous group of leading Atlanta business and professional men who lunch and fellowship together and who stand for all worth-while civic activities.

The summer walking clubs for reducing purposes are even reducing expenses.

Numerous summer bandits have been given summer vacations in nice, hot jails.

At eighty-seven John D. gets about on a golf course as supple as though his joints were Standard-oiled.

Kipling didn't name the world's twelve greatest writers—no doubt because he realized that he was in the bunch.

Speaking of "reducing taxes for posterity," The Philadelphia Record asks, "What has posterity ever done for us?"

Still, if you can't afford a vacation, you won't have to wonder if you'll ever recover from it.

SONG OF THE YEARS

BY FRANK L. STANTON

I.

The house is still, and the dreamer sleeps
Where the Night Wind creeps:—
The Night Wind, singing soft and low
Of the years that come and the years that go,
With their hopes and fears
And the light of tears—
The sad, the beautiful years.

II.

What are the dreams when Sleep is a sigh
For the years gone by?
When the lips that you loved—that knew only your kiss—
You miss as the red o' the rose you would miss,—
When they leave you to weep
Where the dark shadows creep
And Deep calls to Deep?

III.

Sleep not and dream not where dark shadows throng:—
Sing Life's sweet song!
Leave the dim valleys of sorrows and sighs;
Sing of the hills as they climb to the skies;
Sing, even as God wills,
Of the music that thrills
With the joy of the hills!

A Great Democratic Ideal

The Will and Way to World Peace

BY SAM W. SMALL

Considering that on January 27 the United States senate, by a vote of 76 to 17, declared for American adherence to the protocol setting up the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague, only two of the democratic senators voting against the resolution, there would seem to be no room to question the fundamental democracy of those who voted for the adherence, with the essential American reservations upon which it ultimately depends.

What Kind of Court Is It?

The court is already established, and is functioning.

It is not the judicial institution of a super-state to which any sanctionization is permanently subservient.

It is not a sovereignty in itself, or the subject of any sovereignty.

It is a judicial tribunal set up by the consent of the 48 nations now signatory to it, having rules and procedure agreed to by them.

They bind themselves only to submit to it such justiciable issues between nations as fairly invite pacific arbitration and do not involve or impose a forfeiture of national honor or independence.

In plain terms—a court of arbitrations.

Is That Democratic?

The "American policy" concerning international relations was set forth first by Washington in his farewell address, but brought to the substance of a doctrine by Jefferson in his first inaugural address.

The concrete axiom is "No entanglement with the political affairs of any European nation." The meaning was then and has been ever since that this nation should enter into no alliance with any European nation for political objects, including offensive or defensive war operations. The sound basis for that is that this nation cannot enter upon a war but with the consent of congress. That is constitutional law, and no administration is authorized to declare war by this country, or ally it with any other nation for war purposes.

The established policy has been, for 112 years, to invoke diplomacy, treaty, or arbitration of quasi-judicial character, to compose our difference with another nation and so avoid resort to force of arms. That policy has become ingrained in the psychology of the American people, and is ineradicable.

Jefferson's Ideas.

As early as 1798 Thomas Jefferson, in a letter to Sir John Sinclair, at London, said:

"Will nations never devise a more rational umpire of differences than force? Are there no means of coercing injustice more gratifying to our nature than a waste of the blood of thousands and the labor of millions of our fellow-creatures?"

And in discussing how a nation that produced an unjustified war might be penalized therefor by other nations, he said:

"Public reproach, a refusal of common offices, interdiction of commerce and comforts of society, are found as effectual as the coarser instruments of force. Nations, like individuals, stand toward each other only in the relations of natural right. Might they not, like them, be peaceably punished for violence and wrong? Let us hope we shall at last be sensible that war is an instrument entirely inefficient toward redressing wrong; that it nullifies instead of indemnifying losses."

In face of those sentiments one can easily forecast Jefferson's attitude toward a court of international justice.

Democratic Precedents.

It seems not commonly known that Jefferson, Madison and Monroe at one time or another contracted or advocated temporary European alliances.

During the revolutionary war an alliance was made with France and another was offered to the Netherlands.

Congress in 1780 was eagerly willing to join the "Armed Neutrality," which was a league of neutral nations to uphold the principles of international law, and proposed to assume whatever obligations that might impose.

What Washington Advised.

In his farewell address Washington advised against "permanent" alliances, but was quite ready to make any temporary alliances that extraordinary American emergencies might advise.

In 1801, when Jefferson, just come into the presidency, was told that France had acquired Louisiana and would probably break up our commercial depository in New Orleans, he vehemently declared that from that moment the United States would "be married to the British fleet and nation!"

In 1823 Prime Minister Canning, of England, proposed a joint declaration of policy by Great Britain and America toward the South American peoples. President Monroe consulted the two ex-presidents then living, Jefferson and Madison, and all three agreed that joint action was desirable "even should war be the result." Jefferson and Madison were so agreed because they believed the alliance "would prevent rather than provoke war." The result finally was the promulgation of the great and indefeasible "Monroe doctrine."

Keeping Us Out of War.

Objection is made to American adhesion to the world court on the singular ground that it might drag us into war, while the policy of "national isolation" would keep us out of war!

Yet we have been involved in every great world war since we declared our national independence.

In the French revolutionary wars we fought a real war with France for two years. The Napoleonic wars forced us to fight the war of 1812 with Great Britain. The kaiser compelled us into the latest world war, and as sure as we are the leading power of the nations today we will be inevitably drawn into any other general war that happens within civilization.

Already our sons are numbered by the government and practically tagged for the trenches, the tanks, the flame-throwers and flying bomb-droppers of the next general row among the nations.

What Congress Has Said.

Over half a century ago, in 1874, congress considered the subject of "keeping us out of war," and adopted the following illuminating resolution:

"Resolved, That the president of the United States is hereby authorized and requested to negotiate with all civilized powers who may be willing to enter into such negotiation for the establishment of an international system whereby matters in dispute between different governments agreeing thereto may be adjusted by arbitration, and, if possible, without recourse to war."

Again, in 1890, congress adopted another concurrent resolution to the following effect:

"Resolved, That the president be and is hereby requested to invite, from time to time, as fit occasions may arise, negotiations with any government with which the United States has, or may have, diplomatic relations, to the end that any differences or disputes arising between the governments which cannot be adjusted by diplomatic agency, may be referred to arbitration, and be peaceably adjusted by such means."

What did congress intend by these actions other than to establish with all nations the policy now represented by the world court?

How Cleveland Acted.

In the Venezuelan boundary affair, in which Great Britain and the South American state were in a dispute, with the former threatening to use force, President Cleveland demanded arbitration as the proper solution. Mr. Olney, secretary of state, acting by direction of the president, in correspondence with the contesting powers, laid down the declaration that "war is condemnable as a relic of barbarism and a crime in itself;" that there was only one possible way of determining the issue, namely, "by peaceful arbitration."

Thereupon Lord Salisbury, for Great Britain, abandoned his menacing attitude and arbitration settled the issue peaceably.

In 1897 President Cleveland sent to the senate for ratification an American-British arbitration treaty, and in his message said:

"The example set and the lesson furnished by the successful operation of this treaty are sure to be felt and taken to heart sooner or later by other nations, and will thus mark the beginning of a new epoch in civilization."

A Sane Decision.

The senate acted sanely and humanely in adopting the world court adhesion resolution. It is palpable that the peoples of the world cannot safely await the millennium to achieve the peace they need and for which they plead so universally.

Our primary principles of human freedom, self-government and sovereignty demand for their security and perpetuity that general prevalence of peace that will guarantee against any possible involvement of our people in any war between nations with which we maintain relations of amity and intercourse.

Our unsurpassed wealth and unrivaled resources for its increase demand that our interests in production and commerce shall be as free from the menaces of war and its destructive forces as it is possible by human means to make them.

Farm Problem a Knotty One

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, July 17.—(Special correspondence.)—The most responsible leaders in Washington talk about farming more than about any other one subject. It is not the immediate political aspect of it—though, of course, speculation about what the west will do in the November congressional elections enters into the discussions. But it is the serious fundamental aspects of farming that engages the attention of the most thoughtful persons, and whether anything can be done to meet the farmers' admitted grievance.

The answer, subject to qualifications to be explained in a moment, is nothing—at least, nothing that is very new. This statement may sound discouraging and have the effect of disappointment to farmers, but it is the candid summary of the best thought. A newspaper correspondent can be more candid than politicians. Much that has gone on for five years past has consisted either of outright demagoguery, outright pretense that something can be done, uttered by those who knew that nothing can be done; or, on the part of others more sincere, silence on the question due to fear that in a time of controversy candor would be misconstrued.

It ought not to be necessary to repeat that the judgment of the best leaders in Washington is that nothing can be done. That ought to be clear from the facts. Ever since the beginning of Harding's administration, March 4, 1921, there has been almost continuous study of the farm problem and repeated experiments in it. This thought has come and these efforts have been made by some of the ablest men in the United States. Eugene Meyer, Jr., one of the most successful business men of his generation, devoted five of the best years of his life as a government official to handling distressed farm conditions in the west and southwest. With the aid of a billion dollars of government money granted by congress, to be loaned out where it would tide farm crops over difficult periods, Mr. Meyer and his associates in the government's "finance corporation," formed for this purpose, made a record that will be remembered during all this generation in many western communities.

(Incidentally, all but a comparatively minute fraction of this money has now been paid back by the borrowers—which would seem to indicate that, however bad the farm situation may seem now, it must have improved greatly over what it was a few years ago. Incidentally, also, it is to be noted that this immense sum of money suggests the degree of work and thought Washington has given to the farm problem. And this was only one of several financial helps; the "finance corporation" was only one of several institutions organized to give more convenient credit to the farmer and otherwise to hel phim.)

Mr. Meyer is the outstanding one of those who devoted all their time to the farm problem—for nearly five years it was his only concern, and through laborious months here in Washington and on many trips throughout the west he worked at the farm problem as few men work at their private businesses. There were many others. One was Herbert Hoover. By common judgment there is not in the present world a mind abler than Mr. Hoover's or with so great a record of success in the practical carrying out of immense economic enterprises. The definition of Mr. Hoover's ability need not be limited to this field in which he happens to be best known; in an all-round sense, including many fields of science and humanitarian work remote to the average man, Mr. Hoover is one of the outstanding figures of his generation. He probably has devoted as large a portion of his energy and thought to the farm situation as to any other problem.

There were others, many others, scores of them. Men of immense success in private life, like Bernard M. Baruch, who has held himself steadily at the service of farm leaders and farm organizations who asked his counsel and practical help; ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, who has a unique record as the administrator of a state; Vice President Dawes, a successful banker and one of the authors of the economic plan on which Europe now depends for its stabilization; leaders in the senate and the house of representatives, governors of states, editors, bankers, heads of industries.

All these have been consulting and working almost continuously. They have not all agreed. But it should be a fair assumption that if there is any answer to the farm problem it should have been found by such men during the last five years.

So far as any answer has emerged, it comes down to the stimulation of cooperative marketing. That is all that today is left of the commotion of the Haugen and other farm relief bills and of all the other experiments made and principles proposed. To stimulate the farm cooperative associations, to make the ones already in existence more successful, to start new ones, to bring all the farmers of the United States into these cooperative associations, to have all the farm crops of the United States sold through cooperative marketing associations as the sole channel for the disposition of crops—this constitutes the thing to which the administration has always come back, after listening patiently and hopefully to other proposals. Cooperative marketing is the form of farm relief to which the administration is dedicated and on which just now it is engaged with increased energy and with an air of finality arising out of final determination that this is the true answer. It is cooperative marketing, also, that has enlisted the assent of probably a majority of farm leaders and of those more energetic farmers who have accepted responsibility for heading organized action. Without much doubt we are to see cooperative marketing for farmers pushed to the last degree of which it is capable.

But even those who are most hopeful about cooperative marketing, those who have committed themselves to it as the only answer, even these admit that many farmers do not regard cooperative marketing as the final answer, and admit, also, that in the farming situation there are elements still deeper, elements which cooperative marketing will not wholly meet, and which, in the judgment of the best thought, cannot be met.

A source of thought in the New York banking world, expressing itself in an article in The Wall Street Journal, says the difficulty is that the whola world of American industry has been going through a fundamental phase of evolution and that the farmer is the last to catch up. He says:

"The farmer is not, or believes he is not, getting what should be coming to him in the present prosperity, and this seems superficially true. But the real reason for it is apparent to deep thinkers. The very same person that forced the manufacturer to consolidate small units into large units applies to the farmer. Before steam came into use manufacturing was done by hand and largely in the homes of the workers. These home workers bitterly opposed the building of factories and the concentration of effort. The end of this struggle was a complete reversal of living conditions. Perhaps the home workers of olden days were happier than the factory workers of today, even though they worked from dawn to dusk. But can we return to former conditions? Now, the truth of it is that the average farmer today is working under the small-unit system, much as his forebears did 200 years ago, and it is a real condition that faces him. The farmer can blame the tariff, Wall street, the railroads, but, after all, it is the principle of economics that is facing him . . . In the last century manufacturing and transportation have been revolutionized, and now agriculture stands on the threshold of its revolution. The little farm, with its hand and animal labor, must follow the crossroads forge and the spinning wheel and, due to electrical inventions, the day is near at hand. This is not a matter of days and years. It is a matter of generations, and, like all revolutions, will be accompanied by the resistance of roots firmly attached to the soil. It is but the manifestation of that evolution that no power can combat and which will in time win its way, as it has ever done and ever will do as long as mankind exists. This, then, is the real problem that faces the farmer. It cannot be pushed, it cannot be passed by. It is the handwriting on the wall."

That sounds convincing, has the air of finality. It is the sort of sententious, oracular thing that, by its tone and manner, frequently carries conviction. Perhaps it is right it should carry conviction. Possibly this is the answer. One ought not to dispute it offhand. To deny the oracular may itself be merely oracular. But one can at least question it, discuss it, debate it. And the farmers had better debate it unless they are ready to let themselves unconsciously be swept into it, be gathered up in this American tendency toward mergers, combinations, big units.

Does the American farmer want to become less of an individual than he now is? Does he want to become merely one atom in a large unit? Persons who talk like this New York banker say it is inevitable. But is it? Inevitable is a large word. Is anything of this sort inevitable? Is it ever possible to say that anything like this happened because it was inevitable? Who has enough confidence to say, as respects any development in organized society, that it was inevitable; to say that no one of many other possible developments could have been? May we not doubt whether this is just the way that economic evolution, so-called, takes place, whether any economic development was inevitable?

At least there is another theory about how history is made. This alternative theory says that certain men want certain things: they go after those things, persuade others to accept their views and imitate their actions—and the thing is done. A good deal of the past history of organized society lends itself to this explanation.

This New York banker asks: "Can we return to former conditions?" There are few examples in history of a "return to former conditions." But there are cases in which peoples or groups have tried certain experiments in government or social organization and have abandoned them. Italy, for example, has tried for about 50 years an experiment in parliamentary government, and seems just now to have returned to autocracy. The same change is going on in other European governments.

If it be doubtful whether a people or a group can "return to former conditions," they can certainly and more easily resist a proposed new condition.

If the American farmer is to join the procession toward mergers, "big units," just what thereafter will be the status of the individual man who handles the individual hoe? Just how do the bankers and the perfectly sincere theorists who propose this course—just how do they envisage the farmer of the future? Will he continue to be the owner of his 160 acres, with all the sense of security and independence that he now has? Or will the final phase of agriculture when organized into big units see the ownership of the land pass into the hands of great corporations or wealthy individuals? Will the individual man who handles the individual hoe, or drives the individual tractor—will he be merely a hired man or a renter, or some other variety of independent?

Throughout all the history of America and through many centuries elsewhere the typical farm has consisted of a bit of land anywhere from 50 to 200 or 300 acres owned by a man who lives on the land with his wife and a growing family. This family has been the unit of agricultural labor. This farm, with the workers confined to one family, has been what the big factory is in industry. (In cases where the farmer was a renter he was usually a renter temporarily; he looked forward to ownership, and renting was a process of acquiring ownership.)

This unit of farming, a man and his wife and three or four growing sons, has been able to resist every tendency toward bringing agriculture to the basis of "big business." A man and his wife and family can always produce a crop cheaper than the man or corporation who employs hired labor on a factory basis; they have always been able to undersell the larger unit.

Georgia Needs To Produce More Food

(From The Manufacturers Record.)

Figures showing the situation in Georgia with reference to the production and consumption of some principal food products have been compiled by the Georgia utilities information committee. They show that progress has been made in putting Georgia on a self-sustaining food basis and illustrate that the state produces other things than cotton, although there is still a great quantity of food products bought outside of the state which should be produced by its own people. Georgia has long been a great cotton state and in 1925 it produced 1,164,000 bales of cotton, but perhaps it will prove a shock to some Georgia cotton farmers to know that the value of the state's annual cotton crop is less than the amount of money spent by its people for food products bought outside the state. Based on cotton selling at 17 cents a pound, Georgia would have to produce 1,375,000 bales of cotton to pay for the beef, pork, corn, poultry and dairy products annually imported into Georgia from other states.

Particularly do these figures indicate that Georgia can greatly profit by producing more of its own foodstuffs, for they offer a large home market to Georgia farmers.

Commodity.	Production.	Consumption.
Butter (lbs.)	5,000,000	50,000,000
Beef (lbs.)	30,000,000	191,000,000
Pork (lbs.)	60,000,000	264,000,000
Eggs (value)	$13,750,000	$22,500,000
Poultry (value) ..	$11,250,000	$18,000,000
Corn (bushels) ...	31,402,000	48,286,000
Hay (tons)	668,000	2,665,000

There is not a single production item in the foregoing list but could be increased at least to supply the state's consumptive requirements. Georgia has made progress in diversification, but its farmers are still not making the most of their opportunity to profit from greater diversification and capture at least a far greater portion of the home food market than they are now doing.

LIGHTS OF VERDUN

Verdun Ten Years After

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

A thunderstorm was raging over Verdun. The zig-zag lightning bolts threw a blue haze over the old battlefields in the distance and the church spire looked like a big needle silhouetted against the sky. I could not stay in the hotel, an irresistible force drew me out to those muddy roads. Was it the call of invisible legions who rehearse the battles of yesteryear and whom I once saw in the flesh? Was it the brother who sleeps in a great common grave with Frenchmen and Germans and who has only his bayonet number marked on his tomb? I cannot tell you.

* * * *

The rolling thunder to me was like sad and overwhelming music, a lament it seemed of a million souls, who loved life, but who were cut off before they had reached its fullness. The one moment it seemed the air was filled with light fantastic music, reminiscent of French poilus sitting in a dug-out, drinking their wine; the next moment it was a deep-voiced choral from Bach perhaps, or a hymn of Luther sung as only Germans can harmonize.

* * * *

The wind swept over Dead Man's hill and by the light of a silver moon that finally broke through the clouds I found the spot where I lay once, trembling and in a nightmare of fear. The stillness was almost audible. Here human beings once grappled at each other's throats and here beneath my feet lay the million victim's of mass insanity.

I disturbed a bird's nest in the grass and there was a frightened chirping for a moment. Then all became still again. I stumbled over a piece of wood, a chunk of rusty barbed wire was still attached to it. Far away a bell was ringing, a monastery perhaps where men keep eternal vigilance, night and day.

* * * *

A pair of lovers were strolling along a path. They kissed standing against the broken remnants of an ammunition caisson. A rusty bayonet rattled against a broken bottle. I feared to go further, lest I disturb the sleepers, the hundreds of thousands of men who fought on both sides.

* * * *

The wind sig[illegible] through the grain field. It was a lament of anguish. I thought of the hatred still rampant in this world, of the nations still armed to the teeth, and I wondered if the sleepers perhaps have no [illegible] because they died in vain. And from a soft sighing, the wind went into crescendo, into a roaring shout of defiance, into a storm of protest and the rain came down in torrents once more.

* * * *

But I waited for the dawn, just as I waited for the dawn on this spot 10 years ago. It streaked the horizon with pale amber first, then tinged the sky with orange and yellow gold. A nightingale rose by my side and soared aloft. Other birds were chirping and quarreling. Verdun was suddenly bathed in a luminous silver. And as I walked slowly back to the town the flowers swayed softly to and fro in the lullaby of a spring zephyr.

GLIMPSES OF HOLLYWOOD

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

Mae Murray's elevation to a title this week by marrying Prince David Divani, of the province of Georgia, in the Caucusus, has provided much discussion indeed among the avid gossip hounds of Hollywood. Mae's marriage to Divani was a sudden one taking place only a couple of weeks after their meeting, and is regarded by some of Hollywood as a perfectly planned grand gesture on Mae's part to show the world and Bob Leonard in particular that she doesn't care a hoot if Bob, her ex-husband, did marry Gertrude Oldsted.

Mae's marriage to Prince David was a Roman Catholic ceremony performed by special arrangement without and calling of bans such as is customary at the altar of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills, Father Michael J. Mullins officiating.

The groom was baptized preceding the ceremony. The ceremony disclosed that Mae's name really was Maria Adrienne Koenig—something Hollywood did not previously know.

When asked about her three former husbands and divorces in connection with this new marriage, Mae answered, "Oh, those former marriages were not religious marriages and as such don't count. They were mere incidents; David and I have agreed that this marriage is the culmination of an ideal. He told me 'this is one marriage that will never be dissolved'."

Mae gave her age as 33 and David as 27, which aroused a bit of frenzied arithmetic, inasmuch as her first marriage in 1908 to W. M. Schwenker, who described himself as a "gateman" in Hoboken, showed Mae then admitted to 19 years.

Rudolph Valentino and Pola Negri stood up with Mae and her prince, Manuel Reachi and Agnes Ayres, the little cupids of Hollywood, also were on hand. No one as yet has had the nerve to disturb Bob Leonard's happy honeymoon by asking him how it feels to be a mere incident in Mae's life.

At the time last year that Mae got her divorce in Paris, it was generally believed that she and Leonard were still in love and would be remarried. Seemingly, Mae leaned to the same idea, for there were many reports to that effect which Mae did not deny.

As for the tall, blond, blue-eyed, curly-haired bridegroom, Pola Negri says he really is a prince and Mae admits that she is going back to Georgia in the Caucusus to meet the family and see the ancestral castle, also Serge Divani, father of David, who Hollywood has been told was an intimate personal friend of the late Czar Nicholas.

A couple of years ago Prince David came to America and possibly out of a desire to repair the bolshevik's incursions into the family fortunes worked in the oil fields in Oklahoma and Texas for several months as a laborer. Better things loom now, for he is launched in pictures now.

Their connection with Mae Murray's romance this past week is the last of several notable occasions on which they fastened the orange blossoms onto a screen couple. When Bert Lytell and Claire Windsor were romantically married last year, and Edwin Carewe and Mary Akin with them in Jaurez, Mexico, Reachi arranged the details of the licenses and the secrecy of the Carewe match through his position as an attache of the Mexican governmental branch.

Then when Roudolph Valentino returned from Europe and Pola Negri made an unsuccessful but enthusiastic attempt to meet him at Albuquerque, N. M., Reachi met Rudy's train at San Bernardino, several hours east of Los Angeles. Reachi's mission was to tell Rudy how the land lay and beat Rudy's train by auto back to Los Angeles in time to restrain Pola from a public greeting of Rudy. Incidentally, Manuel and Agnes still are assisting the Rudy and Pola romance which may or may not end in another wedding.

While Jack Dempsey is in his Rocky Mountain training camp 15 miles from Colorado Springs, Winfield R. Sheehan, executive of the Fox studio, has kindly sent Jack a projection machine and several reels of Estelle Taylor Dempsey's old films made at Fox's, as "While New York Sleeps," and "Blind Wives."

Hollywood welcomed Irvin S. Cobb to its official arms at a Writers' club dinner on Tuesday evening. Hilarity was intense and prolonged during Cobb's speech.

He opened by telling that as his train drew into the station at Los Angeles, it was greeted by loud cries of "Allelujah" and "praise the Lord" from a thronged station.

"At first," said Cobb, "I thought it was merely the southern Californians praising their climate, but as I stepped from the train the cries increased and I realized that perhaps they had heard of my arrival.

"What was my surprise to learn that the greetings were for your fellow townswoman, Aimee Semple McPherson, who was arriving on my train from a week-end kidnapping party at Santa Alibi."

Other allusions included Cobb's presence at Joyce Hawley's famous bathtub party as follows:

"I have discovered that the way to get on the front page is to attend parties. For years I have written for papers and magazines, but not till I attended a party did I make the front page. My wife was in Florida at the time of the bathtub incident; since then the world for me has divided itself into two parts: those who mailed marked copies of the papers to me and those who mailed them to my wife.

"Since that party lovely women without number have approached me, taken me by both hands and just when I have begun to think that my personality and charm are more than I before realized the vision will say, gazing earnestly into my eyes, 'now Mr. Cobb, please tell me all about the bathtub party.'

"The fact is that in my family we had the perhaps unusual convention of taking our baths in private—I have never been able to shake it off and realizing that perhaps the poor young lady in the tub might feel the same way, I left to spare her feelings."

Mr. Cobb's remark that he was "one of the honorary pallbearers in New York who received the remains of Michael Arlen after the Hollywood Writers' club had finished with him," was received by the Writers' club with glee.

At the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot where Mr. Cobb has been assigned an office in the scenario department, an amusing story of Mr. Cobb's installation in his new quarters is being told. An attractive young woman holds the office next to Mr. Cobb's and the offices are connected by a door which always stood open, the young lady being friendly and liking to run back and forth to talk things over with former occupants of Mr. Cobb's office. But when Mr. Cobb took the offices a large lock equipped with a staunch key summarily closed that approach thereafter.

Peeking by a studio wag revealed that Mr. Cobb of a morning was accustomed to remove half a dozen or so water bottles from his suitcase into a locked drawer, as his first act. The second act was to thumbtack a clipping: "Irvin S. Cobb, America's foremost humorist" in clear sight above the desk. In this manner, according to the one who peeked, Mr. Cobb's workaday begins, to be ended at 5 o'clock when the bottles and the clipping are returned reverently to the suitcase.

Doubtless Cobb has done wisely to provide himself with the reassuring clipping for writing scenarios on any lot much less the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot is bound to be a heartbreaking proposition for even a famous author.

Many bales of hay are being taken into the studio to make the thatched roofs required. Hobart Bosworth, who is to play the Laird of Glencoe, father of Annie Laurie, is contributing an ancient claymore, a relic of the battle of Glencoe which he brought back from Scotland in 1889, when on a trip there.

Rivaling the Scotch village is the large Dutch village constructed for "The Red Mill," Marion Davies' new picture. A great concrete reservoir, covering several acres has been constructed. Around its edges are quaint Dutch buildings and windmills. Real tulips have been planted by the thousands to give a Holland touch to the landscape. Not far from these two sets are the large French village and castle sets constructed for "Bardelys the Magnificent," John Gilbert's last picture.

Friday noon at the Montmartre was the scene of several parties. Virginia Valli, in a scarlet sports dress with knife plaited skirt and loose blouse and a small grey felt hat entertained Julanne Johnston who wore a white satin sports dress with a small blue bengaline hat. Gertrude Lawrence of the Charlot Revue appeared in a tan satin basque dress with long full skirt and a large floppy rose colored hat. Tom Moore and Gustav von Zeyffertitz were lunching together. A striking addition to the paintings in the Montmartre is a full length portrait of the famous Mme. Polaire by Mme. Ivy de Verley. Mme. de Verley was hostess at dinner on Friday evening to a number of celebrities, including Miss Hurst, who still is known in Hollywood as Lady Diana Bathurst, Sheldon Lewis, Trilby Clark and Rosa Rudami.

Hot stuff is reported from the Nevada location where Ronald Coleman and Vilma Banky are making "The Winning of Barbara Worth." Colman writes "it never gets over 130 degrees here because none of our thermometers register any higher. They are very good to us, for we have hot food every meal."

Marguerite Snow, former wife of James Cruze and first famous in "The Million Dollar Mystery," a Chicago Tribune serial story made into a picture, is now the wife of Robert A. Smart, a mining man from Goldfield, Nev. The marriage several days ago created quite a stir in the picture colony for it generally had been thought that Miss Snow was to marry Neely Edwards, a vaudeville comedian. The marriage was a surprise to Edwards among others; he has left town for a time. James Cruze's daughter, Julie, aged 12, is in the custody of her mother, Miss Snow.

SUNDAY HEALTH TALKS

BY WM. BRADY, M. D.

LIVER SPOTS, COTTAGE CHEESE, SHOES AND THINGS.

Could you please tell me the name of some doctor that treats liver disorders in this city? I can't afford a specialist. My neck is full of those liver spots. Some people tell me I can't remove these spots. Do you know anything about them? I've tried different bleaches, but they seem to be getting worse. I'm 19 and don't feel anything wrong with me anywhere. It's awful, doctor; I just can't go anywhere because my neck is so dark and those white spots look terrible and powder just won't cover them. . . . (Miss M. C. L.)

Brownish pigmented spots on the skin are commonly called "liver spots," though they have no connection with the liver or its functioning. Sometimes they are called "moth patches." They are identical in character with freckles. These irregularities of pigmentation cannot be removed by any safe remedy you can apply yourself. There is a fair chance of obliteration of the darkly pigmented spots with the physiological production of the epidermis following its removal by agents which will not excite much congestion or hyperemia, for such irritation of itself tends to increase the pigmentation. Corrosive sublimate is the poison or caustic in most of the cosmetic nostrums which purport to remove freckles and liver spots. Corrosive sublimate is otherwise known as bichloride of mercury, or mercuric chloride. Of course the desquamation of the skin produced by such caustics may not remove the pigment at all. Two grains (2 grains) of corrosive sublimate dissolved in an ounce of alcohol or alcohol and water, makes a lotion strong enough, and this may be carefully applied to freckles or "liver spots" two or three times daily until the skin begins to peel.

Cottage Cheese Is Healthful Food.

My children are very fond of cottage cheese and I have always given them all they wanted. As a child in Maine I always ate it freely. We thought it was wholesome. But a lady friend told us she understood it was not a good idea to let them have so much. . . . (MRS. R. S. G.)

Cottage cheese is a fine, healthful food for children or adults. The woman's understanding is not very good. Old idea was that whatever a child or an invalid craved or wanted was therefore bad for the child or invalid. That's how the foolish prejudice against candy, sugar or sweets for children arose. Cottage cheese contains as much protein as lean beef, and it is rich in calcium (lime), phosphorus and vitamins and twice as nourishing as white of egg. This, as well as every other variety of cheese, should be more freely eaten as a staple food.

Boiled Shirt on Bimbo.

Some time will you come to the assistance of mothers like myself who do not believe in putting shoes on children before they can walk? The older relatives pester me because the baby wears no shoes. I am bothering you because my family all read your column. (W. E. L.)

They may read, but do they heed? It is just as sensible to dress the bimbo up with a boiled shirt, silk hat and suspenders as it is to put shoes on him before he begins to walk.

For good health and normal development the baby should be barefoot mueb of the time. Only when it is really necessary should socks or stockings be put on his feet; only when you know your own feet would be cold without stockings. And when the baby does begin to toddle or to take tottering steps, then put on some soft moccasins or similar foot covering, not stiff-soled shoes.

Never Too Late to Begin.

I confess to 40 summers, some of them pretty cold summers. But I have landed a man, at last. At least we have decided to "step off" in a few weeks. Mrs. Gamp and Mrs. Grundy have given me their blessings and their counsel, the latter being principally a dire warning that childbirth would be nothing less than a calamity for a woman of my age, and I am beginning to have nightmares about it. (M. A. J.)

Answer—Your age is of no particular importance. Let Mrs. Gamp and Mrs. Grundy hire a couple of halls, and you go ahead and found your family. Contrary to the gossips, experience proves that the mother who bears her first child at 40 or older is as fit as the mother of any other age.

Housemaid's Knee.

Last year in February my right knee became swollen and the doctor said it was "housemaid's knee." He prescribed an elastic bandage which I wore for two months. My left knee is now becoming swollen in a similar way. I am wondering as to the cause. (L. L.)

Answer—Housemaid's knee is inflammation of the bursa or little water pad under the patellar tendon, usually produced by pressure upon the knees, as in the case of a woman on her hands and knees scrubbing.

Oleo.

Will it hurt our 3-year-old son to take oleo instead of butter, as long as he gets his quart of whole milk a day? (MRS. K. J. F.)

Answer—No.

Extraordinary.

I am 19 years old, and I do want to gain some flesh if possible. I am 62 inches tall and weigh only 112 pounds. I should like to get up to about 125. Isn't that the way you like 'em? (A. S. M.)

Answer—Yes, that or better. Send stamped, addressed envelope and repeat your request.

If stress came, the small unit of a man and his wife and family could stand a longer strain than capitalized farming. The family could live on what a big corporation would regard as by-products; on the poultry that picked up waste grain in the stubble, the milk and butter that the farmer's wife made from cows whose upkeep cost little, on the vegetables from the garden that consumed spare bits of time.

It is not to be denied that in industry as a whole, in organized society as a whole, certain fundamental developments are going on or being brought about; and that what effect these developments will have on the farmer is a question to speculate about.

One of these developments in industry is "quantity production." The principal advantages that the city manufacturer has just now over the farmer lies in the profit, or rather, the reduced cost, which comes to the manufacturer through what has come to be called "mass production." The first hundred automobiles that Henry Ford makes in a day, if he only made a hundred in a day, might readily cost him several thousand dollars each to make. By having a mass production of five to eight thousand a day, he can make each machine at a cost of less than $300. Mass production is not only enriching the factory owner, but the factory worker as well. It is sharing in the advantages of mass production that enables many city workers to live on a scale the farmer envies.

Mass production is not applicable to agriculture. The last ten acres that a farmer plows and seeds and reaps costs him practically as much as the first ten acres.

Since mass production is the chief advantage of big units of industry, and since mass production is not applicable to the farm, we shall have to look elsewhere for benefits the farmer may hope to get from that organization into big units which is commended to him. There are such benefits possible. One of them lies in cooperative marketing. But the farmer will need to watch out lest this form of marketing, after it arrives and is successful, should become the big and profitable end of the business. A conceivable next step after cooperative marketing would be for the marketing association to become the owner of the land in large quantities and subordinate the individual farmer. Something like that has happened in ordinary industry during the transition from small units into big ones. The selling end became the profitable end, the profitable end became dominant, and the individual producer became subordinate. In other cases it was the financial end that became profitable and dominant control passed to those whose skill was not in production, but in management of the finances.

Says Florida Banks In Good Condition

Editor Constitution: The recent financial troubles of a Georgia banking concern show there still seems to be a tendency on the part of some in this state to cast unfair reflections on Florida. There is no use to rehash the merits or demerits of Florida affairs—that is her business. Florida is at least fighting an uphill battle against much unjust propaganda, but Florida men of prominence or newspapers do not indulge in making harmful remarks against Georgia. It seems unsportsmanlike to hold Florida responsible for the actions of a banking institution that originated in this state but operated there.

According to an article from the Associated Press, quoting the president of the Florida Bankers' association, her own banks are in good condition, failures have been but comparatively few and the majority of failures were caused by an unsound banking system from without the state. From this it would seem unfair to hold Florida responsible for an institution that did not originate within the state.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—An early advance in today's cotton market was followed by reactions owing to prospects for favorable weather in the south. December contracts, which had sold up to 17.35, declined to 17.21, but recovered part of the loss, closing at 17.29 compare dwith 17.25 at the close yesterday. The general market closed steady at net advances of 3 to 7 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 8 points. Active months soon showed net advances of 9 to 11 points on covering. There seemed to be uncertainty as to the weather outlook in the southwest, owing to last night's shower predictions, while buying also was promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables and reiterated reports of a better tone in the cotton goods market.

October sold up to 17.36 and January also advanced to 17.36, but at these figures the initial demand appeared to be supplied and the forenoon market weakened. Realizing was rather heavier after publication of the official forecasts which indicated partly cloudy or generally clear weather in the south, except for showers on the east Texas coast and Florida and prices sold off to 17.25 for October and 17.28 for January. This carried the market back to about yesterday's closing quotations, but there were rallies of a few points in late trading on renewed covering.

Private cables attributed the advance in Liverpool to active trade calling, limited spot offerings and an improving trade outlook in Manchester.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 62,000 bales, against 37,000 last year. Some of the local statisticians forecast exports for the season of approximately 8,140,000 bales, compared with 8,251,000 last year, New York Cotton Exchange figures.

TRADING BRSK IN NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, La., July 17.—(AP)—Trading in the cotton market was fairly brisk today for a short Saturday session and prices fluctuated rather freely although the trend was upward despite good weather in the belt and a forecast for continued fair weather over Sunday. In the early trading notwithstanding indifferent Liverpool advices the market advanced largely on the overnight prediction for showers, prices gaining 12 to 13 points.

When the weather map was posted showing generally fair weather and the official forecast was issued predicting continued fair weather over Sunday the market reacted and declined 17 to 19 points from the early highs but regained 8 to 13 points of the loss on covering for over the weekend because of a number of reports of crop deterioration in the central portions of the belt. The close was steady showing net gains for the day of 4 to 7 points.

At the start the market advanced and first trades showed gains of 12 to 13 points, October trading at 17.26, December at 17.17 and January at 17.15. These prices proved to be the highs of the day.

The reaction which followed due to the promise of fair weather for over Sunday caused October to trade down to 17.07, December to 16.99 and January 16.98, or 17 to 19 points down from the highs and 5 to 6 points below the previous close.

In the last hour prices rallied owing to covering for over the week-end and because of reports of deterioration of the crop in the central belt. On this rally October traded up to 17.19 and December to 17.10, or 11 to 12 points up from the lows, making a small net gain for the day. Exports totaled 23,625 bales.

The Day in Finance

New High Average Price for Year for 25 Railroad Stocks Was Made, Following Mellon's Approval of Railroad Mergers.

New York, July 17.—A new high average price for the year for 25 representative railroad stocks was made at the opening of this week with Secretary Mellon strongly approving the policy of the government in encouraging railway mergers, the result of which, he believes will be lower rates to the shipping and traveling public. A new high for the year for the rails was made Monday at 95.09 with the upward price movement continuing. From the previous high for the year made at 94.71 in January there was a decline with the market as a whole to 81.61 on March 30. This week's new high for the year compares with the high of 99.61 made during the past 15 years back in 1911. Since the year last named the average price has been as low as 47.59, this low level being reached in June of 1921 following the ending of the period of government wartime control.

As has been pointed out in this column the best informed people in Wall street believe that from the viewpoint of the investing and speculating public, railway shares offer more today than any other group of stocks on the list. Part of this belief is due to the fact that while the average price of rails, despite the recent upward price movement, is still below the level of fifteen years ago, during this same period the average price of industrials has advanced from a low of 54.75 in 1911 to this year's high of 186.03, which was a new high for all time. But aside from being far out of line with industrials, public utilities, oils and stocks in other groups, the rails today in the opinion of well-informed Wall street are in the strongest position ever held.

One reason for the confidence which well-informed Wall street has in railroads stocks is found in the large accumulated earnings of many companies. Take Chicago, Burlington & Quincy for example. This company with $170,000,000 stock outstanding has an unappropriated surplus of $145,161,000 not including current earnings used to make improvements and betterments which might have been charged to capital account. Union Pacific has an accumlated surplus of $188,583,000. Northern Pacific's profit and loss surplus amounts to $163,757,000; New York Central's to $157,776,000; Southern Pacific's to $210,178,000; Atchison's to $209,852,000, not including the $87,240,000 of current earnings spent for capital improvements. Many other railroads might be added to this list.

Rflects Strength.

These large accumulated surpluses of railroads reflect financial strength and also speculative possibilities. A large factor in the sensational advances in industrial stocks as a class in recent years has been distributions in one way or another of accumulated surplus. If this policy of distributing an unappropriated surplus was wise for industrial companies it is likely to be followed by railroad companies.

In addition to having a large accumulated surplus from past earnings, many railroads are now showing high record current earnings. The large accumulated and current earnings of the railroads are a guarantee of a continuation of existing dividends with the promise of increased dividend payments.

Another factor making the stock market position of railway shares strong is that during the past 15 years while industrial companies, public utility companies, oil companies and other groups have increased outstanding stock in the aggregate by billions of dollars practically no capital stock has been issued by the railroads. In the meantime, the floating supply of railway stocks has passed into the hands of individual investors.

There has also been large accumulation of railway shares recently for merger purposes. With the government encouraging railway mergers it is only a question of time until radical changes are made in the country's railway map. These coming consolidations, based on the existing strong financial position of the railways as a whole make the railway situation and outlook stockmarketwise more attractive than it has been at any time since 1906 when the high records for railroad shares were established.

In every good market for any individual group of stocks there is bound to be a solid foundation. The remarkable stock market that has been witnessed for motor shares in recent years for example was based on the rapidly increasing demand for automobiles, trucks, buses. Copper, Steel and Oil shares have in turn witnessed big speculation in recent years based on increasing consumption. The feeling in the best informed Wall street circles is that the day for railway shares is ahead and not far off.

Too Much Money.

It is generally recognized in banking circles here and abroad that this country now has more money than it will use in general trade for the next few years to come. It is possible that employment will be found during the next few years for large sums of capital both in railway mergers and in terminal and other improvements after mergers have been approved. For several years, or ever since congress went on record in the new transportation act of 1920 favoring railway mergers, the railroads have been hanging back in the matter of making necessary terminal improvements because they did not know how they would come out in these consolidations.. With the mergers taking definite form active work will start on these long postponed improvements and betterments.

In the advance that has taken place in industrial shares many individual stocks have reachel a high level where the income return was no longer attractive. These stocks have been split up and then again advanced to a high price level. There has been practically no capital adjustments in the railway list and compared with many industrials, seasoned dividend paying rails offer attractive income return.

Well informed people in Wall street are not looking for wild speculation in railway shares. With the government now having close supervision of railway rates, mergers, capital issues there is not likely to be wild speculation in railroad stocks such as has been witnessed in other groups during the past 20 years, especially during and after the world war. However, what is expected by well informed Wall street, is a better market for railway shares than has been witnessed at any time within the past 15 years with investors as well as speculators accumulating these stocks.

COTTONSEED CRUSHED INCREASED IN PERIOD

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Cotton seed crushed during the eleven-month period, August 1 to June 30, totaled 5,513,037 tons, compared with 4,577,915 for the same period a year ago, and cotton seed on hand at mills June 30 totaled 39,240 tons, compared with 27,883 a year ago, the census bureau today announced.

Cotton seed products manufactured during the period and on hand June 30 included:

Crude oil produced, 1,597,832,889 pounds, compared with 1,393,543,052 for the same period a year ago, and on hand 15,406,020 pounds compared with 22,363,387.

Refined oil produced, 1,346,005,500 pounds, compared with 1,247,480,063, and on hand 191,741,402 pounds, compared with 265,726,017.

Cake and meal produced, 2,567,170 tons, compared with 2,100,373, and on hand 232,238 tons, compared with 65,121.

Linters produced, 1,102,666 bales, compared with 890,206, and on hand 114,214 bales, compared with 38,883.

Crude oil, 36,316,499 pounds, compared with 22,955,966 for the same period a year ago; refined oil, 20,341,108 pounds, compared with 28,354,608; cake and meal, 338,494 tons, compared with 437,521; linters, 93,034 bales, compared with 186,608.

WHOLESALE PRICES BOOSTED IN JUNE

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Wholesale commodity prices showed another slight increase in June while employment in selected manufacturing industries decreased 0.4 per cent and pay rolls totals declined 0.1 per cent, the labor department announced today.

The department's weighted index number covering 404 commodities registered 152.3 last month, compared with 151.7 for May, an increase of 0.4 per cent. Increases occurred in the case of 100 commodities and decreases in 138.

Farm products were slightly lower due to declines in grains, sheep, poultry, cotton, hay and tobacco. Clothing and building materials, house furnishing goods and miscellaneous commodities also averaged lower, while increases were reported for foods, fuels and chemicals and drugs.

The slight decrease in employment, when compared with May, when the decline was three times as large, indicated, the department said, a considerable check in the decline in manufacturing.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

New York, July 17.—The stock market after undergoing a critical period during which operations for the time seemed artificial, enlisted new participation towards the close of the week and finished strong. Apparently some important converts have been made for the bull side of operations in certain motor and industrial issues and the strength of the metal situation together with the probability that there will be some substantial dividends in Standard Oil stocks during the next few weeks served to bring purchases in which general public participated. Rail stocks have been comparatively quiet during the week but the assurance of continued good earnings based on the steady increase in tonnage and the big business which always comes in the later part of the year are elements on the constructive side. On the other hand, it should not be forgotten that the average price of stocks is high, we have had a big run up since the low prices were registered in the latter part of March, and the general trade and business situation is not very different from what it was then. The distinction has been that pessimistic predictions have failed of fulfillment.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, July 17.—Considerable activity was crowded into the trading during today's short session. General Motors added several points to its already remarkable advance, which spread to other members of the motor group, such as Willys-Overland, White Motors, Mack Truck and Dodge Brothers. U. S. Steel had a spell of trading in bid volume at advance of a couple of points. Pittsburgh Press Dispatch stated that steel prices were quite stead along the line and while it cannot be said that they are at present engaged in advancing, there are predictions in that direction. An exception to the general advance was found in Marine, preferred, which broke on announcement from London that sale of the White Star line to British interests had broken down. Bullish sentiment, which was greatly stimulated by yesterday's strong advances was further encouraged by the optimistic Weekly Mercantile Review.

JOHN F. CLARK & CO.

New York, July 17.—With United States Steel common and General Motors selling in exceptionally large blocks on the highest price levels they have reached in their history and with other active issues associated with banking interests advancing from 1 to 6 points, stocks ended the week with another display of strength. Bullish sentiment was greatly stimulated by reports of current trade conditions as set forth in the weekly mercantile reviews. The adverse decision of the I. C. C. in regard to the application made to increase rates for increased rates was regarded as more of a formality in respect to a blanket petition than as a final refusal of the individual applications, but to what extent therefore it was not so disappointing as on the surface as it seemed to be.

Cotton Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, July 17.—Although the weather and outlook, except for low temperatures, continues generally favorable, the rain having ceased except on the Texas coast, the market is sustained by the uncertainty of climatic developments next week. The recent setback to the crop, the result of the recent rains, low temperatures and damage by insects, is reflected in a downward revision of private crop estimates, late estimates indicating a yield of about 15,000,000 bales, whereas the government forecast, as of July 2, was for a yield of 15,635,000 bales.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, July 17.—The tendency to take profits continues but in moderation. There is no doubt that the weather has taken a change for the better. Temperatures, although they are still below what they should be, have improved considerably, yet those who have taken a more or less definite stand on the bull side do not seem very anxious to sell out their cotton for fear of losing their position. Should the weather continue good for two or three days, unquestionably some liquidation will take place that will cause prices to ease somewhat. On the other side of the picture, we have the fact that very reliable people inform us that the plant is extremely sappy and is not fruiting well and the grave danger from boll weevil is facing the crop. Should temperatures turn exceedingly hot, there is danger that the plant, which is very sappy, would shed tremendously. Altogether, the information from the crop favors the bull side at this time, although reactions may occur.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, July 17.—The cotton market had another early advance as a result of a forecast of showery weather in the west issued by the weather bureau Friday night. When the map failed to show any rains of consequence or to give any indications of wet weather, prices eased off. The trade has a wholesome fear of wet weather at this stage and anything that tends to indicate the coming of more rains stimulates both buying and covering. Some private map readers take the view that a wet spell in the west is indicated over Sunday. Their views probably prevented much selling. Reports from Texas say the hoppers are leaving the older fields of infection but are spreading to other counties and the outlook for that state has probably not improved much. Rains were detrimental. The Mississippi valley continues to send in pessimistic reports and is probably hard hit by the flea.

Grain Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

Chicago, July 17.—Heavy and persistent profit-taking was on in wheat as the result of forecast for scattered showers in Alberta and Saskatchewan and unsettled weather in North Dakota, but no general rain was regarded as in sight. Good support appeared on the breaks on resting orders and the decline did not extent very far. Market is a weather affair and subject to sharp fluctuations. Traders are watching the crop reports from the northwest very closely. American crop is reported as further damaged with very high temperatures yesterday, but cooler weather now prevails.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, July 17.—Market lacked significance today except that offerings disappeared in a very impressive manner on every setback. There was none to influence prices either way. Some rains were reported in the northwest and in Canada, but they were widely scattered and not sufficient to bring general relief to the growing crop. Naturally the Canadian situation now commands attention of the trade and private advices differ as to conditions, however, it is significant that talk of a bumper crop in that country is no longer to be heard. It now seems to be a question of how much damage has been done. The only source of disappointment to those advocating higher prices is the fact that an urgent export demand has not yet appeared. In substance we are of the opinion that the entire United States exportable surplus will be taken this year at an early date. The foundation of the market remains conducive to higher prices.

Some private map readers take the view that a wet spell in the west is indicated over Sunday. Their views probably prevented much selling. Reports from Texas say the hoppers are leaving the older fields of infection but are spreading to other counties and the outlook for that state has probably not improved much. Rains were detrimental. The Mississippi valley continues to send in pessimistic reports and is probably hard hit by the flea.

JOHN F. CLARK & CO.

New Orleans, July 17.—Heavy and persistent profit-taking was on in wheat as a result of a forecast of showery weather in the west issued by the weather bureau Friday night. Good support appeared on the breaks on resting orders and the decline did not extent very far. Market is a weather affair and subject to sharp fluctuations. Traders are watching the crop reports from the northwest very closely. American crop is reported as further damaged with very high temperatures yesterday, but cooler weather now prevails.

Total bond sales, par value, $4,887,000.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—A sharp reaction in Internatjonal Mercantile Marine 6s, following the unexpected termination of negotiations for sale of the White Star Line, stood out in contrast to the desultory movement of prices in other sections of the bonds market today.

As the prospects for eventual retirement of the I. M. M. bonds with proceeds from the White Star Line faded, this issue slumped more than 4 points to 87 compared with the high price of 98 established when the deal was first proposed several months ago.

Changes elsewhere were narrow but the market displayed a steadier tone than in recent sessions. Western railroad liens were easier in reflection of the failure to obtain higher freight rates but Wheeling and Lake Erie 4s, Ontario and Wester General 4s and National Railways of Mexico 4s advanced 1 to 2 points, foreign and U. S. government obligations marked time.

After a dull weeek in new financing, more activity is promised for next week. Several large public utility offerings are in prospect, including $25,000,000 Gatineau Power bonds and $18,500,000 for the West Penn Power company. An issue of about $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds will be sold for the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railway.

Decorators and Furnishers Begin Work in Preparation for Formal Opening Within Few Days.

A structure of graceful lines and spacious arrangement, the casino and bathhouse at the head of Lake Avondale, in Avondale Estates, was completed Saturday and decorators and furnishers were set at work upon its preparation for the lake's formal opening to swimming and water sports, the date for which will be announced in a few days.

The casino, built by Hoke N. Smith, follows the English design that has made distinctive many of the outstanding structures of the new suburban city. It is a large building of red brick and vari-colored tiles, with a roof of sweeping lines in keeping with the spacious aspect of a stretch of placid water in front, a cluster of woodland at the west, giving shelter from afternoon sun, and the rolling sward of a park at the rear.

The wooded peninsula at the right, and the stretch of lake, with its encircling boulevard and bridle path, lie in view of a broad flagged terrace, 15 by 60 feet, at the front of the casino. This, with an equipment of colorful large umbrellas, rustic chairs and tables, is designed as the setting for al fresco entertainments.

From the terrace the visitor enters a large central lounge, at one side of which is the smoking room for men and at the other a sitting room for women. A refreshment room and lockers, showers and other accommodations for 140 bathers are other details of the interior.

From the broad steps of the terrace a level place, soon to be thick with grass, meets the sandy beach that slopes gently into the lake. This is described as the largest and most substantial beach of an inland body of water in the south, sand from the seashore having been obtained in quantity sufficient to form a carpet 15 inches deep on the shore and the gently sloping bed of the upper lake as far out as bathers may wade.

A staff of landscapers has been at work upon the surroundings of casino and lake and has completed the park at the western side of the casino, upon the wooded peninsula that juts out into the lake, and at the back of that in a tract of eight to ten acres. The rolling surface beneath the trees is thick with green, and is dotted with benches, swings and shelters. At each side of the peninsula the spring-fed streams run into the lake.

On the shore of the peninsula are canoe landings. A fleet of gaily decorated and tight canoes, in service several weeks, will be enlarged before the day of formal opening of the lake for recreation of dwellers in Avondale Estates and their guests.

The opening will be scheduled as soon as the casino is furnished according to the specifications of interior decorators and the crystal sand of the beach is laid.

FITZGERALD BODIES HOLD JOINT MEETING

Fitzgerald, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The Lions club of this city had as its guests at the weekly luncheon the Kiwanis club, the executive board of the Woman's club, the board of education and other prominent citizens.

The joint session of these civic bodies was planned to hear an address by Dr. Harry L. McKeen, of Macon, executive manager of Greater Georgia, Incorporated, but who failed to reach the city in time for the luncheon. The time allotted to Dr. McKeen's address was taken up with short speeches by Mayor Jack Mayes, J. E. Turner, of the Kiwanis; Mrs. George E. Ricker, president of the Woman's club and others.

Dr. McKeen reached the city during the afternoon, and held a conference with a number of the business men of the city.

RUM CONCESSIONS TO U.S. OPPOSED

London, July 17.—(AP)—Opposition is developing in some sections of the London press to a renewal of the privileges granted by the British government to American revenue cutters for the purpose of keeping watch on rum runners in British territorial waters off the Bahamas.

The diplomatic correspondent of The Sunday Express, which is owned by the Canadian Lord Beaverbrook, declares that negotiations of the American mission under Brigadier General Lincoln C. Andrews, now in progress here, involve an "unheard-of concession to a foreign power."

The Express quotes Algernon Aspinall, secretary of the West India committee, as saying: "It is inconceivable that the British government should allow any tampering with British ships, and the West Indian trade is alarmed at the probability."

General Andrews and the British officials are proceeding with the negotiations as quietly as possible. The second plenary session of the American and British representatives was held today. Decisions reached by the various subcommittees were under consideration.

Georgia Tobacco Growers Ready for Opening Sale Day, Set for Tuesday August 3

Crop Estimated To Yield $10,000,000—43 Warehouses in 21 Cities Will Be Open.

Douglas, Ga., July 17.—Throughout approximately 60 counties in south Georgia preparations are being made by the tobacco growers for the opening of the sale of tobacco on August 3. This date is one week later than the markets opened last year, but it is regarded as advantageous, inasmuch as it will allow the growers more time to get the tobacco housed and cured.

All through the tobacco belt the warehouses are ready to receive the miracle weed of south Georgia which has come to rank next to cotton in importance as a money crop in this section. Bright leaf tobacco has been grown in Georgia for nine years, but this is the third year that it has passed the experimental stage and reached the proportions of a money crop.

In 1925 the acreage was estimated at 70,000, which yielded 49,300,000 pounds which sold at an average price of 14.50 cents per pound, bringing into the state something over $7,000,000.

This year the acreage has been cut down to about 50,000 acres, and a finer quality of the weed has been grown and it is estimated that the price for 1926 will average 20 cents per pound on a yield of 50,000,000 pounds from which the farmers expect to receive from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

Douglas is located in the heart of the tobacco-growing area and in 1925 led all markets in the sale of the week. Four warehouses here sold 7,795,000 pounds last year and it is expected that this city will maintain the lead again in 1926.

Forty-three warehouses are expected to be operated in 21 cities this year as follows: Alma 1; Baxley 2; Bainbridge 1; Blackshear 4; Cairo 1; Camilla 2; Douglas 4; Fitzgerald 2; Hahira 3; Hazelhurst 2; Lyons 2; Metter 1; Moultrie 1; Nashville 4; Pelham 1; Quitman 1; Thomasville 1; Tifton 3; Valdosta 3; Vidalia 2; Waycross 2.

Georgia bright leaf tobacco is used mostly in the manufacture of cigarettes, the bulk of the crop being shipped abroad for manufacture. Foreign tobacco firms all have buyers here who remain throughout the season, which usually lasts about two months. Cash is paid for the tobacco by the buyers.

FITZGERALD HOMES REPORT BURGLARS

Fitzgerald, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—Eleven homes in Fitzgerald today were reported to have been entered by a band of burglars which has visited several south Georgia towns during the week. Little money was reported obtained in each instance.

Officers used bloodhounds in an effort to trail the burglars but the trail was lost, apparently after the gang took to an automobile.

California Girl Arrives To Marry Harry K. Thaw

CLAIMS THAW PROPOSED BY MAIL

Winchester, Va., July 17.—(AP)—Harry K. Thaw, owner of "Kenilworth" estate near here was being sought tonight by a strikingly beautiful young woman giving her name as Miss Forrest Walsh, of California, for the purpose of ascertaining why Thaw has not married her. She claims he offered to do so in letters she says she received from him.

She was accompanied by her mother and younger brother. They arrived here today with only $5 left of $250 with which they started. A. J. Connally, manager of Thaw's estate, said the two women were there twice today. Upon their last visit they said they would return tomorrow.

"Mr. Thaw promised to meet us here," police said the girl told them and said that "we became engaged during a mail courtship, which sprung up after I had congratulated him upon his court victory in Philadelphia several years ago." They never have met face to face, she added.

She said she wanted Thaw to come to California recently for the wedding, but he had business matters which kept him in the east. Then she added, Thaw suggested that she come here to his estate, which she has done.

Miss Walsh told police she has copies of all of Thaw's letters, she having returned the originals, she said, in compliance with his request several months ago. She declared Thaw had contributed liberally toward her education, sending twenty-dollar bills in all his letters. She graduated in June, she said.

Mrs. Walsh, the girl's mother, told police they had been en route from California three weeks. The mother, girl and boy were reported tonight at a touring camp lot out in the country. Thaw is said to be either in New York or Pittsburgh.

King of Spain Saves Death Messengers

London, July 17.—(AP)—King Alphonso, of Spain, now en route home after a visit to England, where he was closely guarded from assassins, has one of the most grim collections of souvenirs to be found.

Some of the mementoes he has salvaged for this collection from the many attempts to kill him are:

The nipple of a feeding bottle which was used in an attempt to poison him when he was eight months old.

Pieces of the bomb which was hurled at his wedding carriage in 1906 after he had married Pincess Victoria of Battenberg.

The skeleton of a horse Alphonso was astride when a bomb was hurled at him. The horse was killed.

A ragged bit of mahogany wood, a piece of the landau in which Alphonso was driving with President Loubet of France when his enemies nearly assassinated him with a bomb.

NEW EXAMINATION REVIVES PARDON TALK FOR M'CRAY

With a special physical examination of former Governor Warren T. McCray, of Indiana, who is now serving a long prison term at the Atlanta federal penitentiary, ordered Saturday, conjecture concerning new developments in the fight of the former chief executive of Indiana was rife.

Dr. Charles T. Nellans, prison physician, conducted the examination, after Clint Hager, United States district attorney, had received a special order from Pardon Attorney Finch, of Washington, D. C. Results of the examination were withheld pending a full report, which will be transmitted to Mr. Finch.

Ex-Governor McCray was confined in the infirmary of the Atlanta prison suffering from high blood pressure, but was discharged several days ago much improved. Friends of the imprisoned official have been seeking to secure his release on pardon on account of impaired health.

NO INFORMATION AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Persistent efforts have been made by friends of former Governor McCray, of Indiana, to obtain his release from the Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving a 10-year sentence for using the mails to defraud. They have been based on the contention that he has been in bad health.

While department of justice officials have been reluctant to comment on the possibility of executive clemency, Attorney General Sargent has indicated that the only basis for a pardon would be ill health. McCray is not eligible for parole for some time yet.

No information could be obtained tonight as to why orders had been sent to Atlanta for a special physical examination for McCray.

Last Minute Rally Gives Cracker Clan Only Runs of Game

Little Rock, Ark., July 17.—(Special.)—The Crackers' four-game series with the Little Rock Travelers here this week was a total loss, the Travelers winning, 5 to 2, today in the final game to make it four straights from the champions of 1925 who don't look much like pennant winners this year.

Markle was the only pitcher that Bert Niehoff had on his staff who hadn't already been given a drubbing, and Cliff got his today—the Travelers failed to treat him as rough as some of the others of the Cracker staff, but hit in the pinches when hits were needed to score runs. The Travelers got only nine hits, and made one of them off Tom Rogers in the eighth, but they hit Markle in bunches, three in the first and three in the fourth, to give Ray Caldwell more than enough runs.

The Crackers got more hits off Caldwell than the Travelers made off Markle, but Ray was strong in the pinches and by some masterful pitching with runners on the bases held the Crackers scoreless until the ninth inning, when they got a break and turned it into a rally that produced two runs—not enough to do them any good, but sufficient to spoil a shutout that the tall pitcher well deserved.

Paynter Hits Well.

"Nobby" Paynter supplied the large punch for the Travelers. "Nobby" got three out of four trips up, one a timely single in the first inning and a home run in the fourth.

Ray Caldwell pitched his usual hard game—Ray always works hard—and had the Crackers well under control until they broke loose in the ninth, although Roy Luebbe gave him trouble throughout the game. Caldwell simply couldn't get the Cracker catcher out, and he got four hits for his day's work—four hits in four times up, with two of them doubles. It was the Cracker catcher who caused the trouble in the ninth, Luebbe hitting his second double and Johnny Brock hitting for Leo Durocher and getting a hit. Wilbur Good, champion batsman of 1925, looked more like a champion yesterday than at any previous time here this season, and got three hits in four times up. But Caldwell kept the hits mighty well scattered by bearing down hard in the pinches. Ray's best work was in the eighth, when Good got a triple with one out and was left on third, Niehoff popping to Blair and Murphy lifting an easy fly to Blackburne.

Support also was a factor in the blanking of the Crackers for eight innings. The Blackburne-Blair-Clancy trio turned two fast double plays to check the Crackers, and Bill Watson made a wonderful throw to the plate to get a runner.

Senne Starts Off.

While the Travelers did enough hitting to win they had some assistance in taking their three-run start in the first inning. Senne started the inning with a single to right. Blackburne drove a hot one toward Niehoff and the ball bounded off Bert's shin for a single. Markle attempted to pick Senne off second, threw wild and Senne took third and Blackburne second. Mulvey hit a long fly to right, Good making the catch so far back that Senne could have walked in and Blackburne took third. Paynter's single through short scored "Lena." When Paynter attempted to steal Luebbe threw low, the ball going to center field and "Nobby" reaching third, from where he scored on Clancy's long fly to Haas.

Six Travelers hit six fly balls for outs in the second and third, but the fourth yielded two more runs. Paynter led off and hit a home run over

PEL BATTER HOLDS LEAD IN SOUTHERN

Memphis, Tenn., July 17.—(AP)—Thirty-one players in the Southern association were hitting above the .300 mark, including games of Wednesday. Hendrick, New Orleans first sacker, continued to hold his honors as leader with a percentage of .390 for 89 games.

Bigelow, of Chattanooga, was a comparatively close second with .393 for 88 games.

Carroll, of Chattanooga, had .393 for 83 games; Yaryan, of Birmingham, .376 for 83 games; Tucker, of New Orleans, .375 for 91 games, and Murphy, of Atlanta, .367 for 55 games.

West, of Birmingham, kept a hold on the circuit clouter's title with 16 for the season, with Yaryan, also of Birmingham, a second with 14, and McLarry, of Nashville, getting into the two digit class with 10.

E. Lewis, of Chattanooga, led in base stealing with 17 to his credit. Niehoff and Good, both of Atlanta, had 16.

Crowder, of Birmingham, headed the pitchers' list with 17 wins and 3 losses for 27 games, and a percentage of .850. Cvengros, New Orleans, trailed with 10 wins and 2 losses for 22 games, standing at .833, and Roy, New Orleans, was third with 18 wins, 4 losses and one tie game in 26 games for a percentage of .818.

Nashville kept her team hitting laurels intact over the week, standing with a percentage of .314; Memphis and Birmingham each had .307 for second place, and Atlanta was third with an even .300.

New Orleans continued to lead in fielding, with .973; Memphis and Nashville were tied for second place, each having .963; and Mobile was third with .962.

WHY DOCTORS PRESCRIBE

:: WOMAN WRITER DESCRIBES CLUB SCENES ::

GOLF AS AN IDEAL TONIC

The Constitution has received the following interesting description of scenes and events around the Brookhaven Country club during rounds of the state championship golf tournament, written by a well-known woman writer of Atlanta:

Sitting leisurely under one of the "Texas umbrella trees" that shade the tees at the Brookhaven golf course, watching the players drive off in the semi-finals of the state tournament, the wonderful charm of the occasion moved me and caressed me like a loved one.

I was at once intrigued with the great number of fine fellows—youth to middle age,—who made up the large entry list. My fancy was thrilled by their splendid appearance, indicating health and fine morals, a sight to stir one's natural pride and make one exclaim, "my countrymen!"

The cool, sunshiny weather, the expanse of green sod in all directions, the blue water of the lake in the distance, the landscape dotted with players in gala attire, the keenly interested caddies, partisan loyal; the butterflies that flitted here and there, sometimes ahead of the player as though indicating the direction he should take; the saucy birds on the well-kept greens, scarcely surrendering their rights to it long enough for the players to hole their putts.

I thought, "what a fine sport for overworked business men, and men in the various professions; how like a garment they laid aside their cares and responsibilities for the time being and were boys again." No wonder doctors are prescribing golf rather than medicine as a tonic for men.

His "Idea of Heaven."

One of the most distiguished ministers in the city, who loves the game of golf, said that to him one of the greatest charms of the games was the freedom of "roughing it;" the sport clothes he wore instead of the ministerial clothes he felt constrained to wear at other times. He also said, "my idea of Heaven is a country where one finds streams and meadows and hills and a golf course. If this were certain, I am sure there are some good golfers who would aspire to play on that celestial course.

Then the camaradarie one finds in the gallery of a tournament. Should you wish to know who is a certain player, or how stands the score between "Watts and Dave," or "did Cook win from Mike Jones?" your neighbor in the gallery will obligingly tell you, or you may ask a caddy who plays no unimportant part in a match, who will cheerfully give you the information.

Among the crowd on Thursday morning when Watts and Dave drew an enthusiastic gallery, one could pick the supporters by the keen interest shown in each shot. I met Judge Gunn, modestly standing to one side, as Watts made a nice shot from No. 10. In an automobile that trail l the match was Sister Virginia and Mrs. Gunn. Another interested pair was Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady. It was like old times to see Tom Paine and Lloyd Parks looking on as unofficial umpires of the game.

The three Oliver brothers from Valdosta were offset by the three Jones from Atlanta, Mike, Ben and Bill.

An Even Match.

But say, wasn't that a hard fight between Dave and Watts? Both are golfers of the first quality, and the match was so evenly played that one lost sight of the personality of the players and only thought of the "best man" winning. All honor to them both.

There were other matches and all of interest, but I could only follow one, seeing a few of the fine points that contribute to the making or unmaking of the score, such as the impossible lie of Hugh Nunnally on number 9, and also the bad lie in which Dave Black found his ball on the same green.

In the years ahead I hope to watch many of the youngsters who participated in the juvenile flights, playing in the championship flight and the dear "old ones" following around and resting between times under the friendly shade of the faithful umbrella trees that now protect me.

PELS HAMMER VOL HURLERS TO WIN AGAIN

New Orleans' Southern league leading Pelicans took another game from Nashville Saturday, downing the Volunteers, 5 to 3. Scott held the Vols to five scattered hits while the Pelican batsmen hammered away on Ellis and Johnson, scoring one run at a time in the second, fourth, fifth, eighth and ninth innings.

Memphis turned the tables on Birmingham in the second game of their series, pushing the Barons back into third place in the league standing by shutting them out, 2-0.

Crackers Fall.

The Crackers touched Caldwell for 12 safeties but failed to break back into the winning column and lost to Little Rock, 5 to 2.

Chattanooga bunched hits in the sixth and seventh frames to score five runs and beat Mobile, 6 to 4.

Four double headers gave the Sally league a full schedule Saturday. Greenville won twice from Knoxville, 9-6 and 5-2. The Spinners scored all five of their runs of the second game in the fifth inning.

Asheville split even with Charlotte, dropping the first game, 5 to 4, and taking the second, 2 to 1. The second game was a pitching duel with Smyther having a slight edge over Higgins.

Macon dropped the opener to Spartanburg, 10 to 5, but the Burkemen came back to take the second with a one run margin, 4 to 3.

Columbia, the league trailers, won both ends from Augusta. They scored six runs in each game to win, 6-5 and 6-4.

The Albany Nuts made it two in a row over Montgomery in the Southeastern. They hit two Lion hurlers hard to win 9-3.

Jacksonville more than doubled the score on Columbus, winning 7 to 3.

Savannah nosed out St. Augustine, 5 to 4.

Defending Champion Wins Over Ridley In Final Struggle

BY ROY E. WHITE.

No alterations will be necessary on Georgia's amateur golf crown this year, for until 1927, at least, it will continue to grace the handsome head to which it was first fitted last summer at Columbus.

This was definitely settled at Brookhaven along about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon when Gene Cook, 19-year-old East Lake star, successfully defended his state title against Chick Ridley, club mate and former Georgia champion.

History was written—several glowing pages of it—when Gene rammed down the winning putt on the 26th green.

His victory marked the first time a golfer has won Georgia's amateur championship for as many as two years in succession; it was the most decisive defeat ever recorded in the final match for a Georgia state golf championship, and it brought the inspiring message that young Gene Cook is a new star added to Atlanta's cluster, ready, willing and anxious to carry on with Bobby and Watts.

Gene Is Ready.

Gene is ready. Don't think for a minute that he isn't. His game is as solid as Stone mountain; his shots are flawlessly made; as a stylist it is doubtful if he has many superiors in the nation's amateur ranks, and now that he has gained much-needed experience, Cook looms as a real prospect.

His tee shots thunder down the fairway, and they are long and straight; his approaches have the pin as their target and his chip shots are manipulated with a master's touch. He has always been a steady, consistent putter. All the shots are in his bag, his game has arrived and he is rearing to go.

Gene's march to recognition has been rapid and sustained. He is 19 years old. He began to take the game seriously back in 1921 over the West End course where he picked up a fine style under the careful guidance of Albert Jones, professional.

He appeared first as a champion when he copped the Tech High school championship, played at East Lake in 1921. Soon afterward he became a member of the Atlanta Athletic club and began playing under its colors. He was runner-up in the 1922 city championship tournament and won the title in 1923.

Defeated Gunn.

His worst year in competitive golf was 1924, but he succeeded in reaching the semi-finals in the state tournament held at East Lake. Last year he won the title, defeating Watts Gunn in the final match at Columbus. He has been a member of the West End club for more than four years and a member of the Atlanta Athletic club for about three years. He graduated from Tech High school in 1924 and since that time has been connected with the United States Rubber company.

Now let's get down to what happened.

Backed by realization that he had reached the peak of his game as he was preparing to take the final hurdle that stood between himself and another championship, Gene proceeded to flash as fancy a brand of golf as Atlanta galleries have been treated to in months. After the first few holes there was never any question as to the contestant fate had selected to wear the laurel wreath.

Gene fired a 72 at the East Lake veteran in the morning round and went to lunch eight up on his opponent. The afternoon session found Gene seeking only to cling to the margin and just inch along until the end was reached. Thus it was that he failed to register the fine scoring he displayed during the forenoon struggle.

Eight up at the start of the afternoon round, Gene missed a short putt on the nineteenth for a win, but his par four was good enough for a half. The twentieth was halved also. Both had splendid drives of more than 200 yards. Cook was short of the green on his second, while Ridley was on. Cook chipped up to the cup and took one putt and Ridley had two putts for a four.

Cook became 9 up by winning the twenty-first with a par three. Cook's drive stopped a yard from the cup, and Ridley was on the lower edge of the green. Cook missed the putt for a deuce and Ridley laid himself a stymie on his second putt and took a four.

Cook increased his lead to 10 up on

Gibson Looking Forward To Dempsey-Tunney Bout

BY ROBERT EDGREN

"I'm having a great time in New York," said the Tin Eared Sport. "Yeah, I started out yesterday morning to see the town. First thing I walked down Forty-second street a block from the Grand Central and dropped in on Billy Gibson to ask what was going to happen when Tunney fights Dempsey, if ever. Gibson was over seein' the mayor or the police commissioner or somebody, but his obliging secretary called him on the phone and I was talking with him in about ten seconds.

"'You want to know about the fight?' ask Gib. 'Tunney and Dempsey's going to fight in New Jersey, or at least I hope so. Chicago is a long way from the Westchester-Biltmore golf course, and I got to have my 18 holes every afternoon, and can perhaps take Gene along because he likes to do part of his training on a links. It was all right for Jeffries and those rough guys to train digging with a pick and shovel and shooting bears in the mountains, but my fighter is more refined and civilized. He does his digging with a niblick and all he shoots is birdies. Gene is going right into hard training and all we hope is that Dempsey ain't so bad as they say he is, because we don't want to take the championship from no cripple. The way I figure it is all the chance Dempsey has is in the first six rounds, and if he can't stop Gene by that time he'll be so winded he won't even be able to whisper to his seconds to throw in the towel, which they can still do in New Jersey. Gene will outclever Dempsey for six rounds and then when Jack can't lift his hands or move his legs any more Gene will step in and splatter him for the glory of the marines. Gene is going to be a regular fighting champion. I'm figuring now to take him on a tour around the world and knock out the champions of all countries after he's cleaned up everybody who wants a chance in America.'

"'Is he going to take Wills on first?' I ask Gib.

"'We'll jump that bridge when we get to it,' says Gib, quoting one of the eminent boxing commissioners.

Improves With Age.

"From there," went on the Tin Eared Sport, "I meandered down the line to the New York Baseball club offices at 42nd and Sixth avenue. There I see Jimmy DeForest sitting in a window trying to figure when is a benefit and for who. On the way up to see Jimmy I run into Gus Wilson in the hall. Gus was waiting to get a ticket to a fight in the Polo grounds. You remember Gus. He was Carpentier's trainer when Carp came over to lick Dempsey. He was the bird who smoothed everybody down after this guy Descamps ruffled 'em. For the past six months he's been secretarying for Jack Dempsey.

"'O-la-la,' chirps Gus when he sees me. 'It is you, or is it not?'

"'You're just the guy I'm lookin' for,' I says. 'Tell me—how sick is Dempsey and is it true he lost all his weight and has pimples and got the flu and probably can't lick anybody no more and that's why he picked Tunney instead of Wills?'

"Gus looked shocked and waggled his hands, French style.

"'No—n o—no — no—n o,' he said. 'Nothing is true! I left Dempsey at Little Rock and came here to New York when Jack went out to those Colorado Spring. He never was sick. He never had that flu. When he left that real estate place—what you call, Hendersonville—he is wonderful—just like when he fights Carpentier. Boxing exhibitions around somewhere one night our gloves did not arrive, and Jack had to use some old gloves that had been much used, perhaps by some boxers not so clean. The next day Jack says his arm has an itch, and then there is a little red spot, a very little pimple. I say to Jack to let me put something on it, and he says "It is nothing. I will scratch it off with my thumb nail." So he scratched it with his thumb nail. That night his arm swell up and got red and he had a fever and his arm hurt so he could not sleep, and Mrs. Dempsey phoned for a doctor and the doc he said it is infected from the dirty glove and the scratch. All that night Jack had fevers and sweats, and the next day he insisted he would take a big steam bath and sweat everything out that was poison, and so he sweated all day and then Tex Rickard came and Jack weighed only 188 pounds. Next day he was all right and he ate a lot and weighed 194 again.

"'Jack is all right. He will give everybody the big surprise,' says Gus. 'When he has trained he will be just the way he was against Carpentier, but much better.'

"'Why will he be better?' I asks Gus.

"'Because,' says Gus. 'Dempsey has entirely changed his style of fight. When he boxed Georges he was open. He swayed with his hands down at his sides. Now he boxes much different. Nobody will ever hit him on the chin again the way Carpentier did in the second round, or the way Firpo did. Jack puts his hands up beside his head, so, and he hits from there, very much shorter hits than he used before, and much quicker and harder. What I want to know is why do we not box in New York?'

No Chicken Feed Accepted.

"I explained to Gus," went on the Tin Eared Sport, "that the New York commission decided Dempsey wasn't welcome in New York because he didn't jump at the chance to fight Harry Wills and give everybody a whack at a bunch of kale that would make what the gang got out of the Firpo fight look like the tip Bat Nelson used to slip his waiter down at Childs.

"'That's all wrong,' says Gus. 'I was with Dempsey when he talked with Rickard and I heard him tell Rickard to talk to the commission and do the best he could and match him with Wills or Tunney, and if possible make it Wills because that was easy money, and Tunney could wait another six months, and maybe if Wills was to wait any longer at his age something might happen and Dempsey might lose him.'

"Just then," said the Tin Eared Sport, "Jimmy DeForest came out and walked past and I stopped him and asked what chance he thought Tunney would have with Dempsey.

"'Two rounds,' says Jimmy, and went back and shut the door. Now what did he mean by that?

Insurance Has Run Out.

"I took a taxi over to Rickard's executive offices," the Tin Eared Sport went on. "Tex is an old friend of mine, as I explained to the door man, who tells me I just missed Tex two minutes as he just left the building but he may be back later, or perhaps next week. So I stepped around the corner and popped in another door and the doorman there tells me Tex is in the building but most likely on the roof or in the cellar and will I call again. So I go outside and telephone and the phone lady hooks me to Rickard's secretary and he hooks me to Rickard and Tex says come to the first door and he'll send word down to the doorman to let me in as he has to be careful who gets in because the burglary insurance has just run out and I might be a politician or something. So I sees Tex and he tells me everything, which is that he's practically sure he has Dempsey and Tunney matched up and the fight will will come off somewhere in September if nothing happens to prevent it, and it may rain tomorrow if it isn't a clear day.

"From there I drop down to the Woolworth building and shoot up to the 44th floor to see Fugazy. I get in there just before the Berlenbach-Delaney row, and find Mr. Fugazy sitting in his office with a pained expression on his face and one ear glued to the telephone receiver, and he's trying to explain to somebody that all the ringside tickets are sold or reserved, and it's evident he's getting the worst of the argument. At last he says: 'All right, you get a hundred and fifty more,' and hangs up. The bell rings again. Another argument, with the sweat rolling off Mr. Fugazy's dome and sprinkling his whole desk, and he says: 'All right, you get two hundred more,' hangs up the receiver and groans like somebody just stabbed him with a cheese knife.

"'Sounds like you're conversing with a couple of boxing commissioners about pasteboards to the fight for "friends of the commission,"' I says to Fugazy in what I consider my best joking manner, but he only groans and says nothing.

"'What have you on next?' I asks, to change the subject.

Fugazy After Wills.

"'I've been trying to get the commission to let me match the winner with Wills,' says Fugazy. 'That would be a grand thing for boxing because, in my opinion, Wills would be knocked out in a few rounds and then I could match the winner with Dempsey and pull off the greatest heavyweight gate—I mean fight—ever held in New York city. What do you think of that?'

"'You got Tex Rickard outfigured,' I says. 'I hope you put it over.'

"As I went out a guy with a scar on the side of his head, like somebody'd okingly crowned him with a horseshoe, was kicking on the side door to the box office where the ticket sales were going on and yelling: 'Let me in; I want to make me reservation.' Jack Sharkey, who is Mr. Fugazy's handy man, was looking the guy over and trying to figure what to do about it when one of the ticket men looks up and says: 'Hey, lock the door. Don't let that bird in among the tickets. He's a boxing inspector.'

"Yeah," said the Tin Eared Sport, "I like New York. Just travel around this burg and you can find something interesting every minute."

Landis Approves New Rookie Rule

Omaha, Neb., July 17.—(AP)—The Western league's new rookie rule requiring at least five players on each team, who have not had 20 games of baseball experience of class A rating, has been lauded by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, national baseball commissioner.

"The young fellows create more interest and improve the game generally," Judge Landis declared. "The fans always are for the new player, for he is a willing worker, full of fight and pep.

"These young players, practically fresh from the sand lots, also make more and better minor league baseball possible. Especially is this true in leagues below class A rating, for these teams, usually supported by a civic movement, seldom are self-supporting. The attendance will not pay expenses. Thus the good fellows of the town must make up the deficit. But if the club can sell a young player or two each season the monetary strain is alleviated."

Sir Roch Captures Brilliant Race

Toledo, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—Claiming one of the most brilliant grand circuit meetings held at Fort Miami park in recent years, Sir Roch, driven by George Loomis, paced the fastest heat of the year in winning the third heat and the free-for-all pace here this afternoon.

J. L. Dodge, Lexington trainer, uncovered a promising 2-year-old trotter, Hollycrod Sheila, brown filly by Peter Volo, which won the Steadman, annual 2-year-old fixture, in straight heats.

Grey Worthy, veteran trotter and slightly lame, showed speed in the open trot, winning in straight heats.

The exodus of horses and horsemen for Kalamazoo and the east started before nightfall.

Chandler Wins Tennis Title

Providence, R. I., July 17.—Edward G. Chandler, of Berkeley, Calif., won the Rhode Island state tennis championship at the Agawam Hunt club here Saturday, defeating Takeich Harada, of Japan's Davis cup team, 9-7, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Martha Bayard, of Short Hills, N. J., won the women's singles title by beating Mrs. William Endicott, of Boston, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer, of Texas, won the men's doubles final match in straight sets, 12-10, 6-2, 6-3 from the California combination of Cranston Holman and Lionel Ogden.

The women's doubles title went to Miss Bayard and Mrs. F. H. Godfrey, who defeated Mrs. J. D. Corbiere and Mrs. Endicott, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

American Golfers Never Lose Walker Cup

American golfers have kept the Walker cup ever since it was put up by George Herbert Walker, former president of the United States Golf association, in 1920.

BRAVES WIN ANOTHER.

Pittsburgh, July 17.—Boston won a free-hitting contest from Pittsburgh today, 9 to 7. After trailing from the second inning when the Pirates scored five runs, the Braves staged a batting rally in the eighth and duplicated Pittsburgh's big inning in runs scored. Boston hit three pitchers for 15 hits. Mogridge relieved Goldsmith in the ninth when the latter walked two Pirates.

BROOKLYN WINS, 5 TO 4.

Cincinnati, July 17.—Brooklyn edged out Cincinnati in a close game today, 5 to 4. Rixey was hit hard in the sixth inning and retired. Walker hit a home run in the Reds' half of the sixth with a man on base. Cincinnati made a desperate effort to rally in the ninth but the result was only one run. With men on first and second Pipp hit into a double play and Critz grounded out.

GIANTS TROUNCE CUBS.

Chicago, July 17.—Jackson's triple started a ninth-inning batting rally which drove Blake to the showers. Stephenson then contributed two errors and when the inning ended the Giants had scored five runs, defeating Chicago, 8 to 3, in the first game of the series here. Grimm's home run in the eighth inning tied the score. The Cubs passed the century mark in double plays by executing three, giving them a total of 101 twin killings.

BOBBY ENTERED U. S. OPEN

:: WAS IN HURRY TO GET BACK TO BUSINESS ::

ONLY TO HAVE SOME FUN!

(New York Times.)

"Bobby" Jones announced that he was going out to Columbus for the open championship simply to "play for fun." He made light of the possibility that he might win. That could happen to a fellow once in six or seven years, but he was now in a hurry to get back to his neglected business in Atlanta and was merely going to stop over to have a good time on the Scioto links.

Once there, he amused himself by playing his first round in 70 strokes. But the next day the fun became fast and furious, as he was caught out in a furious gale which made havoc with low scoring, and proceeded to take a 79 for his second round. That appears to have seemed to him thoroughly comic and enjoyable. There he was, six strokes behind the professional golfer in the lead. What could be better fun than to set out on Saturday to cut that lead to nothing?

Mr. Jones did it light-heartedly with a 71, for his third round, but meanwhile another professional golfer had slipped to the front. Mr. Jones had the jovial experience of starting out on his last round with a deficit of four strokes. This remained intact until he had only seven holes to go. At that point the spirit of fun on the links took complete possession of him, and while his opponent grew anxious and nervous and began to make slips, Mr. Jones got every ounce of amusement out of the time that was left and played the huge practical joke of ending one stroke to the good and winning the championship. It must have seemed droll to the fun-hunter.

Seriously, it was a wonderful achievement, perhaps the very crown of the golfing career of Robert Jones. Such universal recognition of superiority has never come to a golfer since the palmy days of Harry Vardon.

RedGrangeLeaves Today for Old Job

Hollywood, Cal., July 17.—(AP)—Harold "Red" Grange, football celebrity and erstwhile movie star, will leave Hollywood tomorrow for Wheaton, Ill., and his old job on the ice truck.

"Eighteen dollars a week and plenty of exercise looks good to me," Grange said. "There's nothing like carrying ice up three flights to develop a football constitution. Les Thomson, my old boss in Wheaton, wired me that the job is open, so I expect to spend four or five weeks with the ice tongs again."

Grange said that he was through with the movies for the present. His future activities in the cinema are undecided, he said.

Walter Kimmick, utility infielder, was given his unconditional release by the Phillies. Kimmick was obtained from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league in 1924.

Gene Cook Retains Georgia State Golf Crown

the twenty-second hole, scoring a birdie four, while Ridley took a six. Cook and Ridley both drove nicely. Cook's second was on the green and Ridley's second was badly topped. His third was pulled, finding the rough at the edge of the green. He was on in four and took two putts. Cook missed a putt for an eagle, but finished with a birdie four.

The 23rd was halved in fives, one over par, but Cook went 11 up by winning the 24th with a par three, Ridley taking a four. The 25th was filled with trouble for both of them and the hole was halved in sixes.

Dormie 11 Up.

Coming to the 26th tee, Cook was dormie 11 up. Cook's drive found a trap at the lower edge of the green, while Ridley went out of bounds, pulling to the road. His second was short and in a trap to the left. Cook came out of the trap well onto the green and Ridley was on the green in three. At this point, Chick picked up his ball, congratulated Gene and the match was over.

Twelve up and ten to play! Massacre, lop-sided, like taking candy from a baby—that's the impression one gets from reading the margin of Gene's victory. It WAS a massacre and it WAS lop-sided, but the man who says Cook's triumph was like taking candy from a baby is a blithering idiot and doesn't know what he is talking about.

In explaining the annihilation of Ridley, we must bear in mind that Gene shot a 72 over a course where such scoring is so out of the ordinary that most of the caddies out there can describe such a round, stroke by stroke, for weeks after it is made.

It must be borne in mind, too, that for the first nine holes of the morning round Saturday Gene went TWO UNDER PAR for a a 34. He was five up at that stage of the journey, which isn't surprising at all. He would have been up that much, or more, on just about anybody else you may care to nominate.

Chick's Worst Defeat.

Chick is a great fellow and he is a great golfer, but Chick isn't going to do a whole lot of winning when the other bird reels off nine holes in two under par. The round resulted in the worst defeat Chick has sustained in a career which started away back yonder when most Atlantans didn't know the difference between a mashie and a teething ring.

But Chick didn't crack. He played only a few strokes higher than his usual game. It was not exactly the sparkling form he had displayed in previous matches in the late tournament, but he certainly was never in yelling distance of the cracking point.

Chick simply had no idea he was going to be called upon to battle a 72, and not one person in the sizable gallery was entertaining any such thought, either, as the two squared away for their championship battle.

Both had splendid drives from the first tee. Cook found his ball in the clear, but Chick's ball stopped in some tall grass at the edge of the fairway. Ridley's recovery was weak and he was three strokes in reaching the edge of the green, while Cook was well on with his second. Chick made a noble effort to run down the putt, but missed by inches, taking a five and losing to Cook's well-played par four.

Another Good Drive.

Cook had another great drive from the second tee, and Ridley followed with one just as good. Cook reached the green on his second, but Ridley pulled his second to a trap. Chick had no trouble getting out with one shot, but proceeded to take two putts and became two down when Gene used up two putts for a par four. The short 137-yard third hole was an easy par three for both.

Cook had the better of the two drives from the long fourth, but Ridley had a magnificent second shot, reaching the green, while Cook arrived at the putting reservation in three. The door was wide open for Chick, but he muffed his chance by taking three putts, the hole being halved in par fives.

Chick's fate drew nearer on the fifth when Gene added another hole to his string. Gene followed a mighty drive with a long poke to the green. Chick pressed on his drive, topped the ball and had a bad lie in the hollow. He was still far short of the green following his second shot, overshot on his third, chipped to the green on his fourth and required two putts for a six. Cook played carefully, used up two putts and won the hole with a par four to become three up.

Chick reduced Gene's lead to two by winning the short sixth with a deuce, the first, last and only hole he won during the entire match. Both were on the green, with Ridley much nearer the pin than Gene. Cook came within inches of getting a two and Chick sent his down.

Scores Birdie Four.

A birdie four gave Gene the long seventh and once more he was three up. There was little to choose between on the drives, but Cook had a corking good second shot, reaching the green. Chick was far short on his second and was barely on with his third. Each took two putts.

Cook hammered his best drive of the round from the eighth tee, reaching the green on a par four hole. Ridley pushed his slightly and found the trap which guards the right side of the green. He failed to come out on his first trial and was three in getting to putting distance. Cook barely missed an eagle two and took a three, his second birdie in as many holes. Cook four up.

After good drives on the ninth, Cook and Ridley both had trouble with their second shots. Cook topped his iron and was three strokes in getting to the green. He took one putt for his par four. Chick dubbed two approach shots in rapid succession and took a six, being five down at the turn.

The cards and par:

Par (out)	443	543	544	—36
Cook (out)	443	543	434	—34
Ridley (out)	553	562	546	—41

Ridley had a splendid chance to halve the tenth, but missed a short putt, which would have given him a par three and become six down. Chick was battling hard, but Cook was leaving few openings.

Gene messed up his drive from the eleventh tee and Chick was in front with his drive. Cook's recovery was one of the feature shots of the round, reaching the green, while Ridley topped his. He was on with his third and sank a putt to earn a half, leaving him six down.

The short twelfth was troublesome to both Ridley and Cook. Gene recovered nicely and was just short of the green in two. Chick was on in three and took one putt for a four, taking a half. The hole marked the first hole requiring more than par figure for Cook. Cook six up.

Chick Is Stymied.

A stymie was added to Chick's troubles on the 13th green. Both reached the green with second shots. Gene laid Ridley a stymie and won with a par four to become 7 up.

The golfers displayed poor putting form on the 14th green and the hole was halved in fives, each taking three putts after reaching the green with long drives and good second shots.

Ridley had another chance to earn a half on the short fifteenth, but missed a short putt and took a four, going 8 down when Cook, after barely missing his putt for a deuce, took a par three.

Nothing of importance transpired at the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth holes, the holes being halved in fives, two over par for the distance.

The cards and par:

Par	(in)	343	443	445—34
Ridley	(in)	444	554	555—41—41—82

Two state championships in as many years for a youngster we used to call "Little Gene" Cook in modest reviews of minor tournament victories! Two real championships for a real golfer! Two fine championships for a champion who has demonstrated that he is no flash in the pan, a youth who displays every symptom of a young man who knows what he wants and knows how to go after it!

Tough Opposition.

His titles have been won against the toughest opposition the state offers, when we except the well-known Mr. Jones. Last year Gene accomplished the unexpected by defeating Watts Gunn, a former state champion, who, later in the same year, won his way to the final round in the national amateur championship tournament!

This year he walked all over Chick, who, in addition to once having held the state championship, has been city champion at least once—maybe more, if we dig back into the chronicles of the dim past.

Nothing flukey about this Mr. Cook. He wins golf matches, important matches, because he knows how to play the game, and this writer, for one, is not going to be a bit surprised when Gene steps out in the fastest company the nation offers, feeds them his dust and makes them like it.

Cook had no royal road to his diadem. Two former champions, Watts Gunn in the second round, and Chick Ridley in the finals, stood between Gene and ultimate victory, but a brilliant game he flashed against Jimmy West in the opening round improved steadily until it reached its peak in the struggle with Ridley with astounding results.

Winning from West by 5 and 3, Gene, in the second round, encountered Mike Jones, who had conquered Billy Oliver, of Valdosta. Cook uncorked another good round and defeated the Druid Hills entry by 4 up and 3. This triumph sent him into the semi-finals against Watts Gunn and the hardest battle in the first flight ensued, Gene finally winning on the 20th green.

To Enter Amateur.

Following the victory it was announced that Gene had accepted an invitation to participate in a tournament in Columbus later this month, which will give him additional experience before he enters the national amateur in September, when his thousands of friends in Atlanta look for him to spin America's golfing public on its ear with his playing.

Some great matches were played in the finals of the lower flights. Down in the consolation division, for instance, composed of first-round losers of the championship flight, Billy Oliver, of Valdosta, only member of the golfing clan of the name to get a shot at the state title, and Morgan McNeel, of Marietta, staged a magnificent struggle, Billy finally winning by one up.

It was a bad day for the McNeel's in general, Frank McNeel, also of Marietta, losing to L. R. Hunter, playing from East Lake, in the finals of the second flight. Hunter's margin was 2 up and 1 to play.

Harry Ansley, a member of the Ansley Park team, won the third flight cup, winning from George Converse, of Valdosta, 3 and 2.

Valdosta pushed another entry into the cup-winning brigade when John Oliver, playing in the finals of the fourth flight, came in with a one-up victory over Milton Dargan, Jr., who played a fine game over his home course.

Results in other flights were: Fifth, J. T. Leonard defeated Cy Strickler, one up in 19 holes; sixth, Dick Garlington defeated John Grant, Jr., 2 and 1; seventh, Bob Martin defeated Dan Y. Sage, 2 up; eighth, C. F. Holton defeated Blair Foster, 2 up; ninth, R. M. Soule defeated W. E. Pendleton, 4 and 2; tenth, W. R. Minnich defeated R. E. Hightower, Jr., 2 and 1; eleventh, M. Ridgeley defeated Bob Chambers, 3 and 2; twelfth, Walter Harris, of Athens, defeated Charles Dannals, score not recorded.

Hospitable Host.

The tournament was an unqualified success. It attracted the largest entry list in the history of the Georgia State Golf association, which sponsored the event. It sported the most lavish outlay of trophies ever to grace a state tournament anywhere. The course was in perfect condition and the Brookhaven club proved a most hospitable host.

To Cook, as a token of his triumph, went the beautiful Martin trophy, offered by Robert H. Martin. This cup was offered in competition for the first time in the tournament just passed. The Atlanta Athletic club by virtue of its victory in the qualifying round, will have possession of the Alfred S. Bourne trophy. The cup, a permanent award, was given by Mr. Bourne, a well-known Augusta sportsman.

One of the outstanding features of play through the early rounds was the brilliant showing of Kayton Smith, a Savannah youngster. Smith was among the low qualifiers and later demonstrated marked ability at match play when the battling started.

After the first round he was the only out-of-town golfer left in the running, achieving a 5 and 4 triumph over Morgan McNeel. He eliminated Dick Winchell in the second round and carried Ridley, the runner-up, to the 18th green before passing out of the picture in the third round. This lad is going to bear watching. Remember that.

HARRY HARTZ TAKES HONORS IN TWO RACES

Amatol, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—Harry Hartz, Romona, Cal., made a field day of the sesqui-centennial motor races on the speedway here today, winning the 120-mile feature event and the opening 60-mile dash. His time in the longer race was 58:20:50, an average speed of 123.41 miles an hour. The time was said by officials to be a record for motors of 91 cubic inches displacement. Fred Comer was second in the main event, Norman Batten third, Cliff Woodbury fourth, Phil Shafer fifth and Harlan Fengler sixth.

Hartz covered the 60-mile dash in 27:58:85, an average of 128.66 miles an hour. Bennet Hill, New York, was second and Eddie Hearne, Chicago veteran, third.

Norman Batten Wins.

The second 60-miler was won by Norman Batten in 29:48:75, with Frank Elliott second and Ben Jones third. Batten averaged 120.75 miles an hour.

Fred Comer, of Los Angeles, piloted the winning car in the third dash in 28:51:58, an average of 12.74 miles an hour. Dr. W. H. Shattuck, Louisville, was second and Cliff Woodbury third.

Hartz's speed was the feature of the program. He led the field from the 18th lap in the main event, winning all of the $100 lap prizes to amass a total of $6,300. In addition, he captured the winner's purse of $5,000 and took $2,500 more in the short race.

Hartz now has 2,155 points in the A. A. U. championship standing, far ahead of Peter de Paolo, 1925 champion, who has 1,475 points.

In a morning trial, DePalma, in a car having 122 cubic inches displacement, set an unofficial record of 151 miles an hour.

Sarazen and Smith Tie in Golf Meet

Garden City, N. J., July 17.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, of Fresh Meadow, defending champion, and MacDonald Smith, of Lakeville, western and Long Island open titleholder, finished in a tie for first honors with a total of 286 strokes at the end of 72 holes in the metropolitan open golf championship today at the Salisbury Country club. They will play off the tie in 18 holes at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Sarazen, after leading the field by three strokes at the end of the third round, had a putting slump in the afternoon, going out in 37 and coming home in 38 for a 75. Smith, on the other hand, was out in 37 and back in 35 for 72, sinking a nine-foot putt on the last green for a four to tie Sarazen.

Kearns Wins $10,000 Side Bet Playing Golf

Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, recently won $10,000 from Henry Tobin, shore capitalist, in a golf game at the Northfield Country club. Tobin bet Kearns $5,000. At the 18th they were tied with 96. At the 19th hole they they tied again and then Tobin doutied again and then Tobin deuthe 21st hole in 4, while Tobin took a 5.

RETAINS STATE GOLF CROWN

Introducing Gene Cook, young East Lake golf star, who successfully defended his state amateur title against Chick Ridley, club mate, in the finals of the state tournament at Brookhaven Saturday. Cook defeated Ridley, 12 and 10. He is the only golfer who has won the state title as many as two years in succession.

Travelers Win Fourth Straight

Haas' head, the ball rolling almost to the fence and Paynter crossing the plate far ahead of the ball. Clancy singled between second and first and scored when Blair drove a double to right.

After that Markle had the Travelers popping 'em up and there was no chance to increase the score. Niehaus, who was benched for the day in favor of Rod Murphy, batted for Markle in the eighth and was thrown out by Paynter. Tom Rogers pitched the eighth and although Paynter and Watson singled there were no runs.

Brock Gets Good Poke.

The first two Crackers up in the ninth, Griffith and Gilbert, grounded out, and the crowd started home. Haas hit a tall fly to right center that Mulvey went after and seemed to have until he ran by the ball and it fell for a two-base hit. Brock batted for Durocher and singled down the left field line. Watson made another effort to catch a runner at the plate and threw wild, Haas scoring and Brock reaching third. The troublesome Mr. Luebbe followed with his second double and Brock scored, but it was all over when Rogers hit a high fly back of short that Blair handled.

The game was started early and closed early, giving the players of both teams time to catch a train for their Sunday dates. The Crackers left for New Orleans and the Travelers for Nashville.

TO THE TRAVELING PUBLIC

THE JEFFERSON DAVIS HOTEL

Anniston, Ala.

Anniston's modern Hotel, The JEFFERSON DAVIS (formerly the Manhattan), was opened to the public July 1st.

The addition to the JEFFERSON DAVIS of 50 rooms each with private bath gives the JEFFERSON DAVIS 100 guest rooms and 60 baths.

Each guest room in the original building has been refurnished and redecorated; also—the enlargement of the lobby is an added attraction.

The JEFFERSON DAVIS will be operated by J. J. Page, Jr. (formerly manager of the Cecil Hotel, Atlanta, Ga.) strictly on the European plan and will cater to the commercial traveling public.

Your patronage will be appreciated.

HELEN'S GAME NOT BOTHERED BY OPERATION

Forest Hills, L. I., July 17.—Helen Wills' recent operation for appendicitis in Paris apparently has not taken any lustre from her brilliant tennis.

For the second time since she returned from Europe, the queen of American tennis courts delighted a small group of tennis enthusiasts who had gathered to watch her practice at the West Side Tennis club.

Despite the heat she practiced for 20 minutes with Paul Heston, assistant professional of the club, keeping the ball moving briskly back and forth across the net with her old-time vigor. Observers felt that her foot work and her stroke were as good as before her operation. Nevertheless, Miss Wills is practicing in moderation and is very careful to move around little.

Perhaps, after another week of practice, Helen may play one set in a practice game. She wore a new costume from Paris today. It was a very short pleated crepe de chine skirt.

Cochet Is Much Like Sweetser; Both Erratic

As a tennis player Henri Cochet has been compared to Jesse Sweetser, the golfer.

When either is on his game, he is almost unbeatable and when he is not good, he simply is not good.

At the start of the British amateur championship, Sweetser was rated as an "outsider." He was at the top of his game and brought the title to the United States.

In the international hard court championships in Paris a few weeks ago, Cochet faced the same situation. He was less favored than his fellow countrymen, Borotra and La Coste, but succeeded in winning the title because he was at the height of his stride.

Blondin Captures Empire City Derby

New York, July 17.—(AP)—Harry Payne Whitney's Blondin won the Empire City derby at a mile and a quarter at Empire City today, with Laura Dianti second and Light Carbine third. Display, Preakness winner, ran fourth. The time was 2:06 1-5. The derby carried an added money value of $5,000.

General Lee, at 5 to 1, captured the Eastview stakes with a guaranteed purse of $10,000, with Witchmount, Harry Payne Whitney's entry, second, and Northland third. The time for the six furlongs was 1:09 4-5.

Tris Speaker Says Marriage Makes Better Players

Marriage as a cure-all for slumping ball teams is recommended by the Cleveland Indians. The 1925 seventh place American league club has greatly improved in 1926, with a brotherhood of benedicts.

Fred Spurgeon, recently married to Dorothy Heisman, proved that by emulating Manager Tris Speaker, who was wed a year ago. Since that time he has been followed by Pitcher Joe Shaute, Outfielder Pat McNulty and Trainer Lefty Weisman. Catcher Luke Sewell's engagement was recently announced.

Yanks Continue To Gain Points

The fighting Yankees continued to maintain their large lead in the American league today by winning from the Browns, 3 to 2. Wingard and Pennock, opposing hurlers, each allowed but six hits.

Two close games were played by the White Sox and the Red Sox, the latter winning them both, 3 to 2 and 4 to 3. The Tigers trimmed the Athletics, 4 to 2, as the Senators administered a 5 to 3 beating to the Indians.

The Braves served a 9 to 7 defeat to the Pirates while the Giants laced the Cubs, 8 to 3. Grimm, of the Cubs, poled out a homer.

Scoring a run in the last inning, the Robins broke an existing tie and beat the Reds, 5 to 4. The Cardinals had little trouble trimming the Phillies, 13 to 5.

Soldiers Play Twin-Bill Today

The 22d Infantry will try and make it 13 straight wins today at Fort McPherson when they meet the strong Oakland City team in the first game, and the equally strong Lakewood Athletic club outfit in the nightcap. The first game will start at 1:15.

Oakland City has been trying to get a return game with the Soldiers to avenge their 3-to-2 loss of June 13, when the 22d Infantry only got one hit off their pitcher but won the game, 3 to 2. This defeat has been ringing in the ears of the Oakland City players and they are anxious to show the Atlanta fans that they are the ones to stop the winning streak of the Soldiers. As to the Lakewood Athletic club they put a real ball team in the field last year and this year's team is made of most of the players that took part last year. A good game is assured.

Senators' Boss Trades Palmero And Ogden To Barons for Crowder

Memphis, Tenn., July 17.—(Special.)—Alvin Crowder, premier right-handed pitcher of the Barons, becomes a Senator. Emilio Palmero, the Cuban left-handed pitcher, and Curley Ogden, a right-hander, become Barons. The deal, which is effective at once, was consummated here tonight following a lengthy conference between Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, and W. D. Smith, president, and Johnny Dobbs, manager of the Birmingham club. Crowder will leave for his new post following Sunday's game that he will pitch against the Chicks here. Palmero and Ogden will report to the Barons at Mobile, where the Barons open a series Monday.

Dobbs and Smith in explaining why they consented to let Crowder go with the club in second place and still a championship prospect, stated that they believed the deal was for the good of the Barons.

Crowder has won 17 and lost 3 games.

Should Help Barons.

"I believe Palmero and Ogden can both win more games for me from now on than Crowder could have won by himself," said Dobbs. "I know both pitchers and especially Palmero, who was regarded the best pitcher in the American association this season, and should be the left-handed star of our league. We would not have considered selling Crowder for cash, but made the deal because we believe we have strengthened our team and also have helped the Senators. Two winning pitchers certainly ought to be more helpful than one, and I believe we have gotten two winners. Crowder is a great pitcher and I appreciate his efforts."

Palmero and Ogden are no strangers in this league. Palmero was with the Travelers several seasons ago and Ogden was with the Lookouts last season. Washington recently purchased Palmero from the Columbus club of the American association for a price reported to have been $10,000.

Otto Merz, veteran right-handed pitcher formerly with the Chicks who was sold to the Barons last season, has passed from the ranks of the Barons. He was today sold to the Quincy, Ill., club or the "Three-Eye" league. George Cunningham, a veteran right-hander recently released by Chattanooga, was taken on here by the Barons today. Cunningham was signed as a free agent.

First Umpire, Starts In 1875, Loves Game

Seventy-seven-year-old Charles Daniels, of Colchester, Mass., the first umpire appointed to serve in the National league at the time of its organization in 1875, is still intensely interested in the sport. He worked alone and was was the first to take up a position behind the pitcher's box when there was a runner on first base. Daniels hails Rogers Hornsby as the greatest player of all time, but in selecting a pitcher he names Charles Radbourne.

Bill Tilden Jr. Wins Net Match

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 17.—(AP)—William Tilden, II, of Philadelphia, defeated George Lott, of Chicago, in the tennis singles of the tri-state tournament today, winning a five-set battle, 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3.

Lott held two legs of the silver trophy and had he won the match would have retained it permanently. Lott drew first blood and slipped through for the next two games. Tilden's game improved in the fourth and he won by sharp placements. From then on he was master.

Rickard Confident Of Staging Fight In Chicago

Many Wealthy Men Backing Promoter In Arranging Bout

Chicago, July 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chicago may be the battleground for the world's heavyweight fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

The match, if decided here, will be under the direction of Tex Rickard.

The New York promoter said tonight that five or six wealthy Chicago business men had offered to finance the contest. Rickard promised to name the location of the match within 48 hours.

Rickard believes the match, if staged here, would draw the record-breaking gate of glove-fighting history, exceeding the $1,600,000 gate for the Dempsey-Carpentier match in Boyles Thirty Acres. The contest probably will be decided late in September, possibly on a later date than September 16, the date recently set by Rickard when he proposed holding the bout either in New York or Jersey City.

Many Big Backers.

Rickard arrived here today to confer with Chicagoans interested in financing the match. The New York promoter said he could not reveal their names, but that they were among the wealthiest and most influential citizens. This group, he said, had proposed to stage the contest under his direction, turning a share of the receipts over to the widows and orphans' fund of the police department.

Rickard was unable to say whether a specially built arena would be erected for the fight, or whether it could be held in one of the major league baseball parks, or in Soldiers' field, on Chicago's lake front, recently the scene of the eucharistic congress.

The New York promoter appeared to be tremendously enthusiastic over the prospects of staging the contest here, a new and fertile field for glove fighting. He feels confident that the match would draw a gate of more than $1,600,000, basing his prediction on the gate receipts of the Dempsey-Willard contest at Toledo seven years ago.

Will Be Sensation.

"If the fight were held here, special trains would be operated from 50 to 100 cities. I believe the fight will be the sensation of boxing. Chicago has never had a big championship fight and it would be a new enterprise for the people."

Rickard said that under no circumstances would he consider staging the fight in Chicago if there was opposition from any quarter.

Under the rules of the Illinois Athletic commission, Rickard would be privileged to charge $50 a seat for his match, as the commission has placed no limit on the price of ringside seats. Rickard has not appeared before the commission but let it be understood that his associates have taken care of this situation.

O. W. Huncke, chairman of the commission, is out of the city on a vacation and could not be reached. Previously, however, he had declared that no suggestion to hold a Dempsey-Tunney fight here had been made and until an application was sought, the commission would take no action.

PLANS CONSUMMATED. GOTHAM PAPER STATES.

New York, July 17.—(AP)—The New York Sun today says that it has "learned from reliable sources that plans have been consummated to hold the world heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in Chicago on September 16."

DEMPSEY'S REPRESENTATIVE TO CONFER WITH RICKARD.

Colorado Springs, Col., July 17.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, training here for his proposed fight this fall, announced today he had sent his personal representative, Gene Normile, to New York to confer with Tex Rickard, fight promoter, regarding the bout. He said he was doing this because of Rickard's continued silence as to where the bout would be held.

The champion declared he was in good condition and could "step into the ring in three weeks in defense of my title."

"If my scheduled fight with Gene Tunney cannot be held in the east, I want to know it," he said. "I have ten other offers under consideration. If Rickard cannot hold it in the east I want to know so I can make other arrangements in the west or elsewhere."

Normile said he talked with Rickard over long distance telephone yesterday and failed to get any satisfaction other than the statement that everything will be all right."

Central Presbyterians lost both games of a double-header to Westminster, the first one 4 to 1 and the second 10 to 4. Hartzell pitched Westminster to an easy win in both games and also starred with the stick. Doggett and Green made the only extra-base knocks in the first contest, when they doubled. Westminster slugged away to win the second. Gulledge made two out of two, including a home run. Hartzell got two hits, including a triple and a double. Bumstead, Jones, Griffin, Alexander and Green all hit for doubles. The losers made just four runs off of 12 hits. Adams was the batting star for the losers in getting three out of three. Killian and Gilstrap also hit well.

Gordon Street Presbyterians easily defeated Jackson Hill in a double-header by large scores. The first one ended 19 to 1, and the second 17 to 6. Gordon Street hit well behind Wilkinson in the first game and made 17 hits count for 19 runs. K. and R. Campbell and Wilkinson all starred with the stick. Wilkinson held the losers to one score and struck out 11. Still had little trouble in winning the second, although he gave up 10 hits they only scored 6 runs, while his teammates made their 17 hits count for the same number of runs. McDonald, Campbell and Bynum did the heavy hitting. Lochridge and Richardson hit well for the losers.

Pryor Street Presbyterian set a record when they decidedly overwhelmed St. Paul Methodist, 28 to 8. The winners made 10 runs in the first inning and crossed the plate in every frame. Arthur Hubert's hitting was the feature when he made six out of six, including a home run, three doubles and two singles. Hewin also hit well in getting five out of six, including a triple. Bearden made four out of six. Each player on the team, except one, made at least one hit. Fauss had things his way and gave way to Watkins. Gillistrap was the best hitter for the losers.

Poor fielding was responsible for Edgewood's defeat of 11 to 9 by the Anchor Class. Edgewood outhit the winners and Bailey pitched nice ball, but his teammates made six errors. The winners got off to an early lead behind the steady pitching of Barron and fielded in jam-up style. Robinson, Block and Hailey all hit for homers, while Hamilton hit for three bases. Shropshire and McAdams hit for doubles. The winners also made two double plays.

Cook pitched masterly ball and only allowed two hits and struck out nine men as Log Cabin downed Locust Grove, 5 to 0, in a well-fielded game. Cook was entire master of the game and Mitchell and Hogne were the only ones to safely hit off him. Fuller, of Log Cabin, clouted a long one for a homer. Monroe fared nicely in the Log for the losers, and struck out five, but the four hits he allowed went for five runs. Both teams fielded exceptionally well.

GOLFERS MUST OBSERVE RULES ON CITY LINKS

Immediate steps to secure rigid enforcement of the rule requiring all golfers to have a set of clubs and to hire a caddy when playing on municipal courses on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays, were initiated Saturday by L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks and playgrounds.

This was the result of numerous complaints Mr. Wallis said had reached his office, because many players use only one set of clubs and act as their own caddies. This slows up other golfers and is not fair to other players, Mr. Wallis pointed out.

He also declared that several reports of persons beginning their play from the second and third tees have come to his attention. This is done in order to avoid payment of the nominal fee charged for use of the course, and Mr. Wallis has ordered course policemen to eject such individuals and to bar them from playing on the city courses for the remainder of the season.

White Shirts of Fans Help Blake To One-Hit Game

"Sheriff" John Blake, of the Chicago Cubs, pitched a one-hit game agains' the Cardinals in St. Louis recently. He does not attribute it to his fast ball, his hook or his control. White shirts are the secret, says Blake.

"The centerfield bleachers were jammed with fans in their shirt sleeves and they made a solid white background for the ball when it came toward the plate. All I had to do was keep the ball high, so it would come out of those shirts, and the batters couldn't see it half the time until it was past them.

"I've pitched dozens of better ball games than that one and got beat. Don't think that Alexander wasn't using those white shirts either. He was keeping the ball high and inside, and with a white ball on a white background he got away good. Everybody was moaning about those shirts."

"I wasn't figuring on how many hits, I didn't think about it. But I never knew a pitcher who worked a no-hit game who had any luck afterward, so I'm not worrying about Southworth's hit."

Scranton Star Gets Brown Scholarship

Philip Wolfe Bunnell, of Scranton, Pa., captain-elect of the Yale University football and swimming teams, has been chosen Francis Gordon Brown scholar at Yale fro mthe 1927 class, by unanimous vote of the committee of award. The holder of this scholarship, which is considered the greatest honor an undergraduate can attain, is chosen by a committee on recommendation of members of the class, as the man who most closely approaches "the standards of intellectual ability, high manhood, capacity for leadership and service set by Francis Gordon Brown, B. A., Yale, 1901."

Colleges Offer Many Training Courses

For training directors and teachers of physical education, four-year professional major courses leading to a bachelor's degree are offered in 92 state universities, colleges, teachers' colleges and private institutions in the United States, as shown by a study made in the bureau of education, department of the interior, of 700 catalogues of higher institutions. Three-year special courses for teachers of physical education are offered in 22 teachers' colleges, normal schools and private institutions.

Claim Boston Fans Understand Baseball

The baseball fans of Boston are said by experts to have a better understanding of the fine points of the national game than those in any other city, which perhaps explains the small attendance there for the two major leagues.

Detroit Castoffs Do Well in Boston

Three former Detroit Tiger players are playing great ball for Lee Fohl with the Boston Red Sox. Rigney, Haney and Flagstead compose the trio. They are all regulars and all three are going great. Seems as though Cobb's castoffs enjoy the Boston climate.

Williams Nine Has Unsuccessful Year

The baseball season of 1926 could not be described as highly successful at Williams college, although Coach Bower's team played excellent ball at times. The team won two games out of 21 played.

Southpaw Hurler Released by Seattle

Harry Lee, a southpaw hurler released by Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, has been signed by the Longview, Wash., club of the Timber league. He pitched for Oakland in the Coast league in 1923 and with Omaha of the Western league in 1924 and 1925.

Chicago Police Take Their Ball Seriously

A lively time was had at a recent ball game between police teams of Chicago. An umpire was knocked cold, several spectators were thumped, the reserves were called out and the chief had an investigation. Apparently it was one of the most enjoyable games of the Chicago season.

Valley Loop Decides Against Split Season

At a special meeting of the Mississippi Valley league presidents it was decided to play out the present schedule after Burlington and Rock Island had objected to any change. Marshalltown, however, was given an increase of $25 a day for traveling expenses while on the road.

The only left-handed catcher to achieve prominence in the major leagues was Bernie Clements, who played with Philadelphia for a number of years. Bernie was the possessor of a great peg to second.

Nova Scotia Runner May Move To U. S. Soon

John C. Miles, of Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, famous since his sensational victory in the Boston A. A. marathon race last April, and his parents may shortly take up their residence in this country.

Joe Bush Seems To Be Making Rounds

Joe Bush, veteran major league pitcher, is certainly making the rounds. His signing with the Pittsburgh Pirates makes the sixth big-time uniform he has sported.

Capital City Chair Company upset the dope and downed the Piedmont Millers, 20 to 12, in an old-fashioned slugging match. Every man except one on the Chair company team made a hit with Vaughan and Eisenberry leading the attack. The winners made seven runs in the first inning while Piedmont Mills came back with seven in the second to tie it up. Four runs in the third and six in the fifth innings, however, gave Capital City a lead which was too much for the Millers to overcome.

The Boethians gained a full game on the league-leading Pep Class when they took the leader's measure, 6 to 1. The Boethians garnered 18 clean hits off Lewis, while Stevens held the Pep Class to 4 safe bingles, and they were well scattered. White played a good game in right, making two pretty running catches. In addition to pitching excellent ball, Stevens was the star with the stick, getting three singles in four trials. Pirkle, Duke and G. Cantrell each got two hits. Moon was the best hitter for the Pep Class.

Fulton Bag beat the Gideons, breaking the tie for first place and now is sitting on top of the league, a full game ahead. It was an overwhelming score for a game between the leaders of a league. Fulton made 15 hits and 14 runs and the Gideons made 1 hit and 1 run. The pitching of Hammock was fine. He struck out 10 and only gave up a hit, it being of the scratch variety. Hammock also was the heavy hitter of the game, with three out of four.

Close playing featured the game between Pullman and Spring Bed yesterday in which Spring Bed won, 6 to 5, saved by Ferguson in the 13th inning, when he caught a shoestring fly and doubled the man playing off second. The pitching of Bennett for Spring Bed and of Merdock who struck out 16 men in 10 innings for Pullman also was a feature of the game. Ferguson also added laurels to himself with a home run. The hitters were led by Ferguson and Kelly, and for Pullman Merdock and McCullum. Pullman rallied in the ninth and threatened to tie the score, but the Spring Bed team managed to get a run across in the 13th that won the game.

DIAMONDS USED IN BUILDING MARMON

When a necessity arises, Yankee ingenuity generally can be relied upon to meet a problem. This, perhaps, is only another way of paraphrasing the adage "Necessity is the mother of invention."

The truth of this was proved again and again during the war, and while the world war doubtless set civilization back a century or more and resulted in incalculable economic loss, it stimulated invention and gave to the world many devices which otherwise might still be slumbering in the arms of time.

The Liberty motor, born of wartime necessity, was an engineering triumph.—But the motor itself had its by-products, tributes to the American inventive genius, and not the least important of these were the elaborate diamond-studded tools, the humble servitors of the great Liberty motor, the mechanical genii of the lamp which machined its bearings.

Diamond Tools Developed.

When the Marmon plant at Indianapolis fulfilled its obligations to the government and turned out its last Liberty motor to help make the world safe for democracy, it had developed a new process in shop practice; had made use of new principles, and had evolved a unique set of tools, the duty of which was not ended by the armistice, but which were to play another role in peacetime industry.

These were the tools originated by the Marmon company's own mechanics; tools which took the diamond from the realm of luxury and set for it a utilitarian job, taking advantage of its hardness and matching its keen cutting edge against the toughest of materials.

The tools which helped produce a masterpiece in the Liberty motor are employed today in the production of stock Marmon cars. To many automobile purchasers the use of diamond drills and planes in the finishing of bearing surfaces, may seem an unnecessary refinement. But to the Marmon company, with the prestige of 75 years of unimpaired craftsmanship to uphold, no process is too expensive or elaborate for the turning out of its quality product.

As a result, the Marmon chassis is like a jeweled watch, the finer points of which are not apparent on the surface, but only on close inspection.

Tools Accurate.

The tools in themselves are interesting and unique, and accurate to a ten-thousandth of an inch. The cost of each is several hundred dollars. There are only two of the shapers, used in manufacturing main bearings, in existence, both of them being at the Marmon factory.

Among the other implements are the diamond tool planer, used for planing the main bearing surfaces; the boring bar for machining the bushing in the upper end of the connecting rod, and the massive boring bar with its three diamond-pointed cutting tools.

Where steel tools failed, the diamond rose to the occasion, and with the success attained in the production of the Liberty motor, the use of diamond boring tools in the Marmon factory has gradually increased. Each chassis is turned out with as much care and finish as was given these airplane motors on which life and death depended. A polish and an accuracy is imparted to the product such as is attainable in no other manner.

Cost High.

The process is not in general use either in the United States or in Europe. For one thing, the expense of the diamonds makes their general use in industry almost prohibitive. Again, few factories care to work within the close limits set by the Marmon policies.

Up to the time of the adoption of this process, the commercial use of diamonds had been confined largely to the dressing down of emery wheels.

LATEST MODEL CARS DESIGNED FOR AVERAGE DRIVER

"If the average motorist could design and build a car to exactly meet his own driving requirements, he would duplicate the present, latest model car, said Sir Black, general sales manager of the Chandler-Cleveland Motors corporation.

The automotive engineer has been quick to interpret the demand of the public for a simplified, dependable motor car.

"He has produced, as well as recognized in the latest models of any good manufacturer, a car that has fewer parts, a car that is more sturdy and desirable, a better balanced, speedier—yet safer—car than the industry has yet known," continued Mr. Black.

"In the various Chandler and Cleveland models produced by our company this fact is strikingly evident, upon even the most casual investigation.

"Balloon tires were first adopted for the comfort of the motorist.

"Then there was developed a flexible and more facile steering gear that would meet the demands of instant steering in traffic and the necessity of parking in the tight places.

"Power plants were refined and improved to a point where it is almost unnecessary to shift gears—to a degree where even the steepest of hills and grades can be conquered in high gear.

"With the increase of speed and power that refinement of the motor brought, the problem of stopping the car quickly became a major item.

"Four wheel brakes of simple design and positive action was the next step—and now even the smallest women can drive in the thick of traffic on our city streets with entire confidence in her ability to operate her car satisfactorily.

"Several years ago, the Cleveland company pioneered an automatic chassis lubrication system that is now recognized as the greatest single mechanical advance since the adoption of the self-starter.

"This system, known as the 'one shot' system of automatic chassis lubrication permits driver to thoroughly and dependably lubricate his car in less than two seconds—regardless of whether the car is standing still or moving on the road.

"The 'one shot' system is now standard equipment on all 1926 Chandler models as it has been on all Cleveland models for the past few years.

"The feminine influence in motor car building is perhaps most noticeable in the more graceful lines and harmonious color combinations of our closed cars," continued Mr. Black.

"The closed car of today is a great advace from the high, awkward looking and cumbersome closed cars of even five years ago.

"To the woman motorist and owner we must also give credit for the great progress in the durable, yet good-looking upholstery materials that the closed cars of today are trimmed with.

"Woman's unerring taste and practical instincts have been recognized by the automotive engineer, and the current closed models of nearly every manufacturer are a striking tribute to that fact.

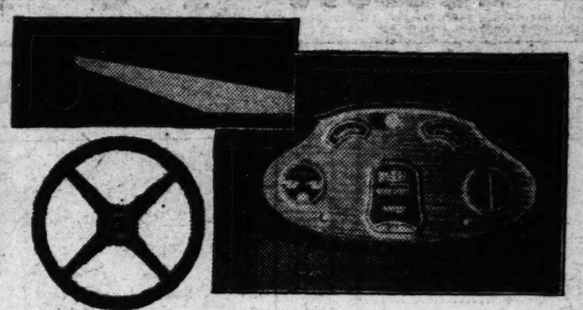

"The current, present-day model is indeed a car that answers 100 per cent every demand for speed, safety, comfort, beauty, long life and economical operation that the average motorist could make."

NUGENT WILL MAKE DEMOCRATIC RACE FOR U. S. SENATE

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 17.—(AP) John F. Nugent, of Boise, Idaho, former United States senator and at present a member of the federal trade commission has announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for United States senator from Idaho. He was defeated for reelection by Senator Frank R. Gooding in 1920.

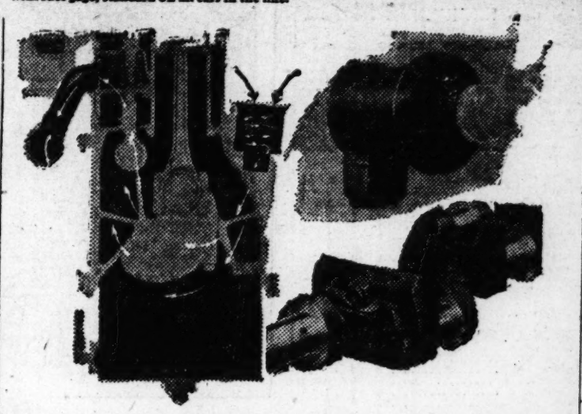

New Series 'E' Oldsmobile Displayed

The new series "E" Oldsmobile announced in today's paper has in its makeup all of the latest engineering features for efficiency and comfort. These models are on special display this week in the showrooms of their local dealer, F. S. Bright, 112 West Peachtree street.

At the left is shown the Oldsmobile crankcase ventilation system. One-third of the air that passes through the carburetor is drawn through the air cleaner seen attached to the breather port. This cleansed air passes through the crankcase, drawing off with it water vapor and unburned fuel. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives longer life in the engine and to the oil.

EIGHT NEW MEMBERS JOIN EMORY FACULTY

Names of eight new faculty members who will take positions at Emory university this fall were announced Saturday by President Harvey W. Cox. Six of the instructors added will serve in the college of liberal arts, one in the school of law, and one in the school of medicine.

Dr. Carville D. Benson, Jr., of Baltimore, newly elected assistant professor of law, heads the list of elections in point of rank. Dr. Benson holds degrees from Johns Hopkins and Harvard universities.

Dr. Edwin G. Williams, a last year's graduate in the Emory school of medicine, has been elected as instructor in physiology. Dr. Williams also holds a bachelor's degree from Emory.

M. C. Langhorne, M. A., of Washington and Lee university, will be a new instructor in psychology. Mr. Langhorne has been on the faculty of his alma mater for the past two years.

R. H. Guthrie, a first-honor graduate of the Citadel, Charleston, has been elected instructor in physics.

Another addition to the physics department is Dr. F. J. Studer, who recently received his doctor's degree from the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Studer holds the degree of B. A. from the University of British Columbia and the degree of M. S. from the University of Washington.

New instructors in the department of English include John Erwin Talmadge and Willard Bissel Pope, both of whom hold the master's degree from Harvard university. Mr. Talmadge is a Georgian and a graduate of the University of Georgia. Mr. Pope took his undergraduate work at Leland Stanford university and at Hamilton college, receiving his A. B. degree from the latter institution.

Another Georgian elected to the faculty is John P. Corry, of Barnesville, who has been named instructor in history. Mr. Corry was an honor graduate of Emory university in the class of 1922. For the past two years he has been working toward the doctor's degree at Yale university.

With the election of one other instructor, in the department of biology, the Emory faculty for the coming year will be complete, according to President Cox.

FRANKLIN DELIVERIES BREAKING RECORDS

Syracuse, N. J., July 17.—This month, which marks Franklin's 25th anniversary, gives every indication of being the biggest July in Franklin history. Following upon the heels of the national low gear run on July 1, when 185 Franklin cars in all parts of the country took part in a 100-mile non-stop low gear demonstration, retail deliveries have set up a new high record for the month to date. Retail deliveries in the first week of July were 33 per cent ahead of the corresponding period in June and 32 per cent ahead of same period last year.

The company has maintained a steady output of 40 cars per day since May 1, when prices were reduced as much as $300. The company finds itself unable to meet the demand for sedans, although this single type constitutes 85 per cent of total production. Total retail deliveries for the year are already considerably ahead of 1925, the most prosperous year in the company's history.

NASH SALES 63.7 PCT. HIGHER THAN LAST JUNE

Swinging through June with a sales and production total of 63.7 per cent higher than the greatest previous June in Nash history, Nash Motors now adds another month to its chain of broken records.

"This makes 22 consecutive months, with one exception," says E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the company, "that Nash sales have surpassed the figures set by the corresponding month of the previous year. The June total brought the volume for the first six months of this year to a point 88.3 per cent above the sales mark for the first half-year period of 1925.

"We have produced and sold," says Mr. McCarty, "as many cars in the first six months of this year as we did in a full nine months of 1925. This accomplishment becomes still more notable in view of the fact that 1925 was the greatest year in Nash history, overtopping 1924 by 72.2 per cent.

"A review of the Nash sales gain for the first six months of this year reveals a striking record of growth. These are the figures:

"January, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous January 82.8 per cent. February, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous February, 96.9 per cent. March, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous March, 108 per cent. April, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous April, 70.9 per cent. May, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous May, 44.3 per cent. June, 1926, Nash sales gain over biggest previous June, 63.7 per cent.

"While this phenomenal string of shattered monthly sales records dates back 22 months with a single exception—that of November, 1925, when Nash output was arbitrarily curtailed to bring in production the "enclosed car" motor—a steady increase in Nash sales has been going on for many years. A glance at the annual production figures since 1921 tells the story of Nash growth:

1922	Nash sales	41,652 cars
1923	Nash sales	56,677 cars
1924	Nash sales	83,626 cars
1925	Nash sales	96,121 cars
First six months of 1926.		78,172 cars

"These figures take on added impressiveness when it is considered that sales of the first six months of 1926 equal 81.3 per cent of the total sales of the entire year of 1925."

GRADY LEE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF B. Y. P. U.

Grady Lee was elected president of the Baptist Young People's union of the Second Baptist church at a recent meeting. Other officers who were elected are Warren Coleman, first vice president; Lamar Davis, second vice president; Miss Harriet Hicks, secretary; Miss Hinda Roberts, pianist, and S. M. White, chorister.

Miss Willie Carmichael, Miss Lena Floersch and Miss Lucy Zachary represented the Business Women's league of the Second Baptist church at the conference held last week at Clayton.

Miss Rosa May King, of the league and her assistants have established a nursery at the church, where small children are cared for during services.

The fastest selling new Six of its price

Startling changes are here. Study them

—gives you exclusive advantages no other type motor can equal.

Quieter and more powerful than any other motor of its size when new, it grows smoother, more powerful, more efficient with every mile.

Repeated tests have proved it the most efficient, the most economical type of automobile motor built.

It has no valves to grind.

You never lay it up for carbon-cleaning.

It has no springs to weaken.

It is practically fool-proof and wear-proof.

No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out . . .

These advantages make fast and enthusiastic friends for Willys-Knight cars. And because owners drive them far beyond the average life of the average car, Willys-Knight cars hold top place in resale values.

You will find the new "70" Willys-Knight Six the most economical and continuously satisfactory car you can drive. Please ride in it.

"THE finest birds fly fast."

Watch out for the resale value of cars that have been "modern" too long.

Here is the fastest-selling New Six of its price in the world.

Six months old, yet 30,000 were sold the past ninety days. No record equals this.

This new "70" Willys-Knight Six is the most up-to-date car in America.

Tests prove it to be the most efficient.

It embodies the most advanced engineering from both sides of the world.

And at these astounding prices:

$1395 for the Standard Sedan
$1495 for the Four-Door Sedan
$1395 for the Coupe
$1295 for the Touring

This new Knight-motored Six has the most powerful standard motor of its size in America.

The motor of this car is an exclusive feature—a feature other manufacturers would pay millions to get.

$1495 For This De Luxe Knight Motored 4-Door Sedan

Speed between 60 and 70 honest miles an hour.
Extraordinarily long sustained high speed.
Power on any hill to pass most cars in high.
Quick as a cat—5 to 25 miles in 7½ seconds.
Powerful four-wheel mechanical brakes, the last word in safety.
54 horsepower, long stroke motor, rated at 20.
The tax saving is only part of its economy.

The new Willys Finance Plan means less money down; smaller monthly payments; and the lowest credit-cost.

NEW ENGLANDERS LIKE QUALITY CARS

Seasoned New England motor car owners prefer high grade motor cars. This fact was brought out in a recent investigation of the automobile license records of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island directed by Albion L. Danforth, president of the Cadillac Automobile company, of Boston.

Such an investigation is easily made in the east from state license records, because the motorists of the earlier years secured low license numbers when the states first began to register automobiles, and these same numbers are given to the same owners year after year. This condition has created a New England aristocracy of motoring and membership in "Low Numbers clubs" is a distinction in the automobile world much as descent from pioneering ancestors is socially.

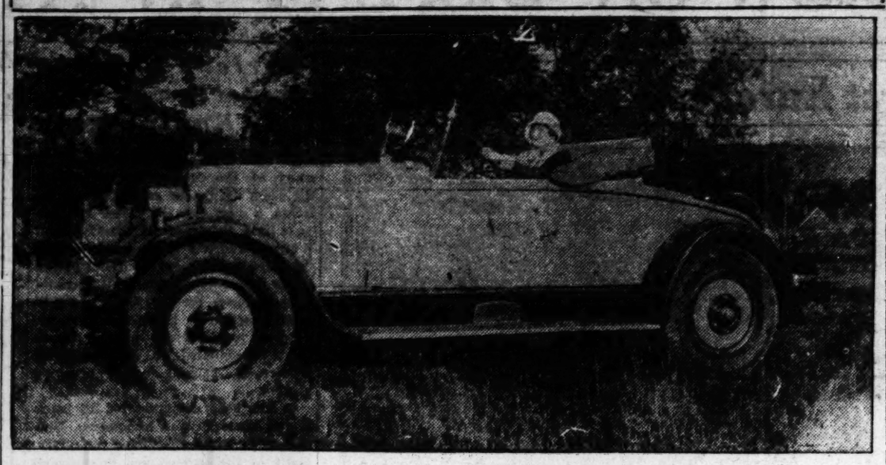

The investigation initiated by the Boston automobile distributor covered the first 500 license records in each of the five states—a total of 2,500 records; and reports were made on the number of owners of each of 12 makes of cars in the upper price range. Of the total 2,500 licenses issued, 705 or more than 28 1-2 per cent, were for the makes of cars being investigated, according to Mr. Danforth's summary. When it is considered that at least 50 per cent of all cars registered are of the lowest price varieties the fact that more than 28 per cent in the field covered by the study are of the highest price classes indicates a recognition by seasoned motorists of the value of the quality car.

While further study of registrations of the 705 cars in the higher price range included six which were lower in price than the Cadillac, it was also found that in four out of the five states the Cadillac led this aristocracy of motoring.

HUPP'S FIRST HALF GREATEST IN HISTORY

With shipments of 26,943 cars during the first six months of 1926, the Hupp Motor Car corporation broke all its previous sales records. Both its first and second quarters were the largest in its history.

Shipments for the first half of the year surpassed those for the same period in 1925 by 39 per cent, and for the corresponding period in 1924 by 54 per cent.

During the first half of 1926 the company broke its previous largest single month's record for business volume three different times. March was the first to exceed the mark established last November. It was followed in turn by May and June, the latter attaining the highest figure the company has yet reached. The company's shipments of cars during June had a value in excess of $7,500,000.

Retail sales by its distributors and dealers are estimated by O. C. Hutchinson general sales manager, to have been from 45 to 50 per cent higher than those for the first half of 1925.

Of the company's total shipments, 90.6 per cent were enclosed cars, the total reaching 24,408. Nearly 98 per cent of the Hupmobile Sixes produced for the United States and Canada were closed models.

Charles D. Hastings, president and general manager, in commenting on the company's record business, pointed out that "Hupmobile expects to finish the year with an even larger gain than it registered during the first six months. July should virtually duplicate the record made in June. Every indication is for a continuance of splendid business for our distributors and dealers throughout the country the rest of the year. The demand for our cars, both sixes and eights, is continuing to grow steadily as more and more of them reach the public. We expect that close to 40,000 six cylinder cars and more than 15,000 eights will be sold during 1926. Both cars have registered a conspicuous success, with every indication that their demand will increase still further."

On July 1 the company had unfilled orders for $2,500,000 worth of cars.

NEW PRODUCTION MARK REACHED BY CHEVROLET

The gigantic manufacturing organization of the Chevrolet Motor company rose to new production heights during June when it built 77,241 passenger cars and trucks, a greater number of units than the company ever had produced in a single month.

No other manufacturer of modern three-speed transmission automobiles has approached this production which culminates a series of monthly production records established by Chevrolet.

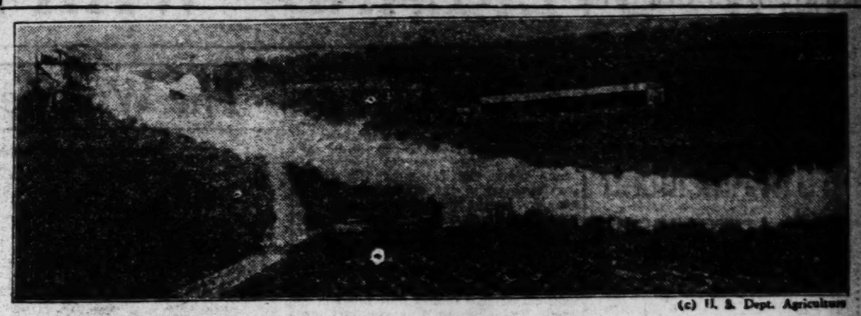

The months of April and May of this year saw Chevrolet reach successive record production totals of 71,157 and 74,617, respectively. The new record established in June exceeds the May total by 2,624 units and dwarfs the prdouction during June of 1925 by a margin of 22,295 units.

The aggregate production for the first half of 1926 was 384,573 cars and trucks. During the first half of 1925, Chevrolet's greatest year, the company produced 249,834 units, a total which was passed early in May of this year, which is 134,739 units less than the first six months of 1926 production.

The surprising growth of the Chevrolet Motor company is indicated by the fact that the production during the first half of 1926 equals the entire production during the first seven and one-half years in the company's history.

Details of the company's recently announced $10,000,000 expansion program are going forward and completion of this project will give the company a production capacity during 1927 of one million Chevrolets.

Air-Cooled Engine Made Cotton Dusting Possible

(c) U. S. Dept. Agriculture

Flying at low altitude at a speed of 100 miles per hour, the Huff-Daland cotton dusting airplanes impose a test upon the power plants which is so severe that air-cooled engines are necessary. The work of cotton dusting includes carrying a 600-pound load of calicum arsenate in a special hopper built into the plane. The blast of the propellor spreads the dust over a wide path, as shown in the photograph, and the effect is said to be satisfactory in so far as destruction of the harmful boll weevil is concerned. During 1925, 50,000 acres of cotton were dusted and this year over 100,000 acres will be sprayed by the Huff-Daland planes. The planes lay these strips of poison at a rate of 75 acres a minute, with the ships flying from 5 to 25 feet above the ground. From the specially built hoppers, 300 to 400 pounds of poison are poured out per minute.

Because of the heavy loads which the airplane carries, the small landing fields used, and the low altitude at which the flying is done, the strain upon the cooling system is great.

The same problem of engine cooling is encountered also by the department of agriculture when it undertakes to spread poison over lakes and swamps of Louisiana for mosquito control. It was found that air-cooled motors withstood the arduous task and allowed aviators to fly low and discharge the heavy load without overheating, hence this type of engine was specified.

STINGY ON GASOLINE IS OWNER'S VERDICT

Every day the sales department of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company receives dozens of letters from enthusiastic owners of Series 80 cars, telling of the economy of gasoline, long life of tires and infrequent need of adjustment. However, one of the most interesting letters ever received was recently sent in by a driver who had taken delivery of two brand new Series 80 cars in San Francisco and, with a companion, had driven them to their new owners in Reno, Nevada.

These cars covered a distance of 251 miles on their initial trip. Despite being brand new, each car averaged nearly 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline on the trip, arriving in Reno with a gasoline consumption of only 15 gallons. No water was placed in either car during the trip, examination of the water supply at frequent intervals showing that none had boiled away under the hot Nevada sun.

This letter is typical of hundreds now in the files of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company telling of the surprising economy in consumption of gasoline found in the Series 80 car. However, most of the other cars had been "broken in" when the letters were written and this one was different in that the cars referred to were brand new.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

NEW OVERLAND 'WHIPPET' IS NOW ON DISPLAY IN ATLANTA

RADICAL CHANGE FROM AMERICAN TYPE AUTOMOBILE

INTERIOR IS ROOMY, BUT CAR IS SMALL

Will Make 30 Miles to Gallon and Flexibility Allows Easy Parking, Quick Turns.

It has been anticipated for some months that a large American builder of motor cars would soon be on the market with a European type low, light car. The initial production of what may be the forerunner of a complete change in our great mass production of light automobiles made its appearance in this city this week. It is the Overland Whippet, on which the engineers of Willys-Overland, Inc., have been working, both here and in Europe, for the past two years.

This new car is totally different from anything we have ever seen before in this country. It looks different, it acts different and it serves a different but constantly increasing demand. Mechanically, it is an adaptation of the best that Europe has to offer in the way of powerful, economical engines, with a wide speed range, more power for climbing than has characterized even the best of the European productions, and with a flexibility, silence and smoothness of running which is new to our light-car production.

It is a quality product in every detail from the trim, smart extremely low-hung body with its brilliant finish and superb upholstery to the last detail of its mechanical construction.

Attractive Features.

The sedan will travel 58 miles an hour, as easily and comfortably as the great majority of our present-day "sixes," and yet it is equipped with a four-cylinder motor.

It will accelerate from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 10 seconds, or in just half a second more than than some of our largest and most flexible "sixes" and it will cover 28 to 30 miles on a gallon of fuel.

It will stop in a little over twice its own length from an average driving speed, for it is equipped with four-wheel brakes, having a drum diameter of 11 inches, which is larger than those on many of our large cars.

The motor develops 23 per cent more power, per cubic inch of piston displacement, than any other light, four-cylinder motor built in America; this is one of the results of utilizing the European type of high-speed motor design. It develops greater brake horsepower than any other light, four-cylinder car in this country and yet it weighs just a little over 2,000 pounds, ready for the road. The power plant turns over 2,800 revolutions a minute and gives a developed power of 30.5 horsepower from an S. A. E. rating of 15.6 horsepower. The total piston displacement is 134.2 cubic inches, somewhat larger than that of the average European light car, but less than any other American built four-cylinder car.

Low Body.

The roof of this new type car is only 5 feet 8 inches from the ground, yet the room inside the body is greater than in any other light car on the market. Its first appearance is striking in the extreme. A man of average height can stand alongside it at the curb and rest his arms on the top and look over it. But a six-footer can sit in it with all the room he wants. In this respect it is thoroughly American and bears no relationship to its diminutively dimensioned European cousins.

Inside, the body is 45 inches from floor to roof and there are 36 inches between the top of the seats and the roof. The seats are approximately 12 inches from the floor to the top of the cushions. There are 35 inches of space from the front of the front seat cushion to the clutch and brake pedals. In the rear seating compartment there are 36 5-8 inches, affording greater room for the occupants of the rear seat than is found in any other light car built.

To give room for stretching out in the front seat, the metal dash is curved forward several inches and there is as much leg room in this compartment as there is in the rear.

The front seat is 40 1-2 inches wide and the rear seat is 45 1-2 wide, the conventional widths for these two seats.

Doors Are Wide.

The doors are wide and hung on four hinges so that it is extremely easy to get in or out.

Perhaps one of the greatest surprises this car has to offer, outside of its performance ability, is the roominess in the body.

And the body lines are artistocratic in every way. A conspicuous feature is the construction of the sun visor which is formed by continuing the roof forward in a graceful lown-swinging curve. This is nobby tailoring for even the best of cars and is a hallmark of quality in this Overland Whippet.

The radiator is conspicuously high and narrow and is housed in a deep, nickeled shell. The body lines sweep gracefully back without any break at the cowl giving an appearance which is intriguing in the extreme.

The bullet headlamps have nickeled shells and are strongly supported with a tie-rod at the front.

New-Size Tires.

Tire sizes present something entirely new, being 27 inches in diameter with a 4.40-inch cross section, and are of the balloon type. These are the smallest tires ever used as stock equipment but the tire makers have already anticipated a huge demand for this Overland Whippet and dealers are stocking these sizes at the present time.

It is the claim of the engineers that this size of tire on the Whippet will result in exceptionally long tire service and forecasts of as high as 20,000 miles to the set have been made.

The interior appointments of this car are tasty in every way. The instrument board is of metal with a Circassian walnut finish on a gracefully-designed panel. The board carries the starting and lighting switch, oil gauge, ammeter, speedometer and dash lamp.

A frosted glass dome light adorns the rear compartment. Upholstery is of a fine ribbed velour of rich coloring and fine fabric. The levers for lifting or dropping the windows are nickeled.

The windows are unsually wide and the windshield is of the one-piece type which has come into fashion among the finer types of automobiles.

In appointments as in design and performance this Overland Whippet is a distinct revelation in the light car field.

Mechanical Features.

As has been prophesied during the past few months, this, the first of the European type light cars to be built in this country, is designed along the most advanced of modern engineering lines to get a wide range of power and performance from small and therefore economical motor dimensions.

The bore is 3 1-8 inches and the stroke is 4 3-8 inches, giving a piston displacement of 134.2 inches. This is somewhat larger than the average for the European type motors, but is smaller than any other American-built motor of stock production. The increase over the English and French dimensions was made to give the car certain performance features in high gear which are not required by European users. It is said that this Whippet will climb any hill that any of our best eight sixes will climb in high and its comparative acceleration has already been demonstrated.

Pistons Are Light.

The pistons are of cast iron but are extremely light in weight as are the connecting rods. The crankshaft is short and heavier than that used in any other four-cylinder car of equivalent dimensions and weighs 27 pounds. It is balanced statically and dynamically and eliminates whipping and vibration to a degree never before achieved in a four-cylinder motor.

The connecting rods are long and designed to eliminate whipping or piston slaps at high car speeds.

The oiling system comes in for especial attention. It is the modern full-pressure system. A drilled crankshaft is offered for the first time in light car construction in this motor. The whole design of the lubricating system follows the practice set for our larger cars, oil being forced through the crankshaft to the bearings and thrown off the main bearings to lubricate the cylinder walls and valve mechanism.

The oil reservoir is in the pressed steel motor base and two baffle plates keep the oil from surging away from the pump.

Cooling is by pump circulatory system with over 8,000 square inches of cooling area.

Four Wheel Brakes.

An innovation in light car construction is found in the four wheel brakes which are of the type of design used on better than 90 per cent of the finest European cars where all types of four wheel brakes have been thoroughly tested and tried out. The brake drums are 11 inches in diameter giving a braking surface greater than on many larger cars.

Overland engineers say that the type of brakes used on the Whippet grow better and more efficient with use. The elaborate attention which has been paid to braking equipment in this car has come as a result of the performance capacity which, with its rapid acceleration and its high speed capacity requires a prompt acting and highly efficient system of control.

Motor, clutch and transmission are in one unit, the clutch being of the single plate type, transmission being the modern three forward speed, selective sliding construction with an extra long change gear lever to facilitate the operation of the gear shift.

An enclosed propeller shaft is used and the rear axle is of the semi-floating type with the axle members removable. It is carried in a banjo-type rear axle housing.

Starting and Lighting.

Auto-Lite system, two unit construction starting and lighting is employed and an Auto-Lite ignition system is used. This is in line with the use of this type of equipment throughout the entire production of Overland and Willys-Knight cars.

The Overland Whippet is an innovation. And it has all the earmarks of being one of those developments which make history in the industry. It resembles nothing on the market in its size class. In its constructional features, in its lines, in its concessions to comfort and appearance, it is a car which ranks along with the finest productions which are being put out in the motor car world today.

It differs from the cars after which it is patterened, the European models, in that it has standard 56-inch tread and is in every way a motor car of size. It should effectively end the prospects of any European invasion of the American market with light cars.

Men familiar with the European market say that it will be a serious rival to all of the European light car production and the factory has already laid elaborate plans through the Willys-Overland Crossley company, of Manchester, England, to go after the European trade in a huge way.

Hailed in East.

It has already been viewed by men prominent in Australian and Oriental motor car markets and has been hailed as the greatest car ever developed for these countries.

But it differs equally as much from all established American manufacturing in the way it is built.

Its very constructional differences should constitute the basis for its first general acceptance, for it has the distinction of being different. The lowness of the body is increasingly attractive as the car is studied, especially after the car has been ridden in over rough roads or through traffic. This traffic driving feature is one of great interest for the Whippet threads through the traffic maze of the most congested streets with an ease that is surprising.

And it parks with the most astonishing ease, requiring hardly more than a thin dime's worth of room to back up against the curb.

Certainly its performance ability will find ready recognition, for it will be a new experience to the average light car owner to be able to drive at 60 miles an hour with a feeling of perfect security and to step away in traffic at the acceleration rate which has been demonstrated as a quality of the Whippet.

If the claims of the engineers to from 28 to 30 miles from a gallon of fuel in average driving, are borne out in the hands of owners, this Whippet will reduce the gasoline consumption in the light car field from 40 to 50 per cent and will serve the owner with that much more general satisfaction. There should be no reason to expect other than this high mileage from the fuel for it is being ordinarily obtained from European motors of similar design and the motor in the Whippet has measured up to every other standard of European construction.

Meet Popular Demand.

For months many of the most expert minds in the country have been heralding something new and totally different in motor car construction. Geologists have argued that it would be necessary to develop 30 miles to the gallon cars if we were to be able to continue to use automobiles on account of the serious drains on our gasoline production. Traffic experts have argued that lighter cars, less bulky, faster on their feet and parking in less room, were necessary if we were to continue to have the use of our city streets for driving.

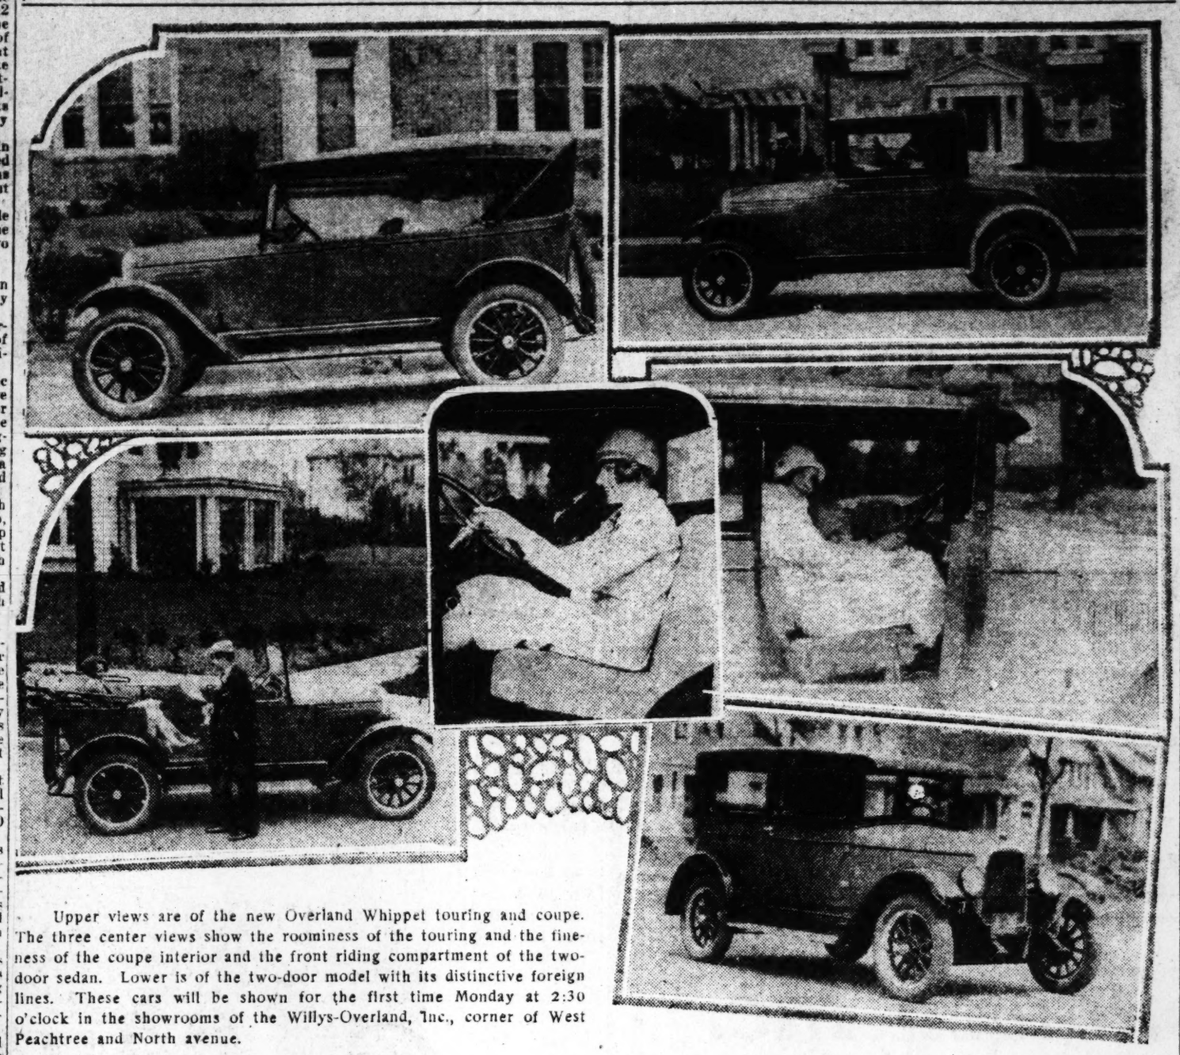

Car owners have looked to a relief from slow moving on the highways where the traffic lines string out for miles on Sundays.

This Overland Whippet, according to its performance standards, should be able to meet all of these requirements.

It is not to be unexpected that it will be the type of car that will soon be generally seen in our busiest streets for owners of larger cars will want something along the Whippet lines for town driving. It is not unlikely to look for it to make heavy inroads in other light car sales fields for it has the performance ability that light car owners have been looking for. It should prove a welcome car at country clubs for it has the snap and verve that the average patron of such clubs wants.

Good style in everything else has been marked by greater snap, less material, and more economy of space—shorter skirts, bobbed hair, bungalow type homes—why not the Whippet as the new fashion molder of the American-built car.

The Whippet, America's First European Type of Car

Upper views are of the new Overland Whippet touring and coupe. The three center views show the roominess of the touring and the fineness of the coupe interior and the front riding compartment of the two-door sedan. Lower is of the two-door model with its distinctive foreign lines. These cars will be shown for the first time Monday at 2:30 o'clock in the showrooms of the Willys-Overland, Inc., corner of West Peachtree and North avenue.

Overland Whippet Termed Master Stroke In Engineering

If the consensus of opinion of many of the leading transportation engineers is to be taken as a criterion, a new type of motor car has come into existence in the Overland Whippet and one which marks one of the epoch-making achievements of the entire automobile industry.

Shown here for the first time only a week ago, this European type car, adapted to American driving conditions has elicited an interest which is already reaching record breaking heights.

It has been demonstrated 12 hours a day since it was announced. Special requests for rides have come from many of the leading men in engineering circles who have been desirous of trying out the power plant, testing the riding qualities and proving the claimed achievements in the way of performance.

Special 15-minute tests, over a prescribed route to bring into full play all of the performance capabilities of this car, have been made with the sedan stopping only long enough to unload one quota of passengers and take on another.

These tests have included slow driving, quick acceleration, climbing, quick stopping and demonstrations of riding comfort under difficult conditions of travel.

The results of these trips have left in the minds of the occupants of the car a lasting impression of something fundamentally different from all previous conceptions of light car ability, according to statements they have made after their ride was over.

This low built, lightweight automobile has amply demonstrated that, in quick bursts of speed, it is the equal of the average six-cylinder car.

It has demonstrated that there is no hill which other much larger cars have covered in high gear which it cannot cover in the same manner and with no apparent effort. It has shown an ability to reach the 58 miles an hour mark with all the evident ease of the larger cars with a greater number of cylinders in the power plant.

Careful checkup of the gasoline used in the 15-minute tests have proved that the 28 miles to a gallon claimed by the builders is regularly lived up to under conditions of operation which are far from being favorable to high fuel mileage.

The ease with which it handles in traffic has been shown by the fact that it rarely ever takes place except in the front line when the signal to go is given.

The European cars after which this Whippet was modeled, have an international reputation for celerity and the Whippet does not in any way discount this reputation.

Body makers who have examined the low body structure of the Whippet have indorsed it unqualifiedly as an advancement in carriage construction fully as marked as the advancement in mechanical construction set by the power plant and chassis.

As one leading local motor car expert phrased it: "The Overland Whippet is something so totally new and different that it is difficult to realize its full import in motor car construction. I should say that John N. Willys had pulled a master stroke in the field in which he has been so prominently identified for the past 21 years."

PENNZOIL OIL USED ON EXPLORING EXPEDITION

A specially constructed airplane is playing an important part in the exploration of Dutch New Guinea by the Stirling expedition, representing the Smithsonian institution, which left San Francisco early this year and is now operating over the New Guinea jungles. The plane used on this expedition is equipped with a 400-horsepower motor which is being lubricated with Pennzoil.

In a letter to the Pennzoil company, Stanley Hedberg, historian of the expedition, says: "The heat condition down here makes the work of an oil extremely difficult, and unless our motor functions at full efficiency we can easily find ourselves in serious difficulties. So you see it was not simply a matter of chance that we ordered Pennzoil, but it was after a great deal of time and consideration had been given to this subject."

The purposes of the expedition are to reach the great precipices of the Nassan range and make aerial photographs of these mountains, to land in Lake Habbema for the first time and explore its shores, to visit the pygmies of the Nassau range, to study the Papuans and to obtain a permanent record of the interior of New Guinea for United States National museum, as the country is one of the last unexplored spots in the world.

Wheels To Hum At Auditorium In Makers' Show

The biggest and most interesting exhibit of manufactures ever held in the south was assured Saturday for the Atlanta Industrial exposition by the signing of several important contracts with Georgia manufacturers who will install miniature plants in the auditorium for the week of August 2 to 7.

One of the most important of these was the Valley mills, of LaGrange, which contracted for eight display booths, to be converted into one manufacturing plant demonstrating four divisions of the famous Callaway mills, considered the most progressive in the south.

Complete rug-making machinery, weaving and braiding and sewing rugs of many hues and of intricate designs, will be one feature of the Valley mills exhibit. It is fascinating to watch these almost human machines as the colored threads are brought together, braided, twisted and turned into finished rugs—all made of Georgia material by Georgia workmen. The Valley mills will also surprise the public by showing a line of beautifully-made knickers and sport trousers, now being sold in the most exclusive shops in the country, and a line of textile manufactures used in leading laundries.

Fashion Show Feature.

Almost every space in the main auditorium, Taft hall and the lobby is now under contract and applications for additional space are being received by Virgil Shepard, who is in charge of that department. Committees are at work on the fashion show which will be a feature of the industrial exposition, and upon details for the entertainment of visitors.

In the fashion show a dozen or more "Atlanta maids" will parade in costumes manufactured entirely in this city. During the fashion show one of the best orchestras in Atlanta will give a musical program.

Furniture manufacturers, whose products are shipped all over the United States and abroad, will show why Atlanta is called the "Grand Rapids" of the south in a magnificent display of household furnishings which will occupy several exhibit spaces. Presenting this joint display will be the Fox Manufacturing company, the Southern Spring Bed company, the J. M. Carmichael Furniture company, the Knott and Carmichael Furniture company and others.

Many Exhibits.

The Monerief Furnace company will show how warm air heating plants are built. The Atlanta Milling company will conduct a demonstration of baking. The General Outdoor Advertising company will install a plant for the production of signs and the All-Star Manufacturing company will demonstrate how neckwear is manufactured. The Laffing company will make signet rings from raw gold and the H. F. Linder company will have skilled workmen making jewelry from diamonds and platinum. The Atlanta Envelope company will install a plant, which prints, folds and completes thousands of envelopes per hour.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants and Manufacturers' association and the Georgia Manufacturers' association are conducting the industrial exposition as a public enterprise, without profit. A small admission fee will be charged to cover the expenses of the lights, music and electric power for moving exhibits.

TAX VALUES SHOW GAIN IN WHITFIELD

Dalton, Ga., July 17—(AP)—A gain of $402,892 is shown in tax values of Whitfield county for the year in the digest just completed by Tax Receiver Hill. The total values for 1926 were stated to be $7,728,825, as against $7,325,933 for last year.

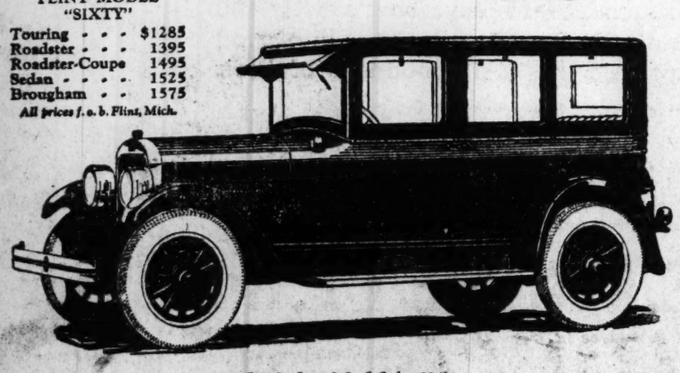

The Dalton district showed a larger gain than for the county, the gain in Dalton being $457,012. Of the 13 county districts, all but two showed a loss, which brought down the total gain made by Dalton by about $55,000. The returns showed that Dalton pays about 80 per cent of the taxes of Whitfield county.

An Invitation

Overland Whippet

America's first European type light car. this Monday from 2 o'clock to 9 p. m. at our new sales rooms located at North Avenue and West Peachtree Street.

WILLYS-OVERLAND, Inc.

Now- for America a revolutionary European-type high-speed Light Car

This New Car Offers:

30 miles on a gallon of gasoline

55 miles an hour . . . 5 to 30 miles in 13 seconds

Turns in 34-foot circle . . . easiest car in America to park

5 feet 8 inches high . . . lower gravity center . . . greater safety

European-type body . . . more inside room than any other light car

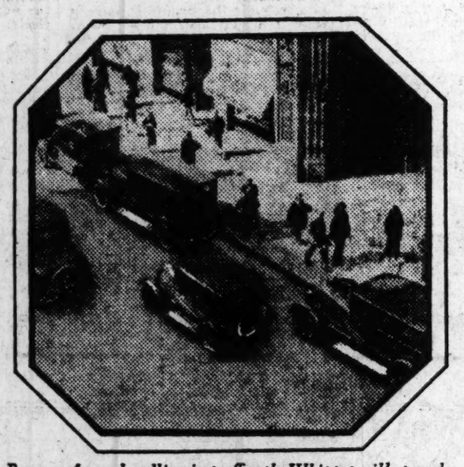

A three minute study of these remarkable facts may save you from buying an obsolete automobile

THIS is the announcement of a revolutionary new-type car, different from anything you have ever known before.

A car that combines the advanced engineering practice of Europe with new and improved standards of American performance.

This new-type car is a challenge to all former engineering practice. It casts aside every old tradition. And marks the most important light car engineering improvement in America during the last 16 years.

Because of easy handling in traffic, the Whippet will strongly appeal to American women. It will park in a 14-foot curb space

This new car has a low, European-type body. With height and length in true symmetrical proportion.

It is 5 feet 8 inches high . . . not as tall as the average man. Yet it provides more room and comfort than you've ever found in any automobile of this class before.

It has a high-torque, 31 horsepower motor of small bore and long stroke—the same engineering principle used in the fastest racing cars of America and Europe.

It turns in a 34-foot circle . . . that's less than the width of an average city street. You can park in 14 feet . . . which is much less than the space required for the ordinary car.

Its center of gravity is extremely low, with ample road clearance . . . thus giving a sense of security you have never found in any light car. Something you actually feel when you drive this car.

Two engineering ideals combined

The Overland Whippet represents a combination of the most advanced European and American engineering thought.

It is a complete new car . . . designed and built as a unit . . . not an old-fashioned reconstructed chassis.

For over three years, Willys-Overland engineers in Europe and America have been developing it. Over 360,000 miles of road tests proved the practical advantages of this car before it was released for production.

55 miles an hour

Here's a car that will do 55 miles an hour in the hands of the average owner . . . with all the reserve power that this implies.

You can drive this car as fast as you like with the utmost ease of control . . . for no light car ever hugged the road like this before.

In traffic it gets away with lightning pickup . . . stop-watch tests show that it accelerates up to 40 miles an hour 18% faster than other light four-cylinder cars.

The Overland Whippet will climb the gruelling grades of the Cove Mountains, of Pennsylvania, in high.

Smart European-type body design

The distinctive body lines of the Overland Whippet frankly resemble the smartest automobiles of America and Continental Europe. Stand in front of this car and you can imagine yourself on the boulevards of France.

The radiator is typically foreign . . . every line, curve and contour of the body is the result of painstaking craftsmanship and study.

Low-swung . . . rakish . . . graceful as a whippet . . . that's the only way to describe it.

In 13 seconds

Stop-watch tests show that the Whippet accelerates 18% faster than other light 4-cylinder cars

Complete symmetry of design has been achieved with compact dimensions.

Compared with contemporary big, bulky cars the Overland Whippet appears smarter and much more graceful. That's because height and length are in true artistic proportion.

In the Overland Whippet you have the feeling of riding closer to the ground . . . with the resultant sense of solidity and absence of that sidesway so noticeable in the conventional type of car. That high-up-in-the-air feeling is gone . . . here is a new kind of riding comfort.

Step into this car and you will be surprised to find so much spacious room. Due to its unique body and dash construction there is actually more head room and leg room than in any other car of this price class.

45 inches from dash to the front of the fore-seat cushion. Several inches more than you have been accustomed to.

44½ inches from the toe-board to the front of the rear seat cushions. Again several inches more than in other cars of this type.

All seats are placed in a naturally restful position so that you have complete relaxation as you ride. No more sitting bolt-upright . . . you ride in this car, not on it.

30 miles on a gallon of gasoline

Here at last is an automobile that will run 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline . . . well over 1,000 miles on a gallon of oil . . . with extraordinary mileage on tires . . . and the smallest tax rating of any car in America.

Exhaustive tests so far indicate that the average year's operating cost of the Overland Whippet should save you from $75 to $150 in gas, oil, tires and mechanical upkeep.

Money that goes back into your pocket. Money you must add to the list price of any less economical car you consider.

Based on these figures, it is easy to see how standards of automobile value must change in the next 30 days.

With this new factor of economical operation, list prices do not mean the same today. Resale values of less modern and less efficient cars are bound to suffer.

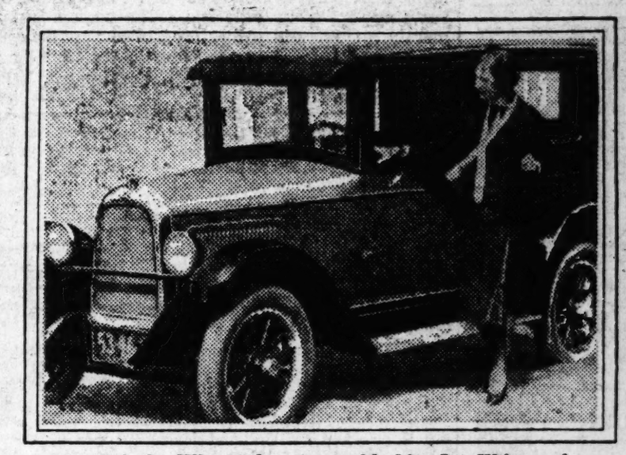

New standards of mechanical design

The new principles . . . the new ideas . . . the new standards of design in the Overland Whippet are bound to change your whole conception of light car mechanical features.

Its high-torque motor of 3⅜-inch bore by 4¾-inch stroke, is by far the most efficient light car engine made in America. It actually develops more horsepower per cubic inch of piston displacement and pound of car weight than any other light 4-cylinder engine.

11-inch 4-wheel brakes enable this car to stop in 51 feet from a speed of 40 miles per hour

One of the first Whippets being inspected by Miss Lois Wilson at her New York motion picture studio

It has an 80-lb. torque . . . this means greater pulling power . . . the ability to master hills without shifting gears.

Because of this greater efficiency, the motor of the Overland Whippet costs more to build yet less to maintain than any other light car engine made today.

The Overland Whippet is the only light 4-cylinder car that has the modern force-feed oiling system throughout the engine, instead of the old-fashioned splash.

It is the only 4-cylinder light car that combines genuine Chrome silicon steel valves with silent chain front-end drive and pump water circulation.

It has long connecting rods, long valve guides. Its valve stems are unusually long, with more space above for cooling. This extra space makes for quietness of operation and longer life. For the life of the engine is measured by the life of the valves.

Greater accessibility for inspection and repairs is another outstanding engineering feature. The Overland Whippet has all of the engine refinements characteristic of the most expensive cars.

New chassis features

Horn, spark and throttle control are on the steering wheel as is standard practice on the highest price cars.

The position of the steering wheel is adjustable to fit the requirements of the individual driver.

The rear axle housing is banjo-type pressed steel.

All 4-wheel brakes are 11 inches in diameter, of the mechanical internal type. They provide 192 square inches of braking surface . . . far more per pound of car weight than any other American light car built today.

Each is completely encased, thus not susceptible to weather conditions.

Brake and clutch pedal pressure has been developed so that a child could drive this car with ease and safety. Gear shift and emergency brake are right at your finger tips. Remarkable ease of gear shifting has been perfected in this new-type car. Underslung semi-elliptic Vanadium steel springs add immeasurably to its riding and driving ease.

Designed and built without restrictions

The engineers who designed this car . . . and the men who built it . . . have worked without restrictions.

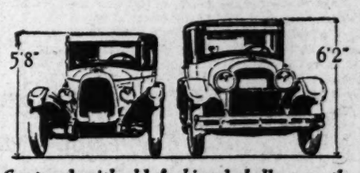

Nothing has been spared that would improve its engineering or its quality.

The Overland Whippet is not a 1 or 2 year car. Instead, it has been honestly built to give years and years of satisfactory service . . . to deliver thrilling, trouble-free performance for thousands and thousands of miles.

This new-type car has such costly equipment as a one-piece windshield, cowl ventilator, quick-acting crank-type regulators on doors and windows.

Although the car is very low, windows are unusually broad and high . . . the exposed glass area is approximately 16¾ square feet.

The doors of this new car are 33 inches wide . . . thus providing easy entrance and exit.

A beautiful cut velour trimming is used for seats and cushion backs . . . with sides and head-lining to match.

A dome-light and a handsome walnut-finished instrument board add to its unusually attractive and complete interior equipment.

To millions of American women this car will bring an entirely new pride of ownership—a new delight in its comfort and refinements.

The car is beautifully finished with durable triple-coated lacquer that will retain its lustrous beauty for years and years.

The Overland Whippet is a quality car through and through. Your first inspection will tell you that.

In Europe, people are accustomed to paying $1500 to $1800 for a car of this size and quality. Yet today, because of the tremendous manufacturing facilities of Willys-Overland, it sells in America for less than half this price.

You can compare the Overland Whippet with all other American light cars on the basis of price alone. But from the standpoint of engineering, performance, comfort and quality, it has established an entirely new criterion by which all other light cars must be judged.

The Overland Whippet is furnished in three body styles . . . Sedan, Touring and Coupe.

No more sitting bolt-upright—seats are placed in a naturally restful position

See this new-type car

Come, see this car. Take this advertisement with you and check the things we say here against what you find. We have purposely understated every fact. We have told you the story of the Overland Whippet without exaggeration.

You have never seen a car like this before.

With the introduction of the Overland Whippet, it is not sound judgment today to consider the purchase of a less modern car.

In fairness to yourself, see this car.

The first formal showing of the Overland Whippet is now being held by dealers in this territory.

America's New-Type Light Car

OLDSMOBILE SERIES 'E' DISPLAYED HERE

The progressive developments of Oldsmobile engineers during the past year and the new values that are being offered in Oldsmobiles for the coming year that result from the manufacturing economies and savings of the most successful year in Oldsmobile history being passed back to the buying public are being displayed throughout the country for the first time in the new Series "E" Oldsmobile.

The new Series "E" Oldsmobile Six incorporates in its latest appointments and specifications many new features of recognized worth and improvements of demonstrated value. The results of the changes in this car are added power, longer life, smoother performance, new features of driving ease and security, better operating economy, and new body features and appointments.

One new body type is on display in the Oldsmobile Series "E" line—a landau. Other body types in the line remain the same, including the standard and de luxe touring, de luxe roadster, standard and de luxe coupe, standard and de luxe coach and the standard and de luxe sedan—a total of ten including the landau. No change has been made in the standard Oldsmobile prices.

Added power has been given Oldsmobile by increasing the cylinder bore from 2 3-4 inches to 2 7-8 inches, with a resulting increase in cubic displacement from 169 to 185 cubin inches; a slight change in the tapered, dome-shaped combustion chamber and a new hot section, high-velocity design of manifold.

Improvements vital to the longer life and operating economy of the engine have been made with the introduction of crankcase ventilation, dual-air cleaning, an oil felter and an entirely new design of "two-way" cooling system.

All these improvements increase the operating efficiency of the Oldsmobile and prolong its engine life.

The use of the harmonic balancer on the Series "E" Oldsmobile is also announced. This balancer, a development by General Motors, counteracts engine vibration.

Chromium plating, recently announced as an exclusive Oldsmobile method of plating is also among the prominent features of this car. Chromium plating has a more durable, more corrosion-proof, harder and more permanent-luster surface than former types of plating. This feature has recently been the point of considerable commendation throughout the leading technical publications of the automotive industry as a radical advancement in automotive methods.

A marked advance in motor-car design evidences itself in Oldmobile's new crankcase ventilation system. With this new feature of design Oldsmobile engineers have been successful in combating one of the oldest problems of the industry—crankcase dilution.

In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. This water and unburned liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and form what is known as crankcase dilution. Crankcase dilution is injurious to the lubricating qualities of the oil and result in shorter engine life.

In this new Series "E" Oldsmoolle one-third of the air that passes through the carburetor on the right side of the engine is drawn in through a breather port on the left side of the crankcase. This air circulates through the crankcase and takes off with it the unburned fuel and water in the crankcase and in that manner eliminates excessive dilution, with resulting longer useful life of the oil and longer engine life. A part of the oil vapor in the crankcase is drawn into the combustion chambers and improves the lubrication of the tops of pistons, valves and upper cylinder walls.

Road dust and dirt form an abrasive element in engines and consequent wear. The new Oldsmobile has dual air cleaning. The master air cleaner is back of the carburetor and cleans two-thirds of the air as it enters the carburetor direct, while the second air cleaner is on the breather port in connection with crankcase ventilation. Both clcaners are of the centrifugal type.

While no drastic changes have been made in the outward appearance of the latest Oldsmobiles, numerous refinements have greatly added to its appearance and to the comfort and convenience of driver and passengers.

The more massive lines given by the raising and broadening of the radiator shell are further emphasized by new heavy full crown fenders equipped with larger skirts. These new fenders and skirts not only further beautify the cars, but also reduce the splash of water on the car body and windshield.

The new two-filament headlight bulbs are being used on all models. These eliminate the dangers of night driving by providing non-glare full illumination close to the car when in the "dim" position, and the same bright light but thrown forward on the road when on "bright." As an additional safety factor, the light control is placed at the steering wheel center. This permits the driver to operate the lights, off, on, bright, dim or parking, without removing hands from the wheel.

Indirect lighting is a feature of the new walnut-finished instrument panel by which all the instruments, artistically grouped, are individually and indirectly illuminated at night without glare. The instruments include, besides the conventional speedometer, oil gauge and ammeter, a fuel gauge, a carburetor choke button and a combination ignition switch and lock.

This latter is of entirely new design and is positive locking. The ignition lock must be released and the key removed before the switch can be turned on. When the ignition is turned off the ignition automatically is locked. The coil is built with the lock integral and is built in a steel case on the back of the instrument panel instead of at the side of the engine. This prevents a thief wiring around the lock.

Additional beauty has been given the bodies of the closed models. Rear seat cushions have been lowered 1 3-4 inches to increase headroom. This has been made possible by removing the tool compartment from under the rear seat to under the front seat, where they are more accessible to the driver.

All closed models except the new landau are finished in a durable and beautiful genuine mohair of taupe shade. The landau is upholstered in genuine grey mohair. High grade rugs and rubber mats are used on the floors, and the new metal fittings are of exclusive design in satin nickel. Combination match and ash receptacles are set in the back of the front seat in sedan and landau models and on the right side of coach models.

Duco finish is used on all models. The touring and de luxe touring are Russian brown on the lower portion and moleskin grey on the upper above the molding, which is black. The striping is red. The de luxe roadster has sea fog grey on the lower portion and ocean blue above the black molding and burnt orange striping.

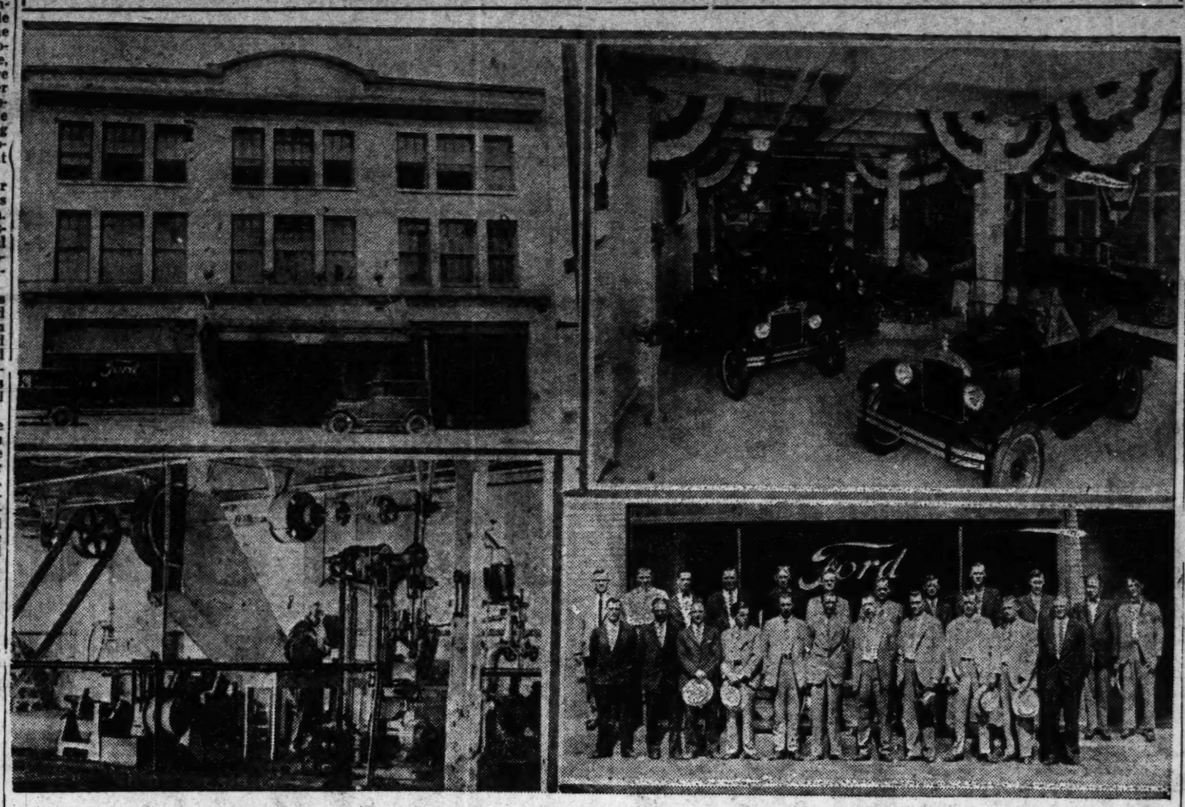

Coupe and de luxe coupe are Dagestan blue up to the black molding, black above and are striped in ivory with a fabricoid covering over the metal sheathed rear quarters with landau bars. The coach and de luxe coach have the lower portion finished in Buckingham grey with pistachio green striping. The upper part is black. The sedan and de luxe sedan are aqua-marine blue below the molding and black above with ivory striping.

Both coaches and sedans may be had, optional, in with the lower portion dawn mist and the upper dust proof grey with pistachio green striping.

The new landau sedan is finished in sea fog grey up to the lower molding, ocean blue between the lower and upper molding and a saddle over the hood and cowl, and black above. Burnt orange striping is used. The rear quarter is finished in black fabricoid over metal sheathing and is equipped with landau bars.

The price of the new landau sedan is $1,190, f. o. b. Lansing, Mich., fully equipped with front and rear bumpers, traffic light, black enameled steel trunk mounted on rigid platform, motometer with locking bar cap, and the option of natural wood or disc steel wheels, and the other regular equipment of all models, which includes gasoline gauge and automatic windshield cleaner.

Asbury & Hollowell, Inc., Take Over Belle Isle-Street Franchise

Announcement is being made today of the change in name of the Belle Isle-Street company, local Ford dealers, to the name of Asbury & Hollowell, Inc. This is one of the oldest Ford agencies in this section of the country, being formed eight years ago by A. L. Belle Isle. The change just announced does not in any way affect the organization or its policies, being merely a change in ownership. The new officers of this company are E. S. Street, H. N. Asbury and J. K. Hollowell. The above shows, top left, the front of their building, 380 Peachtree street; right, view of their spacious showrooms; lower left, a section of their machine shop; lower right, sales organization which is recognized as one of the best selling staffs of any Ford dealer in the country.

CHRYSLER '60' SALES ALREADY $18,000,000

In the first 60 days following its introduction, May 10, the public has paid more than $18,000,000 for the new Chrysler "60," J. E. Fields, vice president in charge of sales of the Chrysler Sales corporation, announced yesterday. Unfilled orders aggregating several million dollars more have necessitated still larger production in an effort to catch up with the demand the car has created.

When the car was unveiled to the public, production was set at 350 cars a day after a careful study of market requirements. Within two weeks demand had caused an increase to 400. That was followed early in June by a second and third set-up, first to 425 and then to 450 per day. Late in June the figure was set at 500 for this one car.

Mr. Fields pointed out that Chrysler's policy of standardized quality and the features included in the car have combined to insure the overwhelming success it has attained. "Unit for unit in this car," he said, "the same standardized quality which is found in the '70' and 'imperial 80' is apparent—in engineering design, materials, craftsmanship, rigidity of test and inspection, and in all characteristics which determine dependability and long life.

"Features of the '60' include 60 miles and more per hour; remarkable acceleration; extraordinary gasoline economy, exceeding 22 miles per gallon; typical Chrysler dynamic symmetry; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil filter and air cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear, and roomy, luxurious bodies that combine the Chrysler characteristic of compactness."

Sales of other Chrysler models, particularly of the "70" and imperial "80," are also said to be at the highest point ever reached.

POLICE INDORSE ALL-STEEL BODIES

Approval of all steel automobile body construction was expressed by all but 84 out of approximatel 500 police chiefs interviewed on the subject of highway accidents and their prevention, according to a statement in a recent issue of the Literary Digest.

These police chiefs from all parts of the country were interviewed in the making of a survey which was submitted to the second national conference on street and highway safety, held recently in Washington under the supervision of Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

As quoted in the Digest, Harold D. Buttenheim, editor of The American City Magazine, in submitting the results of the survey to the conference, said:

"The last question dealt specifically with lowering the fatalities by constructing closed car bodies of steel on the same safety principle as the all steel railway coach. All but 86 answers this affirmatively. A number of the chiefs were decidedly emphatic in their answers, relating experiences of theirs which indicated conclusively that in the wrecks involving all steel bodies they had found the strength of steel had saved the lives of passengers.

"One California chief pointed out that not only did the all steel body protect passengers in unavoidable wrecks, but that the reduction in the size of the pillars supporting the top gives the driver a better view of the road and permits greater opportunity to avoid accident than the bulky wood posts often used in closed car construction."

"This is a sincere tribute to Dodge Brothers, the first automobile manufacturers to recognize the strength and safety of the all steel body," said F. E. Maffett of the F. E. Maffett, Inc., local dealer, in commenting on this article. The all steel body is destined within a few years, I believe, to replace the wood framed automobile body just as certainly as the all steel railway coach and the all steel steamship have replaced those made of wood."

HARVARD MEDICAL BUILDNIG GUARDED IN BOMB THREAT

Boston, July 17.—(AP)—The Harvard Medical buildings on South Huntington avenue were under police guard through the night, it became known today following the receipt of a note threatening to bomb the unit "the same as New Jersey."

The note was received by the building superintendent yesterday. The police believed the missive the work of a fanatic, but maintained a guard as a precautionary measure.

REO IS CONSTRUCTING LARGE SPRING UNIT

Chief item on the building program of the Reo Motor Car company for the summer is a large shipping unit three stories in height and having a floor area of approximately eight acres. The new shipping docks alone are 600 feet in length with loading facilities on both sides. This building is scheduled for completion before the middle of September.

According to officials of the construction company awarded the job of building the new Reo unit, this building will require more structual steel than any other building in the city of Lansing, where Reo is located.

Approximately 60 carloads of structural steel will be used in erecting the building and to this will be added three carloads of steel sash for the windows. In the completed building there will be 30,000 square feet of window space.

The two lower floors will be finished with wood blocks, 29 carloads of this material being the requirement. Forty-three carloads of finish maple flooring will be needed for the third floor. Floor and roof decks will use 108 carloads of material.

Being adjacent to a railroad this building will become an important unit among the shipping facilities of the company. It is located on ground owned by Reo for some time but not covered by a building in the past.

Visitors to Tire Plants Surprised By Their Magnitude

The visitor to the Firestone plants in Akron, Ohio, is surprised at their magnitude and impressed by the quality of production set as a standard in every department.

In the various manufacturing sections one may watch the operations from the time the crude rubber is received from Singapore and Liberia until the finished product is ready for loading in the freight cars and short-haul trucks.

Especially interesting to many is the famous gum-dipping plant where this exclusive Firestone process, through a method of completely impregnating each strand and fiber of the cord fabric with rubber, gives added strength to the tire fabric which later passes through the regular process of calendering.

Friction Minimized.

Through this gum-dipping method the troublesome internal friction of one strand of cord upon another, gradually wearing it away, is reduced to a minimum. Heat stresses and other travel conditions cannot so easily affect the tire when its carcass has passed through the gum-dipping process.

The actual building of tires is a more diversified operation than one ordinarily imagines. The preparation of the crude materials, which includes many things besides rubber and fabric; the exact temperature required for curing (vulcanizing); the production of the bead, a distinct operation in itself; the building of the most efficient machinery and testing instruments, all these things are necessary and must be done with the highest efficiency, as well as must be the multitudinous other operations upon which the more than 10,000 employees at Firestone are engaged 24 hours a day in four mammoth Akron plants.

The Firestone rim plant, the largest and most complete of its kind in the world, also is a point of great interest. It uses more than 75,000 tons of steel annually, and rims are supplied to 87 per cent of all manufacturers of motor vehicles.

Besides the manufacturing plants at Firestone, visitors are attracted by the employees' clubhouse, stores, dining halls, swimming pool, theater, athletic stadium and other places connected with the interests of the employees, all of whom are stockholders in the company and protected by life insurance.

OLDSMOBILE ANNOUNCES

ADDED POWER : LONGER LIFE :SMOOTHER PERFORMANCE: ADDED DRIVING EASE AND SECURITY:GREATER ECONOMY: FINER APPOINTMENTS:ADDED BEAUTY::AT NO INCREASE IN STANDARD PRICES

ADDED POWER .·. LONGER LIFE SMOOTHER PERFORMANCE

Enlarged Engine The L-Head Oldsmobile engine, that has already won such praise for its performance has been enlarged in the bore of the cylinders from 2¼ inches to 2⅜ inches, increasing its displacement from 169 cubic inches to 185 cubic inches—providing increased horsepower and more spirited performance in the car that asks no favors, fears no road!

Dual Air Cleaning Dust and dirt from the road form an abrasive or cutting element in the working parts of an engine. In this new Oldsmobile a master air cleaner eliminates the injurious particles from two-thirds of the air before it enters the carburetor direct—while the second cleaner in connection with the feature of crankcase ventilation (described later) cleans the balance of the air that passes through the carburetor.

Crankcase Ventilation Here is a new feature of design hitherto found only in one car—and that car of the three thousand dollar class. In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. This water and liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and form crankcase dilution.

Excessive dilution is eliminated by crankcase ventilation. One-third of the air that passes through the carburetor is drawn through a breather port in the left side of the engine. This air, cleaned of dust and injurious material by a second air cleaner on the breather port, passes through the crankcase before entering the carburetor. It draws off with it water vapor and unburned fuel that may have passed into the crankcase—thereby eliminating excessive dilution. This air also carries with it a small amount of the oil vapor created in the crankcase, which aids in more efficient lubrication of pistons, upper cylinder walls, and valves. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives longer life in the engine and longer useful life to the oil.

Oil Filter An oil filter has been added to this Oldsmobile, prolonging still more the life of the engine and the useful life of the oil. Sediment and foreign substance are removed as the oil passes through the filter and filter bag from the rear camshaft bearing. Should the filter become clogged with sediment, the lubricating system functions in the common manner, there being no danger of shutting off the supply of lubricant. All principle parts are pressure lubricated.

Harmonic Balancer The Harmonic Balancer, developed by General Motors engineers, counteracts vibration and gives Oldsmobile a smoothness you will quickly recognize when you take the wheel.

High Velocity Hot Section Manifold The manifold design of the Series "E" Oldsmobile retains the high velocity given the incoming gases as they leave the carburetor and pass on into the combustion chambers. To further promote complete vaporization of the incoming fuel, an improved jacketing of the intake manifold by the heated exhaust manifold is effected in the vertical section of the intake passage above the carburetor. The intake manifold being above the exhaust manifold and heated by it, retains the highly explosive state of incoming gases.

Stronger Center Bearing The center main bearing that supports the balanced crankshaft has been made more rigid and stronger to provide still smoother performance in this Oldsmobile.

New Axle Ratio The gear ratio of the rear axle has been reduced to 4.73 to 1. This contributes to smoother performance in that fewer revolutions of the engine are required to drive the car a given distance. Normally a reduction in gear ratio means a loss of power, but this change in the new Oldsmobile does not require a sacrifice of power because the added power derived from the enlarged engine leaves a new surplus, even after the change in gear ratio, to provide smoother performance.

Dome Shaped Combustion Chambers A slight change in the contour of the tapered, dome shaped combustion chambers gives greater turbulence to the incoming gases. This change produces smoother engine performance and contributes materially to surplus power in the Oldsmobile, Series "E."

Two-Way Cooling Oldsmobile has been praised for its ability to be driven forty, forty-five, fifty and more miles an hour—hour after hour, without the slightest overheating. But Oldsmobile engineers have not been content with even this high efficiency in cooling design. Now Oldsmobile offers "two-way" cooling which incorporates the best features of the two accepted types—pressure cooling and thermo-siphon cooling. At the points where greatest heat is generated,—around the valves, valve seats, spark plugs and combustion chambers—pressure-circulated water is driven through a manifold-type passage. Cylinder walls do not heat as rapidly as do the parts near the combustion chambers. A full flow of cooling water about the cylinders would cool them too much. Therefore the circulation is restricted and retarded. In other words, parts at the points of greatest heat are cooled by the manifold method of circulation, while the slower thermo-siphon type of action, in which the rate of circulation is largely governed by the reaction of heat upon the water, maintains about the cylinders sufficient warmth for efficient operation. This also aids in eliminating crankcase dilution. Here is a new type of cooling design, incorporating the best features of all past engineering practice that maintains an even temperature of cooling control, one that will prove its value to users in longer life, greater power and smoother performance.

Other Improvement Other changes contributing added power, longer life and smoother performance, form a long list of features such as slight change of cam contour, double valve springs as in aircraft and racing car engines—and others equally important.

GREATER ECONOMY

Manifold Design The manifold design that contributes to smoother performance, also improves the operating economy of the Oldsmobile Series "E." On the General Motors Proving Ground, where this Oldsmobile had to measure up to unusually exacting standards, this car established new records for Oldsmobile operating economy. The features that contribute to higher efficiency and engine performance also effect improved operating economy.

Other Economy Features The dual-air cleaning, the crankcase ventilation, the "two-way" cooling and other features that are attributes of longer life, power, efficiency and smoothness, are also factors of operating economy.

ADDED EASE AND SECURITY

Thermostatic Charging Control When on the road there is a sense of security in knowing that your electrical system is functioning properly and that your generator is giving an adequate charge. Oldsmobile now has thermostatic control on the generator that automatically increases the charging rate when the engine is cold and decreases the charging rate as the temperature rises. The spark control is full automatic.

Twin-Beam Light Control Head lamps with double filament bulbs, one filament for "bright action" and one for "dim action", assure extra vision for night driving without sacrifice of safety for approaching drivers. The diffusion and double angle of the light control conforms to all state law requirements. On "dim action" the light is bright but thrown at a downward angle that protects the oncoming driver and gives ample vision to the Oldsmobile driver.

Steering Wheel Light Control The twin-beam Oldsmobile headlights are operated without the driver shifting his position, as the light control switch is a neat lever, exactly like the hand throttle, centered on the steering wheel. It may be operated with perfect safety as it is not necessary to remove hands from the steering wheel, slacken speed or take eyes from the road.

Instruments Indirectly Illuminated From behind the glass face of each instrument in the unit-grouped dash panel, an indirect light glows whenever any of the lights are lighted. This subdued indirect-lighting arrangement individually illuminates each instrument without glare or reflection in the driver's eyes. This feature is not only one of safety but one of beauty.

Instrument Panel Fuel Gauge The new grouping of the instruments on the dash is a noticeable improvement. A reliable instrument board fuel gauge, now standard on all Oldsmobile body types, accurately indicates the supply of gasoline and adds to security and peace of mind in driving.

Thief-Proof Car Lock A new design in thief-proof car locks is a feature of this Oldsmobile. With this thief-proof control the engine cannot be started when the key is left in the lock. Turning off the ignition positively locks the car. This is far from the ordinary ignition lock—an entirely new and exclusive method of positive locking. It reduces the hazard of thieves who commonly "cut over" on other types of locks, for switch and coil are built integral in a vault-like steel housing. The ignition key also operates the door locks.

FINER APPOINTMENTS

Interior Features Only seeing can give you a real appreciation of this truly fine car. New mohair upholstery of a taupe shade in all closed body types has a lustre and wearing quality not expected in a car so moderate in price. The satin nickel fittings are of rich, period design. Their beauty is but one feature, while their utility is equally as pleasing. The quick-acting window lifts, large interior door handles, conveniently centered, an ash receptacle in the five-passenger closed types, the V. V. windshield, automatic windshield cleaners on closed cars, instruments unit-grouped in a walnut panel centered on the satin finish black instrument board, walnut steering wheel, heavy rug and rubber mat floor coverings, genuine leather upholstery in open cars, deep spring-cushioned seats at angles of greatest comfort, and many features that would form an imposing list if enumerated in their entirety, cannot be adequately described.

ADDED BEAUTY

Fisher Two-Tone Duco Bodies New beauty without basic change in body design describes this Oldsmobile. The hood line has been raised slightly, producing a longer and larger appearance. The radiator, finished in the new permanent-lustre chromium that is exclusively Oldsmobile's, retains its familiar beauty with a slight change in the sweep of the symmetrical side lines to add more massive and attractive lines. The fenders are now full-crown type, with additional dust shields in black enamel to protect the body from road dirt. The sweep of the fenders add to the grace and length of the car. The Fisher bodies are finished in lustrous two-tone Duco, polished to a finish distinctively beautiful yet in conservative good taste.

NO STANDARD PRICE INCREASE

You Gain By The Benefits of Success All these features of greater value, and all those others that will impress you as you go over this Oldsmobile point by point—are yours at no increase in Oldsmobile's low standard prices. In these features Oldsmobile returns to you the benefits of manufacturing advantages and economies, created by the greatest year in Oldsmobile history. The economies of General Motors are passed back to you. The quality advances—but the low prices remain unchanged, with the exception of a ten dollar addition to the list price of the DeLuxe Coach and the DeLuxe Sedan. And if you please, you may drive an Oldsmobile Series "E" as you pay for it from your income—on the G.M.A.C. plan of deferred payments.

THE NEW LANDAU

Built for the Man Who Could Pay More It has long been a fact that a certain number of people who are accustomed to owning only the best, have recognized that all the qualities of luxury, which they instinctively prize, may now be enjoyed in a car moderate in size and moderate in price. To meet this demand Oldsmobile now introduces the new Landau—complete, tasteful and beautiful beyond the power of words to describe. The rear quarter of the upper body is finished with fabrikoid over the metal sheathing of the body, rounded to a graceful curve and given additional character by black enameled Landau bars. The graceful contour is retained in the rear window without sacrifice of vision. The Landau is finished in lustrous three-tone Duco. Natural wood artillery type wheels or steel disc wheels in body colors are optional. The equipment on the Landau includes all the features of the standard closed models with the addition of bumpers front and rear, motometer and bar cap, black enameled steel trunk mounted at rear on rigid platform, rear traffic signal, snubbers all around, genuine long-nap mohair upholstery of a neutral grey. Here truly is a car to suit the tastes of the man who could pay much more but finds all that he wants in Oldsmobile.

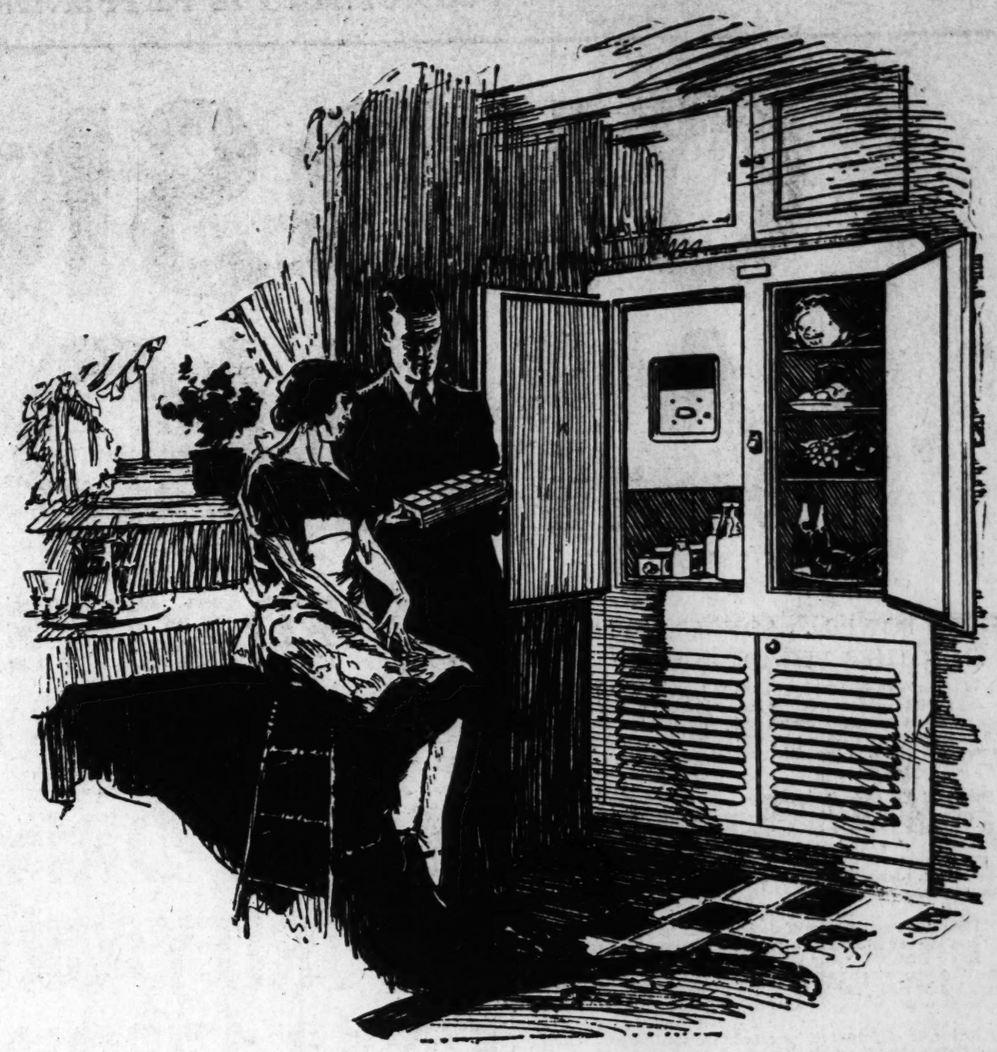

TEN BODY STYLES

Gratify Every Taste Satisfy Every Need The Oldsmobile Series "E" may be had in ten body styles: the Standard Touring, $875; the DeLuxe Touring, $980; the DeLuxe Roadster, $975; the Standard Coupe, $925; the DeLuxe Coupe, $990; the Standard Coach, $950; the DeLuxe Coach, $1050; the Standard Sedan, $1025; the DeLuxe Sedan, $1125; and the Landau, $1190; all prices F. O. B., Lansing, Michigan. Wire wheels may be had at fifty dollars extra list price on DeLuxe types and the Landau. The DeLuxe types include in their additional equipment, bumpers front and rear; motometer and bar cap; snubbers all around; black enameled steel trunk on all except the DeLuxe Roadster and DeLuxe Coupe; the option of steel disc wheels in body color or artillery type wheels of natural wood finish; and rear traffic signal.

Lowest in Years Fancy Linens

High's leadership in Linens is an established fact, acknowledged by the buyers of Atlanta and recognized by the importers of New York.

Recently the wholesale market of New York was in a parlous state—coincidentally the High man was there. These are the trophies captured by him. They are fancy linens of quality, of merit and durability. They are priced, for this sale, lower than we have known them in years.

In fact, lowest since 1914, before the war. It is, then, the linen opportunity of a decade! Of course you will buy for immediate needs and probably for Christmas!

Rental Conditions in Atlanta Improving, Realty Men Say

With the opening of the fall rental season in Atlanta apartments and homes, a survey of prominent real estate agents handling this class of business reveals conditions to be better than they have been for several years past. Two principal reasons have been cited for this prosperity, the natural growth of Atlanta's population augmented by those attracted to this city with the establishment of large branch offices here, by large numbers of persons returning from Florida, and the reduction in construction of apartment houses this year.

It will be recalled that last year conditions were just the reverse, many were leaving for Florida and there had been heavy construction activity in apartment houses that far surpassed the demand. The result was many vacancies in September, with rents fluctuating and many home and apartment owners taking whatever they could get. This fall there is likely to be an actual scarcity of locations, with prices stable and possibly slightly increased, certainly there will be no reduction, according to the unanimous opinion of Atlanta rental men.

Just now real estate agents are finding some difficulty in getting listings on desirable homes, particularly in the better class residential sections. The lists of many agents are depleted of small and medium-sized homes for rent on the north side. In apartment houses also many of the usual summer vacancies have been taken up during the past few months. What will happen when vacationers, who subleased their apartments, return to seek new ones in August, is difficult to say. Because of the activity in apartment renting during the summer, it is probable that changing from apartment to apartment customary in September will be greatly decreased.

Following are statements from some of the prominent rental men of Atlanta on the aspects of this season's rental condition.

Cates Sees Shortage.

A. B. Cates, of A. S. Adams-Cates company, says: "The rental conditions from the apartment standpoint are very much improved this year. There will be an actual shortage of apartments this September, for people are coming in and taking up vacant apartments now which will leave few for those who put off renting to the last minute. This situation can be attributed to the fact that less apartments have been built this year, and also to the swelling of the ranks of incoming people by those returning from Florida."

Increase Possible.

"Regarding the rent situation," remarked R. M. Whitten, manager of the rent department of B. M. Grant company, "as we see it the condition is improved to the extent of approximately 25 per cent. More apartments are occupied at this time compared with the condition at the same time last season, or the season of 1925. This is due, of course, in a great measure to the return of old Atlanta residents from Florida and to the new people from various sections. Conditions are so greatly improved that there have been suggestions of possible increases in rates. During the month of August in 1925 we had an alarming number of vacant apartments, at present we actually have a waiting list on practically every building we handle. While we frankly feel that we will be 100 per cent occupied by October 15, we believe the same condition prevails in every rent office in the city of Atlanta."

Demand for Residences.

"Speaking especially for the rental department of Sessions Loan and Trust company," says A. S. Hatch, "I am in a position to say that there is a good demand for apartments and good residences; so much so, that we are in the position of seeking listings, rather than tenants. Our sales department has more applications for homes of a varied kind than we can supply at this particular moment."

Large Improvement Noticed.

J. H. Hopkins, in charge of rentals for E. Rivers Realty company, said: "The renting of apartment houses is 50 to 100 per cent improved over last year at this time. Apartments will stand and most likely will get a slight increase in prices of about 10 per cent. However, I do not believe larger increases spoken of in real estate circles will materialize. We have only a few vacant apartments on our lists now, and expect these to be gone by September. Concerning homes for rent, none desirable can be found on the north side or West End sections. The west end is occupied by nearly all home owners, which makes it difficult to find listings."

Hallman Pleased by Rentals.

Harry H. Hallman, manager of rents for W. L. and John O. DuPree: "We handle homes and apartments on the north side and find conditions the best since the last three years. Concerning rents we do not believe there will be any raise for homes and probably none for apartments. Certainly there will be no reductions. There is an impending scarcity of apartments, out of several hundred units on the north side we have only five left."

Fewer Apartments.

E. D. Hutchinson, of the realty firm bearing his name, states that "though we specialize in homes on the north side, we have none left. Conditions in all sections of the city are far better than they were last year. There has been considerable decrease in the building of apartments this year and to that I attach the chief cause for the rental prosperity. However, I do not think that now is the time to raise rents."

Ewing Cites Summer Business.

Morris Ewing, of J. H. Ewing & Sons, said "this bids fair to be the best rental season since the war. An indication of this is the strong summer business that has been going on. While there will be a rush for apartments in August, I do not believe there will be as much shifting by apartment dwellers this season as there has been in the past. I should judge that there have been about one-fifth as many apartment houses built this year as in the recent year gone by."

Best in Three Years.

"This year's season in renting surpasses the last three," according to W. B. Reeves, Jr., rental man for Turman and Brown company. "We found May and June of this year to be exceptionally good. People are coming here not only from Florida but also from all sections of the country. Just the other day we rented an apartment to a party from California. In addition to the general influx of population there is a large number of outsiders who have come to secure positions with new companies recently established here."

August Rush on Now.

P. R. Warnocks of Burdett Realty company observed that "judging from our early business in rentals the August rush is coming now. The people must realize that all the desirable apartments and duplexes will be taken before August. Last year people were leaving Atlanta, this year they are returning. Rents will be more equalized because of the steady demand, there will be no reductions in them."

Homes Rent Quickly.

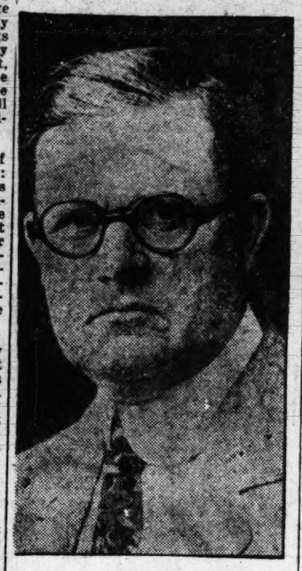

C. G. Aycock, of the company by that name which deals largely in homes for rent, says "it is only necessary to keep a home in repair to rent it this season. We had nine houses on which we were doing some repair work and we rented most of them before the work was completed. Such conditions are all that any rental agent can ask for."

Demand Exceeds Supply.

"The demand far exceeds the desirable supply in apartments for rent," J. C. Wilson, of M. L. Thrower company stated. "It seems to me there will be no apartment vacancies this fall. This optimistic view prevails throughout the city as far as I am able to determine."

HOME SALES MANAGER FOR GRANT COMPANY

With the reorganization of its sales division this past week, J. M. Butts has been named manager of the home sales department of B. M. Grant company. Mr. Butts' promotion comes after being connected with the Grant realty company only three and a half months.

Though Mr. Butts started his real estate experience in Florida, where he had an office of his own, he formerly lived in Atlanta and is well acquainted with this city's property values. His experience as a sales executive covers a long period of years, having served as such with prominent Atlanta hardware companies before going to Florida.

Mr. Butts is sold on Atlanta as a real estate center. Believing that property values here will continue to rise, he advises prospective purchasers to buy now and profit by the increasing values. He has purchased a home in Brookwood Hills, and is here to stay.

Cascade Heights Owners Will Get New Bus Service

Purchase of a White motor chassis, for which a modern type coach body is being constructed by the A. C. Miller company, recently was made by the Ponder Realty company, representatives of the Wey-Con company, owners and developers of Cascade Heights. The coach will be devoted to transporting home and lot owners and prospective buyers to the subdivision free of charge from the Whitehall-Beecher car line terminus. The service will start in about a month.

"It will be put on a regular schedule of perhaps 30 minute periods and will supplant the less commodious bus now operating between the two points," John M. Ponder stated. "We want the public to know when our new coach is completed by parading it for several days during the noon hour through the heart of Atlanta with a brass band serenading from within the vehicle."

In speaking of the development, where a new unit lately has been opened, 80 per cent of the original section having been disposed of, Mr. Ponder commented on the surprisingly good business that has been maintained throughout the summer months. "We are completing several miles of concrete paving, water main laying and electric wiring along Venetian drive and Belvedere avenue, in addition to that already finished. Many sales have been made in the new unit," he said. Cascade Heights includes about 300 acres in all, much of which is covered with beautiful pine trees. From many of its high points the city of Atlanta can be looked down upon, affording a clear view of the skyline.

Since the latter part of 1924, when the development was started, about 350 to 400 sales have been consummated. For some time past there have been 25 completed homes. Three more were recently finished, three are now under construction and building is ready to start on five others. With many of the lot purchasers about to complete their final payments, Mr. Ponder believes a large building program will get under way this fall and the following spring.

Three granite gate approaches are now being constructed at the main entrances to the subdivision along Cascade road. This work is being done by an artist and is expected to add much to the attractiveness of Cascade Heights.

W. R. Sheppard, of the real estate firm bearing his name, Saturday announced the recent sale of 13 vacant lots in various sections of the city. The aggregate consideration for the property was $25,000, he said. Purchasers of the lots are planning to improve them with homes in the near future.

Mr. Sheppard is developing a large tract of land on Pryor street adjacent to Clark university into an exclusive negro subdivision. The section has been named Joyland Park, and, although development there was begun only a short time ago, Mr. Sheppard stated that considerable activity in sales already prevails.

"If present real estate conditions are an indication of what may be expected of the fall season," Mr. Sheppard said, in speaking of the realty situation in general, "I can foresee one of the most active real estate seasons for Atlanta this fall. All business and farm reports that I have come into contact with lead to the same conclusions in these fields."

R. W. Evans, of the Columbia Trust and Realty company, announced the following list of sales recently consummated:

For A. J. Collier estate to G. P. Raine, vacant lot in Collier Hills for $3,250.

For Burdett Realty company to Frederick Avery, vacant lot in Brookwood Hills, $3,575.

For estate of E. H. Wilson to F. B. Sanders, 13 lots on Mims street, in West End, and six lots fronting on both sides of Matthews place, $5,500.

For Frank H. and Warner Martin to a client, 273 Simpson street for $2,000.

For Evans & Harper to Mrs. P. H. Crane, Nos. 384-92 St. Charles avenue, consisting of five stores, consideration withheld.

RECORD BUSINESS IS REPORTED HERE BY J. J. THOMPSON

John J. Thompson, prominent real estate man of the company bearing his name, Saturday stated that his firm had handled more transactions for out-of-town people locating in Atlanta during the past two months than ever before in his 15 years of real estate experience here. There is evidence that the influx of people into this city is permanent, since this company, which does a general brokerage business, handles no residential property for rent, but specializes in sales.

"These newcomers hail from all sections of the country, although a large portion come from Florida," Mr. Thompson said. While he did not advance any reason for the large incoming population, it is evident that much of it has been occasioned by the establishment in Atlanta of southern headquarters of large national concerns.

Speaking of Florida, Mr. Thompson stated, "I believe I am unique among Atlanta real estate men as the only one who did not make some kind of contact with Florida real estate during the recent boom there. I have always found the Atlanta real estate field active and substantial and could see no reason for closing my office here on any quest."

TAYLORSVILLE ROADS ARE BEING SCRAPED

Taylorsville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—There is much road building going on in this section. Roads are being scraped and leveled up.

A new road is being constructed below Euharlee bridge in order to avoid an almost impassable hill in rainy weather and the bridge is to be extended so that during high water residents on the north side of town can cross the span.

Metcalf Heads Realty Forces Of Decatur Firm

W. A. Ozmer, well-known builder and contractor operating in Decatur, Saturday announced the opening of a real estate department with L. H. Metcalf in charge as manager. The department is located at 138 Sycamore street, Decatur, and is an extension of Mr. Ozmer's construction business, which has constantly increased with the many years of activity.

The new department will be general in its scope, including sales and rentals, Mr. Metcalf stated. "From the point of sales, the outlook is very optimistic," Mr. Metcalf said, "but as for rentals we are having a little difficulty in getting listings, for Decatur is known to be a city of homes and homeowners. However, that only makes it easier to rent a home once a listing is obtained."

Mr. Metcalf is a man of long experience in the real estate field. Prior to his new connection he was with a large realty concern handling subdivision developments in Florida. Mr. Metcalf was on a visit to Decatur when he changed his plans, which were to return to Florida and determined to remain in Decatur where his attention was centered on the attractive real estate prospects. Both he and Mr. Ozmer have been residents of Decatur for some years past and are acquainted with property values in that region.

Decatur is following the pace set by Atlanta in property improvements and increased valuations. This has been substantiated by figures recently released by W. H. Bond, tax receiver of DeKalb county, which shows a valuation in Decatur's taxable property for 1926 of $10,185,730 as against $9,331,986 for 1925, an increase of $853,744.

Indiana Road May Become Part Of Nickle Plate

Washington, July 17.—(AP)—Evidence that the Nickel Plate plans to take over the Chicago, Attica and Southern railroad, which serves about 50 cities and towns in Indiana, is contained in a letter received by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Meyer, from M. J. Van Sweringen, one of the creators of the Nickel Plate consolidation plan.

The letter, made public, today, said President Bernet, of the Nickel Plate had been in conference with officials of the Attica and that the Van Sweringens propose to operate the line for four months "pending conclusions with regard to other matters included in the unification plan."

Whether the Attica, which extends about 150 miles in Indiana, with a branch from Goodland to Chicago, will be incorporated in the Nickel Plate's revised merger plans, was not made clear, although the statement was made that the Van Sweringens were giving attention to the necessity of a formal application to the commission to operate the Attica.

The Indiana road recently came to the commission's attention in a letter sent by the Indiana delegation in congress, which said that unless something was done to get the Nickel Plate interests together on a plan for acquiring it, the Attica would have to be abandoned.

The main line of the Attica forms connections with the Pere Marquette, Erie and Chesapeake & Ohio, three units involved in the Nickel Plate merger plans, and the Nickel Plate itself.

RADIO IS DECLARED BOON TO FARMERS

East Lansing, Mich., July 17.—(AP) Radio on the farm is yielding more dollars and cents return on the investment, developing a more prosperous American agriculture and bringing about a better contented, understanding class of farmers than any other single scientific contribution of the age, Sam Pickard, chief of radio, United States department of agriculture, told the convention of agricultural college editors which has been meeting here.

After visiting the principal radio stations and approximately 600 farmers on a farm radio survey tour through 20 agricultural states, Mr. Pickard stated that both college and commercial broadcasters are making an intelligent effort to anticipate the farmer's problems with interesting, helpful programs, and are winning large and faithful audiences of the most enterprising class of farmers.

Concrete examples of how practical application of information gained through radio in helping the farmers' bank balance were cited. In districts 60 miles from a railroad, he discovered farmers who had changed their farming to more profitable lines suggested by authoritative radio talks.

"The farm fan," he said, "has two chief criticisms of radio. The one most often voiced is the curse of not getting enough sleep. Most of them admit that they sit up with their sets late into the night. Many others say that while they like to be neighborly, they tire of the entire community dropping in every winter evening and then forgetting to go home.

A plea for the colleges to dramatize informational programs, injecting into them greater interest and more humor, was made.

"I know of no field into which educational agencies have entered that offers keener competition than that of radio," he said. "The day has passed when the mediocre speaker can hold a radio audience. The lecture of long, difficult words and sentences must give way to the more friendly, natural dialogue presented by effective radio voices.

"Until educational institutions value the effectiveness of radio instruction highly enough to adequately finance a competent staff, trained in the technique of broadcasting, they cannot expect successfully to utilize this new invention, probably the greatest boon to education since the printing press was invented."

MERCER PROFESSORS BUSY DURING SUMMER

Macon, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—A number of Mercer university professors continue actively engaged in educational work during the summer months. Dr. Posey Scott Flippin, head of the history department, is at Johns Hopkins university as professor of history for the first term of the summer quarter, after which he will leave for Europe as one of a group of 50 American professors selected by the Carnegie Foundation for an international peace to visit the European capitals and study political conditions there.

Dr. A. H. Newman has gone to Chicago, where he will spend the summer working on a new edition of his manual of church history. Dr. Newman has recently sent to Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Baptist World Alliance, material showing the history of the Baptist denomination which will be made into a moving picture to be shown at a meeting of the Baptist World Alliance in Toronto, Canada, in 1928.

A group of Mercer professors are doing advanced graduate work in various institutions. Included in this group are Professor C. B. Wray, who will complete the work for the degree master of science in accounting at New York university; at Columbia are Professors Edgar E. Folk, of the journalism department; W. T. Smalley, of the English department, and R. B. Plymale, of the mathematical department. B. C. Holtzclaw, former Rhodes scholar and professor at Cornell university, is at New York university; Dr. D. H. Kerchner, at the University of Chicago law school, and Joe A. McClain, Jr., at the Yale law school.

Abroad are Professors Charles W. Williams, former Rhodes scholar from Alabama and fellow at the University of Stockholm, who is studying at Oxford university, and W. F. Taylor, who is completing work for the doctor's degree at the University of Madrid.

Several members of the faculty remain at Mercer as teachers in the summer session. There are: Dr. A. P. Montague, vice president; Peyton Jacob, director of the summer school, and Professors Carver, Garner, Harrison, Holder, Ragsdale, Railey, Richardson, Robinson, Talley, Knight, Latimer and Miss Sallie Boone, librarian.

Dr. Charles W. Jent, former dean of Oklahoma Baptist university and widely known expert on the rural church, will arrive in Macon next month to begin his work as professor of rural sociology at Mercer.

Manufacturers of Good Cars Grind Their Motors

ANSWER: Because Grinding is the only "RECOGNIZED STANDARD" way of accurately finishing Cylinder bores to exact size and finish. When Cylinder bores become worn "out of round" and tapered the only "RECOGNIZED STANDARD" way of refinishing is to "REGRIND." Do not be misled by mechanics who tell you that they can install so-called leak-proof rings that will seal out of round cylinder bores. This is only a quick way of the mechanic making some "easy money," which is only "temporary" relief to your motor. Such rings have "inner rings" or springs under them which causes excessive friction on cylinder walls, causing cylinder walls to wear rapidly, undue wear on crankshaft bearings and will increase your repair bills.

VISIT OUR MODERN EQUIPPED GRINDING SHOPS AND LET US "SHOW YOU," or call us by phone and let us tell you about it.

THE BEST IS ALWAYS THE CHEAPEST IN THE LONG RUN. Ask your Garage Man.

ANSLEY PARK

ON THE PRADO: An unusual home in this beautiful section which will immediately appeal to those of discriminating tastes. The plan is ideal and contains all that a well-appointed home should have. There are four bedrooms and two all-tile baths (one with shower). Hardwood floors throughout, beautifully finished and decorated. Ample servants' quarters and double garage. The price is consistent with the type of home offered. Mrs. McKinstry, HEmlock 6254-W.

OPPOSITE PIEDMONT PARK

ATTRACTIVE brick bungalow having 7 rooms, breakfast nook, tile bath and sleeping porch. This home is in the pink of condition and ready to move into. There is an abundance of shrubbery and the rear is thickly wooded. In short this is a home we will be proud to show you. The price of $13,500 is right. Mrs. McKinstry. HEmlock 6254-W.

DRUID HILLS

BRIARCLIFF ROAD: An offering for our clients who "must have four bedrooms and two all-tile baths." In addition to meeting this requirement it is ample in every other respect. The best of materials have been used, including steam heat. Large lot, 100x350 feet, with garage, shed and plenty of room for flowers and garden. Mr. Harvuot, WAlnut 7570.

MORNINGSIDE

SHERWOOD ROAD: New stucco home which the owner finds he cannot use and says "SELL." Seven rooms and two baths in all. Four of these are bedrooms. Excellent servants' quarters and laundry. It can be bought at a bargain. Will consider a trade. Mr. Harvuot, WAlnut 7570.

VIRGINIA AVE.: Our offering here is worthy of earnest consideration. Brick bungalow with six rooms, breakfast room and tile bath above the average. Good lot, well landscaped; garage. $8,950 is the price. Consider the conveniences—churches, schools, stores and coach line, and we are sure you will want to inspect it.

WEST TWELFTH ST.: Bungalow—seven rooms, bath and plenty of closet space. This home is not new but in excellent repair and almost opposite PIEDMONT PARK. Beautiful flowers and garden. Lot 80 ft. front with ample depth. Price is low, especially so if you consider surroundings.

HIGH-CLASS HOMES

NO. 29 PEACHTREE CIRCLE

THIS house is now vacant; we have the keys at our office ready to show it to any one interested. The location is one of the most select in the entire city; it is a section where houses are occupied as personal homes and rarely does a broker have an opportunity to offer one for sale. We want an offer on this house to submit to non-resident owner.

NO. 982 PIEDMONT AVENUE

A HOUSE which commends itself on account of its superior construction and excellent location; it was designed and built for a personal home, and is being offered for sale on account of the fact that business called the owner away to another city. We are featuring this fine home in our special advertising; it is a real satisfaction to a broker to have homes of quality to offer to customers. This house has recently been repriced at $22,500; it does not take an expert student of values to see the merit in this property.

NO. 42 ST. LOUIS PLACE

WE are pleased to be able to offer to our customers a good-looking two-story brick house, located in an exclusive residential district, at the low price of $9,500. This is such a good value that it should appeal to some one who wants a nice home located in a desirable section of the city. It is convenient to three car lines and near a handy community center. Special circumstances enable us to offer this house at the very attractive price quoted.

Sears-Roebuck Section Near Ponce de Leon

ATTRACTIVE white board bungalow. An artistic home with individual charm. Six rooms, furnace heat. Close to Ponce de Leon and Highland school. At $7,500 this is exceptional value. Easy terms.

Briarcliff Road Section

IN the Briarcliff road section, a residence built by owner, a prominent business man, for his home. Although it is not brand-new, it has been kept up so perfectly that it has none of the objections so often associated with a house a few years old, but rather has the advantage of beautiful landscaping fully developed, fruit and nut trees, etc. The solid oak floors used throughout are fresh and new in appearance. Concrete daylight basement. Large two-car garage with two servants' rooms and bath. House has four bedrooms, two baths, living room, sun parlor, breakfast room, etc. Do not let the low price make you misjudge this house, but it can be bought for $12,000 with $3,000 cash.

Kirkwood Section, $5,250

YOU will like this six-room bungalow. White wide board with convenient and attractive floor plan. Furnace heat. Pretty green lawn. The yard is fenced in for garden and chicken run. Fine young fruit trees. A real value at $5,250. Easy terms.

Ansley Park Bungalow

THIS REALLY beautiful seven-room bungalow, built by owner for his home, with Spanish tile roof, two baths, tiled terrace, as well as sun parlor, is situated in a commanding location overlooking The Prado and Governor's Mansion. We have just had a reduction of price on this real home as owner is going away and must sell. Priced considerably below cost at $18,250. Terms can be arranged.

A Happy 'Mania'

"The front office mania" is what the boys in the shop call our Used Car repair policy. They sympathize with our efforts to put the cars in good shape but they sometimes think we are a bit TOO particular. Maybe, but no CUSTOMER is ever going to complain about a "mania" of this sort.

You'll find a well-chosen assortment of models and makes—in both passenger cars and commercial vehicles. All are in good condition. The price range is from

HOLINESS MEET SOON AT INDIAN SPRINGS

Indian Springs, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Plans have been completed here for the opening of the Indian Springs Holiness camp meeting on August 5 and which will continue in session for 10 days.

A daily schedule of services has been arranged as follows: Forenoon, 6 to 7, prayer; 8 to 8:45, children's service; 9 to 10, praise service; 10:30 to 11, song service; 11, preaching. Afternoon, 3:30, preaching; 7:30, song service; 8, preaching.

The schedule at the Young People's tabernacle follows: 8 to 9 a. m., Bible classes for young people; 7 to 8 p. m., vespers, life service; 7 p. m., cottage prayer meetings on verandas.

Among the leaders expected to be present this year are Dr. William H. Huff, of Sioux City, Iowa, described as an eloquent pulpit orator; Rev. C. W. Ruth, of Indianapolis, Ind., who has spoken here before and is a favorite. Mrs. J. M. Glenn, of Dublin, will have charge of the young people's work and will be assisted by a corps of trained workers and teachers in the holiness movement.

Rev. E. L. Eaton and daughter, Miss Clairbelle Eaton, of Wilmore, Ky., will have charge of the life service meetings and Hamp Sewell, of Atlanta, will have charge of the music.

It is announced that many improvements have been made in the camp ground this year, the water supply having been more than doubled, sewerage installed and hotel accommodations increased. The grounds are located one mile from Florilla, Ga., to which point mail should be addressed, which town is located on the Southern railroad. Principal highways lead to the grounds also.

The executive committee is composed of R. F. Burden, of Macon, chairman; Rev. J. M. Glenn, of Dublin, secretary; R. P. Sasnett, Jackson, Ga.; R. S. Stewart, of Ashburn, and F. C. Benson, of Macon.

CAROLINA MAN HEADS TEXTILE ASSOCIATION

Savannah, Ga., July 17.—(AP)—The most important feature of today's session of the Southern Textile association, being held at Tybee, was the election of officers for the ensuing year. W. H. Gibson, Jr., of Mooresville, N. C., was elected president; L. R. Gilbert, of Raleigh, was made vice president; F. Gordon Cobb, of Lancaster, S. C., was made executive secretary, and Carl R. Harris, Jr., of Inman, S. C., was elected chairman of the board of governors.

Greenville, S. C., was selected as the next meeting place of the association, to be held there in the early fall, in conjunction with the textile show to be held there at the same time.

While some of the delegates will return to their homes today, a large number are planing to remain at Tybee for the week-end.

KIRKWOOD SINGERS FETED BY CHURCH

Members of the choir and orchestra of Kirkwood Methodist church were guests of the membership at an entertainment at the church Friday night. The principal address was made by Dr. R. F. Dempsey, conference secretary of education, whose subject was "Man's Power and Modes of Expression." Dr. H. S. Allyn, pioneer medical missionary to Brazil, who recently moved to Atlanta, also was a speaker.

Members of the woman's Bible class served refreshments at the close.

Printing Contract Awarded.

The state printing commission Saturday awarded the contract for state printing for the next fiscal year, which begins August 7, to the Stein Printing company, of Atlanta, lowest bidder. Four bids were submitted and all were for approximately the same amount, the Stein bid being $500 less than the nearest competitor.

BRANHAM REUNION IS HELD AT OXFORD

Oxford, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—The reunion of the Branham family was held on July 14 at the old home in Oxford. One hundred and forty relatives and friends were present, their ages ranging from 77 years to three weeks, the latter being David Singleton Blackshear, of New York.

Among those present on this memorable occasion were I. A. Branham, Virlyn Moore, W. T. Moore, James Moore, Dr. B. T. Carter and Tom Griffin, all of Atlanta; Henry Branham, of the agricultural department, presided. Short speeches were made by W. R. Branham, I. A. Branham, James Griffin, Virlyn Moore, W. T. Moore, R. O. Flinn, Mrs. Hammond Johnson, Mrs. Charles Jarrell, R. H. Blackshear and others. Dinner was served underneath the spreading oaks in the rear of the old homestead. A number of the old family servants were present and had their share of the good things. After dinner the guests were asked to register in a book in which the minutes were recorded. The clan was organized and officers were elected for the ensuing year. It is intended to make these reunions of the Branham connection a yearly function.

MRS. ESPY CELEBRATES BIRTH ANNIVERSARY

Summerville, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Mrs. D. E. Espy celebrated her 75th birthday anniversary Wednesday at the old Espy homestead in Dry valley, where a family reunion was held and a picnic dinner served at the noon hour.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

JEFFERY FARNOL.

The High Adventure is a new romance, by Jeffery Farnol, one of our most popular wirters of fiction, who won his title of a writer of best sellers when he penned "The Broad Highway" some 10 to 12 years ago. If anything could be added to what has already been said of Mr. Farnol, and his latest book, it would be to tell that the publishers announce that it has gone into its thirtieth thousand and that it has climbed from fourteenth to seventh place on the list of national best sellers—this all in one month after publication.

The book stores are loud in their praise of "The High Adventure," so it seems that his latest venture into "the bosky lanes and the manorial halls of old England" has not proven unworthy of his pen. The result of it all is that this popular Englishman with a kindly smile on his face, and whose ready wit is always noticeable, is enjoying a home at Brighton, the famous English resort on the channel, and a villa on the Italian Riviera, where he greets his friends with genuine hospitality.

There has been quite a change in the life of Mr. Farnol since the days when he first began to dream of "The Broad Highway" in his New York studio. In his boyhood days in Kent, England, he was never happier than when surrounded by his schoolmates, to whom he told tales which were always continued. The boys never grew tired of listening to young Farnol, but the father had no patience with dreamers or imaginary ideas, so he tried to crush them by securing him a place with a brass founders' firm. From this time he drifted from one thing to another until he met the daughter of a New York artist and married her before he was 21, and with all the dreams of youth they came to New York, where he spent his time in writing short stories and painting scenery at the Astor hotel.

Then he decided he would put into a story the vision of "The Broad Highway," of which he had been dreaming. Upon completion it went the rounds of many publishers until at last it was placed with a mass of forgotten and unknown manuscripts in the publishing house of Little, Brown & Co., where it was unearthed after many months and returned at the writer's earnest request.

His wife then sent it to her mother in England, who in turn offered it personally to an English house, which was delighted with the story and immediately sold the American publishing rights to Little, Brown & Co.

And Jeffery Farnol woke up one morning to find himself famous, thanks to his boyhood dreams, his wife and his mother-in-law, and, after all, to his publishers who have had a part in the making of the book a success and the young Englishman a popular writer.

NEW FICTION.

The Blue Car Mystery. By Natalie Sumer Lincoln, who is not only a personal favorite in the south, but whose stories are always most readable.

She is beginning to be known as a writer of successful mystery stories and "The Blue Car Mystery" is filled with thrills from the time the old commodore, who was well known in the social and political life of the United States capital, is found dead in the library of his home.

The mystery surrounds every member of the household, of the unknown blue car with its strange markings, and the disappearance of $100,000 worth of bonds. It is a real mystery story and the reader will find it puzzling from the very first chapter. (D. Appleton and company, New York.)

Juve in the Dock. Detective novel, by Marcel Allain, which consists of three stories so exciting that the reader will find himself in suspense to the last pages. The translation is by A. R. Allinson. (David McKay Co., Philadelphia.)

The Secret Love House. By Maravene Thompson, author of "The Yellow Flower," etc. It takes many things to assist in the weaving of an exciting story, but nothing helps on a summer day like a real elopement, and this is the main ingredient used by the author of many thrills. (Macaulay, New York.)

Secret Harbour. By Stewart Edward White. The story is woven around a young man who, upon finding life dull and drab, became the patient of another young man who was known as the healer of souls. Roger Marshall was rich and he finally became the brother-in-law of the healer and in a short while he finally settled down again to a lazy, indifferent life which made it necessary to undergo treatment for the second time. Any story by the author is worth while and this is one full of special interest. (Doubleday Page & Co. New York.)

Madame Judas. By Margaret Turnbull. The summer months are the best time to read detective stories, especially unusual ones that are so complex as to keep the reader perplexed over a situation not easily solved. Quite different from the usual mystery story. (J. B. Lippincott Co.)

This splendid story is woven around Webster Bagley, who lived in La-Fayette, a town which was filled with many prosperous citizens and successful companies, among them being the Cyclops company, a cement company which had a part in the building of all the new building—bridges, etc., of this well known little town. The story is filled with many interesting as well as surprising events which prove the cleverness of the writer. (L. C. Page & Co. Boston.)

The Mansion of Unrest. By Elizabeth Dejeans, who wrote "The Winning Game." The story is located in San Francisco and the author introduces the Randulls, at this time a very restless and unhappy family in which the husband and wife are the unhappiest, all this reflecting on the children. The son is a victim of the drug habit and the young daughter in love with the chauffeur. The author concludes with a terrible crash which brings the wife to her senses, for who can catch up the broken threads of a family, untangle the snarls and bring about smoothness other than the wife, mother and home-lover? Miss Dejeans has surpassed her usual skill in presenting "family affairs" in "The Mansion of Unrest." (Doubleday Page & Co. Garden City, N. Y.)

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

Jesus the Nazarene. A great French scholar presents the evidence and arguments for and against the existence of Christ. By Maurice Goguel, doctor of theology and literature of the University of Paris. Translated by Frederick Stephens. Price $3.00. D. Appleton & Co. New York.

The God of the Liberal Christian. By Daniel Sommer Robinson, professor of philosophy in Miami university. A study of social theology and the new theism as conflicting schools of progressive religious thought. D. Appleton & Co. New York.

Matter and Life. By Angela Marco, whose purpose is to give "a complete and monumental survey of the ceaseless ryhthm in human beings which seems gradually to approach some climax." "It is a scholarly presentation of modern life, directed toward spiritual stability." Harold Vinal, publisher. New York.

Copy—1926. Stories, Plays, Poems and Essays. Selected by Blanche Colton Williams, Kenyon Nicholson, Thomas Kennedy, Roger Loomis, Shirley Long and Dorothy Scarborough, assistant professor of English in Columbia university. This anthology is compiled from the work of the members of the Writers' club of Columbia university, who are students in the creative writing courses of that university.

There are fifteen stories and the scenes include summer vacation time on the Maine coast, southern plantation country all the way to the homestead section of the far west.

The stories in this collection have been approved and selected by a committee of the Columbia university faculty, and the stories are clever and the writers are already well known for their work through the popular periodicals. D. Appleton & Co. New York.

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

The Riddle of Society. A contribution to the understanding of those who do wrong. By Dr. Charles Platt, who presents the problem of delinquency with originality, logic, depth and humor. Dr. Platt is president of the National Probation association, a director of the Pennsylvania committee on penal affairs, and chairman of the citizens' committee of the municipal court of Philadelphia. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

The Secret of High Wages. By Bertram Austin and W. Francis Lloyd. This book has created a sensation in England. It is written as the result of the author's visit to the United States of America in 1925. He explains the secret of our industrial prosperity as seen by two very competent and keen sighted industrial engineers. (Dodd Mead & Co., New York.)

Singing in the Rain. Essays for thoughtful people, by Anne Shannon Moore, who has written these heart to heart essays out of life itself—they are inspiring, human, pathetic and personal. The author in this instance is the teacher of lessons on beautiful living—but among them all there is no lesson that she tries more earnestly to impress of upon her class than the unselfishness of home-keeping, family ties, and the devotion of father and mother to home and family. (Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

English Men of Letters—New series—edited by J. C. Squire. The subject of this volume is "Herman Melville"—it being the first written on English Men of Letters. In the present volume John Freeman gives both a biography and a critical study of Herman Melville whom he calls "the most powerful of all the great American writers." (The MacMillan Co., New York.)

Amateur Telescope Making. How to make a simple telescope and where to buy the materials, etc. If you are interested in the curiosities of the sky you will enjoy this book, for it is for the amateur, who not only wants a telescope, but who will enjoy the making of it. (Scientific American Publishing Co., New York city.)

United States Navy. Several New England towns are disputing rival claims to the honor of having given birth to the American navy. Salem and Marblehead are both engaged in celebrating the event. Men from Providence captured the British war schooner, Gaspe, before the revolution began, bu tit was at Machias, Maine, that the first naval engagement of the revolution took place, according to The Bangor Commercial. The leader in that exploit was Jeremiah O'Brien, an ancestor of Heman White Chaplin, author of "Five Hundred Dollars," a collection of stories of New England life, first published in 1887, and now in its fourteenth edition. The engagement at Machias was fought on the Marshfield river immediately after word was received of the affray at Lexington. As the British frigate, Margaretta, sailed into the river O'Brien and the colonists assembled at the old Burnham tavern, now headquarters of the local D. A. R. chapter. Every man responded when O'Brien called for volunteers to attack the ship. Arming themselves with every variety of weapon, they followed him to the wharf, where they embarked upon two small sailing vessels, and proceeded to the attack. In the face of a withering fire, these hardy sons boarded the frigate and captured it. The Margaretta was then sailed well into the river, where parts of the old hull are still to be seen.

LIBERTY BELL.

After guarding America's most sacred relic, the Liberty bell, for 25 years, James T. Montgomery died last month, almost on the eve, as it were, of the 150th anniversary of the sounding to the bell that proclaimed America's independence. Standing at the foot of the winding stairway below the bell, he met many distinguished visitors, but to none did be waive the honor that belongs to it. The Prince of Wales, Marshal Foch, the late King Edward VII of England, Rudyard Kipling and David Lloyd-George were among his acquaintances. To all he told the story from the day the bell was installed until the zigzag crack appeared in its bronze side and stilled it. That story in detail that is the fruit of exhaustive research is told by Victor Rosewater in "The Liberty Bell," published by Appleton.

LITERARY DRIFTWOOD.

"The Royal Society of Literature announces that silver medals on the A. C. Benson Medal Foundation have been awarded by the council to Percy Lubbock, Robert Lynd (literary editor of The Daily News), and the Hon. Harold Nicolson, for their services to literature. Mr. Robert Lynd is admittedly one of the most sagacious reviewers of his day, and has more than a national reputation as a light essayist. His record as literary editor of The Daily News is well known to our readers."—The London Daily News. In a review of Robert Lynd's new book, "The Money Box," published by Appleton, The London Mercury writes of him: "No writer of our time is more fitted to interpret the ordinary man to himself."

"The Last of the Chiefs," by Joseph A. Altsheler, has been translated into Danish and Norwegian, and will doubtless prove as popular in Scandinavia as in America where the Altsheler shelves in busy public libraries receive greater wear than almost any other.

Sara Ware Basset, author of the popular "Invention Series" for boys, has left her Boston home for her summer home in Princeton. In early August she will sail for a three months' stay in England and Scotland. She plans to go first to Edinburgh, and then motor with friends in Devon and Cornwall, where she will spend the month of October.

The Benevolent Protective Order of Elks have a high regard for the works of Octavus Roy Cohen, author of mystery novels and of stories of Bumin'ham's Darktown. In the course of a recent trip for The Elks' Magazine William Slavens McNutt made a point of asking all sorts of people for the name of their favorite author. The great majority named Mr. Cohen as first choice. He is now at work upon a new book which Little, Brown & Co. will publish this autumn.

One of the most interesting recent groups of volumes of non-fiction for children has just had added to it "The Young Folks' Book of Invention," by T. C. Bridges, and "The Young Folks' Book of Myths," by Amy Cruse. The previous volumes dealt with discovery and astronomy.

Hal G. Evart's new novel, "The Painted Stallion," which pictures vividly southwestern deserts and ranches, has just been published, and now, for a change, he has betaken himself to Alaska.

CURRENT MAGAZINES.

The Son of Rabbi Wise.

James Waterman Wise, the first of whose two articles on "The Future of Israel," appears in the July issue of the Century, is descended from a long line of rabbis and Jewish teachers. His father is Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and Mr. Wise had himself prepared to enter the Jewish ministry. But he has since come to believe that the theological implication of Judaism are such that it does not and can not remain a vital force in Jewish life, and while his loyalty to the Jewish cause and people is in no way diminished he feels he can no longer prepare to enter the Jewish ministry.

His article in the Century dealing with "The Future of Israel" explains his point of view, and voices his opinion as to what is to be the "next passage in the unfolding of that epic which the world has come to know as Israel."

Review of Reviews for July gives a most interesting description of the "Cotton Fields—Old and New." There are four articles on the subject of this valuable asset to the south, by such writers as Dwight B. Heard, Joseph Leeming, E. E. Miller and O. H. L. Wenicke. Frank Simonds discusses "Europe in Various Economic Crises." Under the head of "The General Strike" (two contrasting articles are contributed by W. Milne-Bailey, British labor economist, and B. S. Townroe, an emergency strikebreaker. There are quite a number of other real live subjects that the people, not only of the U. S A., but of the world will have to settle and it is time to get busy.

The World Traveler is an up-to-date magazine, profusely illustrated. It is equally attractive with the globe trotters as it is with the stay-at-homes whose only pleasure through the long summer months is to read a World Traveler and other books telling of the places and the doings of those who are fortunate enough to be able to view these beautiful and historic places in the new world and the old, especially those presented by this magazine which is published in New York.

BIG LUMBER MILL WILL LOCATE HERE

With an anticipated output of approximately between $750,000 and $1,000,000 annually in lumber products, the Evans-Inman Lumber company, Inc., announced plans Saturday through the industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce to locate at Hapeville.

The mill, which the concern will construct, will be one of the largest in the south and will be equipped with the latest roller-bearing mill equipment. It will be located on 12 acres of land at the intersection of the Southern and Central of Georgia railroads in Hapeville.

Land for the site has been purchased and the company is incorporated under Georgia laws with a capital stock of $200,000 with authority to increase to $1,000,000. Fifteen carloads of machinery now are en route to Atlanta to begin construction.

Officers of the company are well-known business men in the south and practically all are connected with other industries. G. H. Evans, president, of Chattanooga, Tenn., also is president of the G. H. Evans Lumber company of that city. Charles W. Inman, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman of the board of directors and is prominently identified with other business interests there. Theodore I. Evans, of Dothan, Ala.; M. A. Hildebrand, of Chattanooga, and L. B. Hildebrand, of Chattanooga, are vice presidents. Charles H. Evans, of Chattanooga, is secretary and treasurer.

All of the officers comprise the board of directors and with the exceptions of Mr. Inman, all will make their homes in Atlanta. The company is manufacturer of high grade hardwood lumber, including poplar, walnut, oak and gum. The plant will employ from 75 to 100 persons, with an annual payroll of $100,000 to $125,000.

The location of the mill in Atlanta was made after careful consideration of officers of the company of various sites throughout the south, it is said.

"We came to Atlanta," G. H. Evans stated, "because Atlanta, in my opinion, offered more natural advantages than any other section that we knew of, having been in the hardwood lumber business in the south for over 25 years and being familiar with the character of stumpage and quality that is in our southland. We believe that the forests of Georgia have more virgin choice uncut timber, the kind we are proposing to manufacture, adjacent to Atlanta on a minimum log rate, than any other center.

"After months of careful surveying, of checking the inbound and outbound log and lumber rates as offered by other communities, Atlanta offers us, in my opinion, a more advantageous point for our lumber business. We feel we have spared nothing in giving this plant the last word in the latest appliances of roller-bearing sawmill machinery, the very largest and heaviest type."

St. Paul, Minn.—Orders for movements of trains in the St. Paul Union depot yards in future will be transmitted by radio. Installation of the system on a permanent basis was announced today, after long experimentation had proved it practicable and a vast improvement over the former method.

COMMERCE CHAMBER WILL HONOR BEALL

L. H. Beall, general manager of Sears-Roebuck & Co., of Chicago, will be the guest of honor Friday at a luncheon given by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in its office building. Henderson Hallman, chairman of the service committee of the chamber, will be in charge of arrangements.

A small group of representative merchants, bankers and manufacturers will be invited to meet Mr. Beall, who is the Sears-Roebuck official responsible for bringing to Atlanta the big branch house now nearing completion on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mr. Beall was a school teacher until he went to work for the Sears-Roebuck organization 13 years ago. In that time he has risen to high places, and finally has been chosen to conduct the affairs of the new Atlanta branch.

REUNION IS HELD BY REED FAMILY

Sanders Reed, well-known Confederate veteran living at Chamblee, was host at a reunion of the Reed family held July 14 at Sandy Springs camp ground. Mr. Reed has eight living children, six of whom attended with their families. There are 38 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren. Besides the immediate families, 14 Confederate veterans and many friends were present.

During the morning, a program consisting of readings and piano solos, was given by the children. Lunch was served.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 89

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

When three is a crowd

BRANDIMIST is cordially welcomed by people of discriminating taste, even on those unusual occasions when three is distinctly a crowd.

The reason can be found in every bottle.

Brandimist has a long sustained and refreshing influence, and exhilarates like an early morning plunge in the surf and its thirst-quenching qualities prove conclusively that Mother Nature herself never brewed a better drink.

But more than all else, Brandimist, with its exquisite and unexcelled taste appeal is America's greatest achievement in the making of carbonated beverages. You will discover this with the first drink.

Years of work by one of the best known carbonated beverage chemists of the 20th century were required to perfect the formula of Brandimist, which has resulted in a beverage that is truly a tribute to America's educated taste.

At Fountains and in Bottles.

A prompt and efficient delivery service to dealers and dispensers in all parts of the city. A generous sample will be delivered without charge.

LET BRANDIMIST INTRODUCE YOU TO A NEW AND DELIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE IN CARBONATED BEVERAGES TODAY.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SUNDAY JULY 18th, 1926

HAIL TO THE KING OF GOLF—This vast throng of Atlanta admirers gathered on the plaza of the Terminal station to greet Bobby Jones on his return from winning the American and British open championships. He already held the American amateur title. (Price)

"IT'S GREAT TO BE A GEORGIAN" — Particularly when watermelons are ripe on the vine. Miss Melva Coffee, of Douglas, shows how to dispose of a succulent slice of melon a la naturelle. (Rogers)

THE CONQUERING HERO HIMSELF—Borne aloft on the shoulders of members of the Atlanta Athletic club, the colors of which he carries, is Bobby Jones, holder of three of the world's greatest golf honors, an accomplishment no other man has ever boasted. (Rogers)

THEY MOTORED OVER TO SEE BOBBY—Not Fifth avenue but the Spring street viaduct in the heart of Atlanta carrying four lines of automobile traffic immediately after Bobby Jones' return from his victorious golf invasion of Britain and the east. (Holloway)

OH, BOY! THEY'RE LUSCIOUS!—Referring to both the peaches on the tree and under it. The two pretty girls enjoying a shady feast on ripe Georgia peaches are Misses Elizabeth Astin and Bobby Burns, of Fitzgerald. (Rogers)

MAE'S LATEST ACQUISITION—Prince David Divani is Mae Murray's most recent husband. They are shown together a short while after the ceremony in Los Angeles The prince works in the movies.

WELL CHAPERONED—President Coolidge takes a rest and has this sort of thing to contend with all of the time. The detachment of marines will be on duty during the president's stay at Lake Osgood.

"THANKSGIVING FOR BATTLE OF LEPANTO," one of the 52 paintings selected as the world's greatest. This masterpiece was painted by Raolo Cogliari, known as Veronese For story of this painting, see today's Constitution Magazine.

SEMINARY HONOR GRADUATE — Miss Jean Duval, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Duval, of Piedmont road, who graduated in the 1926 class of Washington seminary with high honors. (Winn)

"THE MODERN MADAM DUBARRY"—And not having seen the original of that name, many are bold enough to assert that Maria Corda, German stage and film star, has her backed off the boards. Fraulein Corda is noted for her exceptional power of facial expression as you will note if you will kindly glance upward a bit. Thanks. (Herbert)

"MISS JENKINS"—She's Miss Winnie Smith, of Millen, who represented Jenkins county in the Savannah water carnival.

SHE'S A "WAMPUS"—Eleanor Boardman is shown with the enormous loving cup awarded her as the "wampus" baby star who made the greatest achievement in films for 1926. She has been selected to play the feminine lead opposite John Gilbert in "Bardelys the Magnificent" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

OLDEST LIVING THING ON EARTH is this giant redwood, monarch of the Sequoia National park forest. It is known as the General Sherman tree, and its age is estimated at over 4,000 years. Its trunk is 35 feet in diameter 12 feet above the roots and is still growing. Thousands of tourists visit it each year, and it is known the world over as one of the most wonderful things of the universe.

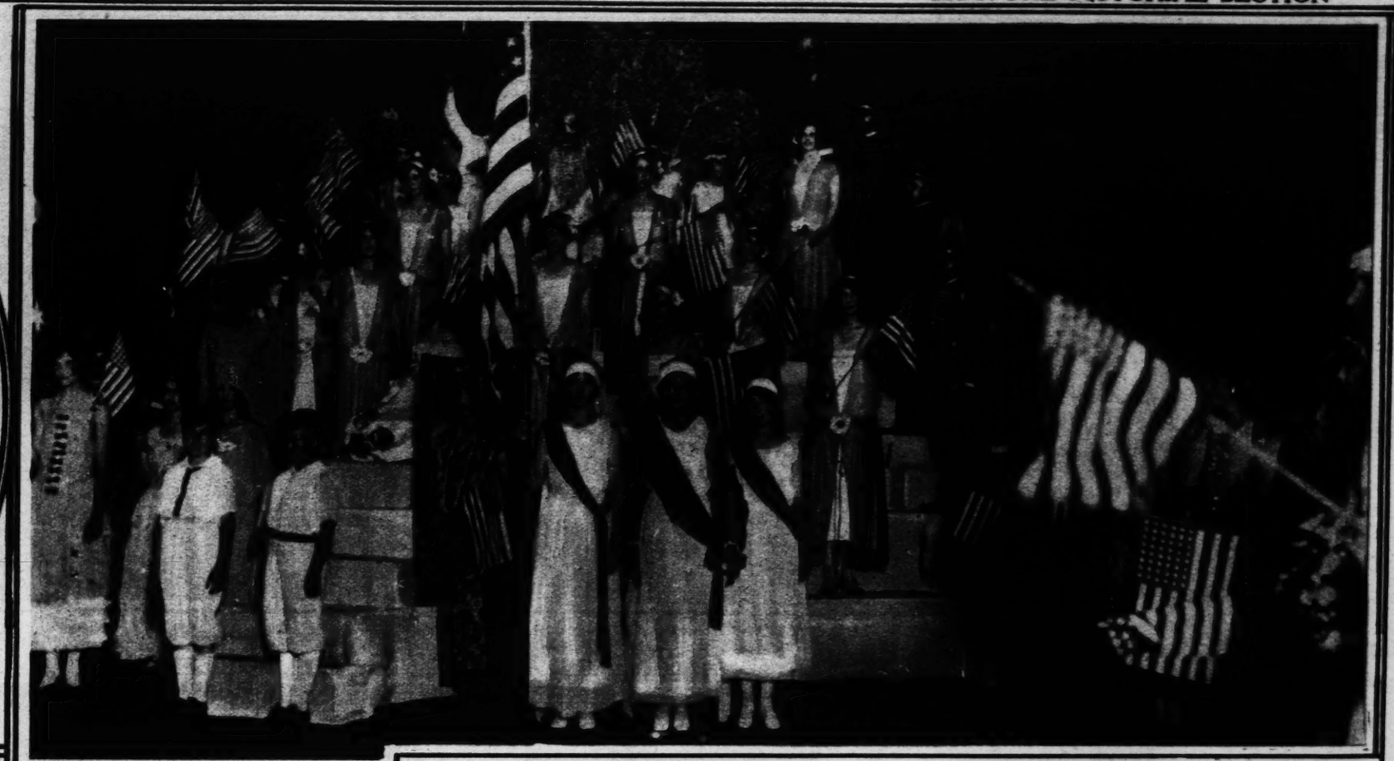

ATLANTA GIRLS TRAINING FOR SALES FORCE OF SEARS, ROEBUCK—This big group of Atlantans who are receiving instructions in Chicago, Philadelphia and Dallas stores of Sears, Roebuck and Company in order that they may man the new Atlanta store on Ponce de Leon avenue was snapped in front of the pool in the sunken garden at the Chicago store. Merchandise already has been sent by carloads to the Atlanta store in order that it may begin operation as soon as the big structure is completed.

THE TOWER OF BARRELS—Modern and unique edifice erected by the youth of Peabody, Mass., which was fired and became a flaming beacon for a hundred miles on July 4, the monster bonfire being in celebration of the birth of American independence. (International)

GEORGIA BEAUTIES COMPETE—In Savannah water carnival for title of "Miss Georgia." Girls from a score of counties were represented in the event. (Foltz)

SCREVEN COUNTY ENTRY—Miss Mary Alice Waters occupies the throne of this beautiful float. (Foltz)

THE LIONS OF THE A. C. L.—Attracted widespread attention at the Savannah water carnival on this float entered in the parade by the Coast Line. (Foltz)

YOU BE THE JUDGE—This remarkable photo shows the finish of the Carter handicap at Aqueduct. It was one of the closest decisions ever made by race judges. Nedda (on outside) and Macaw (on rail) appear almost as one horse. (International)

SAFETY FIRST!—Los Angeles claims to have the best police force in the world. To prove that it seeks to prevent trouble at all times, this cop takes the proverbial "stitch in time." (Herbert)

HONOR GRADUATE—Miss Elizabeth Curtis, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Curtis, honor graduate of Girls' High school who has been elected to the local chapter of Cum Laude. She completed the course in three and a half years and will go to Brenau. (Elliott & Leonard)

DINNER IS SERVED, SIR—This is "Uncle Mack" Galbreth's way of announcing meals to his campers at Lake Burton. "Uncle Mack" and his camp are known to hundreds of Atlantans who vacation in the north Georgia mountains. The bell was presented him by Frank Wickersham. It was the first used by the Atlanta and West Point Railroad. (Rogers)

OUT FOR THEIR ANNUAL LARK—Employees of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company at Idlewood, on Tucker road, enjoying an old-fashioned basket dinner, which was a feature of the annual outing of the big store's employees.

MAY BE DRY CHIEF—When the resignation of General Lincoln C. Andrews as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement becomes effective this fall, it is reported that Major General John F. O'Ryan, shown here, will be named to succeed him. (International)

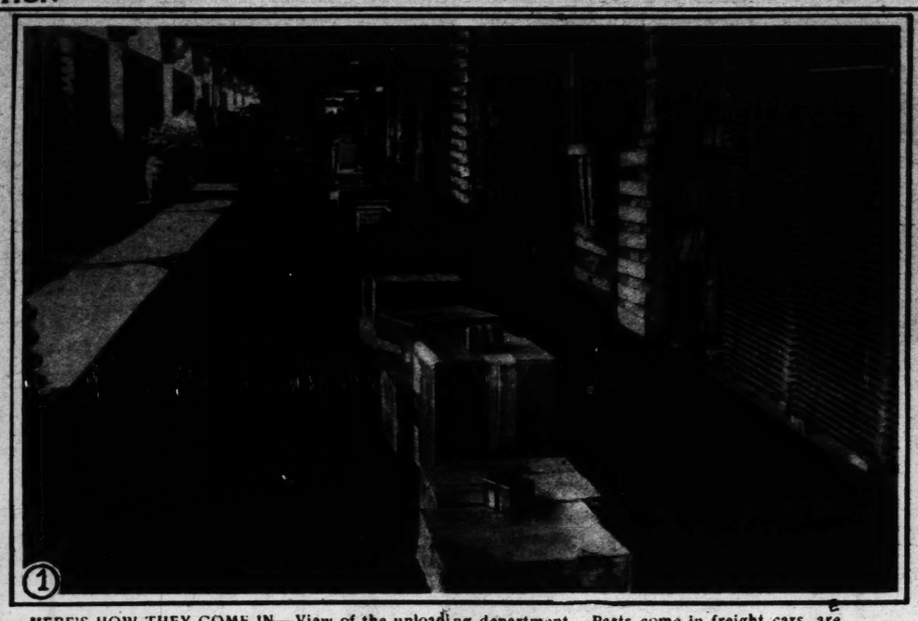

HEIRESS TO WED RIDING MASTER—A romance that started last New Year's eve has resulted in the marriage of Mary Hammond, 22, heiress to the Hammond opal millions in California, to Viggo Lacour Peterson, riding master. Peterson defended Miss Hammond against the unwelcome attentions of a rowdy in the New Year's celebration. (International)

A MODERN MIRACLE of MACHINERY

Of all Atlanta's industries, none holds more interest than does the Ford automobile plant on Ponce de Leon avenue, a great commercial structure that is the home of efficiency and expert skill and speed. The capacity of the plant is 250 cars every eight hours, or one car every one and three-quarter minutes. The branch employs 700 men, who are able to assemble a complete Ford automobile within 45 minutes. A period of a day and a half is required to turn out a finished automobile, including painting.

HERE'S HOW THEY COME IN—View of the unloading department. Parts come in freight cars, are loaded on a conveyor and are passed on into the big building.

MAIN BODY AND ASSEMBLY LINE—Here touring car and roadster bodies are built by expert workmen.

ON THE WAY TO THE PAINTER—Ford plant employees are shown finishing construction of a body in preparation to transmitting it to the painting department.

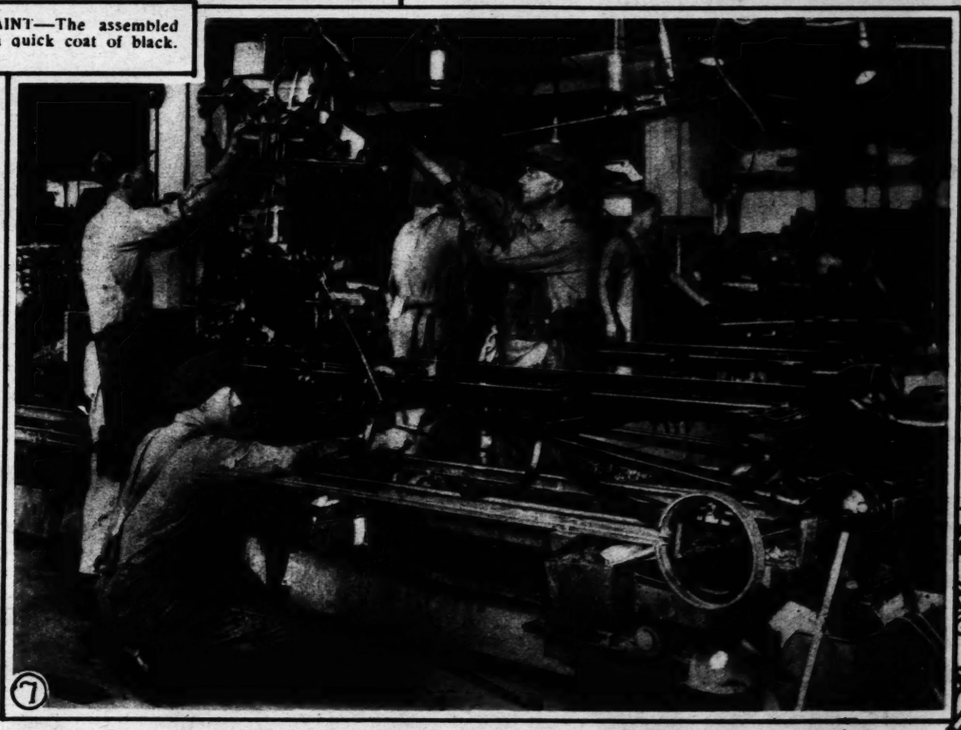

HE SPRAYS THE PAINT—The assembled body is here getting a quick coat of black.

BEING ALL DOLLED UP—In the trim department the bodies are upholstered, finished and thoroughly inspected.

ACQUIRING A TOP — Windshields and tops are installed on the finished bodies during their visit to the top department.

THE CHASSIS ASSEMBLY —Front and rear axles, frames and motors are here assembled, adjusted and carefully tested.

MOTORIZED—In this department the engine of the growing car is installed and tightened in the frame.

GETTING THE FINAL TOUCHES—At this stage of the game the chassis is equipped with wheels, radiator, spare tire conveyor, fenders, splash apron and running boards.

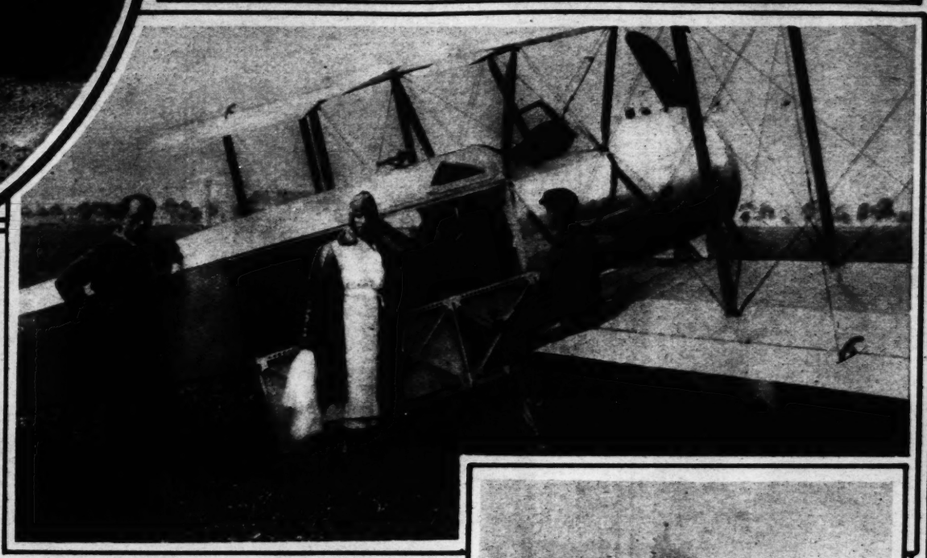

READY FOR THE ROAD—The final operation in the assembling and inspecting process is when the motor and rear axle are "run in" and adjusted, the entire car again is tested and driven out on its own power.

BUNNYLAND'S EXTREMES—The largest and he smallest of rabbits on a California farm are shown here. The little fellow is four inches long and weighs a pound and a half. The big fellow is two and a half feet long and weighs more than four pounds. (International)

AERIAL RED CROSS NURSE—Mlle. Titiania, famous French newspaperwoman, aviator and army nurse has returned to Paris from the Moroccan front driving her own Red Cross plane ambulance, in which she carried wounded soldiers from many bloody battlefields. (Herbert)

WHY RAIDO FANS GO NUTTY—Here's a new use for antenna as discovered by a Los Angeles girl. It makes great curls but interferes with reception. (Herbert)

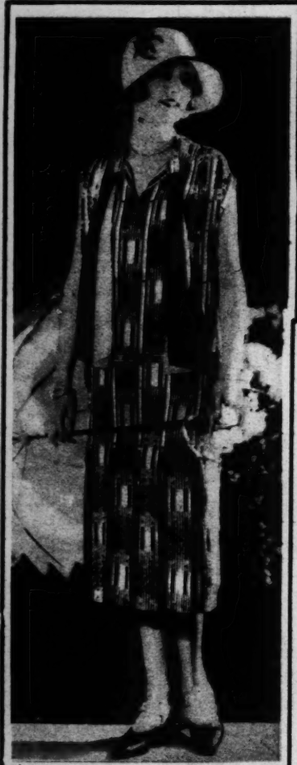

"DIAMOND DICK" TO DO BATTLE—This Texas rattlesnake, poised ready to strike, will engage in mortal combat with "Old Black Joe," Missouri blacksnake, at San Antonio. Missourians claim the blacksnake can kill the rattler, and if "Old Black Joe" is as deadly as they say, many of his fellows will be imported into Texas to rid that state of rattlers. (International)

SEASHORE MOTIF—Pervades this novel hand-painted bathing suit with marine-decorated cape. The material is cashmere and the design is painted in green with silver touches. (Herbert)

DAINTY FROCK FOR GARDEN PARTIES — American-designed summer dress of printed silk in unique white and maroon. Features of the costume are a short, turn-down collar, scarf tie and simple, straight-line motif. (Herbert)

WORLD'S TATTOOED CHAMP. David Warfoed, veteran of the Spanish-American war and one of Roosevelt's famous rough riders, says that every mark of the needle on his body is in memory of his army service. (International)

"MAMA, MAKE JOHNNY COME BACK"—Look at the venturesome Johnny poised perilously on an overhanging rock at Glacier Point in Yosemite National park while little sister frets. If Johnny fell he would drop 1,800 feet, then bounce on a ledge and drop another 1,500 feet—which probably would deter Johnny from crawling out into dizzy space again.

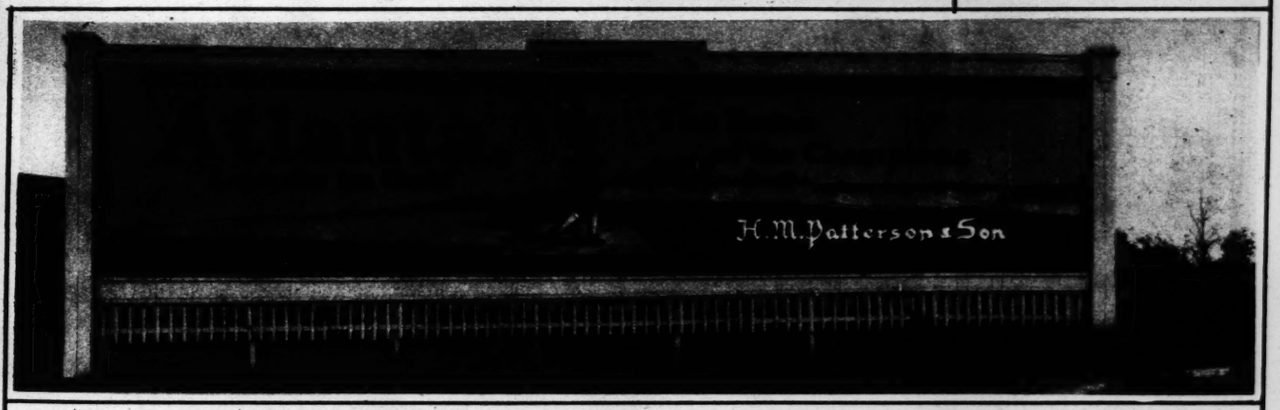

HAVANA'S FAIREST ROSE—Introducing the Senorita Raquel Albert, queen of beauty in Havana, the city of cigars and wondrous stories of tourists. The senorita is being feted in Paris and—as usual—will visit America. (Herbert)

DISPLAY BOARD ERECTED BY H. M. PATTERSON AND SON, Funeral Directors, on the Stone Mountain road, indicating a remarkable liberal program of advertising. The plan will mean much to the upbuilding of Atlanta.

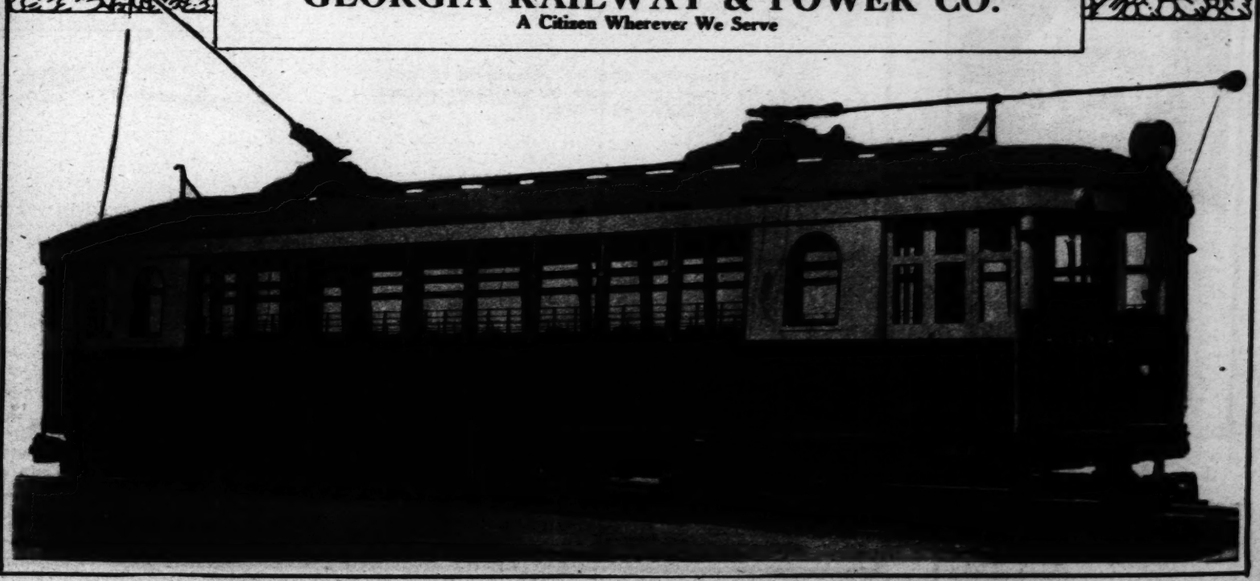

INTERURBAN SERVICE DE LUXE

GEORGIA RAILWAY & POWER CO.

A Citizen Wherever We Serve

EVEN NATURE HAS HER HOBBIES—In proof of which statement, gaze upon this rampant steed formed by the freak roots of a tree found in the wilds of the Sierra Madre and brought to Pasadena to serve as a charger for these two delectable equestriennes. (Herbert)

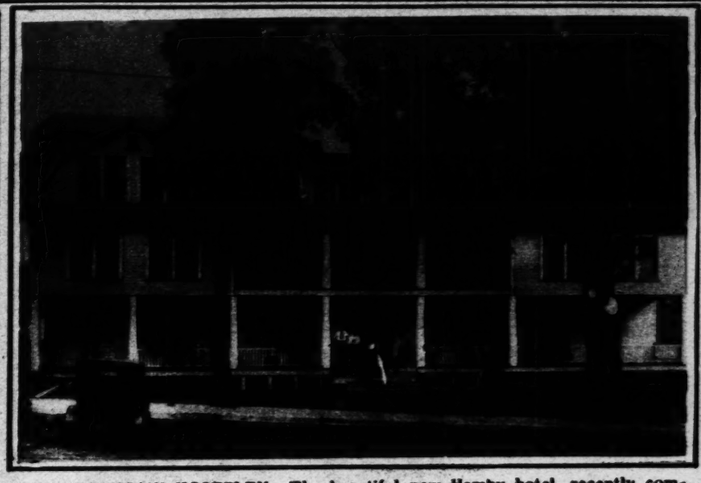

VARIETY FOR POPULAR FEW. Miss Neal Few, popular member of Hendersonville, N. C., society, is presented the NORRIS Variety Box of exquisite candles as a sweet vacation companion.

PROHI WEATHERMAN QUITS JOB—General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of dry enforcement, has ceased to issue official "continued fair and dry" forecasts. Instead he has thrown up his job and gone for a vacation in moist Europe. (International)

BEAUTIES OF GEORGIA'S MOUNTAINS—Are luring home-builders to the hills. This scene was taken in the vicinity of Mountain City, Ga., which is witnessing heavy development. (Francis E. Price)

NATURE'S OWN SHOWERBATH—Beautiful falls on Sylvan lake, near Mountain City, Ga. (Francis E. Price)

HEALER SUCCUMBS TO DEATH—Dr. Emile Coue, famous French physician whose formula, "Day by day in every way, I am getting better," died recently in Paris, a victim, it is said, of overwork. Although ill for some time, he insisted on continuing his lectures and healing sessions. (international)

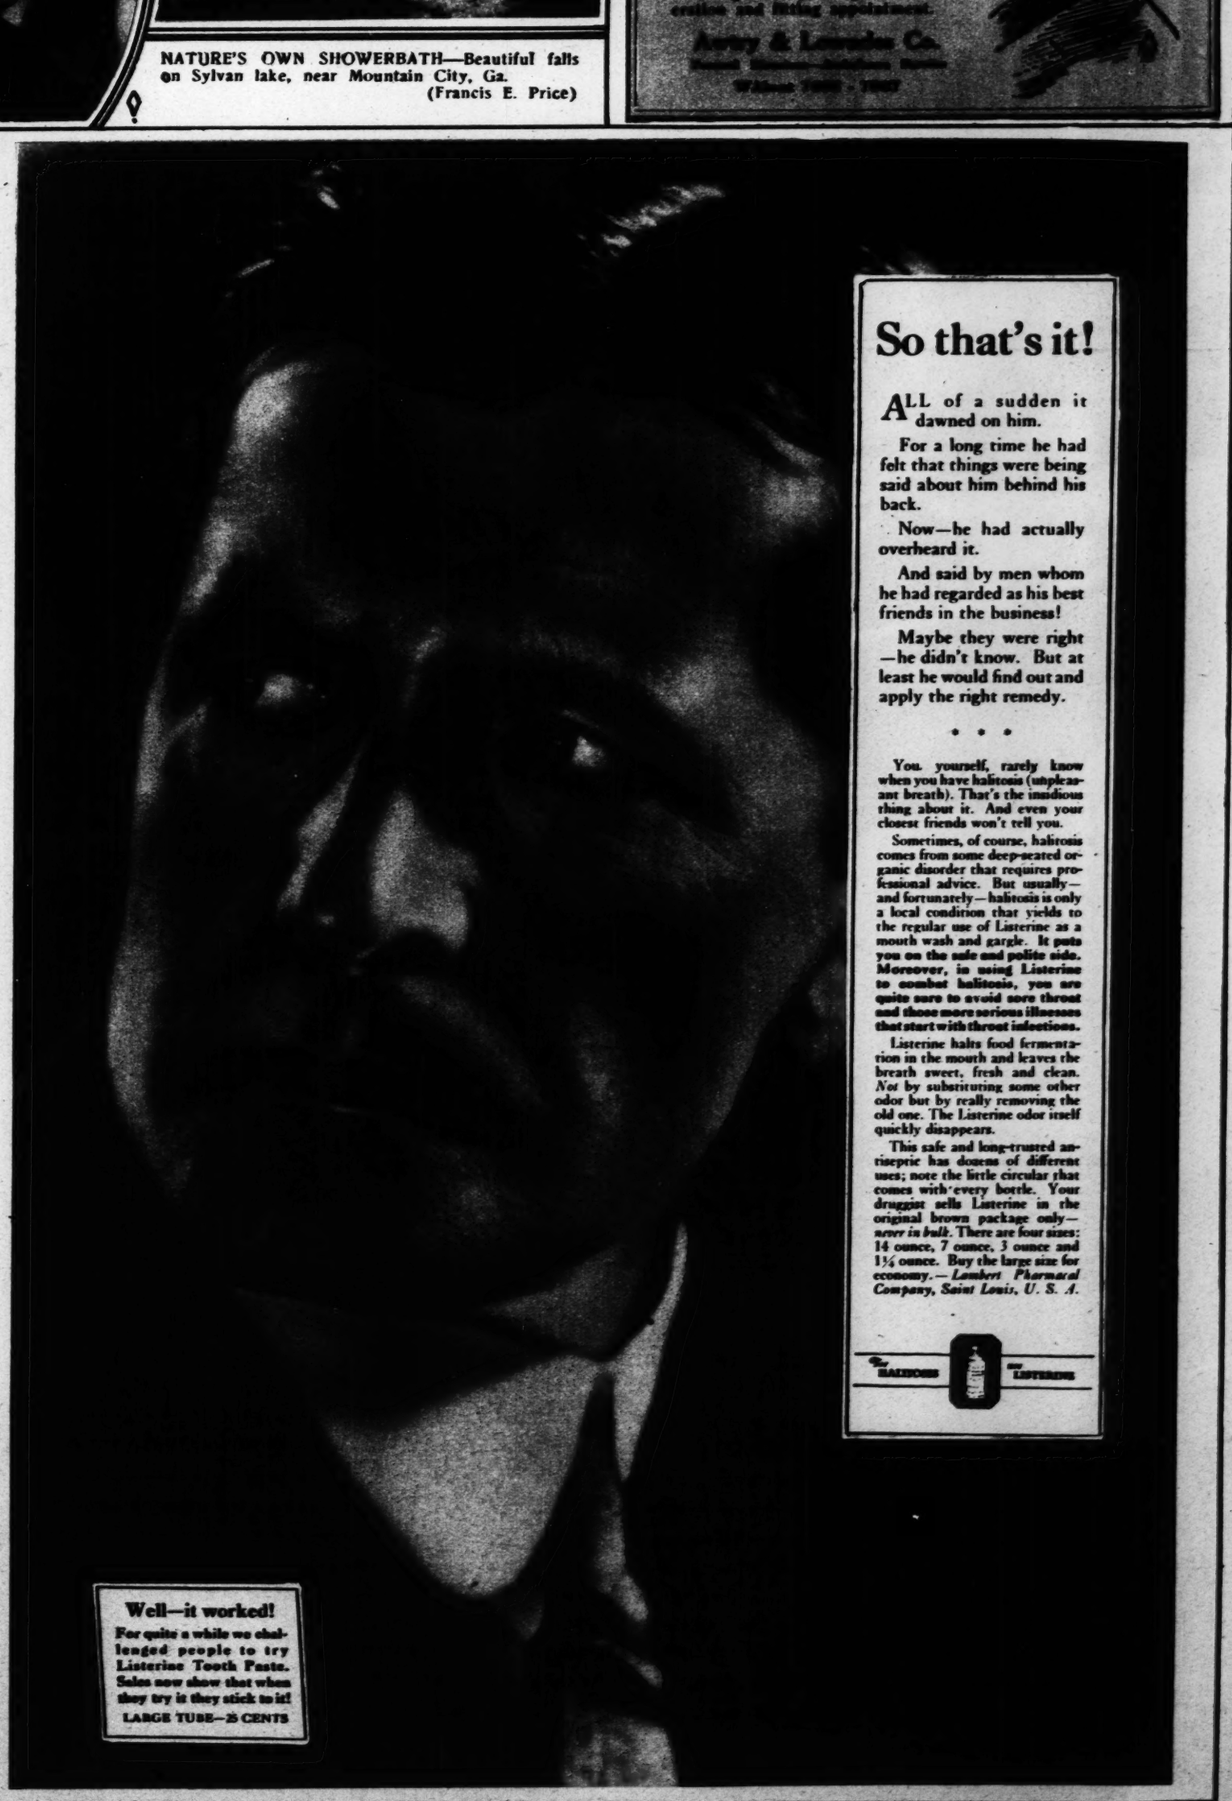

BOYS' HEROES IN BRONZE—Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer, immortal characters from the pen of Mark Twain, are perpetuated in this memorial just unveiled at Hannibal, Mo. It is the work of Frederick Hubbard and is the gift of George R. Mahan and his family. (Hegbert)

WAR VET WINS WAY BACK TO HOME—Major Lucien J. Rode, said to be the first of about 10,000 world war veterans stranded abroad because of the immigration law, to arrive in the United States. He was permitted to enter under the act recently signed by the president. (International)

So that's it!

ALL of a sudden it dawned on him.

For a long time he had felt that things were being said about him behind his back.

Now—he had actually overheard it.

And said by men whom he had regarded as his best friends in the business!

Maybe they were right—he didn't know. But at least he would find out and apply the right remedy.

You, yourself, rarely know when you have halitosis (unpleasant breath). That's the insidious thing about it. And even your closest friends won't tell you.

Sometimes, of course, halitosis comes from some deep-seated organic disorder that requires professional advice. But usually—and fortunately—halitosis is only a local condition that yields to the regular use of Listerine as a mouth wash and gargle. It puts you on the safe and polite side. Moreover, in using Listerine to combat halitosis, you are quite sure to avoid sore throat and those more serious illnesses that start with throat infections.

Listerine halts food fermentation in the mouth and leaves the breath sweet, fresh and clean. Not by substituting some other odor but by really removing the old one. The Listerine odor itself quickly disappears.

This safe and long-trusted antiseptic has dozens of different uses; note the little circular that comes with every bottle. Your druggist sells Listerine in the original brown package only—never in bulk. There are four sizes: 14 ounce, 7 ounce, 3 ounce and 1½ ounce. Buy the large size for economy.—Lambert Pharmacal Company, Saint Louis, U. S. A.

When vacation time has come again — and you're off in your car for the land of carefree outdoors
—have a Camel!

WHEN glad vacation time again is here. And you're hurrying away to a world of carefree forgetfulness. Ah, then—when straight ahead lie the great woods and sparkling waters of your own outdoors—have a Camel!

For Camel's friendly goodness makes every fair vacation fairer. Each happy day is more satisfying, more restful for the companionship of Camels. Camels have never been known to tire the taste—they are made of such choice tobaccos. Camels are so perfectly blended that, indoors or outdoors, they never leave a cigaretty after-taste. Rolled into Camels is more sheer smoking enjoyment than you ever found in any other cigarette.

So as you start away for a deserved vacation. As the long road calls you on to unexplored land. When each day you feel more joyously rested—taste then the most perfect contentment that ever came from a cigarette. When it's your right to be happy, you should have the best cigarette made, regardless of price.

Have a Camel!

Camels are sold wherever civilization has its stores. If going into the deep woods or far back in the mountains where trade and people have not come, better take several cartons of Camels with you. You'll find "Have a Camel" the password to friendliness, everywhere.

Our highest wish, if you do not yet know and enjoy Camel quality, is that you may try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

The WITCH'S HAT

by Douglas Newton

Was Never a Stranger Errand Than the One That Sent Mark Stonor Roaming the Southern Sea, Searching for a Green Island and a Silver Strand.

ON THAT evening in July when every one seemed talking of Mark Stonor's brilliance in saving Jerome Brann from imprisonment for fraud, Old Burdon, who had briefed the young barrister, was saying: "But the ball is at your feet, Mark; to go off now for a long sea voyage—why, it's sheer folly."

Mark Stonor, staring out at the lovely dinginess of the Temple, answered without turning round: "Oh, I don't know. The courts will be up in a week or two, and I'll have the whole of the long vacation before me."

"You haven't," said Old Burdon. "You'll have people tumbling over each other to secure you for the Michaelmas sittings. Don't you realize that you are on the verge of fame, that now or never is your chance?"

"I know," said Mark, turning a troubled face to the solicitor. "But —I've got to go."

"It's flaunting fortune," cried Old Burdon. "Even a man of your ability mustn't run away from his opportunity like this. There'll be work in chambers, for instance."

"I'm sorry, sir," said Mark Stonor, "but I've told you before how it is— I just seem to have to go."

Old Burdon frowned. As Mark indicated, this was not the first time he had gone off in this queer, strange way. It gave him another line of attack.

"Even apart from missing work," he said, "what are people going to think of a barrister, however able, who goes off when the whim moves him on such mad vagabondage? What possesses you, my boy?"

"I don't know," said Mark Stoner, frowning and reddening. "I call myself a fool, too, and yet I go—I sometimes think it is in my blood. I think my father must have been a sailor, sir."

The older man shot a quick look at the fine, clear cut face.

"I should have argued your father was a lawyer," he said. "Your gifts suggest that is in your blood, too."

He seemed to be trying to find out something as he spoke, but Mark was too concerned with his own strange emotions to notice. He said slowly: "That, too. I seem to be the prey of two obsessions—the law and the sea. Nearly always the law is the stronger and seems to command my whole life. But then the sea begins to pull, and it is more powerful. It's a sort of fever, a command to go off —somewhere. I try to fight it, but I can't. It comes between me and everything. When I lost you the Lemoin case, that was through trying to beat it under. I had made up my mind that this going off was ridiculous and this time I would not go. But all the time I should have been fighting for Lemoin the tug was at me, I could think of nothing else—and I made a hash of that case."

He walked to the window again and stared out. Old Burdon's keen eyes watched him sympathetically. He knew the boy's history.

Mark went on: "I must go. I can't explain it well, but it's as though I did wrong by not going. It's as though I shall miss something, leave something undone by not going. And I'm afraid of missing something."

"What?" asked Old Burdon sharply.

"I don't know—it's only a feeling, you know. Just the queer pull to go out there to—something. Perhaps it's nothing after all, a memory of my forgotten childhood, a stain inherited from my lost father. It's absurd, it plays the deuce with my career. But I've got to go."

"What does your stepfather say?" asked Old Burdon.

"O, he thinks I'm foolish, too; but he has become resigned to my idiocy. And then he—he half understands my impulse. He feels that I am searching for my parents and that one day I might pick up facts about them."

"But you never have?" said the old solicitor, watching him closely.

"No, sir; not a thing. Perhaps I never shall—still, it may be the instinct to find out who I really am that is driving me on. I might find out something some day."

"You might," said Old Burdon slowly, and he sat back and stared out of the window himself. Then he said in a determinedly light tone, "You might find something to make you stay down there where you were found, and I should be robbed of the most promising junior I'd ever briefed; so, before you go, I think I'd better get as much out of you as possible." He pulled out a drawer. "You might look into these three cases and give me your opinion on them. Oh, and here's another, an old matter, Whillon versus Clavell. We lost that case many years ago, but some new evidence has lately come to hand. Look through it and see if it is worth reopening."

Mark Stonor left Old Burdon's office, genuinely sorry that he should seem to fail the great lawyer who had done so much for him, yet elated that soon he would be on the sea again and away—away down to the warm seas that so strangely called him. All through his life this queer pull had commanded him and forced him to obey; all through his short life his career had been threatened with shipwreck because, at an impulse and at short notice, he had packed up, left everything, and set out for those strange sunlit waters that called and called to him with a strange imperativeness.

During boyhood this tugging at his heartstrings had been a meaningless torment until one day the man he called father, Roger Stonor, had explained much to him. He was not really Roger Stonor's son, but a castaway. He had been the only white survivor of some wreck in the South Seas. Roger Stonor had been making a journey from Australia to California with his wife in the ship that effected the rescue. This ship had been forced out of its course by the storms that must have wrecked the vessel the child, now Mark Stonor, had sailed in.

One day a small group of atolls had been sighted and would have been ignored, for they were charted as uninhabited, only smoke was seen rising from one of them. A boat putting ashore found three Kanakas in an advanced state of exhaustion, and a native woman who was expending the last remnants of her strength in the care of a very sickly white infant.

These were taken back to the ship, and the nurse died in the course of the day, and one of the Kanakas a few days later. The two remaining Kanakas had practically nothing to say about the white child.

They had been the deck hands of an inter-island trading schooner. They had been beating up towards the Constellations during a stiff blow when they sighted a cutter making very heavy weather. This cutter followed them into Lagoon inlet, which is the only good harbor of the Constellations, and a boat came off from it. It brought aboard a tall, thin white man, an old Chinaman, his body servant, the native woman nurse, and the white child, who was very ill. This white man had bargained with the captain of the schooner to carry them quickly to a nearby port so that a doctor could attend to the child. The little cutter was too dangerous a craft for such weather.

The man's price must have been good, for the master of the schooner put out against the barometer and a day later was caught in the bad weather which wrecked him. He, his mate, and the thin white man were drowned when the schooner went down in deep water. Four Kanakas got ashore with the woman and Chinaman, both badly hurt, and the child. They had been on the island more than a week before being picked up, during which time one Kanaka and later the old Chinaman died.

Before she died the native nurse had been unable to speak, and the surviving natives could tell nothing about the child, its name or from where it came. The woman and the Chinaman seemed to have been curiously secretive and dwelt apart with the child on the atoll. They had learned that the white man was not the father of the child, but the brother of the mother, but whether the mother and father were alive, and if so, where they lived, had not been discovered. The Kanakas had never before seen the cutter that appeared so mysteriously out of the sea, and the cutter had added to the mystery by being nameless. There was nothing on the baby to help identification.

Apart from an insufficiently maternal stewardess, Roger Stonor's wife was the only woman on the rescuing ship, and she, with the aid of

By the time San Francisco was reached he had become a fine, healthy boy of between three and four years old. And something else had happened. He had endeared himself to the childless Stonors, to Roger quite as much as to his wife, and they had made up their minds to adopt him, if possible. It proved only too possible. The child's parents were never found, though Roger Stonor, a rich solicitor, had done all that was humanely possible by lawyer and advertisement to trace them. It was, in time, decided that mother and father must have gone down with the cutter in the rough weather and that the child must be an orphan. He was therefore given the name of Mark Stonor and brought up as their child.

This revelation, though leaving Mark with a certain blank, served to explain a great deal. It explained what he had thought were his queer dreams. They had been strange dreams for one who lived in cities. There had been ships in them and the lilt and swing of the sea. Some had the throb and the heave and the sense of stuffiness of a small steamer cabin, with the face of a woman bending over him. That was probably Mrs. Stonor nursing him back to life on the small ship that rescued him. The vast swinging deck of a liner was undoubtedly that one which carried them all from America to England.

But the other dreams had wanted some placing. The dream of a small kicking deck and sails that swung clattering above his head, of a black man snatching him up in his arms because somehow the swing of that sail had meant danger to him, of seas coming with a flounce and a crash over the bows of a small ship, and his game at being frightened at these seas. And half naked brown men who had laughed with a great display of bright teeth at his pretense of fright.

He had never been able to understand how the heave and rush of that small sailing ship had got into his dreams before Roger Stonor explained. Nor the wonderful brightness of the days through which that ship sailed; nor the little fairyland of green islands that shyly crept by them at times. Only when Stonor spoke of his hidden past did he realize that he must have sailed on that small vessel —the cutter, perhaps, or a schooner —and sailed on it for a long time.

His father, he came to think, must have been the master of that vessel. From amid his glittering dreams he disentangled a tall, somber man with a beard.

There was another white man, too, a tall, thin one, undoubtedly the uncle who had been drowned on the inter-island schooner. And there had been a woman, a dear woman. She carried him and played with him a lot. She was, he felt, his real mother. And yet he wondered if this was but a mere confusion of memory, because in his dreams that woman also seemed to be bending over him in a stuffy ship's cabin as well as in a hot, bright room of some house on land. Was he mixing this dear memory up with Mrs. Stonor, who had also been lovely and tender?

The house on land was by a thundering blue sea. It was set against dancing green palms on the edge of a beach of silver. He remembered that sand with glamour. The feet slipped back in it as one walked. Also it had a glorious hot, tickling effect if let escape from the hands on to the bare legs. The whole of the memory of this place was exquisite; its color, its jewel-like flowers, the clear, warm wonder of its sunlight, the vision of the small sailing ship anchored off shore and looking like a lovely toy, and finally the queer single hill away to the right, which somehow came to his memory as the Witch's Hat. It was always in the picture, that queer, sharp hill that rose so abruptly out of a mat of greenery that seemed to make its brim. But why he called it the Witch's Hat he did not know. Had the woman made up a story about it?

The loveliness of this place, the thunder of the sea on the silver white beach, the heave and dip of the sea under the small dancing vessel, the memory of the dear woman had wrung him all during his boyhood, dragged at him with a strange and powerful allure. Ralph Stonor did not know of this nor had he spoken of Mark's past, save from some mention of the fact that they had traveled in his boyhood. It was only when Mark, after a delicious, agonizing spell of such dreams and longings, had said that on the whole he thought he wouldn't be a lawyer, as he had planned, but would become a sailor, that Roger Stonor told him about his rescue from the atoll.

Roger Stonor told him in the hope of settling his mind. He had noted that the boy, he was in his middle teens then, had been vague, dreamy, disturbed, and his brilliant school work had fallen off in consequence. When Mark spoke of his desire to go to sea, Roger Stonor felt he understood the pull of the blood. He told the story, emphasizing the fact that the boy's father and mother had probably been lost at sea. He wanted to make Mark feel the cruelty of the sea, to make him hostile to it as the murderer of his parents.

He did not altogether succeed. The revelation of his early days seemed to satisfy the boy for a time. He passed some glamorous weeks dwelling on the mystery and wonder of his birth, and during that time his passion to go out on the sea spent its force. He went back to his work with the curious lucid brilliance and acuteness that foreshadowed a future of exceptional capacities.

The lawyer in Roger Stonor was delighted to observe that all the tendencies of his adopted son were towards the law. By the time he went up to Cambridge it was already plain that Mark was a born lawyer; that, indeed, there might be, as Old Burdon had argued, something in his blood that gave him outstanding qualities in pleading. He swept the board at Cambridge, though he gave Mark Stonor a period of panic. In his second year he threw over all his plans for the long vacation and went off on a vagabondage in the South Seas.

He didn't attempt to explain himself; he just said he felt he had to go. The curious tug had come to him again. Whether it had been aroused by going to a South Seas play, then acted in town, or whether some inner impulse had moved him, he did not know, but he did abruptly become the victim of a vague but overwhelming desire.

He must go down to that place where he had been found, feel the heave and kick of a small ship under him, hear the wind in the sails, see the wonder seas and dancing green of palms. He must look and look for a beach of silver and a bright house against emerald foliage. He must look for the Witch's Hat. It was a pull, a reasonless pull. He felt that his parents were dead, that he would find nothing to establish his name down there in the jeweled seas of the south; and, indeed, that scarcely moved him, for he was content with the name he bore—but he just had to go. There was something down there.

Roger Stonor let him go, and spent many anxious months. He saw all his hopes of Mark ruined, and the boy a wandering sailor among the islands. But Mark came back in time. He had traveled Malaysia and did not like it. There were too many biting insects in Borneo; Java was hot, uncomfortable, and noisy; the other islands did not appeal to him. He found life on small steamers monotonous, and the schooners were cramped and sometimes dirty. Queer—there had been none of the glamour of dreams in actuality, and he was glad to be back in town. He had learned nothing at all about himself, except, as he told Roger Stonor, "That I definitely haven't a love of sailoring in me."

He was certain of that. Roger Stonor, lately a widower and fearful that Mark would leave him, rejoiced. He watched Mark's career at Cambridge and gloriously, saw him brilliantly begin his studies for the bar.

There was no doubt from the first that Mark had exceptional talents for criminal law. He was an outstanding student in an outstanding year. And not only had he great gifts; he had great luck. Sir Henry Burdon, a Bencher of his Inn, picked him out at a big dinner one night. During that meal Mark Stonor had noticed this old man staring at him with a strangely searching look. A companion at table had told him that this was Old Burdon of Burdon, Predell & Burdon, "one of the mandarins before whom we mere barristers bow," the man said. "If a nabob like that briefs the likes of us, then the future is all motors and glory."

Mark was fascinated by the great solicitor, but astounded when Old Burdon sought him out after dinner and demanded his name, Mark told it, and wondered why Old Burdon stared. Mark said, "I'm the son, or rather adopted son, of Roger Stonor, whom you may know, sir."

"Adopted son," echoed Old Burdon, and stared harder, and then began to talk of other things, drawing Mark out with a good deal of cleverness. Mark thought no more of this, but a week later Roger Stonor told him that Old Burdon had called on him and shown a great interest in Mark, so great an interest that he foresaw a career already in the making for his adopted son.

He was justified—though Mark himself threatened to wreck it. Old Burdon seemed to make a point of being intimate with Roger Stonor for the sake of Mark. He became a friend of the family; he was enthusiastic about the young man's cleverness, and when Mark passed to the full status of barrister he was ready with the first brief.

Mark knew it was folly. He knew he was endangering a career; he knew he had been disillusioned before. But he had to go. The strange, commanding force was too strong. He felt that somewhere, down there on the wine colored seas and under the gold of the sun, was—something. He must go. He dare not resist.

Roger Stonor, in a panic, talked to Old Burdon, asked him to persuade the boy and to suggest other holidays. Old Burdon tried, and yet it was Old Burdon who sent him off. He looked strangely at Mark for some minutes, then said: "Let him go. We won't hold him while this is on him. And perhaps he ought to go."

This time Mark wandered the islands from the Ladrones to the Sporades—and then came back. He was not so dissatisfied with things this time. He had seen beauty, if schooner sailing was still cramped and rather dirty. He came back because the pull had dwindled and gone, leaving him once more pure lawyer and a denizen of cities. On this trip he had tried to find out something about himself, about a trading captain of 22 years ago who sailed with his wife on a cutter. He tried to find out about an island with a hill like a witch's hat on it. He found nothing.

For the next two years he steadily built up a career and a reputation, justifying all Roger Stonor's and Old Burdon's hopes of him. He was certainly the most promising junior at the criminal bar, and his extraordinary flair and thoroughness in defenses suggested that the day was not far off when he would be wearing silk and when he would be a leader in all the greatest cases of the day.

For two years he demonstrated his astonishing natural genius for law—then the old strange urge came to him once more. The command to be off and wandering on the warm seas assaulted him in the middle of his work. He fought it, and in doing so turned his mind into a turmoil that lost him the Lemoin case. His reputation suffered a little over that, for he had already shown that he should win his verdict, and his failure startled people. Old Burdon readily agreed to let him go off on a holiday, for he thought the young man was overworked. And Mark had spent months in Australasian waters, wandering and asking questions and trying to find out if there was such an island as that which had a hill like a witch's hat.

He had returned, obliterated every doubt about him the Lemoin business had called up in a single dazzling case, and had stepped out on the highway of fame. For more than twelve months he marched along that highway with an assurance that was almost awing. His reputation began to spread beyond the courts. The great public began to realize that when Mark Stonor's name appeared as counsel for the defense it quite frequently meant that he was the counsel who got the verdict.

Finally he had been briefed as leader in the cause celebre of the day; he had defended Jerome Brann, the great financier, against a charge of fraud. Public opinion had made up its mind that Brann was going to jail. But Brann not only did not go to jail, but by the time Mark Stonor had finished with the case Brann was almost a popular figure as a much wronged man. Mark Stonor was more than popular. He had become, decisively, the one man to get by hook or by crook, when a big case had to be defended.

He know that; old Burdon knew it. Old Burdon, Roger Stonor, and he himself had worked for this day. And yet now that the day was here he was going off again, going off on a strange, reasonless vagabondage that might lose him the position he had so laboriously atained.

Well, he couldn't help it; he just had to go, as he had said. Something forced him, something drew him down there. Was it the glamour of the sea and the sun and the shining islands? He did not know. Was it the mystery of his parentage? He did not know. He only knew that the impulse was on him and that he would have no peace until he obeyed. And he obeyed.

He fulfilled his obligations to Old Burdon and gave his opinion on the cases handed to him. Of the case Whillon versus Clavell he said: "An interesting case, that. I don't know why you lost it, sir, even on the old evidence. It seems obvious to me that the solicitor, Clavell, was acting under the instructions of the trustee. The new evidence you have gathered confirms this. I should certainly reopen it. That poor wretch Clavell should be cleared. If—if you could hold it over till I return I'd like to see him. After an interview I feel I might amost guarantee a verdict."

"Well, we might leave it over," said Burdon, who did not seem highly interested. "We'll see." He tossed the papers into his desk and went on to talk of Mark Stonor's trip.

Mark Stonor went down to the South Seas. He went straight through to Australia meaning to catch a boat from Herbert to some southern islands. He had to wait three days for a connection, and, bored and im-

Ed Wynn's Question Box :: :: —BY— ED WYNN

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I have been following the New York milk scandal in the newspapers, with much interest. Apropos of the milk question, one thing has always bothered me. Could you possibly tell me why "cream" is always more expensive than "milk." Yours truly—SUE PERRIN TENDANT.

Answer:—The reason cream is more expensive than milk is simply because it is harder for the cows to sit on little bottles.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—When I was in England last summer, I was simply fascinated by the uniformed policemen in London. What struck my fancy most were the hats they wore. Every hat I saw had a chin strap on it. What I want to know is this: Do they wear those chin straps to keep their hats on? Truly yours—SIM PILTON.

Answer:—Don't be silly, of course not. Those chin straps are for the policemen to rest their jaws on after answering foolish qusetions.

* * * *

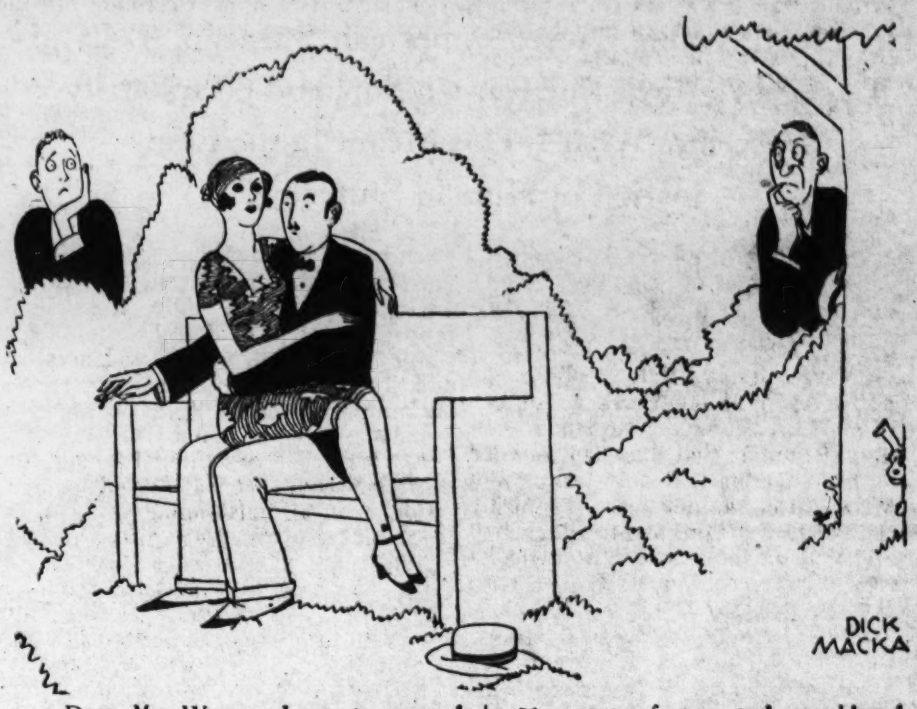

Dear Mr. Wynn:—Is it true that a Scotchman "loves his whisky?" Sincerely—JACK KNIFE.

Answer:—I is true that he loves whisky, but not "his." He loves some one else's.

* * * *

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I am a boy 18 years of age and my ambition is to be a detective. I am supposed to be rather homely, and my father says in order for me to be a detective I will have to have my face lifted and use all kinds of beauty creams. Can you tell me what he means by giving me such foolish advice? Yours truly—O. WATTAFACE.

Answer:—Your father simply means that to be a detective you must be a "good looker."

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I am a young lady 21 years of age and considered very pretty. I am keeping company with three young men about my own age. Is it all right for me to go with three different fellows? Yours truly—I. M. A. FLIRT.

Answer:—It is not all right if the other two find it out.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I am a poor woman and I live on a farm 20 miles out of town. My baby is sick and I was told to bathe the baby in water of a certain temperature. I was also told to use a thermometer in the water so as to be sure the water was the proper temperature. I would not like to spend the money for a thermometer, yet I want to be sure of the water. Is there any way of telling if the water is right for the baby without a thermometer, if so please give details, will you? Truly yours—X. ASPERATED.

Answer:—There is a way to tell about water for a baby without a thermometer. Just follow these instructions: First fill the tub with water. Then undress the baby. Place one hand under the child's neck, and with the other hand take hold of its two feet. Now, put the baby in the tub of water. If the baby turns blue, that shows the water is too cold, while, on the other hand, if the baby gets very red it shows the water is too hot.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—During a conversation at a bridge party some woman passed the remark that there wasn't any difference between a man and a banana peel. It sounds silly to me but this particular woman is considered very bright, so no one questioned her. Have you any idea what she meant by comparing a man and a banana peel? Yours truly—I. BIDSPADES.

Answer:—Her comparison was this: Sometimes a man throws a banana peel in the gutter, and sometimes a banana peel throws a man in the gutter.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—When ministers play golf and make a bad shot, what do they do? The reason I ask is that I understand a minister dare not swear. If he can't swear, what in the world does he do? Sincerely—IVY HAZZARD.

Answer:—If he is a sincere minister and makes a bad shot, and if the shot makes him very mad he just "spits" on the ground and you'll find the grass never grows there again.

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I notice in the newspapers that they intend passing a law taxing barbers $25.00 apiece before they can ply their trade. If this is true, don't you think that tax will work a hardship on the barbers? Sincerely—HERR TONNICK.

Answer:—It is my opinion if the barbers are taxed $25.00 that they will be able to scrape it up.

* * * *

Dear Mr. Wynn:—I called on a young lady last night for the first time. As I was leaving her house she said that I looked just like a policeman. As I have been in this country over a year and a half I can't figure out what she meant by saying I looked like a policeman, can you? Yours truly—B. JABERS.

Broadway Banter :: :: —By— FORNEY WYLY,

THE new Ziegfeld revue is called "No Foolin'" this year, though it's really just another "Follies." They started to call it "Palm Beach Girl," and then for no apparent reason changed it to "No Foolin'," the song hit of the show. They could have called it "So's Your Uncle Minnie," and that wouldn't have kept it from crowding the "Scandals" to be the most attractive revue in town. Why is it that the Ziegfeld touch is something the rest can't get? His costumes are gorgeous without being gaudy or ridiculous. When his girls come out with everything but steam-shovels on their heads they don't look like bargain-counters but always look tremendously interesting. Ziegfeld girls, of course, are the best-looking show-girls in New York. In particular notice the dark-haired one named Annastasia Riley, who looks more like Alberta Campbell than Alberta does.

* * * *

Besides the ravishing girls, costumes and tableaux, the music is quite good. The skits aren't any of them riots, however, excepting those that Ray Dooley are in. When she impersonates the Countess of Cathcart, she is most annihilating. The piece of music I liked best is "Every Little Thing You Do." Rudolph Friml, who wrote all the "Rose Marie" score, did the music for "No Foolin'." There's rather a clever song which the Yacht Club Boys sing called "How Could Little Red Riding Hood Have Been So Very Good, and Still Kept the Wolf from the Door?"

* * * *

Greta Nissen, film temptress, makes her stage debut in a bit of cleverly arranged pantomime, admirably supported by George Baxter. Miss Nissen's presence in the cast has more than doubled that curious assortment of humanity who congregate wild-eyed around all Ziegfeld stage doors. If you chance to have an appointtment with anyone in "No Foolin'" you have to call out the militia to get you through the crush.

* * * *

What puzzles me is who held down the fort in Atlanta when Bobby Jones arrived in New York from abroad recently? It would be much easier to name those of you who didn't come up. All of this would have happened, of course, while I was in Conecticut stretched upon every sun-blistered beach that I could find. However, I learn from various stool-pigeons and spies I have around town that almost all of you came up and conducted yourselves, for the most part, in remarkably good taste.

* * * *

By the time this reaches you, if everything has gone as intended, Rebecca Ashcraft will have taken her blond self off to Europe. Another Atlantan who wandered into town for no especial reason is Weston Hamilton, who conducted his research of the theaters from the Shelton. Young Mr. Hamilton justified his trip by having in his possession news of the two Atlanta treasures I was most interested in hearing about, the Sadler girls, who happen to be the world's cutest pair of sisters, not excepting the Dolly Sisters, the Talmadge girls and the Gold Dust twins.

* * * *

I am fast coming to the conclusion that the unfunniest people to be found on the stage today are the comedians. In fact, there are times when I feel that a wholesale abolishment of them would not be a bad idea. In the three hundred or so plays I have seen during the last year and a half, I have discovered only three or four comics who have amused me. And I happened to be of the rather silly temperament who'll laugh at anything. Jack Donahue in "Sunny," I consider genuinely funny. Also Joe Cook of the "Vanities." Even at the risk of having a thunderbolt hit me as I say it, I have to confess that neither Frank Tinney, Walter Catlett nor Julius Tannen strike me as funny. I don't think they ever get more than passably amusing. As for the black face plague, there is only one pair, Moore and Mack, who I think are funny, and they tremendously so. At present they are in "No Foolin'" using identically the same material they used in "The Greenwich Village Follies," but they plan to join the new "Vanities," I hear, with a brand new act. As Nellie Dodd Orme said during a recent stay in New York, "I saw most of the shows you had and I didn't hear anything I thought half as funny as the wise-cracks Harry Stearns makes every day in Atlanta."

What Crawford Long Did For Humanity

Dr. Hugh Young, Noted American Surgeon, Tells of Georgian's Fight For Recognition, and Graphically Describes What It Has Meant In the Elimination of Human Sfufering.

DESCRIBING in exact detail the first discovery of the use of anesthesia in surgical operations, and drawing a vivid contrast between the barbaric tortures of surgery prior to that discovery and the painlessness of today, Dr. Hugh H. Young, of Johns Hopkins hospital of Baltimore, read what was probably the most complete story of the discovery by Dr. Crawford H. Long ever prepared, at the recent unvelling of Dr. Long's statue in the Hall of Fame at Washington.

Dr. Young, who is one of the most prominent doctors in the world today and is at least the equal of any in his professional ranking, delivered the address on Dr. Long's discovery on behalf of the medical profession of America. In it he paid full tribute to the importance of the Georgian's gift to suffering mankind, and at the same time showed, beyond question, that Dr. Long is due full credit for being the first to use anesthesia in a surgical operation. Dr. Long's discovery antedated by four years the use of anesthesia by Dr. Morton, of the Massachusetts General Hospital at Boston, who was at one time erroneously given the honor of first in this discovery.

Dr. Young, in his address, told how he had received complete documentary proof, fully verified and uncontrovertible, from Dr. Long's relatives, his friends, patients and assistants, showing that there could be no question of the rectitude of honoring the famous Georgia doctor.

Describing the effects of this discovery, Dr. Young says, "in comparison with surgical anesthesia all other contributions to medical science are trivial." Continuing, he says:

"In the surgical textbooks before 1842 one finds described only minor procedures and emergency operations. Within 10 years the changes wrought were immense—splendid new conquests over disease by surgery were reported. Surgery was delivered from the horrors of pain and infection and, like an animal freed from a black dungeon of despair, bounded forth into the pure light of science."

In describing the horrors of surgery before Dr. Long's discovery, Dr. Young quotes from a patient of the old days, who wrote his surgeon, after the amputation of a leg, as follows:

"The blank whirlwind of emotion, the horror of great darkness, and the sense of desertion by God and man, bordering close upon despair, which swept through my mind and overwhelmed my heart, I can never forget. I watched all that the surgeon did with a fascinated intensity. I still recall with unwelcome vividness the spreading out of the instruments, the twisting of the tourniquet, the first incision, the fingering of the sawed bone, the sponge pressed on the flap, the tying of blood vessels, the stitching of the skin and the bloody dismembered limb lying on the floor. Their memory still haunts me."

Further, after describing other horrors of conscious surgery, Dr. Young says:

"This was the routine in the homes of the rich where attention de luxe was possible. What was done in the homes of the poor and, most of all, the operating shambles of the battlefield? Amputations were often made with a swift blow of the ax or meat cleaver followed by a red hot iron to staunch the flow of blood as they dared not use ligatures to bind the bleeding arteries for fear of septic poisoning."

Dr. Young's address, as delivered when the statue of Dr. Long was unveiled in the Georgia niche of the national hall of fame, in full, follows:

In comparison with surgical anesthesia all other contributions to medical science are trivial.

Before anesthesia surgery was a horror! Surgical operations were dreadful ordeals—a hell to the patients, a purgatory to the surgeons! The frightful shrieks from the hospital operating rooms filled those waiting their turn in the wards with terror!

The awful experiences of operative surgery and the attendant high mortality caused the best minds in medicine to avoid operations. Indeed for centuries the major operations in Europe were left to itinerant butchers and in England the Barber Surgeons did the work while the medical profession stood by and vainly tried to assuage the anguish of the patient.

The sufferings of high-minded, sensitive doctors in the midst of this welter blood and misery were almost as great as those of the poor patients. Many of the most brilliant scions of Aesculapius have told how they deserted surgery and even quit their cherished profession rather than continue in such heart-rending work.

"How often," says Dr. Valentine Mott, (one of America's greatest surgical pioneers), "when operating in some deep, dark wound, along the course of some great vein, with thin walls, alternately distended and flaccid with the vital current,—how often have I dreaded that some unfortunate struggle of the patient would deviate the knife, a little from its proper course, and that I, who fain would be the deliverer, should involuntarily become the executioner, seeing my patient perish in my hands by the most appalling form of death! Had he been insensible, I should have felt no alarm."

The celebrated John Bell in describing the operation for stone says, "The posture in which the patient is bound is horrible, but essential to the performing of an operation, where the slipping of one instrument, or the misgiving of one stroke of the knife, makes the difference—of safety or death. He must be made to grasp his feet with his hands, and secured in that posture by cords encircling the wrists and ankles, and thus, bended into a curve, is brought so near to the edge of the table that he is almost suspended in air. Three medical assistants should hold him, one on each side; the third assistant should support his head and shoulders, and keep him forward according to the operator's directions. A friend should stand by to speak to him, to encourage and to give him occasionally a little wine and water—and everything on the table of instruments should be fairly arranged, and every attendant steady, silent and observing. When the surgeon, advancing to the table, thus arranged, warms the gorget, and then sticks it in his girdle or apron string; while he grasps the knife and advances to make the lightning cuts which are to complete the operation."

This was the routine in the homes of the rich where attention de luxe was possible. What was done in the homes of the poor and, most of all, the operating shambles of the battlefield? Amputations were often made with a swift blow of the ax or meat cleaver followed by a red hot iron to stanch the flow of blood as they dared not use ligatures to bind the bleeding arteries for fear of septic poisoning. But what was the medical profession about? Were there no efforts made to conquer pain and to improve surgical technique?

THE WAR AGAINST PAIN.

Since the beginning of medical history our records show that the never despairing hope of physicians was to conquer pain and to be allowed to carry out surgical procedures with tranquil thoroughness rather than in a mad dash against pain and death.

"Sacred, profane and mythological literature abound in incident, fact and fancy showing that earliest times man has sought to assuage pain by some means of dulling consciousness. In these attempts many methods and diverse agents have been employed.

The inhalation of fumes from various substances, weird incantations, the external and internal application of drugs and many strange concoctions, pressure upon important nerves and blood vessels, the laying on of hands or animal magnetism, mesmerism, etc., have played their part in the evolution of anesthesia."—Anesthesia by J. T. Gwathmey.

Mandragora was used by both Greeks and Romans for hundreds of years to produce sleep and Asiatics employed hashish to dull consciousness of pain. Later opium and hemlock were used.

It was not until the early chemical discoveries of hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen and nitrous oxid, in the latter part of the 18th century, that the way was found for a scientific anesthesia. Sir Humphrey Davy said in 1800, "Since nitrous oxid is capable of destroying pain it may be used in surgical operations," and 25 years later Hickman anesthetized rabbits with nitrous oxid and carried out many operations successfully upon them without a struggle. But these demonstrations went unheeded—the surgical theater continued to be a torture chamber!

But nitrous oxid and sulphuric ether, neglected by the medical profession, were seized upon by populace who found in them a pleasant means of becoming exhilarated. Itinerant lecturers on the marvels of chemistry roamed over the country and popularized their meetings by giving the young people ether to breath while the audiences roared with laughter over their unconscious antics on the stage.

DR. LONG'S DISCOVERY.

The knowledge of the interest in these drugs reached even to the distant rural hamlets. In one of these, Jefferson, Jackson County, Georgia, many miles from a railroad, Crawford W. Long was plying his profession of medicine. Fresh from the University of Pennsylvania, he knew of the exhilarating properties of these drugs and frequently furnished ether to young men who met at his office for an "ether frolic" in the winter of 1841-42. But let him tell

A Fascinating New Serial

By John T. McCutcheon

INSTALLMENT XXV.

The New Chauffeur Makes an Impression.

WHEN the Craytons' new chauffeur awoke at eight he was just on the point of ringing for his valet when he recalled that he was now acting a part. So he shaved and briskly rubbed himself down in the cold water at his wash stand, and then scribbled a note to Mrs. Crayton, informing her that her husband had gone in by train the night before.

Presently the bell boy returned with instructions that the car be ready to start at ten o'clock. Promptly at that hour the heavy luggage had been firmly stowed and secured, and he sat at the wheel awaiting the Crayton party's appearance. It might be observed that he had dressed with immaculate care. His linen was spotless, his uniform looked crisp and soldierly, and a glance at the healthy bronze on his face and the humorous tawny eyes, surmounted by wavy flaxen hair, would have brought a second and a third glance from any observer.

Several maids in the hotel were covertly watching him from the windows. The telephone girl in the office had left her post and was regarding him with wistful admiration.

The reputation of being the handsomest and most fascinating member of his class was not undeserved. He now awaited with a pleasant thrill the part that he was to play the next few days.

"Remember, my good fellow," he said to himself, "you are here with a great mission to perform. You are to save the heroine from the villain. Cupid, not cupidity, must be triumphant. If your friend Rasher loves this girl, as I suspect he does, you must baffle and foil this dollar-chasing count."

To his mind came fragments of an old poem:

"In the odorous church where the organ swells
They are ringing not wedding but market bells;
For today they are selling a maiden
To the doubtful heir of an ancient line,
A tumbled down chateau, and a title fine
And a name that is scandal-laden."

Mrs. and Miss Crayton, breakfasting leisurely with Count de Barsac, were vaguely aware that the waitresses were hurrying to the windows at every opportunity. Later they were to discover the reason. In the meantime each was engrossed in earnest thoughts thinly veiled by conversational commonplaces.

Virginia had decided to be a martyr and marry the count, if by so doing she could save her father from financial ruin. Mrs. Crayton, informed of this decision, warmly approved.

"You are doing the sensible thing, my dear; your father's opposition to Count de Barsac has been absurd and unreasonable. I have made him understand that my private fortune is at his disposal only if he ceases opposing your marriage. With that help and because of your wise decision, Virginia, your father need have no further financial worries."

Virginia felt something of the exaltation of a martyr who sells his body but not his soul for a noble cause. Her mother would be happy, her father relieved of his anxieties, and she alone would suffer. Her thoughts leaped to Rasher. Would he care? Probably not. She swallowed hard. It was going to be hard to forget this man who was lying on a hospital bed suffering from a bullet wound received in her defense. If she was to do this hateful thing of marrying the count it must be done quickly or she never could go through with it.

At the breakfast table she greeted the count with a reckless amiability that surprised him. Yesterday he would have been gratified by this friendliness; today he wondered, warily, at the change. He must not involve himself in a marriage until he was certain Mr. Crayton's fortune was unimpaired. "Go slow," Celeste had cautioned; "perhaps this financial collapse is just a trick of his to throw you off the track. We'll go to their home and learn how he stands before we do anything."

Mrs. Crayton was elated at the change in affairs. At last, she thought, Virginia has regained her senses. A marriage with Count Pierre de Barsac seemed assured.

Soon after breakfast the Crayton party made its way to the sidewalk where the car waited. At the door of the car, in chauffeur's uniform, stood the handsomest man Virginia Crayton had ever seen. With slight modifications in his uniform he could have passed for the military aid of an ambassador or a daring flight commander of a crack air corps. She was conscious of a distinct quickening of her pulse. In contrast to this splendid youth Count de Barsac seemed suddenly to be an old and broken man. He was biting his mustache in irritation. Mrs. Crayton made no attempt to conceal her annoyance. She knew too well the danger of having well-bred, good-looking chauffeurs around. She repulsed an offer of assistance from this one, and, breathing hard, subsided into her seat. Virginia accepted the proffered assistance and smiled charmingly at the young man.

"What is your name?" called out Mrs. Crayton testily.

"Wells, madam; Dick Wells."

"Are you married?"

"I have not that felicity, madam," he answered deferentially, but Virginia noted a faint twinkle in his eye.

"I'm sorry! Married men are more careful drivers," exclaimed Mrs. Crayton disagreeably.

"I hope I may prove the exception," answered Wells politely, and then added: "I cannot believe that carefulness is exclusively the virtue of married men."

Mrs. Crayton glared and Virginia smiled broadly. The remark was made with such apparent humility that it escaped sounding impertinent.

A moment later the car was under way, and it soon was evident that the driver was a careful and very willful one. At a cross road, heavily screened by dense shrubbery, a car driven by a woman suddenly shot out on the main highway, and it was only by incredibly quick acting that a crash was averted.

"He's a good driver," commented the count, when he had recovered his breath. "I should like to take him back to France with me as my chauffeur."

Virginia flushed angrily. She could imagine Americans employing French maids, French chefs, French governesses, but she couldn't imagine Frenchmen with American servitors. The count sensed her resentment.

"But, no," he sighed, "the young man would not fit. I fear he would be too spoiled. I distrust men who are too good looking." He regarded the shapely head and ears of the chauffeur. "Why does he drive a car when he might be in the cinema or posing for magazine illustrations or clothing advertisements?" The count paused. "He would be an impressive doorman at a fashionable tearoom."

"But I supposed you Parisians worshiped beauty," she said sweetly.

"In ladies, yes; in men, no. Deliver me from beautiful men!" He raised his eyes piously and then with a gesture of his gloved hand from which emanated a delicate perfume he indicated the unconscious chauffeur. "Very few of them amount to anything. There he is, beautiful—and driving our car. Here am I, homely, sitting inside with two charming ladies. What more need I say?" He shrugged his shoulders eloquently.

Mrs. Crayton interposed. "Goodness knows, no one would have suspected that he was good looking. William said he was the oiliest, greasiest, untidiest person he had ever laid eyes on."

"One would not suspect it now," commented Virginia, regarding the chauffeur, now deep in conversation with Celeste, the French maid, who laughed frequently, and from her gestures it was correctly assumed that their conversation was in French.

At one o'clock, after three hours on the road, the car drew up at a roadside restaurant far back among the his story: "They were so much pleased with its effects that they afterwards used it and induced others to do the same, and the practice soon became quite fashionable in the county and some of the contiguous counties.

"On numerous occasions I inhaled ether for its exhilarating properties, and would frequently, at some short time subsequent to its inhalation, discover bruised or painful spots on my person which I had no recollection of causing and which I felt satisfied were received while under the influence of ether. I noticed my friends while etherized received falls and blows which I believed were sufficient to produce pain on a person not in a state of anaesthesia, and on questioning them they uniformly assured me that they did not feel the least pain from these accidents. Observing these facts I was led to believe that anaesthesia was produced by the inhalation of ether, and that its use would be applicable in surgical operations."

"The first patient to whom I administered ether in a surgical operation was James M. Venable, who then resided within two miles of Jefferson, and at present lives in Cobb County, Ga. Mr. Venable consulted me on several occasions in regard to the propriety of removing two small tumors situated on the back part of his neck but would postpone from time to time having the operation performed, from dread of pain. At length I mentioned to him the fact of my receiving bruises while under the influence of the vapor of ether without suffering, and as I knew him to be fond of and accustomed to inhale ether, I suggested to him the probability that the operation might be performed without pain, and proposed operating on him while under its influence. He consented to have one tumor removed, and the operation was performed the same evening. The ether was given to Mr. Venable on a towel, and when fully under its influence I extirpated the tumor.

"It was encysted and about half an inch in diameter. The patient continued to inhale ether during the time of the operation, and when informed it was over, seemed incredulous until the tumor was shown him.

"He gave no evidence of suffering during the operation, and assured me, after it was over, that he did not experience the least degree of pain from its performance. This operation was performed on the 30th of March, 1842."

THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA.

Here then was the first successful attempt to render a patient insensible to pain during a surgical operation! The beginning of a new era of incalculable relief of human suffering—an era which was to revolutionize surgery and make it a million times more efficient in alleviating human ills.

Long did not rush into print, but like a painstaking, modest scientist, quietly continued his work, removing another tumor on the same patient a few weeks later, and then amputating a toe under complete ether anaesthesia in July.

After that his meager practice only furnished him a few surgical cases each year which he continued to operate upon under ether, while he bided his time, waiting for a major operation before publishing his claims to a discovery which he well realized would revolutionize surgery and startle the world. Long thus succinctly gives his motives:

"I was anxious, before making my publication, to try etherization in a sufficient number of cases to fully satisfy my mind that anaesthesia was produced by the ether, and was not the effect of the imagination or owing to any peculiar insusceptibility to pain in the persons experimented on.

"At the time I was experimenting with ether there were physicians high in authority and of justly distinguished character who were the advocates of mesmerism, and recommended the induction of the mesmeric state as adequate to prevent pain in surgical operations. Notwithstanding thus sanctioned I was an unbeliever in the science, and of the opinion that if the mesmeric state could be produced at all it was only on those of strong imaginations and weak minds, and was to be ascribed solely to the workings of the patient's imagination. Entertaining this opinion, I was the more particular in my experiments in etherization.

"Surgical operations are not of frequent occurrence in a country practice and especially in the practice of a young physician, yet I was fortunate enough to meet with two cases in which I could satisfactorily test the anaesthetic power of ether. From one of these patients I removed three tumors the same day; the inhalation of ether was used only in the second operation, and was effectual in preventing pain, while the patient suffered severely from the extirpation of the other tumors. In the other case I amputated two fingers of a negro boy; the boy was etherized during one amputation and not during the other; he suffered from one operation and was insensible during the other.

"After fully satisfying myself of the power of ether to produce anaesthesia, I was desirous of administering it in a severer surgical operation than any I had performed. In my practice, prior to the published account of the use of ether as an anaesthetic, I had no opportunity of experimenting with it in a capital operation, my cases being confined, with one exception, to the extirpation of small tumors and the amputation of fingers and toes.

"While cautiously experimenting with ether, as cases occurred, with a view of fully testing its anaesthetic powers and its applicability to severe

New Gambling Hell To Rv

Former Kaiser's Villa on Butif of Corfu Being Transfoed Gambler's Resort Wh G ing Will Never Cse

THE many people who believe that public gambling such as is permitted at Monte Carlo under the protection of the government of Monaco is a shameful blot on the world's civilization are pained to hear that there is soon to be opened, also under government auspices, a new gambling hell that will rival and perhaps outdo wicked Monte Carlo.

The new resort, which its promoters plan to make the largest and most unrestricted gambling place in the world, is located on the island of Corfu, one of the numerous Ionian group of islands that dot the Mediterranean just off the coast of Greece.

Its card tables, roulette wheels and other devices for every form of gambling known to man are being installed in the Villa Achilleoin, one of the most artistic palaces in the world and famous for years as the summer home of the former kaiser.

Like Monte Carlo, miles to the westward in the Mediterranean, the island of Corfu has long been regarded as one of the most divinely beautiful spots to be found anywhere. To artists and others who cherish Corfu for its loveliness it seems almost a sacrilege to permit this island paradise to be invaded by a horde of gamblers whose feverish eyes will be more interested in the turn of the cards and dice than in the wonderful scenic panorama spread before them in every direction.

But the Greek government needs the money that is to be made by throwing Corfu open to public gambling and so the stately marble halls where the kaiser and his family once lived must be given over to faro, roulette, baccarat and all sorts of other games of chance.

The degradation of beautiful Corfu and the Villa Achilleion into a gambling hell is one of the many things that can be blamed on the financial stress and strain imposed on Europe by the war.

As everybody knows Greece is one of the nations most hard-up in a financial way. The people have been taxed to the limit and still there is barely money to keep the ship of state going, to say nothing of doing anything toward paying off the enormous debt. National bankruptcy has repeatedly threatened.

In their desperate financial straits the financiers of the Greek government have for a long time regarded with envious eyes the happy state of affairs in the little principality of Monaco. In Monaco taxes are unknown and there is no burdensome public debt.

All the running expenses of the country are paid out of the share of the profits the government receives from the gambling concession at Monte Carlo. And these profits are large enough not only to keep Monaco running at the highest efficiency but also to maintain a steadily increasing reserve in the treasury.

One of the entrances to the Villa Achilleion on the island of Corfu, which is being made ready to compete with Monte Carlo as a gambling resort

The other day an Italian gambling syndicate came along with an offer to take Greece into a partnership like that which exists between the gambling trust at Monte Carlo and the government of Monaco. If Greece would allow the establishment of a gambling hell on the island of Corfu and agree to protect it for a long term of years, the syndicate would divide the profits of the casino with the government.

The offer was so tempting, the revenues seemed likely to be so large that hard-up Greece was unable to refuse the proposed partnership, even at the risk of desecrating the peaceful loveliness of Corfu.

And so, when the work of transforming the Villa Achilleion into a gambling hell should prove a source of enormous revenue to Greece if the management is as successful as it expects to be in keeping the place crowded from one year's end to another with gamblers from all over the earth.

In one respect the Corfu gambling hell will outdo the one at Monte Carlo right from the start. Its gaming tables will be constantly in readiness for use at any hour of the night or day and on Sundays and holidays as well as every other day.

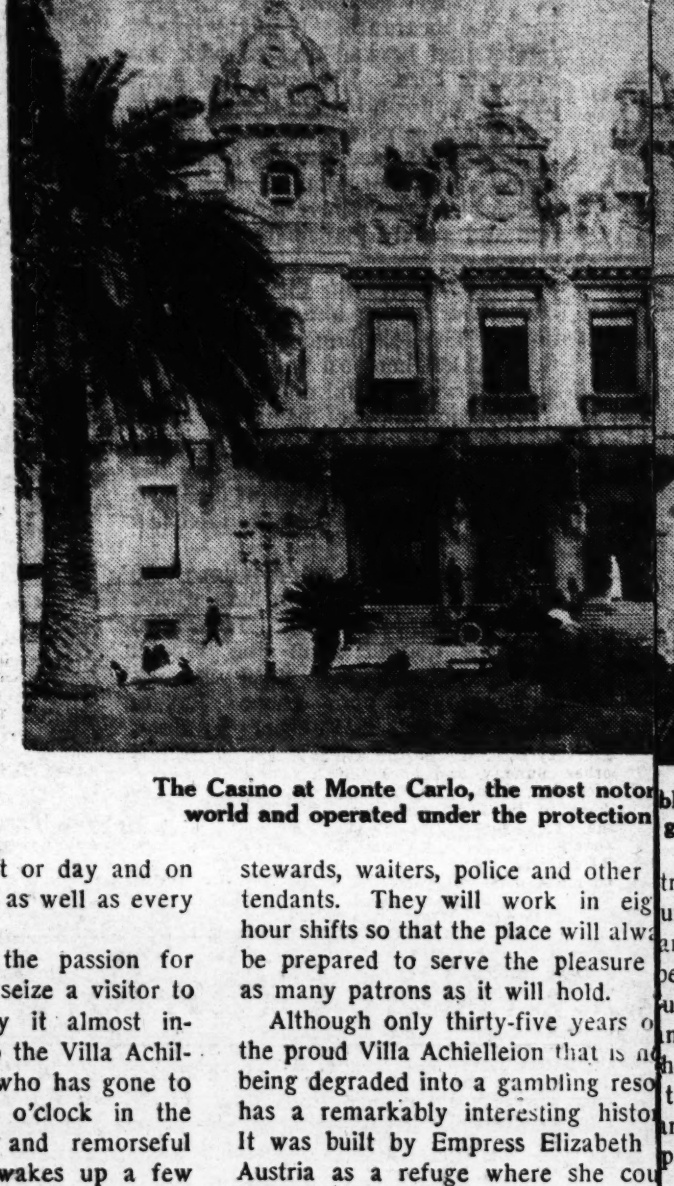

No matter when the passion for gambling happens to seize a visitor to Corfu he may gratify it almost instantly by hurrying to the Villa Achilleion. The gambler who has gone to bed at three or four o'clock in the morning discouraged and remorseful over his losses and wakes up a few hours later filled with fresh hope and courage may, if he desires, stake what is left of his bank roll on the faro or baccarat table before breakfast.

In the Corfu casino it is planned to employ three separate forces of croupiers, dealers, cashiers, chefs, wine stewards, waiters, police and other tendants. They will work in eig hour shifts so that the place will alwa be prepared to serve the pleasure as many patrons as it will hold.

Although only thirty-five years o the proud Villa Achielleion that is n being degraded into a gambling reso has a remarkably interesting histo It was built by Empress Elizabeth Austria as a refuge where she cou hide herself from the world in the da of her grief over the tragic death of h son, Prince Rudolph.

she had the strangest, the uncanniest the empress finally decided on had.

The empress had long been a great admirer of the poet and his immortal songs of love. While her villa was being erected she had had a small Greek temple set up on one side of the terrace descending to the sea and in this she enshrined a statue of Heine.

Not long after she took up her residence at Corfu, according to the stories she later told her friends, the empress was pleasantly surprised to see the shadowy form of Heinriech Heine appear at her elbow. For a few minutes this spirit figure walked by her side in grave silence. It was not long, however, before he began to talk quite as audibly as if he had been there in the flesh. He confessed his love for the empress and she blushingly admitted that she loved him.

This was the first of many alleged meetings of this strange pair of lovers —the living woman and the ghost of the dead man. Until the day of her death the empress insisted that almost every night she walked in the garden the spirit of the poet would appear to her. It always came about the same time, she said, and would remain for several hours.

She gave her friends vivid word pictures of the caresses she and her eerie lover exchanged and the poetic words of love he murmured in her ear.

Empress Elizabeth died the victim of an assassin's knife in 1898 and the mystery of the ghost she so earnestly believed to have seen and talked with and embraced has never been explained. Some of her friends were convinced that she actually saw the spirit of Heine just as she said.

Others thought that the poor empress' mind had been unhinged by grief over her son's death and that the whole thing was only an hallucination.

Still others thought that some

One of the charming views to be enjoyed by the patrons of the new gambling hell if they ever care to lift their eyes from the cards, dice and other gambling devices which are to be provided there in such great variety

Along the dewy paths of this delightful garden the empress used to stroll late at night, long after everybody else in the villa was in bed and asleep. It was here, according to what Elizabeth confided to her friends, that gardener or other servant had had the wicked impudence to prey on the empress' credulity by impersonating the ghost of Heine and thus getting the opportunity to enjoy the imperial kisses.

Since the death of the empress nobody has ever claimed to have seen anything resembling the ghost of Heine in the garden of the Villa Achilleion. If it still haunts the place it is likely soon to have plenty of spirit companionship—the ghosts of despairing gamblers who will doubtless take their lives there just as they so frequently do in the grounds surrounding the casino at Monte Carlo.

The Duchess of Valentinois, the wife of the ruler of Monaco, who has vainly struggled to free the country from the curse of gambling

Of all the people who will seriously protest against the taking over of Corfu for such nefarious commercialism none will be louder in his arguments than the former emperor of Germany, Kaiser Wilhelm.

For under the grassy loveliness of the terraces in Corfu, the former kaiser believes are buried archaeological treasures that would be of greatest value to science and which ought to be unearthed for the advancement of civilization. How did the kaiser know this? Wilhelm or "Kaiser Bill," although most believe he is only interested in war, really likes to be known as a scholar and scientist. Like Caesar he thinks he too is endowed with a marvelous capacity for almost any endeavor he should turn his hand to.

So after Elizabeth's tragic death, the kaiser took over Corfu in 1907 and went into archaeological exploits quite extensively. Here in this pleasant refuge from the cares of state, he took great pleasure in dabbling in a science that he liked to pass as an authority on.

Still the natives of Corfu tell tales of the kaiser's excavations. He first selected the ancient temple of Gorgo and to direct the hundreds of natives digging into the earth he enthroned himself high up on a hillside.

As perspiration dripped from the poor natives who stood out in the boiling sun driving pick-axes into the rock and sand, the Hohenzollern sat in a wicker chair beneath a large umbrella sipping cooling drinks.

Luckless cabinet ministers were told when they came to Corfu to discuss matters of grave importance that the kaiser could be found on the hilltop. After a long journey they were then forced to hike up the steep hill in the burning sun to consult Wilhelm.

So intent did the kaiser become in his desire to unearth relics that the German archaeologists rather than see him disappointed are said to have buried treasures so that the emperor could with great delight uncover them the next day.

After a while either the natives were not enthusiastic enough on finding some ancient relics or the kaiser concluded that his findings were too frequent to be genuine but at any rate one day when a famous archaeologist called on him the kaiser smiled knowingly and asked: "What relic did you bury last night for me to dig up today?"

But despite the fact the kaiser surmised that he was the victim of a well-meant hoax, he has included the story of this excavation at Corfu in his reminiscences. How little or how much has any scientific value probably the natives of Corfu alone know who gleefully recall that they had several summers' steady employment at the expense of the German government.

With the invasion of the gamblers no doubt the kaiser's famous "Saddle Chair" which tourists have looked upon with interest tinctured with a good deal of amusement in later years will probably be sold to some curio collector.

As the kaiser sat at his desk going over official papers and dreaming over maps he didn't sit in the ordinary office chair. Instead he was mounted on a saddle contrived by placing one of his old army saddles on the swivel base of a regular chair.

patient, got on a tramp running up to the Fijis instead. He was uncomfortable. He was anxious about his work in England, he was cursing himself for a fool for coming upon this senseless trip. The heat was not glorious, it was intolerable, and fairy islands stealing out of sparkling seas become monotonous with familiarity.

Quite suddenly his mood had changed. He would have done with this foolish trapesing around. He would not stay away even as long as he intended, but go straight home at his first chance.

At New Caledonia he left the ship. The captain tried to entice him on with stories of Fiji, but he was sick of wonder and beauty and the call of the courts was powerful in his ears. He acted so hastily that again he was stranded, this time in Noumea, waiting for a boat. He walked the Gallicized streets of that town bored to death. The pull had left him; he was going home, he had no more concern with the South Seas.

It was just at such moments that fate shows what a fickle jade she can be. With his traps packed ready for the boat which would call next day, Mark Stonor spent the evening at a club by the beach, and to pass that evening submitted to the talk of a queer old man of uncertain nationality. During that talk the old man said: "You are a lawyer, eh? These seas are full of victims who have escaped you. I have seen many. Very many." He told of a number, but Mark listened very little until the old fellow said: "And I remember an Englishman and his wife, and another Englishman with them, a long thin fellow, not bearded like the husband. He was the brother of the wife. I remember these particularly because they came off a Marseilles boat and tried to be French, because, also, they did not want to land here, but had to. Yes, had to. Nature takes no heed of flight.

"The lady—they were all people of breeding—had a little son born here. She was only landed just in time. How those runaways fretted at being kept, especially the one with the beard, which was a new beard, as one could tell by the curiosity with which his hand yet felt it. And they were off so quickly. They bought a little cutter in the harbor and hired a master and mate.

"The master was my good friend Hibeau of this town still, and off they sailed before the lady was really fit. I remember the women saying that her going was suicidal, but she went and she was willing. She was afraid for that gentleman with a beard. Hibeau, when he came back, said they were queer ones. They had talked to him about nothing but lonely islands, the lonelier the better, and when they had gotten all they wanted they paid him off and put him ashore at the Marshalls, and took the cutter on alone. I remember them well, the woman was so good to look at, and they were intelligent people, too, not merely clumsy bo'ting thieves."

Four things stood out in that humdrum narrative. The man with a beard, the wife, the thin man, her brother, and the cutter. These were figures of Mark Stonor's dreams and his story. He asked with a dry throat, "And when did this happen?"

"O, a long time ago. It was the year that French Jew bought the black pearl in the Low archipelago. That was in 189—."

In 1890—, that was twenty-eight years ago, and as far as Mark Stonor knew he was twenty-eight or twenty-nine himself. He felt queerly calm and queerly certain that a clew to his parents had come to him at last. He cut short the old man's memories to find out where Hibeau, the old shipmaster, lived, and he went to him. Hibeau was old, over seventy, but his memories were alert. Mark Stonor gave him no opportunity for garrulity. He said: "They tell me you have a wonderful knowledge of out of the way islands. Can you tell me any island that has a hill like that?" He sketched on a piece of paper the outline of a witch's hat.

"You're sure?" said Mark Stonor in dismay.

"No," grinned the old skipper. "Things happen, and I haven't been there for thirty years, but it was then. It's a lovely spot."

"Could you take me there?" asked Mark, but the old man said he was past that, though he recommended a younger man. He was not very satisfactory, on the whole. He remembered the bearded man, and the wife, and the young baby, and the uncle, of twenty-eight years ago when Mark probed his memory, but that was about all. He had nothing more to offer.

Mark Stonor hired a schooner and sailed the long slant to Futa-Huoa. At first he was excited, and then his senses dulled. He remembered that the old gossip in Noumea had declared that these people he hoped to find on the island with the witch's hat were fugitives from the law. He tried to tell himself that this was rubbish, that if they were his parents it couldn't possibly be so. But the thought stuck and chilled his eagerness. What if, after all, this strange obsession, this strange search had led him to a disgraced name? It seemed likely. Why did they choose a lonely island if not to hide?

They made Futa-Huoa in the very early morning, while Mark was still asleep. They were entering the bay when he came on deck, and being close in like that the sight of the Witch's Hat came as a shock. It was his Witch's Hat. What he had thought a dream was only the memory of somewhere under two or three. He stood trembling on the deck staring at the place. It was smaller, but in this bay he had lived. He saw the great breakers tumbling on the sand, and they were the breakers he had remembered. He saw the sand, and it was the fine and glowing silver of his dreams. He saw the house set back against the green of palms. It was not quite the same, but that was because creepers had covered it with a riot of flowers—and he knew it.

A man at his elbow told him that breakfast was served. He said, "No —I'm going ashore now."

The Kanakas took him skillfully through the surf and he landed on the silver beach. His heart was pounding and he was dizzy with his feelings. It was the same, unaltered. He lifted some of the sand in his hand. It was hot and slipped away with a queer, tickling sensation. Walking up to the house was like walking up a mountain, so deeply did he feel the strain. He supposed the room of the house was the same, but it was so small now, so very small where it had been bright and bast to a baby. He stood in the veranda staring through the door, wondering who lived here now, and as he did a woman came from the interior of the house and said, "Nearly ready—" and stopepd with a gasp.

Then she cried, hand on heart, "John"—and then again—"John, you've cut off"— Then she seemed to realize it was some one stranger and—younger. For she stood trembling, her sweet, pitiful face looking at him in mystification and—yes, anguish.

He saw a woman a little beyond the middle fifties, graying hair, but figure still neat and alert, despite home-made clothes. He saw a face that was perhaps older, but which had never changed. How stupid he had been to confuse that dear, lovely face with Mrs. Stonor's. And she hadn't gone down with the cutter! He took an involuntary step forward, his eyes fixed on hers, both their eyes recognizing and understanding, it seemed. He could see her hand working in agitation at her breast. She choked, cried huskily:

"John!—Johnny!"

"Was that my name?" he said simply.

She gave a sob, cried out. "It can't be!"

He went toward her. "It is," he said shakily. "You know I'm your son, don't you, mother?"

She was in his arms, crying. And how tight her thin arms held him.

Presently she was saying: "I can't believe it! I can't! It's a miracle, Johnny! Johnny! It is you. O, I can't believe it yet! Tell me. Tell me!"

He began to tell Roger Stonor's story of his rescue, though he felt that he was the one to be told. In the middle of his telling she sprang up from the settee on which she had drawn him, clapped her hands, and even before the answering Kanaka boy was in the room was crying out: "Go fetch the master. Tell him something wonderful has happened. Tell him some one has come ashore from the schooner in the bay. Tell him to prepare for something big. Go on, Johnny! Go on, dear!"

Mark Stonor went on with his story. She stared at him with a tremendous hunger, touched him as though she could not believe yet, caught his hands and fondled them. She was vivid with excitement. Again she broke into his narrative. "You were rescued by those dear people, they looked after you. How good they were. O, we thought you dead. You were so ill. We could not make you well here. We thought you would die without a doctor. So Robert—Robert was my brother, your uncle, Johnny—went off in the cutter with your nurse and the Chinese servant. Went off, and the cutter never came back. There were storms, and it was an old cutter. We thought all of you had been drowned. You see we could never hear anything, cut off here. And I wished I'd gone, too, and been drowned, too. I wanted to go!" Suddenly she was still, rigid, looking at him with a strange fear. She said as though in agony, "But I could not go. Tell me, Johnny, all about your life in England, what have you become?"

He told her. She listened, not with excitement now, not fondling him, but with a queer stiffness and fear, her hands tight clasped in her lap. He could see she was trembling, but for another reason than joy. When he told her his profession she gasped and cried: "A lawyer," and looked at him almost in misery. And when he had finished she repeated her words: "A lawyer, a great lawyer at the criminal bar!"

"And Burdon briefs you," said a strained voice from the door, and both turned with a start to see a man standing there.

He was a tall man, a year or so older than the woman, with gray hair and a big gray beard. Mark would not have recognized him but for the eyes and nose and forehead he had seen so often in his own mirror. It was his father, he knew, and was awed and pained by the austerity and suffering he saw in that face. His mother gave a little sob, cried, "John, this is——"

His father held up a hand. It shook, but he was master of his voice. He said, "This is a lawyer, I heard him say, Mary. A rising young lawyer, a protege of Henry Burdon's. A young man of promise——"

"I am also your son, sir," said Mark steadily.

"My son was drowned as a baby," said his father steadily. "Have you taken silk yet, sir?"

"Not yet," said Mark bewildered. "It will come, and does it matter? I am your son, sir." The man made no response. "Won't you acknowledge me?"

"You are a lawyer," the man said stiffly. "Did you ever hear of the Clavell case?"

Mark stiffened, amazed. "What?" he cried.

"I see you have," said the man. "I am John Clavell."

Mark stared, amazed. Then he almost shouted: "So that's why Old Burdon picked me out! That's why he interested himself in me."

His father started, began to tremble. "Henry Burdon picked you out, interested himself in you? I don't understand."

"But it's simple," cried Mark. "He acted for you—by Jove, don't I know that! And he knew all along you were innocent. Then when he saw my face, which is your face, sir, without a beard, and heard my foster father's story he put two and two together and befriended me—for your sake, sir."

"Befriended you for my sake. I don't understand, boy," said his father shakily, and he felt for and dropped into a chair.

But Mark saw, he saw it all. He saw the whole fineness of Old Burdon in befriending the son of a colleague. He even saw Old Burdon's friendly guile in getting him to give an opinion on the old case Whillon vs. Clavell. Old Burdon had felt that one day Mark woud trace his real parents, and having traced them, would discover his father's real identity, and had taken care to assure him of his father's innocence in advance. And there was no doubt of that innocence. When his father cried: "But how can you say I am innocent? The case went against me."

"I know," laughed Mark. "Why, Old Burdon gave me all the material with new matter just before I sailed. He may have had an intuition I should find you, he may have wanted to prepare for any eventuality. You must have had a poor defending counsel, sir; I guarantee I'd have gotten a verdict for you, even on the old material. But with the new—Charles Whillon is dead now, you know, sir. His diaries make it plain that he gave you verbal instructions to convert those trust funds. He was a coward and a weakling, though. He funked facing the music when the crash came and the funds vanished into thin air. Perhaps he thought he had risked jail, too, in ordering you to sell out safe stock and buy that risky stuff. That's why he took refuge behind the fact that there was no evidence of his order and lied in court. But now—why, proving your innocence is going to be child's play. But—but why did you abscond on the bail and hide away here, sir?"

"I was a coward," said the father hoarsely.

"No," said his mother. "He did it for me—and you, Johnny. You were coming, you know, and the case seemed hopeless. Whillon had won his day, and there was no evidence on our side once Whillon had lied. It meant prison for your father. He thought of me and the shame and shock to me in my condition, and he thought of you, born with a convict for a father. So he sank his determination to face it out and came away for our sakes.

"We had determined to start with a new name in a new world for your sake, Johnny. My brother, who was surety, was agreeable. In fact, he came with us. We crossed into France, caught a boat for the South Seas at Marseilles and reached Noumea just in time for you to be born. We had to get away from there quickly because even in such a place word had got out about our flight. We bought a cutter, and hired a captain

Arguments for the Existence of God.

Rev. W. P. King

AN argument which it may be well to state in a distinct and separate form is the Argument from History. This is not identical with what is sometimes called the historical argument, or the prevailing sense of the Supernatural in all the stages of human history, which calls for another discussion. The Argument from History shows the evidence of God in corporate Society, and the stamp of divine purpose and providence in the history of humanity.

It may be readily seen how this argument overlaps the teleological argument or the argument from design, and also the anthropological or moral argument. It is true, however, that every argument which is advanced for the Existence of God coincides at some point with the other arguments.

Dr. G. P. Fisher writes: "History as containing at once a providential order and a moral order enclosed within it discovers God. Events to not take place in a chaotic series. A program is discernible, an orderly, succession of phenomena, the accomplishment of ends by the power of individuals to originate or combine. There is a power that makes for righteousness. Amid all the disorders of the world as Bishop Butler has convincingly shown, there is manifested on the part of the Power which governs, an approbation of right and a condemnation of wrong, analogous to the manifestation of justice and holiness which emanates from righteous rulers among men.

If righteousness appears to be but imperfectly carried out, it is an indication that in this life the system is incomplete, and that here we see only its beginnings."

The witness of history is emphatic. Great civilizations of the past have gone down in ruins not through lack of intelligence but as a result of moral decay.

"Righteousness exalts a people." There accompanies sin certain retributive and destructive forces which unarrested result in the downfall of nations.

Horace Bushnell more than a century ago sets forth this argument from history in "The world is governed supernaturally in the Interest of Christianity." This masterful discourse even today fits in with the best statement of modern apologetics. He writes: "The facts do not take place here, in human society, government and the church, as they should, if events were left to the mere casualities of nature, and were no way controllable by a supernatural ministration of divine government, or by some genuinely Christian Providence, in the management of human affairs. . . . The regenerating action of supernatural forces in spite of the downward tendency of mere nature under sin, are creating always a new heavens and earth, out of the ruins of the former beauty, and making even the losing experiences of evil, conditions of spiritual and social progress."

We are familiar with the various lines of historical preparation which converged on the coming of Christ. There was the captivity and persecution of the Jews which purged them of their idolatry. There was the dispersion of the Jews throughout the vast Roman Empire and the building of the synagogues in which the first heralds of the Gospel of Christ spoke, and there was the familiarizing of the people with the monotheistic faith. There was the Greek language ready to carry the rich contents of the Gospel, and the Greek philosophy ready to assist giving expression to the profound meaning of the Gospel. The known world was bound together in the vast Roman Empire with its protecting laws and its famous roads running from Rome and connecting with all the important cities, over which the apostles and missionaries traveled in their work of evangelization.

There was universal peace, so that the new, fresh message of divine redemption was not lost in the din of war.

There was the collapse of ancient system of religion and the confessed insufficiency of the world's philosophy. There was the ennui and satiety which followed the vain effort to satisfy life with physical pleasure and sensual indulgence.

"In that hard pagan world,
Disgust and secret loathing fell,
Deep weariness and sated lust
Made human life a hell."

It was then, "in the fullness of the times" that Christ came. Was his coming at the opportune time accidental? Was not God working in history and making use of the nations of the earth to serve his redeeming purpose for all mankind? Was there not a providential order moving in the affairs of men?

There are dark pages in human history, where the footsteps of God were very dim or invisible, but "God is on the field when he is most invisible."

There are the Dark Ages of chaos in Europe, and the dark days of the carnage wrought by Napoleon, and the dark days of the war of the Revolution, and of the Civil War, but these dark days are lighted up with the glow of an after radiance. Victor Hugo says in his account of the Battle of Waterloo: "Was it possible for Napoleon to win the battle? We answer in the negative. Why? On account of Wellington, on account of Blucher? No; on account of God. Bonaparte, victor at Waterloo did not harmonize with the law of the 19th century. Napoleon had been denounced in infinitude, his fall was decided. Waterloo was not a battle, but a transformation of the Universe." And yet Napoleon served a beneficient purpose in trampling down of petty tyrants and autocrats, and in starting the world on a new political era, in which "potentates grew smaller and the people larger."

Dr. J. H. Snowdon writes: "Was it possible for the kaiser and his hosts to win the World War? No. Why? On account of Haig and Petain and Pershing and Foch? No; on account of God. The kaiser, victor in France, did not harmonize with the law of the 20th century. He had been denounced in infinitude. The stars were fighting against him. The Marne was not simply a battle, but a transformation of the universe. Out of such a war God does not come wounded and limping, but marching in the greatness of his strength, and through its smoke and mist his personality looms up in clearer certainty and greater sovereignty."

We must avoid, however, a narrow interpretation of divine providence in the way of spectacular intervention and interposition. The allies did not win because of swollen streams and favoring winds, since these manifested no partiality. They won not with big guns, but with morale, since God was working through their ideals.

The sovereign and immanent God is not a God who breaks into our world from the outside in the way of signs and sensation in which a favoritism is shown which miraculously protect the good and destroys the wicked. This imperfect interpretation of God brings heartbreaking perplexities in the attempt to give a solution to the problems of life.

But the God who is immanent in all the agencies and processes of the world is not working narrowly by a method of partialism, but he is pursuing the method, which can only produce and protect the highest spiritual values and move the world onward to its spiritual goal. This we may believe to be the plan of

"That God which ever lives and loves,
One God, one law, one element,
And one far-off, divine event
To which the whole creation moves."

"THANKSGIVING FOR BATTLE OF LEPANTO" By VERONESE

This is the 22d of a series of 52 greatest paintings, which represent the choice of art directors throughout North America. Reproduction of this art masterpiece appears in the rotagravure section of today's Constitution.

BY EUGENE P. CONLEY

The battle of Lepanto, fought in fifteen hundred seventy-one, was a naval engagement between the forces of Spain, Venice and the Papal states allied against the powerful Turkish army. The occasion of this battle was the determination of the Sultan to acquire the island Cyprus from Venice. The faith of the allies was sorely tested. Christianity was at stake. Although outnumbered many times over the Christians scored a decisive victory by reserving the fire of their bow guns until the moment of impact. This unlooked for strategy proved just as effective two hundred years later when that handful of minute men were thus commanded: "Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes."

This battle virtually ended the last crusade, and broke the Turkish naval power in the Mediterranean. In the moment of victory prayers were said, songs were sung, poems were written, celebrations were held, and in this radius of magnetic ecstacy, the painter, Veronese, picked up his brush and painted a "Thanksgiving For Battle of Lepanto," his conception of the Christian world offering thanks to Him who watches o'er us.

Raolo Cogliari, known as Veronese (pronounced Vay-ro-nay-sy) a cognomen he assumed because of his birth in Verona, Italy, was born in the year fifteen hundred twenty-eight, just one hundred years after Joan of Arc, who, guided by divine faith, led the army of France to victory at Orleans.

His father was a sculptor. Now, I believe, there runs through the veins of every father, the desire for the son to follow in his footsteps—to adopt his trade, but this can be said to the credit of Signor Cogliari; when he saw Raolo spending his hours of play drawing pictures, he gladly dismissed the idea of training him in his own branch of art, and placed him in the studio of his uncle.

As a painter, Veronese progressed rapidly. His fame spread beyond the limits of his native city, and he found it expedient to move to Venice. He chose a most propitious moment for his advent in that city. Venice was at its flood; commerce was active; art was having its day; prosperity reigned everywhere; and here he opened his studio.

In those days a true Venetian was an art connoisseur. He lived and breathed art. He couldn't be fooled any more than you could hope to pass off a plow horse as a thoroughbred to a true Kentuckian. Curiosity led them to Veronese's studio. Here they discovered real art—art that stood up under every test—and in the artist they recognized the master. "Gold is where you find it." Veronese became the most popular painter of the day.

Practically all of his best known pictures were finished after his marriage to his cousin Elena, the daughter of his uncle, who first instructed him in painting. These include the "Vision of St. Helena," "Marriage of Cana," "Finding of Moses," and "Venus Enthroned." He was one of the last survivors of those great names whose genius emblazoned the Renaissance.

INSTALLMENT IV.

"YOU ARE Miss Gwyn, of course?" he said. "I would have recognized your relationship with your brother even if I had not known your name."

It was a little shock to Leslie that she in any way resembled Arthur, for Arthur's good looks were of a variety which she neither envied nor admired.

"He is engaged at the moment. If you'll sit down, I'll go along and tell him."

His eyes did not leave her face. She had often seen in stories the word "devour" applied to an intensity of gaze, and she thought that fictional characters must look somehow as Mr. Gilder was looking. He was not staring; it was the concentration, the probing investigation of those bright gay eyes that made her writhe inside. If he had been impertinent it would have been an easy matter to have dealt with him, but he was respect itself. His attitude was deferential, his general manner was friendly. He was dressed very well and carefully, she thought, and wondered whether Arthur's preciosity in the matter of clothing influenced his staff. The gray homespun, the rather solid shoes were set off by the expensiveness of his linen. With a woman's eye she saw that in his way this man was something of a dandy, too.

"I hear you are going to live near us, Mr. Gilder?" she said, and he was obviously taken aback.

"Why—yes," he said awkwardly. "I've bought a little place near your house. I love that part of the country."

"We shall be neighbors," she said with a smile, but felt no pleasure in the prospect.

"Er—yes. I suppose we shall be, Miss Gwyn," he agreed.

"It will be very nice for Arthur. I suppose it was his suggestion that you should come down?"

He had a nervous little trick of stroking an invisible mustache, for he was clean shaven.

"Well, no," he said. "I haven't told Mr. Gwyn yet that I have bought the property. I thought another time would be more opportune. I bought it for a song—thirty-five hundred pounds."

She looked up quickly.

"That is an expensive song," she said before she realized an error of taste.

This time he was visibly disconcerted.

"Yes. I borrowed the money," he said.

She had a feeling that he was going to ask her a favor and guessed what the favor would be. Leslie had the uncanny gift of reading people's minds and gathering their surface thoughts, and in those moments when Fabrian Gilder dropped his mask he was rather easy. He opened his lips to speak, thought better of it, meeting perhaps the chill atmosphere of a refusal before it was given, and then:

"I'll see if your brother is disengaged," he said, and went into the room to Arthur Gwyn, his head reeling with the vision which had emerged through the gray fog of his drab life.

Day after day he had watched her, and she had never known. He had left his rod and line to steal behind trees that he might see her pass. So was romance in excelsis—the perfect realization of thirty years of dreaming.

It took him a second to compose himself before he turned the handle and walked in, and then he stood stricken dumb by the words that came to him.

Arthur Gwyn looked from Gilder to Mary Wenner. "Come and see me later," he said to Mary in a low voice. "Gilder, show Miss Wenner out through the side door."

Gilder opened the private door and followed the girl into the corridor.

"Where are you living?" he asked.

There was such a note of authority in his voice that for the moment the girl was taken off her guard.

"Thirty-seven Cranston Mansions. Why?" she asked, with a certain archness that indicated resentment but invited a further offense.

"Because I want to see you," said Gilder. "Can I come round to your flat some evening?"

Miss Wenner was shocked a little at this. There were moments when her sense of propriety was easily outraged. She was curious, too; so far from resenting his commanding address, she rather liked it.

"Yes, any evening you wish, if you will let me know when you are coming. I will ask a young lady friend to keep me company."

Gilder's hard lips curled.

"Unless you particularly want a chaperon, don't get one," he said. "I have much to say to you that I don't want anybody else to hear."

He accompanied her to the elevator and on the way extracted a promise to receive him alone. Miss Wenner was almost as curious to know the object of that visit as Mr. Gilder was to discover what was behind the amazing statement he had heard. He passed the closed door of Arthur's room and heard voices. He would have given a lot for an excuse to interrupt brother and sister, but something told him that it would be wiser if he kept out of his employer's way until he was absolutely certain that the girl had not betrayed the very carefully hidden transaction which had made him the proprietor of Red Farm.

"You're a little goose to come up to town without money," said Arthur, as he skinned three notes from his pocketbook. "Here is enough to keep you happy for the rest of your life."

"Would fifteen pounds do that?" she laughed, and was going, when she remembered. . . .

Arthur listened in amazement to the news she had to give.

"Gilder has bought a house at Chelfordbury? Impossible!" he said. "He would have told me. Why the dickens does he want a house—besides, he has no money."

"Hasn't he?" she asked, in surprise.

Arthur scratched his chin irritably.

"I suppose the beggar has; but a house at Chelfordbury—that is extraordinary! I wasn't even aware that he knew the place."

"He is the man who has been staying at Ravensville Cottage all the summer," she said.

"The fisherman!" he whistled. "What a close bird he is! Of course," he went on quickly, "there is nothing wrong in a man wanting to live at Chelfordbury, and there's no reason in life why he shouldn't buy a house. But what a sly old fox!"

He was troubled; she saw that he was trying to hide it behind a flippancy which was transparent to her.

"I knew, of course, that somebody had rented the fisherman's cottage, as they call it, and to think that he's been down all these months and never once given himself away!"

"He has a car, if he's the same man who was living at the cottage," she nodded. "Dick Alford is furious!"

Arthur chuckled.

"Poor old Dick!" he said good humoredly. "He loathes this residential idea, and when I put forward a scheme to cut up one of his northern estates into residential properties he nearly bit my head off. Harry would have done it like a shot, and I hope, my dear, when you're married you'll persuade him."

He waited expectantly.

"Yes—when I am married," she said, and her tone made him glance at her keenly. But he was wise enough to skim over that subject.

"Dick, of course, is a fool," he said, with good natured contempt. "He has a blind faith in the future of agriculture in this country, and grudges every acre that's taken out of cultivation. And yet, if you were to put up a scheme to build huge blocks of cottages to relieve the slum congestion, or something equally quixotic and unprofitable, he would jump at the idea. I can well understand that the mere thought of a successful lawyer's clerk setting himself up as a country gentleman would make Dick foam at the mouth!"

"He wasn't foaming when I left him," she said dryly.

"When you left him?" He was quick to take a point.

"Yes. He came down to the station with me." And she could not account for her momentary feeling of embarrassment.

He was still searching her face, and then, laying his hands on her shoulders, he shook her gently.

"Old girl," he said, "keep your mind off the second son! He's a good looking fellow, and side by side with his brother there's no question of choice! But he's a second son, which means that he's next door to being broke. And you can't live on good looks——".

She raised her eyes slowly to his.

"What do you mean—I can't live on good looks?" she said deliberately. "Why do you emphasize the fact that Dick Alford is poor? Am I not an heiress?"

He did not speak, and then, with a light laugh, dropped his hands.

"Why, of course, chick!" he said lightly. "Only—well, I want you to do something for yourself. Make a name in the country. It will be something to have the position which Harry can offer you. Dick is quite a good fellow—one of the best, although he doesn't get on very well with me. But there's nothing to it with him, Leslie. You might as well marry some poverty stricken gentleman farmer——"

He stopped under the steady gaze that met him.

"'Poverty stricken' again, Arthur—without suggesting that I would rather marry Dick Alford, I wonder why the question of his poverty interests you so much. If you had called him a commoner, but you insist upon the question of my possible fiance's wealth, and that seems strange to me."

He laughed long and loudly, but his merriment seemed, to her sensitive ear, lacking in sincerity.

"You ought to be a lawyer, Leslie! Upon my word, I've a good mind to have you coached for an examination! You'd look simply topping in a wig and gown! And now, my little girl, you must run away, because I've a tremendous lot of work."

He put his arm round her shoulders and walked with her to the door, and breathed a sigh of relief when he heard the whine of the elevator carrying her down. Closing the door behind him, he rang the bell, and to the clerk who came:

"Ask Mr. Gilder to come in, will you, please?"

When Gilder had this message he knew that the girl had told her brother, and although he had his fair share of moral courage, it needed a conscious effort on his part to answer the summons.

"Gilder, what is this story of you buying Red Farm?" asked Arthur sharply.

"Why should I not buy Red Farm?" replied Gilder coolly.

"There is no reason in the world why you shouldn't," said Arthur, after a moment's thought, "but it is rather curious you never told me."

"I thought you might object," said Gilder. "Business men hate their workaday associates living anywhere near them. It was stupid of me not to tell you. I've been living in a cottage at Chelfordbury for three months—was that in itself objectionable? You will forgive me for saying so, but although I have always regarded you with the respect that is due to an employer, I have never quite looked upon you as my feudal lord!"

Arthur grinned for a second.

"Once or twice I thought of coming over to see you," Gilder went on, "but I've always had what I think to be a natural reluctance to intrude myself in a social capacity upon my chief. If you had ever invited me to come and stay a week-end at your place, I would have come, and you would have known all about my presence in the neighborhood. As it was, I felt very much in the position of a servant enjoying himself in his own independent way and feeling no need to consult his employer as to how he should employ his spare time—and money."

"And money," repeated Arthur. "I didn't know you were so well off, Gilder?"

Mr. Gilder inclined his head.

"I have already hinted to you that I have made considerable sums. There again, it has never seemed necessary that I should keep you acquainted with my bank balance."

"You have had a moderate salary," said Arthur significantly. "Not a generous amount, I agree; certainly not an amount from which a man could save a sum sufficient to buy and rebuild Red Farm and maintain it."

For answer Gilder put his hand in his pocket and, taking out a little Russian leather note case, laid it on the table. The name in gold letters upon the cover was that of a bookmaker who carried one of his employer's biggest accounts. With this firm Arthur had lost his largest bets, for Trumans had offered him facilities which other houses had denied to him.

"Truman?" He frowned. "What has that to do with it? Have you been backing horses?"

Gilder shook his head.

"No," he said simply. "I am Truman."

Arthur Gwyn gaped at him. Truman! The bookmaker to whom for weeks in succession he had been paying thousands upon thousands of pounds!

"Then the money you have—is my money!" he gasped.

"Your money?" said the other quietly. "If Truman's had not taken it, some other bookmaker would have done so. When you won you were paid—have you any complaints?"

"My money!" muttered Arthur.

Gilder replaced the book in his pocket.

"You remember five years ago complaining to me that you couldn't find bookmakers who would take big bets by telegram within a few minutes of the race? That little talk gave me an idea. I knew you lost steadily, that you were one of those unfortunate people——"

"Say 'fools'—that was the word on your lips."

"'Mug' was the word," said Mr. Gilder with great calmness. "I knew you were one of those people who couldn't stop betting. So Truman's came into existence. Their book of rules was sent to you, featuring the important concession that you could wire big sums of money up to within a few minutes of a race. Do you know how much you've lost in the last five years?"

Arthur was pale with fury, but, mastering himself, shook his head.

"You have lost sixty-three thousand pounds to Truman alone," said the other slowly. "And I have won it!"

The color came and went in Arthur Gwyn's face. He knew all the time that his rage and resentment were unreasonable. Hitherto Truman had been a name on a telegraph form, an address somewhere in the West End to which his unprofitable telegrams were sent. Who they were he neither knew nor cared; they might have been people infinitely more objectionable than Gilder.

But there was a suggestion of duplicity in the man's confession. Arthur Gwyn felt that he had been tricked by a servant he trusted, and he was helpless in face of sixty-three thousand facts, all of which balanced on the side of the hard faced man before him.

"You are not Rathburn & Co., I suppose?" he asked, mentioning another bookmaking firm that had drawn heavily upon his resources.

To his amazement, Gilder nodded.

"I am Rathburn & Co. I am also Burton & Smith. I am, in fact, the three bookmakers to whom you have been losing money at the rate of thirty thousand a year for the last five years. There is no sense in looking like that, Gwyn. I have been guilty of no crime. On the few occasions when you have won money, you have been paid. Your losses would not have been so distasteful if they had been made to an unknown man. I took the risk—my luck against yours. When I started, I staked my little fortune—three thousand pounds, won through the years by scrimping and saving. If you had been lucky, I should have been ruined."

"Instead of which you were lucky—and I am ruined," said Arthur Gwyn huskily. He was shaken from his accustomed calm. "You are quite right, though it is a little—bewildering."

He looked curiously at the inscrutable face of his managing clerk, striving to readjust his estimate of a man whom he had looked upon as little more than a superior servant. Then the humor of the position struck him and he laughed.

"If I'm not careful, I shall be sorry for myself, and I should hate that, Gilder! So you're a rich man, eh? What are you going to do with your money?"

Gilder's eyes did not leave his face.

"I am going to settle down in the country," he said, "and I am going to marry."

"Splendid!" There was a note of irony in Arthur Gwyn's tone. "And who is the fortunate lady?"

It was a long time before the other replied. He stared open-eyed at his sometime master, and then, very deliberately and slowly:

"It is my desire and intention to marry Miss Leslie Gwyn," he said.

Not a muscle of Arthur Gwyn's face moved; his color did not change. But into his eyes came a glare which was malign and devilish. For a second the imperturbable Gilder was scared. Had he gone too far? Both men were learning something that day. Gilder had a momentary view of something that was very ugly and menacing, and then the curtains were drawn and the inner self of Arthur Gwyn vanished in an enigmatic smile.

"That is very interesting and very enterprising of you, Gilder! Unfortunately, I have other plans."

He rose leisurely from his chair, walked round the desk, and confronted the other, his hands thrust into his pockets.

"What are you prepared to pay for the privilege of being my brother-in-law?" he bantered.

Fabrian Gilder took up the challenge.

"The return of half your betting losses for the last five years," he said.

Arthur shook his head.

"Not enough," he smiled.

"The cancellation of four bills," said Gilder deliberately, "drawn and accepted by Lord Chelford, the acceptance in each case being forged by you."

Arthur Gwyn staggered back to his desk, his face white and drawn, and Gilder pursued the advantage.

"You didn't think it was an accident that I suggested you should get Chelford to back a bill for you, did you? Seventy-five thousand pounds isn't enough for you, eh? I'll give you this alternative: five years in Dartmoor!"

* * * *

Leslie had spent rather a boring afternoon, and not once but many times she regretted that she had promised to return to Arthur's office. He was driving her down to Hill House, and but for this arrangement, she would have returned to Chelfordbury by an early train, for her shopping did not occupy more than an hour.

She rang up her brother to suggest this plan, never doubting that he would agree, but, to her surprise:

"I think you'd better return with me, girl. Come along to the office about half past four instead of five. By the way, Gilder wants us to go home to his flat to tea. You don't mind, do you?"

"Mr. Gilder?" she said in surprise, and he went on hastily:

"We ought to be civil to him. He's going to be a neighbor of ours, and he—he's not a bad sort of fellow."

Her inclination was to plead a headache, an experience which, to state the matter mildly, was not wholly to her taste. But Arthur seldom asked a favor of her, and it was apparent from his tone that he was anxious she should show this act of civility to his head clerk; somewhat unwillingly she agreed.

If he detected her reluctance he made no comment upon it and seemed in a hurry to hang up. There was no reason in the world why the projected call should make her uneasy, and yet, for some obscure reason, this coming experience hung like a cloud over her for the rest of the afternoon. This time, when she returned to the office, she entered by Arthur's private door. He was alone, sitting at his desk in a familiar attitude, his head between his hands, his gloomy eyes fixed upon the blotting pad. She thought his face had less color than usual, and in his eyes there was a haggard, hunted expression which was startling. He forced a smile to greet her, but she was not deceived.

"Aren't you well, Arthur?" she asked anxiously.

"Fit as a fiddle," he laughed, "only I have had a pretty heavy day. I suppose I look a little washed out."

He did not seem very anxious to discuss himself, but plunged straight into the subject of the surprising call they were to make.

"Gilder has a flat off Regent's Park," he said. "Be as nice to him as you can, Leslie. He's been a pretty useful man. By the way," he said awkwardly, "he is a bachelor."

She smiled at this; in her wildest dreams she would not have imagined that this statement had any particular interest for herself.

"I had no idea he was such a—that he was so prosperous," she said. "No, I don't mean that bachelorhood is a sign of poverty, but his estate at Chelfordbury and his flat in Regent Park are not exactly what one would have expected."

"He isn't a bad fellow," repeated Arthur, as he rang the bell. "I think you'll like him; he is rather—amusing."

"Amusing" was not the word he would have used in all truth, but it was the only word he could think of at the moment. As though he were waiting for this summons, Mr. Gilder came in answer to the bell. He carried a light coat over his arm and a spotless gray felt hat in his hand.

"You know Mr. Gilder, Leslie?"

His uneasiness and apprehension were communicating themselves to her. Try as she did, she could not succeed in shaking off her sensation of disquietude. The atmosphere was electric; she would have been dull indeed if she had not responded to the strain.

Throughout the journey Mr. Gilder talked almost without interruption.

Afterwards Leslie catalogued the subjects which were discussed so one-sidedly in that drive. He talked of aviation, of wireless, of books he had read—Dumas was his favorite—of the war, of Russia, of Italy's renaissance, of American writers, of the weather, polo—of almost every subject that occupied public attention. She knew that he was trying to impress her and saw in this no more than the natural desire of a man to look well in the eyes of a woman.

The flat was bigger than she had expected and was one of many in the most exclusive apartment house on the outer circle. Arthur viewed its expensive appointments with a glum face. One black week of his at Ascot must have furnished three such flats as this, he thought, and the little devil of resentment and loathing grew stronger in his heart.

Tea was served by two trimly uniformed maids, and Mr. Gilder acted the part of host to perfection. He had a library of rare old books which she must see, and he took them to a room the walls of which were fitted with bookshelves and reminded Leslie, though there was no resemblance between the two apartments, of the hall wherein her fiance spent most of his time.

Gilder was showing the girl a rare first edition when a surprising thing happened.

"Do you mind if I run out for five minutes, Leslie? I want to see a fellow who lives on the other side of the park."

Arthur Gwyn's voice was husky, his assumption of ease a miserable failure. The girl looked at him in astonishment, and then examined the face of the little watch on her wrist.

"If you want to be back at Willow House in time for dinner," she began.

"I shan't be more than a quarter of an hour gone," he said desperately. "If you don't mind——"

Before she could utter a word he had vanished. It was all so unexpected, so strange, that she could not quite realize what had happened, and the last thought in the world she could have had was that Arthur was deliberately leaving her alone with this gray man.

On one point her mind was made up; she did not like Mr. Gilder, and was fairly certain that her antipathy was shared by her brother. His strange manner in the presence of the man, his awkwardness, and, most convincing proof of all, his silence, puzzled her. Arthur was intensely selfish, would not go a step out of his way either for courtesy's sake or to save the feelings of those whom he regarded as his dependents. And this sudden desire to oblige his head clerk was contradictory to her knowledge of him. Yet she felt neither alarm nor annoyance, finding herself in that little library, alone with this square-jawed clerk.

As the door closed upon her brother, Fabrian Gilder carefully replaced on the shelf the book he had been examining.

"I shall be in my new home by the spring," he said, "and I hope I shall see more of you, Miss Gwyn."

She made a conventionally polite reply.

"My ambition has always been to settle in the country and to follow my two hobbies, which are fishing and reading," he went on. "Happily, I am in the position of being able to retire from my profession—your brother has probably told you that I am a fairly wealthy man."

Something in his tone focused her attention. Her heart beat a little faster, and for the first time she was conscious of being alone with him.

"I am not an old man—fifty I regard as the prime of life—and I think I have the capacity for making any woman happy."

She met his eyes steadily.

"I hope we shall have the pleasure of meeting your wife," she said.

He made no reply to this, and she grew hot and cold under the scrutiny of those merciless gray eyes. And then, before she realized what was happening, his two big hands had closed about her arms and he was holding her away from him, peering into her face.

"There is one woman in the world for me," he said, and his voice was husky with emotion. "One fact that fills my eyes day and night! Leslie, all these months you have not been out of my sight or mind!"

"Let me go!" she cried, struggling to free herself.

"I want you! I've worked for you, I've schemed for you! Leslie, I love you as you will never be loved again! I want you—I want you!"

He was drawing her nearer and nearer, his eyes like coals of fire, fascinated her to a queer listlessness that was almost quiescence. She found no reserve to combat him, and could only stare helplessly at the hard face.

There was a knock at the door. He pushed her aside, his face convulsed with rage.

"Who is that?" he asked harshly, and the voice of the maid replied:

"Mr. Richard Alford to see you, sir!"

Dick Alford, waiting in the pretty drawing room and wondering exactly how he should introduce what promised to be a very unpleasant discussion, saw the door flung open and a white-faced girl ran in.

"O, Dick, Dick!" she sobbed.

In a moment she was in his arms, her face against his breast.

"For God's sake, what has happened? How did you come here?" he asked, bewildered.

Before she could reply the big figure of Fabrian Gilder filled the doorway. The man did not speak, but the smoldering rage in his eyes was eloquent.

"Well, what do you want?" he boomed.

Dick put the girl gently from him.

"Why are you here, Leslie?"

"Arthur brought me," she gasped. "I'm awfully sorry to make such a fool of myself, but——"

Dick looked from the girl to the man in the doorway and began dimly to understand.

"Arthur brought you here?" he said slowly. "And left you alone—with this man?"

She nodded.

"Is he a friend of yours?"

She shook her head.

"I only met him today."

Gradually the explanation of her distress was beginning to dawn upon him and a cold rage filled his heart. An unfortunate moment for Arthur Gwyn to return. Dick heard the tinkle of a bell, quick footsteps in the hall, and saw the white face of the lawyer, made hideous by the smile he forced.

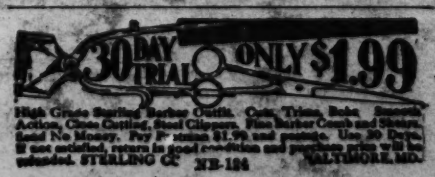

"Hullo, old girl! What's the trouble?" he asked.

He did not look at his host. This Dick noticed with gathering fury.

"I think you had better take Leslie home," he said. "I have a little business to do with Mr. Gilder."

What Crawford Long Did For Humanity

as well as minor surgical operations, others more favorably situated engaged in similar experiments, and consequently the publication of etherization did not 'bide my time.'

"I know that I deferred the publication too long to receive any honor from the priority of discovery, but having by the persuasion of my friends presented my claim before the profession, I prefer that its correctness be fully investigated before the Medical Society. Should the society say that the claim, though well-founded, is forfeited by not being presented earlier, I will cheerfully respond, so mote it be.

"Not wishing to intrude upon the time of the society, I have made this short compendium of all the material points stated in my article in the Journal, and if the society wishes any further information on the subject I will cheerfully comply with their wishes."

LONG'S CLAIM GENUINE.

But are Long's documents genuine, complete and convincing? I can personally testify that they are. In 1896, I chanced to meet Mrs. Fanny Long Taylor, who amazed me by saying that her father was the discoverer of surgical anesthesia. I had heard only of Morton in whose honor as the "discoverer of anesthesia" a great celebration was in preparation in Boston. I was thrilled when she said she could put his documentary proofs in my hands, and when a few days later I hurried through his time-stained papers, case histories, account books, affidavits from patients, attendants, physicians in his town and elsewhere in Georgia—all of which furnished overwhelming proof of the originality of his discovery and his successful employment of ether to produce complete anesthesia in numerous operations, I asked permission to present again his claims in greater detail.

On looking into the literature I found that the great Dr. Marion Sims had ardently asserted that Long undoubtedly had done the first operations under ether anesthesia—antedating the work of Morton at the Massachusetts General by four years. Unfortunately, Sims' paper was distorted by a serious misstatement—he gave the credit for the idea of using ether to a Dr. Wilhite, one of Long's medical students, from whom Sims learned of Long's work.

I found also that Morton's son had vigorously assailed Long's methods—asserting that complete anesthesia was not produced—that the ether was used as at the "ether frolics;" that the patient "administered ether to himself and remained conscious all the time."

By happy fortune, I found one of Dr. Long's assistants still alive and he (Dr. J. F. Groves) described how "Dr. Long poured ether on a towel and held it to the patient's nose and mouth . . . and determined when the patient was sufficiently etherized to begin operation by pinching him—and then gave me the towel and I kept up the influence by holding it still to the patient's nose. The patient was entirely unconscious." (Given in detail in "Long, the Discoverer of Anesthesia"—a presentation of his original documents by Hugh H. Young, the Johns Hopkins Hospital Bulletin, August, 1898.) The Wilhite story of priority of idea, advanced by Sims, I was able to disprove by a letter from Wilhite himself which admitted his "mistake."

JACKSON ADMITS LONG'S PRIORITY.

Lack of time forbids my describing many interesting phases of the contest for the honor of this colossal discovery. Jackson and Morton, who obtained a patent for their "discovery" (the nature of the anaesthesia being kept secret and called Letheon) on the basis of Jackson's giving Morton the idea, and Morton using it on the first cases (dental), subsequently disagreed and Dr. Jackson hearing of Long's claims visited him in Georgia to investigate them and then generously wrote as follows:

"Boston,

"Thursday, April 11, 1861.

"To the Editors of The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal:

"Messrs. Editors: At the request of the Hon. Mr. Dawson, U. S. Senator from Georgia, on March 8, 1854, I called upon Dr. C. W. Long, of Athens, Georgia. From the documents shown me by Dr. Long, it appears that he employed sulphuric ether as an aneasthetic agent:

"1st, March 30th, 1842, when he extirpated a small glandular tumor from the neck of James M. Venable, a boy in Jefferson, Georgia, now dead.

2nd, July 3d, 1842, in the amputation of the toe of a negro boy belonging to Mrs. Hemphill, of Jackson, Ga.

3d, September 9th, 1843, in extirpation of a tumor from the head of Mary Vincent, of Jackson, Ga.

"4th, January 8, 1845, in the amputation of a finger of a negro boy belonging to Ralph Bailey, of Jackson, Ga.

"Copies of the letters and depositions proving these operations with ether were all shown me by Dr. Long.

"I then called on Professors Joseph and John Le Conte, then of the University of Georgia, at Athens, and inquired if they knew Dr. Long, and what his character was for truth and veracity. They both assured me that they knew him well, and that no one who knew him in that town would doubt his word, and that he was an honorable man in all respects.

$2.25 CHARGED FOR HISTORIC OPERATION.

"Subsequently, on revisiting Athens Dr. Long showed me his folio journal, or account book, in which stand the following entries:

" 'James Venable.

" 'March 30th, 1842, ether and excising tumor, $2.00.

" 'May 13th, Sul. ether, 25c.

" 'June 6th, excising tumor, $2.00.

"On the upper half of the same page, several charges for ether sold to the teacher of the Jefferson academy are recorded, which ether Dr. Long told me was used by the teacher in exhibiting its exhilarating effects, and he said the boys used it for the same purpose in the academy. I observed that all these records bore the appearance of old and original entries in the book.

"I have waited expecting Dr. Long to publish his statements and evidence in full, and therefore, have not before published what I learned from him. He is a very modest, retiring man and not disposed to bring his claims before any but a medical or scientific tribunal.

"Had he written to me in season I would have presented his claims to the Academy of Sciences of France, but he allowed his case to go by default, and the academy knew no more of his claims to the practical use of ether in surgical operations than I did.

"CHARLES T. JACKSON, M. D.

"Boston, April 3, 1861."

Long's claims were therefore shown to rest on solid evidence. He had produced complete anesthesia, by ether which he personally administered, had operated painlessly, and on several cases four years before anyone else. He had not kept his anesthetic secret but had told fellow physicians of his town and state of his work. By strange coincidence Morton did not publish his epoch-making cases but it remained for one who had not even done the operations—Dr. H. J. Bigelow, to become his mouthpiece and advocate in the sad spectacle of litigation and controversy between the rival New England claimants for a bonus from congress for the discovery of anesthesia. In this Dr. Long took no part, but a presentation of his documents by Senator Dawson of Georgia, promptly killed the bill to give Morton $100,000.

On March 30, 1921, on the 70th anniversary of his first operation, a great celebration was staged at his alma mater—the University of Pennsylvania, in honor of Long's discovery of anesthesia.

That the general usage of ether in surgery came after the surgeons of the Massachusetts General had operated upon cases anesthetized by Morton no one will gainsay. But in this epoch-making discovery there is surely "glory enough for all."

WHAT DR. LONG'S DISCOVERY MEANT.

Surgery was unshackled, physicians returned to the operating table, the shrieks of the torture chamber ceased and the operating theater became a place of quiet, scientific endeavor to master the ravages of disease with the humane use of the knife. Conditions heretofore hopeless were brought under the sway of surgery, surgeons rapidly acquired a daring, a dexterity, an exquisite skill that has resulted in the most amazing progress witnessed in any art.

Before anesthesia only 34 cases a year were operated on at the Massachusetts General. In five years the number had tripled, and in 50 years the increase was a hundred fold.

In the surgical textbooks before 1842 one finds described only minor procedures and emergency operations. Within 10 years the changes wrought were immense—splendid new conquests over disease by surgery were reported. The advance was rapid but not until Pasteur's great work on spontaneous generation (1862) and diseases of silkworms in 1865 and Lister's announcement of his great discovery of surgical antiseptics in 1867, was the capstone placed upon Long's work of 15 years before. Surgery was delivered from the horrors of pain and infection, and, like an animal freed from a black dungeon of despair, bounded forth into the pure light of science.

Disease, now explained by the germ theory, rapidly fell before one masterful research after another, while surgeons boldly went forth to conquer the hidden terrors of the abdomen, the chest, the brain and every corner of the human organism finally bringing them under the searching rays of scientific medicine.

Without the gift of anesthesia where would we be today? Accustomed as we are to behold the wonderful accomplishments of modern medicine and surgery with complacency, what a tumult would ensue were we to revert again to the days of the great discoverer whose memory we celebrate today in the unveiling of this splendid replica of Crawford Williamson Long.

and mate to take us sailing over the South Seas. Your uncle, who was a yachtsman, got the captain to tell him about all the lonely islands he could think of, and when we had put him ashore in the Marshalls we set out in search of a likely place. We spent almost two years going from place to place before we came here. You practically lived on the sea, Johnny."

"I know, I remember some of it. It helped to bring me out here," said Mark.

"We decided to settle here, it was the most cut off of all the places," went on his mother. "We hired natives from the Marqueses and they built this house. We planted as best we could, and lived as best we could. Your uncle did a little trading with the cutter, and when that was lost with him we had to make do with a big canoe. We've been homesick, but happy. Very homesick of late, my dear, because we missed you, as well as home."

"And now you've got me—and I'm taking you home."

"You can't, as a rising young lawyer, take John Clavell, an absconding lawyer, home, my boy," said his father, thickly.

"Can't I?" laughed Mark. "For wasn't it the John Clavell, lawyer, in my blood that has made me the lawyer I am? It is your blood to me, sir, that will prove you innocent."

His father hid his face in his hands and Mark rose and walked to the window. He saw the Witch's Hat towering above the trees as it had always towered in his dreams.

"You made up a story about that hill, didn't you, mother?" he said.

"Do you remember that, my dear?" she said, coming softly to his side. "It was a silly little story about that being the hat of the witch who protected and looked after us always."

"It wasn't silly, and you were right about her," he smiled. "For she brought me here. The memory of her stuck in my mind, though I forget the story."

"Would you like to hear it again, Johnny?" she said softly, so very softly.

"Yes, dear," he said, putting his arm about her thin shoulders; "tell me now, as we look at it for the last time, for I feel that none of us are going to see it again."

CROSSED WIRES

trees. Farther on the buildings of a sizable city were visible.

"I thought you might be interested in stopping here for luncheon," said the chauffeur, opening the door. "The place has some historic interest. It was here that George Washington capitulated to De Villiers, who was in command of the French and Indians. From the veranda on the east side you may see the eminence from which the French and Indians poured an incessant shower of balls upon the heroic defenders."

De Barsac was glowering. It seemed a needless repetition of "French and Indians," and he regarded it as a personal affront. "After luncheon, which I have ordered served on the east veranda, where the view is excellent," continued the chauffeur, "I shall be glad to act as your guide if you don't mind a short climb."

Mrs. Crayton stiffly declined, but Virginia expressed her delight.

"The count and I will be glad to go with you," she exclaimed, with a glance at that gentleman, who nodded but without noticeable enthusiasm. If there was one thing he detested it was climbing.

The chauffeur sat with the French maid at a table somewhat removed from the Crayton party. They were heard to laugh a great deal and then become involved in a vociferous controversy. Celeste's "Non, non, non, monsieur," became more and more emphatic.

"What was the argument, Celeste?" asked Virginia after the conclusion of the luncheon.

"O, mademoiselle, it is too absurd, too droll, but I shall tell you. He is most amusing!"

WRITERS' CLUB

Write a Letter Real Soon and Join "The Letters Writers' Club"

VASS, N. C.

Dear Girls and Boys:—As I saw my letter and poetry in print it gives me courage to write again, so I am sending another piece I made while we were having lots of rain and here I'll say my flowers are looking fine. Have received several letters and am answering all today. Will try to answer all I get as I dearly love to get good letters. Did I ever tell you about my little sister? Well, she is a perfect little jewel. Seven months old yesterday. I made a piece of poetry about her when she was four months old. If you think you would like it write me and I will send it to the paper. I really wish I could be a poetess. How many of you like to try to make it? Well here's good luck and best wishes to all the writers and editor. Lovingly,

EVELYN CLAYTON.
Box No. 555.

BE CONTENT.

I wished the sun would come out,
But what's the use for me to pout?
Why not be content and say,
The sun will shine another day?

This rain will help the crops to grow,
When it's time for sunshine God will know;
He's doing what He knows is best,
For me and all the rest.

He knows when to let it shine,
And it has yet plenty of time;
So let's not waste this day,
By wanting to change it another way.

And now you see the moral;
Surely I've made it plain.
If dark clouds gather around us,
The sun will shine again.

Mr. Slig thought it would be nice to celebrate the Fourth by having a picnic in the woods.

The little opossums were overjoyed with the idea, but Mrs. Slig thought it would be too much trouble.

"A picnic is the easiest thing in the world," argued Mr. Slig. "All you have to do is to pack a basket with sandwiches, olives, cookies and a few bananas on top to flavor the food. It's perfectly simple."

"Indeed, indeed!" exclaimed Mrs. Slig. "Slig, you have about as much of an idea of a picnic as a fish has of arithmetic."

"How so? How so?" growled Mr. Slig.

"Well, in the first place you've got to have things comfortable," said Mrs. Slig. "Chairs, table, stove, cooking things, and stacks and stacks of handy things have to be taken along to make the day pleasant."

"Not for me, not for me," said Mr. Slig. "All I need is a sandwich or two, a cup of coffee, some pickles, watermelon, cake, and a pie or two."

"Well, that wouldn't suit me," returned Mrs. Slig. "I won't budge a step unless I can have everything handy and comfortable."

"What do you consider necessary to take along?" asked Mr. Slig uppishly.

"Well, we'll have to take along the cook stove to cook on, several easy chairs, a bed so the children won't have to take their nap on the damp ground, and the ice chest to keep the cream and food cool."

"Mrs. Slig!" said Mr. Slig, "I was speaking of going on a picnic, not of moving. Hadn't I better send in a little society notice to the Puckerbush Gazette saying Mr. and Mrs. Slig have set up housekeeping in Pleasant Grove for the day?"

"All right, then, I won't go unless I can have things pleasant," cried Mrs. Slig.

"All right, my dear," answered Mr. Slig, "you get together whatever you care to take along and I'll go over to the express office and hire a couple of moving vans."

Mrs. Slig spent the day getting things together. She put things in a pile in the middle of the kitchen floor and by evening there was hardly enough room to get around.

Each of the little Sligs had a number of things to do. They took their stilts, their kites, their coaster wagons, roller skates, and several picture books.

"You had better take your velocipedes," Mrs. Slig told them. "You may want them before the day is over. And don't forget to put in your rubber boots, rubber coats, and rubber hats."

Mrs. Slig worked half the night making cookies and looking after the things that slipped her mind during the day. She never got into bed until 3 o'clock in the morning, and even then she suddenly remembered that she had not put in a change of heavy underwear for the children.

"It might suddenly get cold during the picnic, so it's best to be prepared," she argued, and while she was up she added the hot water bag and an alarm clock.

The next morning the Sligs were up bright and early. They were so excited they couldn't eat a bite of breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Slig nearly quarreled over Mrs. Slig's suggestion of taking the piano. Varment Slig, the oldest of the Slig children, was taking music lessons, and Mrs. Slig thought it would be nice to hear the little fellow practice in the woods.

At 7 o'clock the two moving vans came for the picnic party.

All the heavy things like the piano and the ice chest were loaded into the van first and then the other things were piled in on top. It took the four woodchucks, who came with the vans, almost an hour to load the wagons, for Mrs. Slig kept bringing out something more to be packed in.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the Sligs climbed aboard the wagons and, amid the cheers of the three little Sligs, they all set off for the picnic.

"STOP! Stop the wagon!" shouted Mrs. Slig shortly after the party had started. "I've forgotten the butter."

It was only a short distance from the Slig house, so Mr. Slig ran back for the butter. In a few minutes he returned and climbed on to the wagon.

"All right," he shouted to the driver. "Let's go."

"STOP!" shouted Mrs. Slig. "You've got to put this butter in the ice chest or it will be melted into soup before we reach the picnic grounds."

Mr. Slig kept his temper and climbed out of the wagon. The ice chest was at the bottom of the load and he ordered the woodchucks to get it out. It took them over half an hour to get at the ice chest, for most of the load had to be removed from the wagon. When Mrs. Slig had put the butter in the chest, and when the wagon was again loaded, they set off once more.

Mr. and Mrs. Slig nearly quarreled.

It was rather late when they arrived at the picnic grounds and it was past dinner time when the stove, ice chest, the piano, and all the rest of the things were put in place.

Mrs. Slig set about getting dinner, but she complained a great deal about the roughness of the ground.

"The next time I come on a picnic I want a floor built around the stove so I won't be stumbling all the time on the uneven ground," she told Mr. Slig.

As soon as the Sligs had eaten their dinner they began packing the vans for the trip home. Mrs. Slig would have liked to stay longer, but she had forgotten to bring her heavy coat and she was afraid of catching cold in the night air.

It was quite late when they arrived home, and it was nearly bedtime before everything they had taken on the picnic was back in its place.

"Well," said Mrs. Slig, when the house was in order again, "it is lots of fun roughing it in the woods, but the next time we go on a picnic we ought to be sure we have every comfort with us."

"Yes," answered Mr. Slig, as he removed his shoe, "the next time we go we'll take the wall paper along and paste it up on the trees so as to give the picnic grounds a homey look."

THESE RIDDLES CERTAIN TO BE BRAIN TEASERS

Where do you fans get all your riddles? We can't print quite all that we get, but we always want more new and good ones. Maybe you have one that will "stump" the editor—he'll admit that it took him a long time to guess a couple of the ones in this bunch.

311. What is the difference between a naughty boy and a stamp?—Mildred Ann Marien, Indianapolis, Indiana.

312. When a street car kills a dog, what stops a wagon?—Anna Schuler, Pataskala, Ohio.

314. What is the greatest riddle in the world?—Kathryn Pennel, Richland Center, Wisconsin.

315. What is it that grows longer the more it is cut?—Will Green, Boston, Massachusetts.

316. When does a caterpillar improve its behavior?—Millie Rinaldo, Nashville, Tennessee.

317. What is the greatest eyesore in a farmyard?—Virginia McMann, El Paso, Texas.

318. Why is a honeysuckle like the letter "A"?—Frances Ward, Smyrna, Tennessee.

319. What is it we all say we will do, recommend others to do, and yet no one has ever done?—Mildred Shipley, Warren, Indiana.

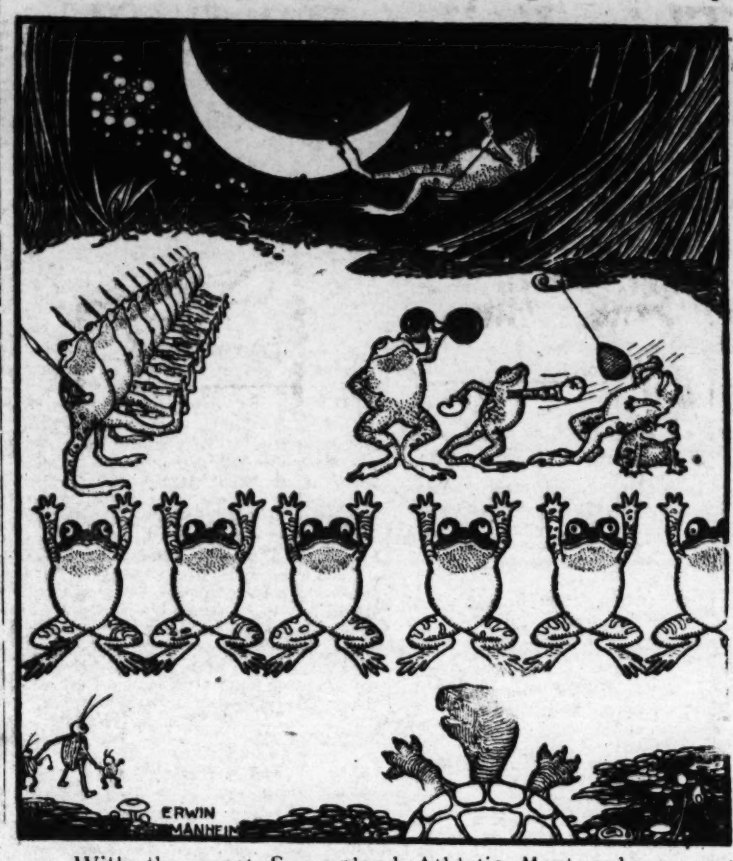

320. Which part of the fish weighs the most?—Glen Hitz, Kingsdown Kansas.

What's the Matter?

Answer will be found elsewhere in this section.

Star Frog Athletes Train Hard For Big Approaching Tourney

With the great Swampland Athletic Meet only a short time distant, the Frogland camp is the scene of great activity. The members of the track team are limbering up their legs in various knee-bending exercises, the Frog Scout Brigade is being drilled in its fanciest squad movements, Basco, the mighty Bull Frog, is doing a little weight lifting, and Kid Croak, the fly-weight boxing champion, is having a lively half hour with his sparring partners and the punching bag.

In fact, everybody is as busy as he can be under the watchful eye of that great coach and trainer, Old Man Turtle. We have great expectations for their success in the big contest.

My Pet

This Pet Is An Orator!

Frances Zisseler, of Delaware, Ohio, possesses a very strange pet. It is a very handsome cockatoo, at one time a native of Australia. She has owned "Bobby" for four years and in that time he has learned to talk. When any one opens the door to come into the room, Bobby will say, "Get out of here, you bad boy." He also says: "Goodbye, dear;" "Mother's dear boy;" and "What are you doing, mother?" He plays hide and seek, too. Frances says that when she stands next to his cage and whistles, Bobby will dance along on the perch. We have heard of many different kinds of pets, but Bobby certainly is an interesting and somewhat unusual one.

Caruso Bites.

Out in Tacoma, Washington, we have another great Caruso. He is a canary owned by Katherine and Ruth Mahaffay. When one of the girls comes up to the cage, he will fly around and peck at her fingers or even her nose, if she is close enough, through the bars of the cage.

Katherine and Ruth write that they are not afraid of their singing pet and will let him bite them, as he does not hurt them. The canary will answer if any one calls to him and when the telephone rings, he will whistle and fly from perch to perch in his cage until some one answers it. The girls say that "Caruso" makes a very delightful and lively companion.

This Toilet Kit Is Simply Made And Is Real Aid On Auto Trips

This little chintz kit will be very handy this summer on long motor trips, for it holds everything you need for refreshing yourself after a dusty tiring ride. To make it, you need a strip of chintz 8 inches wide and 24 inches long, a piece of sateen 8 inches wide and 16 inches long, 3-4 of a yard of 1-2 inch elastic in the same color as the sateen, 1 bolt of bias binding in a shade to go with the coloring of the chintz, and 1 yard of ribbon 3-4 of an inch wide, the color of the binding.

The kit is easy to make. Figure I shows the strip of sateen with dotted lines marking the places where it folds into thirds. The placing of the elastic is also shown. It should be sewed firmly at each end and at the points that will come between the articles to be held under the loops.

In Figure II you can see the sateen and chintz strips combined, and bound together all around with bias binding. The toilet articles are in their places. The towel used must be a small guest towel so that it will not be too bulky in the kit. The envelope you see just below the towel is a rubberized wash cloth holder, which can be purchased at the five and ten cent store. Hair pins, safety pins, common pins, and barettes can all find a place beside the wash cloth holder. There is a place for comb, mirror and nail file in the lowest third of the kit.

Figure III shows the kit folded and fastened with two ribbon straps. Each of these straps ends in a tailored bow at one end, and the bow has a snapper fastened to the reverse side. The other end is hemmed back and bears the other half of the snapper.

Short Story, Jr.

Phil's Time Saving Plan.

"Philip, come here and just look at this room." Mrs. Cook's voice was heavy with displeasure. Her son slowly climbed up the stairs, looking very guilty, for he knew what was coming.

"I should think you would be ashamed!" Dramatically she pointed first at Phil's trousers lying in the middle of the floor, then at his muddy shoes beside them, at his school books tossed carelessly on the bed, and at his cap sticking out from under the bed. Philip had the grace to blush.

"Oh, mother," he complained, "you're so dreadfully particular. You should see Bob's room. His mother lets him keep it just the way he wants to. She never makes him put anything away. Why mine's neat and tidy beside his."

Mrs. Cook smiled in spite of herself. "But what would yours look like, I'd like to know, if I didn't clean up after you every day." As she spoke she was busy putting things in their proper places.

"I wish you wouldn't," Phil complained. "I can find things so much quicker if they are out in plain sight. It isn't efficient to keep things hidden away in the closet. You waste so much time looking for them."

This was too much for his mother. "Well," she said, "if you really prefer to live in a mess I don't see why I shouldn't let you, for a while at least."

"Gee," thought Phil, "just think how much time I'll save with everything right out where I can see it." He felt that he had won a victory. It was so old-fashioned and inefficient to keep everything tucked away out of sight. He had always envied Bob whose room looked it had been stirred with a gigantic spoon.

Mrs. Cook carefully replaced Phil's trousers in the middle of the floor. "I'll just leave these here where you can find them," she said quietly.

Phil looked at her in surprise. They were in the way, he thought, but it wasn't until she went down stairs that he kicked them under the bed. Gee, it was good to be able to do as he pleased in his own room.

The next morning, after one horrified look at the room, Mrs. Cook decided not to investigate within.

"Mother, where are my trousers?" Phil called down to her.

Mrs. Cook smiled to herself, but called back sweetly, "The last time you wore them I hung them in the closet."

"Well," Phil complained, "you're always putting my things away and I thought—" but then he remembered that she was no longer straightening his room.

"Why, Phil, what are you wearing your good hat for?" she greeted him.

"I couldn't find my cap," he explained.

"Go look under the bed," she suggested, "back of your basketball suit, your skates, your good coat, and your old trousers."

That evening when she went to bed she noticed that Phil's room was in perfect order. But Mrs. Cook was a wise mother and said nothing.

Answer to "What's the Matter?"

Whispering in a theater may be very annoying to others sitting near you.

Editorial

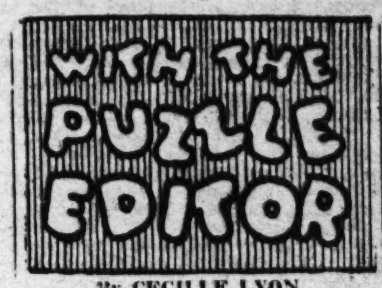

"I WISH—"

How many times, during the recent hot days, have you "wished that it was winter?" People are likely to long for cold weather on hot nights when the sultry air oppresses them and keeps them awake.

And, if you remember faithfully, last winter you said a number of times, "Oh, I wish summer would come." For some reason, we like winter best in summer and summer best in winter!

There used to be a popular song that started "After you've got what you want, you don't want it." That's the way it is with the weather—and many other things in life. Learn to be happy with what you have. You should always strive for better things, but do not waste your time vainly wishing for things that will not satisfy you after you get them.

This Test Will Find All The Good Noses

How efficient is your "smeller?"

Scientific experiments show that most people have all kinds of trouble in detecting and recognizing ordors unless they can see the things they are smelling. You can arrange a little test for yourself and friends. It will not only make you better acquainted with common smells, but will show you which of your "bunch" has the best nose.

Get a number of bottles as nearly alike in size and shape as possible. Take pieces of cotton and dip them into substances having well-known, strong odors. For this purpose vanilla, oil of cloves, vinegar, rosewater, gasoline, oil of wintergreen, onion juice, and similar substances can be used. If you wish, you can put a strong odor on one bit of cotton and a weak odor of the same substance on another.

Then place one of the pieces of cotton in each bottle, and do not label them. If you wish to have a record of which bottle contains a certain odor, give that bottle a number, which you can paste upon the glass.

Now you are ready for the stunt. Ask your friends to smell each of the bottles in turn, and write down the name of the odor he detects, or what he thinks of when he smells that bottle. You will be surprised at the difficulty with which they name these common odors, and some of the answers you get will be funny.

A blank may be inserted with the odors, so that you can find if any of the "smellers" say they get an odor when they do not.

Is Your Letter Printed On These Two "Letter Writers' Club" Pages?

THE LETTER

ROME, GA.

Dear Letter Writers' Club: Please move over just a tiny bit and let me have a chat with you. Thanks, to you and the editor.

I am 12 years old, have light brown hair, hazel eyes, am 4 feet, 6 inches tall, weigh 70 pounds, have fair complexion. Who has my birthday—March 16? I am in the sixth grade. Now I live on the farm and like it fine. It is not far from town, though. How many of you swim? I can't, but I always play in the river. Daddy is going to teach me how. What do you kiddies do for pastime? I read the magazine and we have a radio. I like it, too. We also have a guitar and a banjo. For pets we have four big cats, 6 kittens, 1 dog, 2 calves and 2 pigeons. Just listen at the kiddies saying: "who-ee, that's enough." Which of the funnies do you like best? I like all except Mr. and Mrs. and Elmer Tuggle. Some of you kiddies of the letter writers' club who have some of these songs please write and send them to me. "The Prisoner's Song," "Then I'll Be Happy," and "That Certain Party." I would thank you very much for them. Here's a little yell just for the letter writers' club.

Rah, rah, rah, ree, ree,
Stand on your head, stand on your feet;
The Constitution's letter writers' club can't be beat.

Now I want to get letters from every kiddie. So please write me and send photo, if you can. I have an album of pictures. Some of them are radio friends that I have never seen except for their pictures.

A new member,

ANGIER, N. C.

Dear Boys and Girls: I have been reading your paper for a good while and would like to join your club. My sister, Ruth, has just recently joined it and I wish to join it also. I am 13 years old, am 4 feet, 8 inches tall, weigh about 75 pounds, have grayish-blue eyes and brown hair. My birthday is September 2. Do any of you have it? I attend Angier high school, which is next door to us and I will be in the eighth grade when it begins again. How are all of you progressing these hot and long July days? I certainly like to play marbles, especially when we play for keeps or have partners. Do you like to read? I am very fond of reading the comic sections of the papers. Aren't you? The adventures of Chester Gump are sure interesting and exciting. I also like the other pages of the comics. Cary Wills Bailey's plan, to get the editor of the letter writers' club to get a badge with "The Letter Writers' Club" engraved on it, is an excellent one. I would like to see this happen. All of you would like to take a peek at Old North State, I guess. But if you would take a peek, I don't think you would be quite satisfied, for you would like to get into it and remain, wouldn't you? All of you answer this and send your photograph, please. Let me remind you again to write soon—or sooner.

Dear Boys and Girls: Please move over and let a North Carolina girl join this band of happy boys and girls. I have been noticing the letter writers' section a pretty good while but did not get interested until not long ago. Then it seemed to many boys and girls were interested I thought I might try writing. I was 14 years old April 19. I weigh about 121 pounds and am 5 feet, 3 inches tall, have black hair, brown eyes, dark complexion and natural rosy cheeks. How many of you like camping trips? A bunch of boys and girls here have planned one but it is such rainy weather we have had to put it off. I don't know when we will get to go. Hope to soon! I will enter high school next year. How many of you boys and girls are in high school? Have you all noticed Billy McCoy's poems? I am sure you have, because they are so interesting. I sure do enjoy them! Please all of you write to me and send your photographs, for I am very anxious to hear from you. I will answer all letters.

CHIPLEY, GA.

Dear Unknown Friends: Will you let me join your happy band? I am in the eighth grade at school. I live about four miles from Pine Mountain, one mile of Chipley, Ga., on the Central of Georgia railway, about 10 miles from the famous Warm Springs, Georgia. How many of you readers are flower lovers? I am. We have a lot of beautiful flowers. I have one brother, but not any sisters. I will be 14 years old July 29. Have I a twin? We have been taking The Constitution a long time. I am glad Walt and Phyllis got married. I enjoy reading Little Orphan Annie. She sure does have a lot of hard luck. I hope they let Mr. Warbucks come back. I would like to hear from all states. Please send me one of your pictures when you write, if you can.

Hello Kiddies: Summer is here, isn't it? Gee! but we are having some times now. We are planning on a fine time this month. Fourth of July was a big day for us. I am a new member (Mildred), so will ask for admittance. I hope it will be granted. I know you want to know how I look. I am 5 feet, 2 inches tall, have black hair, gray eyes, fair complexion and weigh 105 pounds.

I, Flora, am an old member, but some one might have forgotten me. I am 5 feet, 3 inches tall, have dark skin, brown curly hair, brown eyes, and weigh 130 pounds.

Well, we hope some of you people will like us and write for we would answer all letters if it was a thousand. We'd answer them even if we had to buy a typewriter and hire a stenographer. Please all of you send photo, if possible. Oh, I (Mildred) forgot to tell you, I am 15 years old and my birthday is January 8. Have I a twin? If so, please write.

So goodbye,

Dear Boys and Girls: Have you been hurt with your fireworks? I was shot in the eye with a nigger-chaser. It hit in the pupil of my eye. Are any of you leaving for your vacation this month. I am leaving for Alabama, maybe Florida, the mountains and home. I am 11 years old. My birthday is May 26. Have I a twin? Let me know if I have. I am a blonde, with brown eyes. My height is 4 feet, 8 inches. I am in the sixth grade, or promoted to it. All of you write to me and answer my questions. I wouldn't mind having a picture of you. I assure you I'll answer your letter and return my picture. Have any of you a secret code? My cousin and I have. Make you one. It's piles and piles of fun. Do any of you know any Spanish words. I should like to join your club. "Con mucho gusta."

Hello Kiddies: Here I come again. I have written once before and my letter was printed, so I thought I would write again, as I enjoy the writers' page. What do you girls and boys do for pastime? I help mother and work with my flowers and many other things. How do you like outdoor sports? I think it is just fun. I have two brothers but no sisters. Both of my brothers are younger than myself, so I get very lonesome. My oldest brother has two pigeons for his pets and I have no pets at all. I read lots for pastime? Maybe some of you have forgotten how I look. I have light hair (bobbed), light blue eyes, dark complexion, am 5 feet, 5 inches tall and weigh 104 pounds. I will be 15 years old December 31. Have I a twin? I will say goodbye for this time. Write soon.

I am 5 feet tall, weigh 96 pounds, have light hair, medium complexion, 14 years old and wear glasses. How many of you like to go in swimming? I sure do. I go in nearly every day. How many of you like music? I sure do. I have been taking for nearly 3 years. My oldest sister is a music teacher and that's what I want to be when I finish school. I have written to the club three times. You just ought to see the letters that I got. How many of you have pets? I have a little black dog. Its name is Mut. It will soon be 9 years old. What did you boys and girls do to celebrate the fourth of July. I didn't do much of anything. Everybody write to me, young or old, because I like to write letters and also like to receive them.

Dear Unknown Friends: Will you allow another Georgia girl to join your happy band. I read your letters every Monday and enjoy them very much. I have black hair (bobbed), blue eyes and weigh 95 pounds. My birthday is September 24. I will be 13 years old. Who is my twin? I would like for you to read this poetry written by myself.

A PET I HAVE.

For pets I have a little kitty
And one little black biddy—
One night when we were all in bed,
He went in and played the piano, it was said.
I like my little kitty best of all,
Because he isn't so very tall.
Every morning about 6 o'clock
He wants to get in if the door's locked.
He is as white as he can be,
But he don't care how old he grows, he still loves me.
He hasn't got over 3 fleas—
I will tell you right now he isn't hard to please.

All of you write to me.

Your unknown friend,
CHRISTINE ADAMSON.

MOORESVILLE, N. C.

Dear Boys and Girls: Here comes another North Carolina girl to burst right into your club of nice, splendid times. I've been reading your sweet letters for a long time, but as it is I've been really busy and I've just neglected writing you folks. First, I want permission to join your club. May I? I am 15 years old, have brown eyes, brown hair and fair complexion, am 5 feet, 4 inches tall and weigh 109 pounds. I know it will be lots of fun writing to unknown friends. I read Billy McCoy's poem in The Sunday Constitution of June 28. He surely can compose a poem. I think it is grand. I almost forgot to tell you what grade I'm in. I am in the ninth grade. Gee! but I am anxious to become a sophomore. Boys and girls, I am expecting many letters from you. So please don't disappoint me.

Your new friend,
GRACE MOORE.

BRYSON CITY, N. C.

Dear Unkonwn Friends: Will you move over and let another North Carolina girl join your happy band of boys and girls? I have been a reader of the letter box for a long time, and sure do enjoy it. I have blue eyes, fair complexion, light brown hair (bobbed), am 5 feet tall, weigh 105 pounds and am 16 years old. How many of you boys and girls like to go to school? I go to Bryson City high school and sure do like it! One of the reasons why I like to go is because I enjoy writing short stories. Don't you enjoy Billy McCoy's poems? I do. I enjoy, too, outdoor sports. We have lovely places to go camping. We North Carolinians sure do think our mountains are wonderful! Well, every one write and I will answer all letters.

Your unknown friend,
RUBY ABBOTT.

WINSTON, GA.

Hello Boys and Girls: I wonder what you are doing this lovely cloudy day. I do not have to ask to join, for I am already a member. This is my third time to write. What do you boys and girls do for pastime? I work in the field. I like to work in the field when it is not too hot. It sure has been hot down here. How many of you boys and girls like to go blackberry huuting? I do for one. There sure are a lot of berries downhere. Don't you boys and girls think that those poems Billy McCoy wrote were good? I do. All of you boys and girls write to me and I will answer every letter I receive, both big and little. Which of the funnies do you like best? I like all of them.

Dear Kiddies: Won't you move over a little bit and let a lonesome Florida boy join your happy club? I read all of your letters in The Constitution each time and I'm sure you must have a good time exchanging letters. I am 15 years old, am 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weigh 145 pounds. I am in the eleventh grade and my birthday is June 21. Is any one a twin? I have a dandy pet dog named "Prince," and he can do all sorts of tricks. I have also a large, yellow angora cat. I live on the east coast, when I'm at home, but I'm staying over here in Lakeland this summer working in a real estate office. Some of you kiddies write to me and send your pictures. I will answer all letters I receive.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

VOL. LIX., No. 35. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 18, 1926.

Fashion Unfurls Her Fabric Treasures!

Neither Sun Nor Rain Can Daunt Them!

Washable Flat Crepes

$1.69

—Fashion tips the scale toward common sense when she insists that her silks be washable. Economy applauded the move and counted that money saved that would otherwise be spent on cleaning.

—But this is just one reason for the popularity of this flat crepe. It's versatility! It performs on the sports field as well as it dances at the Biltmore. A fabric of fortune, we would say! 40 inches wide.

Broadcloth, $1.84

—We are inclined to believe it one of Fashion's original sports fabrics, so well is it suited to the role. Plain broadcloth. Washable.

Radiums, $1.19

—Wash radiums for frocks and dainty summer lingerie. 25 different colors. A heavy, firm quality—36 inches wide.

Broadcloth, $1.49

—Washable silk stripe broadcloth—one of Fashion's original sports fabrics. Both pin and wide sports stripes—all colors. 36 inches wide.

Darbrook, $1.84

—Darbrook, that ever shining light in the sports world that never grows dim. Like the silks they're named for—sportive stripes and solid colors that WASH! 33-in.

Flat Crepe, $1.95

—20 lovely, becoming shades and tones in a wonderful quality flat crepe—guaranteed washable! Specially priced for tomorrow's selling at just $1.95. Plenty of white!

Shantung, $1.19

—Shantung, a veritable Lenglen on the field of sports. It has the additional characteristic of taking to water like a duck. All colors, 33 inches wide.

Pongee, $1.84

—Without a season, and always in season. Suited to the sports costume. Pongee with that much desired knotty appearance. All colors—33 inches wide.

Printed Voiles

—Fashion in her quest for the new has searched far and wide. Now her fancy rests on a slender flower, again she takes a geometric pattern and colors it richly like a stained glass window. But only the marvelous looms of 1926 could make them a reality and endow them with sturdy wearing qualities. Such are these voiles—colorful, durable and inspiring.

Dress Linen, 48c

—Usually 89c. Preshrunk, 36 in. wide, Irish dress linen, in all desirable colors. A little suit, or dress of the long-accepted royal fabric will prove a perennial joy!

Chiffon Voiles, 59c

—Regularly 75c. Sheer two-ply voiles in nature's delicate colorings as well as medium and darker tones for more practical frocks. Solid colors. Also white. 40 inches wide.

Satinette, 39c

—Ordinarily 48c. Lingerie fabric, 36 in. wide, in all shades of the color cycle! Ideal for trim slips, and dainty vacation and summer underthings!

Longcloth, $1.25

—100 pieces of Rich's famous longcloth of soft, smooth finish. This sells regularly for $1.69 a bolt—10 yards to bolt. An opportunity Atlanta housewives will not miss!

Bordered Crepes, 95c

—Made to sell for $1.95. Silk and cotton crepes in very attractive floral and conventional designs. It lends itself so charmingly to the needle, that a chic frock is quite easy!

Flaxon, 25c

—Regularly 50c. Genuine Flaxon that persistently remains crisp in summer's hottest days. 1,000 yds. of it! All white and 40 inches wide. Excellent for curtains as well as frocks.

—RICH'S, SECOND FLOOR

Printed Crepes, 69c

—Regularly 98c to $1.25—Fine silk and cotton printed crepes in colors as fresh as dew-filled morning-glories, and designs both vivid and retiring. 36 in. wide. WASHABLE.

Just a Minute!

What's a Civic Institution?

First, lay stress on civic. Then add a good, generous measure of time. One decade, two, five—the more the better. Next give the word a home—for instance, your own Atlanta.

Rich's store is the creation of Atlanta. It is hers because she made it. Each step in its evolution of 59 years has been in response to an Atlanta need.

Such an institution cannot spring up suddenly—that is, unless all cities are exactly alike. Are they? We think not. Rich's buyers say not. They believe—

"There's a touch of nature, hint of mood" known to the town and the institution that have grown up together.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Prothro, of Hampton, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to William Raymond Kitts, of Knoxville, Tenn., the marriage to take place in the fall. No cards.

Miss Vinson Weds Donald P. McKay.

Of cordial interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Gladys Vinson, of Douglas, and Donald Pierre McKay, of Okeechobee, Fla., formerly of Cordele, on Sunday afternoon, July 11 at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. T. B. Stanford, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Douglas, officiated, in the presence of the immediate family.

Mrs. McKay is the oldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. L. Vinson and is one of Douglas' most talented young ladies. She received her education at the Nicholls, Ga., High school, and the South Georgia State College for Women, at Valdosta.

Mr. McKay is the son of Mrs. Lucy McKay, of Cordele, and is a young man of sterling qualities. He is at presented a valued employee of the Florida state highway department.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. McKay left for Cordele where they will spend a short while before returning to Douglas to visit the bride's parents. After August 1 they will be at home to their friends in Okeechobee, Fla.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mrs. W. H. Crawford and Travis Crawford, of Atlanta aunt and cousin of the bride; Mrs. W. N. Dark, of Haleyville, Ala., sister of the bride, and Loy S. Vinson, of Dahlonega, a brother of the bride.

Miss Miers Weds C. S. Haynie.

Of widespread interest is the recent wedding of Miss Bertie Elnora Miers and Chester Sewell Haynie, both of Decatur, which took place Saturday, July 3, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Culpepper, Mr. Culpepper officiating. Miss Claire Jones played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." During the ceremony Miss Jones played softly "To a Wild Rose." Only close relatives of the couple were in attendance.

This union joins two prominent and well-known Georgia families. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie S. Miers, of Decatur, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Haynie, of Bostwick, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Haynie left immediately after the ceremony for a short honeymoon into north Georgia and are at home at 931 Third avenue, Decatur.

Miss Hunter Weds Albert Joiner At Church Ceremony

A marriage of wide social interest to many friends throughout the state was that of Miss Willie Mae Hunter, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hunter, and Albert Truman Joiner, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. W. L. Culbertson performing the ceremony. The altar was magnificently decorated with stately palms, ferns and gladioli, with lighted white tapers casting a mellow glow over the scene.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. D. L. Wood rendered Schubert's serenade on the organ. J. Elmer Slider sand "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me."

Wedding Attendants.

Miss Mary Hunter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and was very attractive in a gown of orchid georgette with picture hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of roses and blue delphinium.

Miss Grace Joiner, sister of the groom, and Miss Irma Reeves were bridesmaids, the former in a gown of pink georgette and the latter gowned in yellow georgette, both wearing becoming picture hats and carrying arm bouquets of roses and blue delphinium.

The groomsmen were J. G. Sullivan and H. A. Bowen.

Lovely Bride.

To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" the brid entered on th arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, S. M. Hackett.

The bride was radiantly lovely in an exquisite gown of gray Elizabeth crepe. She wore a becoming close-fitting French hat and carried a shower bouquet of roses and valley lilies.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Joiner left on a wedding trip to Florida, and upon their return will make their home with the bride's parents in Inman Park.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. L. E. Lanford, of Greenville, S. C.; Miss Barbara Austin, of Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Grace Joiner and C. G. Joiner, of Edison, Ga., and Mrs. Lois Culbert, of Tallahassee, Florida.

Eastlack School of Oratory Recital.

West End Clubwomen To Sponsor Mammoth "Advertisement Ball"

Great interest is being manifested in the mammoth "advertising ball" sponsored by the West End Woman's club to be held at the city auditorium Wednesday evening, July 21, beginning at 8 o'clock. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Jeff Wright. The costume advertising contest, in which numerous Atlanta firms will have representatives, promises to introduce many novel and attractive costumes. Prizes will be awarded for the most attractive costume.

Dancing Feature.

Dancing will be the main feature of the evening. The program during intermission, among other things, includes vaudeville sketches Music will be furnished by the regular band usually engaged for the club dances. Mrs. Chester W. Johnson, president of the club, issues a message to the boys and girls who have attended past dances of the West End Woman's club to be special guests at the "advertisement ball." All proceeds will be used toward the new clubhouse to be erected on Cascade road. Tickets can be purchased from any club member at one dollar per couple.

The building committee announces that work on the new clubhouse will be started not later than August 15 and the club expects to be in its new home by November 1. Little Billie Gullatt, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gullatt, has been designated mascot of the building committee.

"Birthday Party."

At the business meeting on last Wednesday Mrs. Z. T. Layfield, Tallulah Falls chairman, announced plans for a "birthday party" to be sponsored by that committee in the nature of a bridge party Friday afternoon, July 30, at the clubroom. Attractive table prizes will be given. Free will offering will be taken, and all proceeds will go to the Tallulah Falls school. All members of the club and friends are invited.

The West End Woman's club is the grateful recipient of one dozen handsome card tables, the gift of Mrs. H. W. Gullatt.

Mrs. C. P. Connally, chairman of the literary committee, calls special attention to the fact that there will be no meeting at the club next Wednesday as the July meeting of the literary committee will be held in connection with the regular business meeting the fourth Wednesday, for which occasion an interesting program has been arranged. The literary meetings have formerly been held the third Wednesday, but for the summer months these will be combined with the business meeting on the fourth Wednesday.

Bronze Tablet In Authors' Grove Bears Well-Known Names

The Authors' Grove committee, of which Mrs. Julia Evans Cope is chairman, will, at an early date, erect a bronze tablet in Piedmont park with the names of the distinguished Americans to whom honor has been paid by planting trees in the grove in the park. Funds are already in the treasury for this purpose and the following names will be inscribed on the tablet:

Frank L. Stanton (poet-laureate of Georgia), Lollie Belle Wylie, Henry Grady, Lucian Lamar Knight, Sidney Lanier, Joel Chandler Harris, Joseph Abram Ryan (Father Ryan), Dr. Frank Crane, Warren G. Harding (late president of the United States), Edgar Allan Poe, Marshal Joffre, Edward McDowell, Thomas Nelson Page, O. Henry, Bill Arp, Charles W. Hubner, Rudyard Kipling, William Shakespeare, Davis Pinski, Henry Richardson, Thomas Skeyhill, Jacques Futrelle, Mildred Lewis Rutherford, Virginia Arnold, Mrs. William Lawson Peel, Mary Brent Whitesid Eugene Field, "Uncle Remus," Alan Seeger, Corra Harris, Emma Lazarus, Granville Barker, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Dr. George N. Niles, Harry G. Harman, Ida Melson, Helen Gray, William Dean Howells, Mrs. M. L. Harper (Dawson, Ga.), Jack London, John Mayafield, James Lane Allen, J. G. Holland, Oscar Wilde, Charles Alva Lane, Madge Bingham, Mother Goose and Louise Alcott.

The fundamental idea back of this movement is to preserve the art of writing by permanently memorializing the names of favorite authors of the local literary, social, civic and patriotic organizations.

The late Lollie Belle Wylie, Atlanta journalist and poet, conceived the idea of honoring writers who had achieved success in this profession, with memorial trees, and during her last years had regular tree-planting seasons, in which individuals and organizations were delighted to have a part. Mrs. Wylie was called to her reward before she had completed her cherished plan for the grove, and it is to carry out her ideals along this line that a committee was appointed by the Atlanta Writers' club to permanently mark these memorial trees.

The committee reports that the order for the bronze tablet will be placed in a few days and that on its completion early in the autumn the elaborate but simple monument will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies to be participated in by each one having a personal interest in the grove.

Woman's Civic Club Will Entertain At Square Dance

The Woman's Civic club of West End will entertain at an old-fashioned mountain square dance Monday evening, July 19, at 8 o'clock. The honor guests will be Frank Meaders, of Dahlonega, who will "call" the figures of the dance, and the "club husbands."

All members are cordially invited. Mrs. E. H. Smith, president, especially desires the attendance of the 69 who were members of the Dahlonega house party two years ago in order that they may renew their acquaintance with Mr. Meaders, who was such a strong factor in the success of that club meeting. The music will be supplied by Miss Marion Hope.

Mrs. C. C. Berry, chairman of Monday night's entertainment, announces that tables will be placed as usual for those desiring to play games. For the past year it has been the custom of the club to keep open house on Mondays, when members and their friends gather for a social evening. A prize is given for top score to those playing bridge, the one last Monday being won by Mrs. Otis Witherspoon.

Wednesday night, July 14, while the Municipal band was playing in Howell park, the club served a large crowd ice cream, cake, drinks and wieners. The general committee was composed of Mrs. W. W. Kilpatrick, Mrs. C. C. Berry and Mrs. Raymond O'Kelly.

All other activities of the club, with the exception of one business meeting a month, will be discontinued until the middle of September.

A message has been received from Mrs. Jesse Manry, popular vice president of the club, who has been at Virginia Beach for the past month, saying she will return to the city the first of September to resume the duties of her office.

Miss Frances Pritchett Weds J. W. Allrid.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Pritchett announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances Florene, to James Wesley Allrid, on Sunday, July 11. After July 26 Mr. and Mrs. Allrid will be at home with the bride's parents in Inman Park.

Camp Fire Girls Sponsor Race At Sweetwater Camp

The Camp Fire Girls at Sweetwater camp sponsored a rare and hound race Wednesday. Early in the morning the hares started out on the cross-country hike, scattering bits of paper to mark the trail, and half an hour later the hounds followed in pursuit. The hares were Isobel Spring, Christine George, and Mildred Cole. The trail was long and difficult, over the hills across from Sweetwater camp. Mery Zachary was the first to spy the hares seated on a large rock overlooking the creek.

Thursday night the Camp Craft class took a gypsy trip. Eleven girls carrying their overnight packs and provisions for two meals started at 4 o'clock on the trail down Sweetwater creek. Plans for the trip and for the two meals were made by Mary Green and Katherine Lynch as a part of the requirements in becoming trail-makers. Each gypsy was given a task and soon fires were burning, supper was cooking and beds were being made up on the ground, with the deftness and skill of real campers. On these gypsy trips each girl has her part of the work as delegated by the two girls in charge. After a delightful morning dip and breakfast the gypsies took the trail back to camp. Those on the trip were Mildred Cole, Isobel Spring, Ivy Hixson, Essie Belle Brockman, Katherine Lynch, Mary Green, Nell Harris, Lellita Stipe, Elise Vaughn, Marie Peeples, and Anna Lee Coleman.

"Every new motor car," mused the office expert, "means on an average four less pedestrians." "You know," said Ignatius Bim, "I don't like the way that sounds."—Toronto Telegram.

Tea At Woman's Club Assembles Several Hundred Guests

The Atlanta Woman's club tea on Friday afternoon presented a brilliant assemblage of clubwomen and their guests. Over 300 were present and an enjoyable program of music was given by Mrs. Floyd Jennings and Mrs. W. H. Bedard.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president, extended a cordial welcome to the many guests, and particularly to Mrs. Mary Butts Griffith Dobbs, who has recently returned to the city from an extended trip. Mrs. Dobbs, who is chairman of music in the club, outlined the work of her committe for the fall, which will feature many unique and attractive events.

The committee roster includes: Mrs. W. H. Bedard, cochairman, Mrs. Delos Hill, Mrs. Cliff Hatcher, Mrs. Charles Chalmers, Mrs. W. O. Chears, Mrs. Susan Bodwen Johnson, Miss Dorothy Walden, Mrs. Katherine Conneratt, Mrs. J. H. Whitten, and Mrs. Theodora Morgan Stephens.

Mrs. Smith introduced Mrs. Gilmer Bell and Miss Leila Mills, both formerly of Hopkinsville, Ky., Mrs. Bell recently having moved to Atlanta. Miss Mills, a member of the Ward-Belmont school faculty, of Nashville, Tenn., is visiting Mrs. George H. Brandon, on Peachtree circle. Mrs. Smith also presented Mrs. Charles Chalmers, formerly music chairman of the club, who has returned to her home after spending the winter in Florida, and Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, chairman of memberships.

Mrs. Moore responded in a short speech of thanks, and her report on new members was enthusiastically received. Mrs. Moore announced that 63 members had been brought into the club during Mrs. Price-Smith's administration, and that in all probability this number would be raised to 100 during July and August.

This leaves only 100 more members to be secured to complete the limited number of 1,000, Mrs. Moore stated.

Mrs. William Claer Spiker, who also was an honored guest, spoke on her plans for adult training, of which she is chairman.

Mrs. Ottley's Party.

Mrs. J. K. Ottley complimented five prominent districts of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs at tea. Mrs. Oscar Palmour, fifth district, College Park; Mrs. J. E. McElroy, ninth; Mrs. J. W. Gholstin, eighth; Mrs. C. D. McGarity, seventh, and Mrs. L. C. Warren, sixth. Twenty guests were invited to meet these distinguished clubwomen.

Mrs. Perdue's Tea.

Mrs. John A. Perdue was hostess to 15 guests, invited to meet Mrs. T. T. Stevens. Seated at her table were Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Clifford Walker, Mrs. H. G. Hastings, Miss Alice Baxter, Mrs. Z. T. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Arthur Harris, Mrs. Frank Mason, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. Carl Scott, Mrs. B. M. Boykin, Mrs. Marvin Underwood, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Mrs. Charles Loridans, Mrs. Lucius McConnell, Mrs. Norman Sharp, Mrs. Chauncey Smith, Miss Sallie Brown, Mrs. Charles P. Byrd, Mrs. L. Q. Bricker, Mrs. E. K. Van Winkle, Mrs. John A. Boykin, Mrs. George Yundt, Mrs. Edwin T. Yancey, Mrs. Robert S. Quin, Mrs. W. F. Dykes and Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith.

Mrs. Newton Wing's Bridge.

Mrs. Newton T. Wing entertained in honor of Mrs. R. H. Hankinson, of McDonough, Ga., her guests including Mrs. Hankinson, Mrs. Fort Land, Mrs. R. L. Turman and Mrs. Hankinson, Sr.

Seated at the president's table were Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, Mrs Wilmer Moore, Miss Leila Mills, Mrs. Charles Chalmers, Mrs. Mary Butts Griffith Dobbs, Mrs. G. H. Brandon, Miss Gertrude Brandon, Mrs. John Dobbs, Mrs. Adelaide Howell Bowers, Mrs. F. F. Hardwick, Mrs. De Los Hill, Mrs. John R. Hornady, Mrs. Lever Richardson, Mrs. Gilmer Bell, Mrs. Lina White, Mrs. G. Gordan, Mrs. Cary Morgan, Mrs. William Claer Spiker, Mrs. John Morgan, Mrs. Percy Hale, Mrs. H. G. Huger, Mrs. J. H. Drewry and guest, Mrs. A. H. Hepp, Mrs. Ben Simcox, Mrs. M. D. Farnham, Mrs. Floyd Jennings, Mrs. Walter Bedard, Mrs. Basil Stockbridge, Mrs. K. L. Pepper, Mrs. Eva S. Corrigan and her guest, Mrs. Howard Stacy, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. W. D. Wialliamson and her guests, Mrs. David Lide and Mrs. Ernest Beaudry; Mrs. J. A. Carlisle and guests. Miss Katherine Carlton and Miss Willene Carlisle; Mrs. Cecil Cannon, Mrs. Fred Cole, Mrs. W. H. Sander and Mrs. F. W. Hinkle.

Other Parties.

Mrs. Joel Hunter's guests were Mrs. W. R. and Mrs. Richard Turman and others. Mrs. W. P. Timmie entertained a table of bridge in honor of her sister, Mrs. R. K. Aiken, of Chicago, Ill. Mrs. J. T. Hancock gave four tables of bridge in honor of her sister, Mrs. Everett Wilson, of Charlottesville, Va. Mrs. W. A. Small's large bridge party in the palm room complimented 33 guests. Mrs. F. J. Paxon entertained 22 of her friends at a bridge tea. Mrs. Jennie D. Finley, of Decatur, Ga., complimented 55 guests at bridge and tea in the banquet hall. Mrs. Nellie Dumas' bridge party included 20 prominent guests. Mrs. Dr. Abercrombie entertained at a table of bridge. Miss Dorothy Orr complimented eight friends at bridge. Mrs. Warren Woodward was hostess to six guests at bridge. Mrs. Wren McGuin had one table of bridge. Mrs. E. H. Dulaney gave a pretty party for eight of her friends. Mrs. L. D. Watson had a very enjoyable party for 11. Mrs. Carpenter Jones entertained at one table of bridge.

Mrs. Arthur H. Hazzard, chairman of the swimming pool of the Atlanta Woman's club, with her committee, will sponsor a benefit bridge at the Atlanta Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Members and friends of the club desiring reservations are requested to telephone the club. Admission 50 cents or $2 for a table of four.

Mrs. Joseph Jacobs Will Entertain At House Party

Mrs. Joseph Jacobs will entertain at a congenial house party this week at her handsome home, "The Brambles," on the Roosevelt boulevard. Arriving Saturday for this delightful event were Miss Hortense Bankston, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Miss Adelaide Graham, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Josephine Smith and Miss Pauline Davidson, of Huntington, West Virginia.

Mrs. Jacobs will entertain at an inform. dancing party Tuesday evening in compliment to this group of attractive girls. A number of other interesting parties will be given in compliment to these visitors, the dates to be announced later.

Mrs. Jacobs was hostess Thursday at a bridge-tea at her home in honor of her guest, Miss Alma Smith, of Huntington, W. Va., and Mrs. D. E. Griffin, of Miami, Fla., who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. E. P. Johnson.

Invited to meet these two honor guests were Mrs. A. Ruskin, Mrs. B. C. Murray, Mrs. Robert Evans, Mrs. J. Newton Baxter, Mrs. Henry W. Connor, Mrs. Walter Beeks, all of Griffin; Mrs. Walter Harland and Mrs. Sol Samuels.

Mrs. Sullivan Honors Y. W. A. at Supper.

Mrs. A. G. Sullivan entertained the Y. W. A. of the Baptist Tabernacle on July 9 at her home in Kirkwood. After supper, Miss Elizabeth Webb took charge of the program, "Diamonds." Mrs. C. H. Terry gave an inspiring talk and plans for the future were discussed.

Following the program a social hour was enjoyed at which Mrs. Sullivan was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Holley, and Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. C. H. Terry and Miss Addie Wright were special guests on this occasion.

Attractive Summer Bride

Mrs. R. A. Johnson, who before her recent marriage was Miss Marie Chappell. Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. H. Chappell.

Miss Hill Weds Henry W. Sullivan.

A wedding of wide social interest in Georgia and Kentucky was that of Miss Eula John Hill, of Hoschton, and Henry W. Sullivan, of Mount Sterling, Ky., which took place Wednesday, July 14, at 4 o'clock at "Hillcrest," the home of the bride's parents, Rev. John H. Wood, pastor of the First Christian church of Winder, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate family. The home was lovely with decorations of ferns and cut flowers.

The beautiful bride wore an early fall model of crepe lavishly trimmed with embroidery and French applique of harmonizing colors with hat and other accessories to match.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left for Asheville and other points of interest in the east.

Mrs. Sullivan is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hill, of Hoschton. She has enjoyed statewide popularity and possesses great personal charm and beauty. She is a graduate of Cox college, where she was a popular member of the Phi Lambda Sigma. Later she attended the University of Georgia, completing her education at Columbia university.

Mr. Sullivan is a member of a prominent Kentucky family and a graduate of the University of Kentucky, where he was a member of the Pi Alpha Delta fraternity. He saw active service overseas during the recent world war.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will make their home in Mount Sterling, Ky., where the groom is engaged in the practice of law.

Atlantans Motor From Tate Springs To Ky. Horse Show

Tate Springs, Tenn., July 17.—Mrs. Forrest Adair, Mrs. G. L. Rowland and Miss Lizzie Greene arrived at the Tate Springs hotel Friday to spend some time.

A large party of guests motored to Barbourville, Ky., Wednesday for the horse show and to see the golf match in which Bobby Jones played. The Atlantans in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kahn, Mrs. Stacy E. Hill, Miss Isobel Breitenbucher, Miss Isobel Hunter, H. H. Arnold, Percy Peteet, Howard Arnold and Holcombe Green.

Among the arrivals Friday were Frank Adair, Robert Woodruff, Hamilton Horsey, Hunter Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hogan and Miss Julianne Hogan.

The horse show and golf match at Barbourville, Ky., Thursday was a brilliant occasion, assembling several thousands spectators, with many prominent Atlantans holding the leading parts. Bobby Jones was the center of attraction all morning when he played a golf match with Hugh Kirkpatrick, the Tate Springs professional. The horse show began at 1:30 o'clock and several Atlantans took part in it. Frank Adair was there with his string of horses, including the world champion five-gaited mare which he showed for exhibition purposes only. As a home coming gift to "Vendetta," who was born and trained in Barbourville, the Kiwanis club which staged the horse show, presented Mr. Adair with a dozen silver goblets in appreciation of what he had done for the crippled children's fund. Atlanta people who rode in the horse show were Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, Miss Isobel Hunter, Frank Adair and Mr. J. W. McIlwaine. Among those seen in boxes were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kahn, Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, Mrs. Stoey E. Hill, Miss Isobel Breitenbucher, Miss Isobel Hunter, Messrs. Frank Adair, Robert Woodruff, Hamilton Horsey, Holland Judkins, Bobby Jones, H. H. Arnold, Percy Peteet, Holcomb Green, Hunter Perry.

Among the entertainments given for the visitors was a buffet supper Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Winton, a dinner Thursday evening by the Kiwanis club, followed by a dance at the armory.

Among the horses that won blue ribbons owned by Frank Adair were "Milady Minton," winner of the three-gaited saddle class, ridden by Mrs. Carl Ramspeck; "Jeanette Dare," winner of the fine harness class, driven by Bob McCray; "Jett Oil," winner of the road class, driven by J. W. McIlwaine. Winners of red ribbons were "Seldonmark" in the three-gaited class, ridden by J. W. McIlwaine. Miss Isobel Hunter rode fine harness class, driven by J. W. McIlwain; "Gloria Swanson," in the five-gaited class, ridden by Mr. McIlvain. Miss Isobel Hunter rode "Jean," owned by Miss Jim Wynne and won the trophy in the ladies' class.

ATLANTA, GA.

Photographed While Crossing the Atlantic Ocean

The upper picture above includes a group of southern debutantes arriving in Europe aboard the Leviathan. They are Miss Valeria Lamar, Miss Mary Taylor, Miss Mary Duer and Miss Dorothy Dannenberg, of Macon, Ga.; Miss Frances Dodson, of Norfolk, Va.; Miss Mary Battle Lowry, of New York city; Miss Gray Poole, of Atlanta; Miss Suzanne Miller, of Columbus, Ga. Mrs. L. J. Comer and Mrs. Walter Dannenberg, of Macon, are chaperoning this party. In the lower photograph, reading from left to right are Hugh Richardson; his son, Lee Richardson, and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, of Atlanta, peeking through the circle of the life saver is Miss Josephine Richardson, lovely sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, with Captain Hartley, the popular commanding officer of the Leviathan. Photograph by United States lines.

Social News Of Atlantans In Europe

When the United States liner Leviathan steamed her way across the cobalt Atlantic, the social life of the ship revolved around a group of southern debutantes. The girls, whose photographs appear in The Constitution today, taken on the Leviathan, were nicknamed the "Georgia Peaches" on account of their pulchritude, included Miss Valeria Lamar, Miss Mary Taylor, Miss Mary Dure and Miss Dorothy Dannenberg, of Macon, Ga.; Miss Frances Dodson, of Norfolk, Va.; Miss Mary Battle Lowry, of New York city; Miss Suzanne Miller, of Columbus, Ga., and Miss Gray Poole, of Atlanta. They made an extended tour of England and Scotland before leaving on a visit to the land of the midnight sun, followed by a motor tour through Germany, the Dolomites, to Venice and the Lido for August. After visiting the Italian lakes, they will go to Paris, where they will study languages, art and music during the winter. They are chaperoned by Mrs. L. J. Comer and Mrs. Walter Dannenberg, of Macon, Ga.

Another interesting group of Atlantans aboard the Leviathan was composed of Hugh Richardson, with Mrs. Richardson and their two two children, Lee Richardson and Miss Josephine Richardson, who were very popular at the various social events staged aboard the giant liner. They will make an extended tour of the continent and the British Isles before returning to the United States.

Georgia Ship.

The Leviathan came near to being almost a "Georgia ship" on its last voyage to Europe, so many were the residents of that state who were passengers. In addition to those previously mentioned, others on the lists included Miss Frances Dodson, of Atlanta, who disembarked at Southampton, England, and went to London; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hazlett, of Atlanta, who landed at Cherbourg and came to Paris; Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hope, of Atlanta, disembarking at Southampton; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Massee, W. J. Massee, Jr., and Miss Martha Massee and maid, of Macon, Cherbourg, and Mrs. E. M. Wright, of Atlanta, Cherbourg.

Hamel Williams and Fred Williams of Atlanta, have been spending the past several days in and about the French capital as guests of the Hotel Wagram. N. J. Steinheimer, of Atlanta, has arrived in London during the course of a visit to the British Isles, and is stopping for the moment at the Grand hotel. Dr. L. C. Fisher, of Atlanta, who has been traveling with friends in the central European countries, was a recent visitor to Prague, Czecho-Slovakia.

Miss Dorothy J. Moran, of Atlanta, has been spending the past several days in Paris as a guest of the Hotel Saint-Roche. Miss Moran was a recent caller at the Paris branch of the American University Women's club at 4 Rue de Chevreuse. Miss Mildred V. Chandler, of Atlanta, who crossed to Europe aboard the United States liner George Washington on its most recent trip, was among those entertained at tea at the American Women's Club of Paris last week.

Mrs. Ottley To Honor Mrs. Stevens at Luncheon.

Mrs. John K. Ottley, president of the Tallulah Falls school trustees, will call an informal conference of the association Thursday morning, July 22, at 11 o'clock, at the Piedmont Driving club.

Following the conference Mrs. Ottley will entertain at luncheon in honor of Mrs. T. T. Stevens, former treasurer of the school trustees. The Tallulah Falls school is owned and maintained by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and is a vital factor in Georgia's educational system for the underprivileged child.

Week-End Dance At Driving Club.

The week-end dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving club assembled Saturday evening a large number of members and prominent figures. Dinner was served on the terrace, which was illuminated with bright-colored lights.

Miss Nell Sims was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stevens, of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. Leman Phelan, Stewart Harris, James Johnson and Marshall Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine entertained a group of friends in honor of Bobby Jones, golf champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lee entertained Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McCall, Miss Louise Hunter, Mrs. Leslie Hunter and Leslie Carnagy.

Sidney Daniel entertained as his guests Mrs. Mary Hines Gunsaulus, Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Homes and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Case.

"The Pirates" Is This Week's Light Opera Offering

Atlanta is already attuned to that melodious and ridiculous, "The Pirates of Penzance," which will be presented by the Municipal Light opera at the Atlanta theater this week. This is one of the drollest and most delightful of those ever-popular operettas by W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan. The amusing plot of "The Pirates" could never have been conceived by any mind other than that of W. S. Gilbert, and this operetta, filled with tuneful and dainty music, augmented by wit and ludicrous situations, will no doubt be one of the most popular productions of the light opera season.

Dainty Louise Hunter, prima donna, in the leading role of "Mabel," the general's youngest daughter, will have a rare opportunity to charm her audience in the saucy part that she is so perfectly capable of portraying.

The popular tenor, Arthur Burkley, cast as "Frederick," the hero who woes the beautiful "Mabel," will take the part of a young English boy of noble birth who was apprenticed by his nurse, Ruth, to a pirate chief through error. The drollest and most ridiculous circumstances naturally arise out of this situation. Anne Yago, who won such a name for herself last week as Allan-a-dale in "Robin Hood," will take the attractive ingenue part quisite contralto voice lending a vital part to the production and her interpretation of comedy giving a humorous note to the play.

Charming, petite Vera Myers will take the attractive engenuie part and will again add to her already unrivaled popularity by her special dancing numbers and winning personality.

Jefferson D'Angelis will appear in one of his favorite roles that of the "sergeant," and sing that amusing song "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One."

Mary Patterson and Mabel Dumas will have good parts which can be counted on to be well done, and Billy McLeon will play the comedy character "Samuel."

This operetta of Gilbert and Sullivan's which is typically Victorian, is filled with tuneful music, and one of their most delightful but perhaps a little less widely known than some of the others such as "The Mikado," "Pinafore" and "Iolanthe." The airs from this opera have formed the basis for much popular music and those favorites "I Am the Pirate King" and "Come Ye Who Rove the Seas" are tunes that most everyone is familiar with.

Miss Murphy Will Visit Narragansett.

Miss Katharine Murphy leaves Tuesday for Narragansett Pier, where she will visit Mr. and Mrs. George Nathan, who have a cottage at the fashionable resort.

Miss Murphy will be among the lovely visiting belles entertained at a series of parties and will attend the polo games to be played at Narragansett this summer.

Mrs. Clifford Walker Urges Training for Home Makers

Mrs. Clifford Walker, chairman of the department of pre-school circles of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, issues the following article relating to this important work of interest to all parents:

"Realizing the obligation of the state to give to its future citizens a well-rounded education, and knowing that men and women are not truly fitted for successful home-makers and parents without some serious study of the problems relating to these professions, the chairman of the department of pre-school circles of the Congress of Parents and Teachers would like to see a hall dedicated to the training of home-makers placed in every state university system. Wherever we have buildings devoted to other departments of study, there should certainly be one bearing the inscription "department of home-making," which would place this vocation upon the same status as the others. If it is our duty to teach letters, science and art, why is it not a greater obligation to emphasize the importance of that profession upon which a great majority of our men and women enter unprepared.

Home-Making Course.

"We have used the term 'profession' in connection with home-making and parenthood advisedly, for to our mind these vocations usually termed professions are really subsidiary to the former since they exist primarily in order that the home may continue to function. Whether this functioning is properly done or not depends entirely upon the thought and attention given to it and for this reason it is held that a new emphasis should be placed upon home-making and parenthood that will relegate to the background that which is uppermost in many minds—training for the ability to purchase luxuries. The home-making course should direct the student to those related arts which tend to develop the full-sized man and woman and teach that the proper spirit will soon create the proper environment—that home may be composed of only one room or many, according to the person within. It should not neglect the fact that potential fathers should be taught that some of their thought and effort is to be expended on more than the financial contribution to the home.

"No more beautiful memory could be given than the founding of such a department by an individual, but if not undertaken in this way the trustees of our state educational institutions should themselves see that such a building will house these practical ideals toward which many people are now bending their best thought.

Home Type Architecture.

"This building should be of the home type, architecturally speaking, with a border of ground sufficient to allow advisable planting for both beauty and service. A commendable design would be of the early colonial period with an attractive entrance and with dormer windows which would make the large attic space practicable for entertaining groups of students who might come in for a pleasant hour under home conditions.

"The first and second floors should be devoted to class rooms and exhibition rooms such as an ideal home library, kitchen and so forth, showing the proper furnishing and equipment for these. Under such conditions the department of home economics could function in the most effective way since it would have model rooms and an environment by which it could teach the art of home-making by observation as well as description. The present extension worker in the State university system who now promotes child study in all its phases throughout Georgia would have a demonstration center in this hall of home-making which would give a tremendous impetus to the wonderful work which is already being accomplished in this direction.

"Since the ideal home is to contain children a place should be set apart in this building for a demonstration nursery school where mothers, both potential and actual, could learn the best that is to be known concerning the care and treatment of children, for why should we attempt to attack this greatest problem of all unlettered and unlearned in even its primary requirements except in many instances as tradition may suggest?

Study Political Questions.

"Since they are citizens alike, both men and women students should study together those political questions which affect the home, and therefore one class room should be planned for this particular purpose with all equipment as to charts and information necessary. Men and women should be taught that politics is not for personal preferment nor alone for power over property, but what is far more important than that—it is power over human life and it is power over the immortal soul. Teach this in its proper setting to the young student-citizens as he plans his profession in life if you would push on toward that much desired end—the purifying of politics.

"When political science has been discussed in its relation to the home, its housing in the department of home-making will be found most appropriate. Such questions as amusements, parks and playgrounds, schools, sanitation, water supply, dairy products, pure food, juvenile courts, good roads, and that most engaging of all questions—taxation, will certainly be found in the category, for the welfare of the home is absolutely dependent upon these things, and one of the heaviest tax burdens of today is the cost of crime. Every crime commissioner sooner or later finds the roots of misbehavior running back into faulty home conditions or lack of proper protection of the home by outside agencies. If politics is not for the protection of our homes why should we have any politics? If it is for this purpose, then why not closely and pertinently relate the two in the minds of the people?

College Mother.

"Last, but not least, a college mother should be in charge of this hall embodying the spirit of the home in that students could come to her with problems which they might hesitate to take elsewhere and who could supply that spiritual part which even the campus pastor or Y. M. C. A. worker could not give. She could in this way become the stabilizing influence to student life which intelligent motherhood has always exemplified."

Mrs. Bellman Honors Mrs. Hobart Carson.

Mrs. Russell Bellman entertained at a luncheon party Saturday at her home on the Palisades road in compliment to Mrs. Hobart Carson, of Dallas, Texas, who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Davis, on West Peachtree street. was decorated with a profusion of garden flowers, covers being placed for 10 guests.

Miss Mitchell Honors Miss Elizabeth Lowe.

A lovely affair of Saturday afternoon was the bridge party at which Miss Bessie Mitchell was hostess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Mitchell, on Northwood drive, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Lowe, whose marriage to Toy Rhea Gregory, of Lancaster, S. C., will be an interesting event o fthis month.

The house was artistically decorated with lovely bright-colored garden flowers.

Mrs. Mitchell assisted her daughter in entertaining. She had 16 guests who included the members of the Lowe-Gregory wedding party, the out-of-town guests.

Miss Lowe was presented with a novelty fire-set, while the first prize was two lovely hand-made handkerchiefs, and the consolation was a pack of fancy playing cards.

Miss Mitchell was becomingly gowned in yellow chiffon, trimmed in lace.

Biltmore Tea-Dance Honors Visitors.

Prominent on the social calendar for the week-end was the tea-dance at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel Saturday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock.

The affair was al fresco being held on the beautiful eastern terrace of the hotel from 5 until 7 o'clock. An artistic arrangement of summer flowers graced each table.

In a party were Miss Lucille Stone, Miss Mary McCarty and her guests, Miss Rosa Harbin, of Rome, Ga.; Bartow Ford, Arthur Fox and Ted Morrison.

Miss Grace Powell entertained in compliment to her guest, Miss Harriett Mays, of Helena, Ark. Covers were placed for Miss Mays, Lewis Rucker, Knowles Davis, Marion Camp and Miss Powell.

Reserve Officers' Dance At Fort McPherson.

The reserve officers who are in training at Fort McPherson, will have a dance at the Service club from 9 until 1 o'clock Monday evening.

On Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock there will be a "smoker" for the reserve officers at the Post theater.

Miss Sue Johnson To Be Honored.

Miss Caroline Paullin returns today from Lynchburg, Va., where she visited Miss Sue Johnson, who accompanied Miss Paullin to Atlanta.

Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Paullin will entertain at a dancing party Monday evening, July 19, at their home on Andrews drive, in compliment to Miss Johnson, who is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Johnson, who were former residents of Atlanta.

Miss Julia Meador will also entertain for Miss Johnson and many other informal parties are being arranged in her honor.

Woman's Division To Sponsor Dance.

An interesting social affair of Monday evening, July 19, will be the dinner-dance given by the woman's division of the chamber of commerce at the Atlanta's Woman's club. This will take the place of the regular July business meeting.

Card tables will be arranged for those who wish to play bridge and swimming can be enjoyed until 9 o'clock. A splendid orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the dancing.

Mrs. Wilson Outlines Plans In Educational Scholarships

Mrs. C. T. Wilson, scholarship chairman of the Atlanta Woman's club, whose report shows that scholarships will be established in prominent schools and colleges. Photograph by Winn studio.

In furtherance of its policy of encouraging higher education, the Atlanta Woman's club has broadened its field in this endeavor to include an exchange of Pan-American scholarships. "This will enable embryonic teachers of Latin-American countries to pursue their studies of our language," said Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president, "and vice versa."

The General Federation of clubs is sponsoring this new branch of service, and the Atlanta Woman's club, through its Pan-American scholarship chairman, Mrs. C. T. Harmon, is in active cooperation with Mrs. Sherman, president of the federation, with a view of placing the plan on a satisfactory working basis.

Committee Report.

The report of the scholarship committee, of which Mrs. C. T. Wilson is chairman, shows that the Atlanta Woman's club is prepared to offer scholarships in the following schools and colleges of Atlanta and vicinity: One full scholarship to; Washington seminary, Woodberry Hall, Marist college, University school, Georgia Military academy, College Park; Mrs. Mozeley's school, Piedmont college, Riverside academy, Gainesville, Ga.; Van Hook school. One half junior scholarship to Agnes Scott, Decatur, Ga.; one full scholarship each to Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson's School of Oratory, and Mrs. Potter-Spiker's School of Dancing; one-half scholarship to Miss Dorothy Waldman, pianist; one-half scholarship each to the North Avenue school, and to the following dancing classes: Mrs. J. Percy Lambright, Miss Nellie Sullivan; two scholarships, one for a boy and one for a girl, to the Margaret Bryan Dancing school; one scholarship to the American Beauty institute; one full scholarship each to the Southern Business college and Bryan-Hatton Business college.

The scholarship committee is composed of a group of organized and well informed women, who study the needs of each applicant, in order to assign him or her to the school best suited to that particular individual.

Mrs. Smith Thanks Educators.

"We enjoy the active support of the heads of our schools and colleges," said Mrs. Smith, "and we take this opportunity of thanking Georgia's educators for their cooperative spirit. We believe, as does every forward-thinking citizen in the community, that education is playing a far more important role today than ever before. Our forefathers voiced our rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. To enjoy these to the fullest, one should be fitted to make the most of his opportunities. Experience is a wonderful teacher, but when accompanied by a good education it tends toward the better development of our youth and of the world at large."

The club scholarships are not awarded at random. They are given to worthy girls and boys unable to pay a college tuition. Each school has certain standards and requirements, and these must be met. The teachers of our public schools work hand-in-hand with us," said Mrs. Wilson. "Where a promising pupil shows marked ability in some particular branch, our scholarships enable him to 'carry on.' Whether it be in literature, oratory, music, dancing, or business, a year or more of intensive training will go far toward fitting him into his proper sphere, and making him self-sustaining."

Apply by Letter.

Applicants for scholarships should apply by letter to Mrs. C. T. Wilson, 218 Ponce de Leon avenue, said letter to be accompanied by three recommendations and the past record of the student from the school last attended. Those seeking scholarships will then be notified to meet at the Atlanta Woman's club the first week in August, at which time the committee will pass on all applications and make its awards.

The work of the committee does not cease, however, with the awarding of these scholarships. The club follows up its students, notes their progress and where positions are desired upon completion of courses, it undertakes to obtain for these boys and girls jobs in proper and pleasant surroundings.

"The past records of this department," said Mrs. Smith, "have been most gratifying. They prove that students pursuing their studies under our scholarship plan are appreciative, industrious, and in many instances become honor graduates of their classes."

Mrs. J. C. Gentry Is Hostess.

Mrs. J. C. Gentry was hostess at a spend-the-day party to the bazaar committee of the Joseph Habersham chapter D. A. R. Tuesday. This committee will continue to meet at the home of Mrs. Gentry on Piedmont road each Tuesday during the summer months, for the purpose of making useful and fancy articles for a bazaar to be held in December, the proceeds of which will be used toward the debt on Habersham hall.

Those who belong to this committee at this time are the regent, Mrs. Charles Loridan; Mrs. Edgar Alexander, Mrs. F. E. Brownell, Mrs. John Rowlett, Mrs. O. F. Kauffman, Mrs. J. J. Simpson, Mrs. E. E. Steed, Mrs. B. C. Ward, Mrs. L. C. McKenney, Mrs. Earl Kimball, Mrs. E. H. James, Mrs. J. B. Dinwiddie, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mrs. Julian Jones, Mrs. George Berry, Mrs. S. C. Gilbreath, Mrs. Mary D. Claims 'Kingdom of Zeus' Exists In Newly Discovered Universe

Mrs. William H. Mills, whose interesting interview relates her experience in discovering the kingdom of Zeus. Photograph by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer.

By Bessie S. Stafford.

MRS. WILLIAM H. MILLS is emphatic in her belief that the "Kingdom of Zeus," into which she claims her spirit soared after inhaling gas, exists just as truly as does the heavenly sphere above, of which we mortals must have no doubting. She tells about it in a vivid and humorous story beginning with the facts that an aching throat and painful joints were caused by rheumatism. Out she started one day last week determined to run to its lair the reason of that infliction of the flesh, taking up the trail like a veritable Sherlock Holmes, calling in the services of a trained nurse to take the place of Dr. Watson. Counsel and comfort the nurse gave her, gave (both items free) but to this day Mrs. Mills does not recall whether she said take one bottle of lithia tablets in a gallon of water within the next six hours or one bottle of lithia in six gallons of water within the next hour, her admonition being "you have to fight rheumatism like you'd fight a house afire." The rheumatism flourished persistently.

The dentist's office for diagnosis was the next point of objective. Things looked dark at his inspection, but he sent her to the X-ray artist for confirmation. Everything looked serene there—the dainty young lady, typing poetry, boded no ill, but the chair and its surrounding equipment vaguely suggested the electric chair. She placed the little leather pad in the roof of Mrs. Mills' mouth with instructions to "hold it there" while she did something to something. Three times the little pad was taken from her lap and painstakingly reinstated, and as a last resort, the palate was chilled with ice water and the photograph accomplished. The X-ray showed a vicious abscess and the verdict was that the offending tooth and another in bad shape must be extracted and that without delay. The ordeal, under gas, would be something like Frohman's "Great Adventure,"—perhaps. After flunking three dates with the dentist, she nerved herself for the journey to his office, which was helped by the companionship of a faithful husband who buoyed Mrs. Mills up for the ordeal.

Headed for Her Doom.

"There is every reason to believe that Marie Antoinette headed for her doom, Lot's wife looking back at her cherished possessions, and Desdemona, with Othello's fingers pressing down the fatal pillow, with whatever other emotions they had, must have felt fear," said Mrs. Mills in expressing her experience in words. "So let me admit that I shivered with the same emotion. Twice previously teeth had been extracted for me by the gas route, therefore, I was in position to give a few preliminary instructions, which were accepted with good grace. First, the wad of cotton sometimes placed in the throat might be dispensed with so far as I was concerned; second, the pledget of rubber inserted between the jaws was uncomfortable if pushed too far back, so when I had done what I could for myself I dropped back inertly and waited for action. The rubber cup over my nose caused a moment of tense unpleasantness—then a feeling of ease and relaxation—next a glorious soaring through space into oblivion. Later, I knew that I was dead and the dentist called in my husband who put me in a taxi—my body was detached from my spirit which hovered near. A crash and confusion. The taxi driver said he had lost his speedometer, and the car was wrecked. His brakes were grinding and he couldn't stop. My husband swore that since they had killed me nothing mattered and with a desire to help I tried to push a foot into the car for the missing speedometer—when I heard the dentist say—"give her a little more gas so I can grind down a sensitive tooth; it will save her some pain," and the assistant was picking up my foot and placing it again on the chair."

Reaches Zeus.

"More gas and more travel—distance was nothing—I am sure that I passed Cuba the first three minutes out and when I had attained a much higher altitude everything became bright and happiness so complete filled me that I since have been tempted to part with more teeth to again experience the feeling," she continued. "I was being urged on to a wonderful discovery by people—or perhaps by spirits—because there seemed to be no tangible forms present, only a consciousness I had of their presence—allies they were who urged me on to the discovery. Only minds of keen perceptions could penetrate the secret—and one of my friends who had been cut off suddenly in her girlhood by an accident was there. She, too, had attained the height and knew the secret. Suddenly, with a burst of brilliance voices shouted—"You have it." "And I said, 'Yes, I know—it is Zeus—this is the universe of Z. I acknowledge the supremacy of ether and gas for their oblivion-bringing powers.'

"It was agreed, she concluded, that I should return but I was cautioned not to be persuaded from the knowledge that I had been in this wonderful place. A deep pity for ordinary mortals and earthly existence pervaded my being—then it all seemed to dissolve and I was back sharply to earth babbling that 'Alice was there and she knew all about Z. too.' I felt tired—as a traveler does when a long journey is finished—and I thought I should be allowed to rest; however, I called for my husband and with his hand in mine the universe of 'Z' still seemed all right; a little nebulous but none the less desirable—even though it might have been the kingdom of Zeus. Psychic I may be, Celtic I know that I am, imagination (priceless asset) I doubtless have—but not yet have I been dissuaded from the memory, at least of 'Z' and I rejoice at the absolute freedom from pain attending the extraction of the teeth—other than the feeling later that my face was full of holes! And now I'm another one of those obnoxious persons roaming the earth questing for other members of the 'gas-jag' fraternity!"

Her Southern Blood.

WHEN the precious old lady, a passenger from an incoming train, left Brookwood station, a red cap piloted her to a waiting taxicab at the curb, into which she was just about to be seated, when the thought suddenly occurred to inquire, "What kind of a taxi is this?"

"A Black and White, ma'am," replied the chauffeur, respectfully tipping his cap in deference to his elderly fare.

"Let me right out of here," she cried excitedly. "My southern blood won't let me ride in this car."

Whereupon she stepped from the taxi so quickly the polite chauffeur hasn't yet recovered from the shock.

A Wellesley Custom.

IF the wisest gossips had heard of the old, old custom concerning a Wellesley graduate attending a class reunion, the engagement of Miss Frances Powell to Clarence Laws would possibly have been revealed many weeks ago and a searching spotlight turned upon their romance.

When a girl returns to Wellesley to mingle with her classmates at commencement and enjoy the festivities provided by her alma mater, she answers to roll call by rising to her feet if she is engaged to be married. That was the way in which charmingly blonde Miss Powell announced to her classmates she would be wedded in the early fall, many weeks before her Atlanta intimates were apprised of this interesting news.

Surprise Weddings.

SEVERAL surprise weddings have startled the ultra-smart world lately and the last one concerns a Gretna Green affair uniting the young daughter of and son of well-known Atlantans. No, indeed. The couple have not received parental forgiveness and so very unrelenting have been the bride's parents that an annulment of the marriage is contemplated for the young lady who took the bit between her teeth and ran away.

The couple forgot all about the Georgia law requiring that wedding banns be published five days beforehand and their extreme youth also enters into the argument.

Meanwhile, the groom of this adventure may decide to put up a strong fight for the bride and protest against such a step as nullifying the marriage.

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE nor John Taintor Foote possesses no greater love for dumb animals than a prominent resident of Penn avenue, who was awakened the other morning by snarls which smote his ears instead of the usual joyous carolings of songbirds heralding the dawn. A huge brute of a dog up the street was doing violence to the "goat," the happy little fox terrier on the block. The "S. O. S." from the terrier was sufficient to urge Mr. Penn Avenue from his early slumbers without pause except to grasp wildly at the foot of the bed for his manly bathrobe. It wasn't there, but his wife's was—a lovely splash of color in Japanese silk—the kind you can pull through a wedding ring or pack in a purse overnight.

Quickly he clutched the negligee and sped through the house to the scene of action, just in time to save the little terrier from a bloody ending to an otherwise blithe existence. His anger at the big dog was interrupted by his wife at the window calling excitedly, "Put on the kimono!"

Suddenly conscious of other peering eyes from nearby windows, he hastily poked his arms through the sleeves of the kimono which he carried tightly wadded in his fist. Sailing back to his own bailiwick the air got beneath the light silk and hoisted it aloft. So majestic was he in his wrath and full of pity for the little sufferer that no one had the heart to smile at the incident. Later he recalled that he must have looked like Robin Hood fleeing in his cloak. Hereafter, there will be a double check to see if that bathrobe is in its accustomed place.

Poor Mrs. Beans.

Mrs. Beans a valuable Boston bulldog—so called from her remarkable likeness to Mrs. Beans of Saturday Evening Post fame—has at last found a place to rest her worn-out body and distressed soul. She has evidently been lost for some time, as can easily be noticed by her sparseness of flesh, or better by her prominence of bones, and what is more, she is the recent mother of pups, which are also lost. By calling Hemlock 1673-J the owner can claim her lost friend—for there is no truer and more devoted friend to anyone than a dog.

Miss England Weds W. L. Willis.

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends was that of Miss Frances England to William Leonard Willis, which was solemnized Saturday, July 17. Dr. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

Miss Bonnie England, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and was lovely in a blue georgette with picture hat to match. Her flowers were pink Columbia roses.

The bride wore a model of coral sand georgette, with a close fitting hat to match. She carried a huge bouquet of bride's roses showered with swainsona.

T. J. Stewart acted as best man. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. England and is a popular member of the younger set.

Mr. Willis is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Willis, No. 410 Church street, East Point, and is a graduate of Oglethorpe university and a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

After the ceremony Mr. Willis and his bride left for a wedding trip through Tennessee and North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Diamond will leave Monday for Savannah, from where they will sail Tuesday for New York. En route home they will visit in Virginia.

A Patriotic Program

BY M. FRANCES MEADORS BURGHARD.

A patriotic address by a tried and true patriot, a flag ritual which stirred the patriotism of the beholders, and patriotic songs of beauty, constituted the program when the 45 W. C. T. U. members of the First Baptist church in Macon were hostesses at the July meeting of the Macon Woman's Christian Temperance union Friday afternoon.

"I know as many young people as most of you," said Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, state W. C. T. U. president, National W. C. T. U. evangelistic director and World W. C. T. U. lecturer and organizer, in an address on "Youth and Patriotism," "and I believe we have the finest, sanest, most idealistic (and, therefore, most loyal to God and home and native land) young people the world ever saw.

"I am not blind to existing evils, but if when we were young there had been the same speed, the same alluring forms of vice in the movies, and the sex literature, and the automobile and the flying machine, etc., our generation of youth would have been as bad, or perhaps much worse.

"Call youth to the colors; tell them they must have steady nerves, clean hands, courageous hearts and righteous anger with which to defend all that is dear to upstanding, clean-living, God-fearing Americans, and they will amaze you with their splendid and effectual response.

"If you are pessimistic about our young people and the prohibition law, read the July 10 issue of The Literary Digest," advised the speaker. "See the answers to the questionnaire sent to hundreds of presidents of colleges and universities, then write and thank the Digest for the fine service it has rendered and spread the good news!

"If our young men and women who are just coming into power in state and church do not accomplish greater things than we, I miss my guess and am not a daughter of a prophet, or even a niece of one," she continued.

Love and Patriotism Appeal.

"They say 'the cackling of the geese has drowned the song of the nightingale,' and our young people do not revel in the love lyrics and love stories of the great lovers of the past, I do not know. But of one thing I am sure—'the cackling of the geese' has not drowned the scream of the eagle," said Mrs. Armor.

"It is my pleasure to speak to thousands of young people in grammar schools, high schools, colleges and universities and at young people's conventions and assemblies, and I have never seen the time when the young people of the nation responded more enthusiastically to appeals for the honor of our nation than now," the speaker stated.

"One thing this generation of adults seem to have forgotten," remarked the defender of youth, "and that is that multiplied thousands of our boys and girls do not know anything of the legalized liquor traffic. It is hard for us to realize that thousands of young voters never saw a barroom, and are utterly ignorant of the depths and the darkness of the pit from which we were digged when we abolished the legalized liquor traffic forever.

"If we make them understand what the meaning of the present attack on the Volstead act is, and what the results of legalizing wine and beer would be, they will rally to the defense of the law with all the wonderful intelligence and splendid consecration and zeal of the new generation.

"We must make them understand that we are waging a veritable battle of Armageddon for the honor of the flag, the safety of democracy, and the glory of God," is the way Mrs. Armor stated our duty. "When they understand these things, the victory will be won.

"Let them know that when they are told we cannot enforce the prohibition law, it means if true, that Old Glory who never bowed her shining head to any foe on land or sea must surrender at last to the most cowardly and cruel set of criminals that tread the earth—those who are willing to lie and steal and kill for the privilege of coining money out of that which uncrowns womanhood, dishonors manhood and beggars childhood, that which is the sum of all villainies in that it will make people commit every known crime while under its influence."

Mrs. Armor painted the picture even blacker by adding "that democracy is a screaming farce if the will of the majority can be overcome by a vicious and avaricious minority, and that this nation, recognized the world over as a Christian nation, says to the heathen nations of the world (if we cannot enforce this most righteous law after a reasonable fashion) that the church is impotent and God has abdicated His throne.

Flag Ritual Given.

Preceding Mrs. Armor's address, a beautiful flag ritual, prepared by a gifted Macon writer, Mrs. Piercey Chestney, after considerable research, as presented by the accomplished Mrs. Randolph Jaques, Jr., assisted by five Girl Reserves and as many Girl Scouts in their costumes, a bugler, singer and pianist, made a deep appeal to the patriotism of the large audience, and pleased as an artistic dramatization of historic value.

History of "Our Flags."

Brief histories of "Our Flags"—The Cross of St. George, the "King's Colors," the Cromwell flag, the Modified Cromwell's flag, the Pine Tree flag, the Rattlesnake flag, the Cambridge flag, the Betsy Ross or the Revolutionary flag, the Star Spangled Banner and "Old Glory"—interesting for their relation to the development of the present national flag and for their connection with notable events in United States history, were given by Misses Alethia Hull, Louise Moore, Margaret Gladin, Margaret Riley and Eloise Holleman of the Girl Reserves, and Misses Mary DuBose, Pauline Willingham, Dorothy Barnes, Louise Collins and Elizabeth Tarver of the Girl Scouts, each bearing the flag of which she spoke.

BRIEF W. C. T. U. NEWS.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor is at the state W. C. T. U. headquarters in Macon after attending the meeting of the board of temperance and social service of the Southern Methodist church in Junaluska, N. C., last week.

Mrs. Lelia A. Dillard, of Emory university, national W. C. T. U. director of the peace department, will spend Tuesday at the state headquarters in Macon with Mrs. Armor.

At the request of the Sandersville W. C. T. U. the courthouse bell there will ring at noon each day until after the November election to call the members and other Christians to prayer that righteous officers may be elected.

Mrs. G. P. Gostin, of Macon, treasurer of the largest W. C. T. U. in the state, is enjoying a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Jack Rickar, in New York.

Mrs. Florence Ewell Atkins, of Milledgeville, and Mrs. D. A. Warlick, of Macon, transportation chairman, announce that more than 30 members of the Georgia W. C. T. U. are planning to attend the 52nd national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Los Angeles, Calif., September 26-October 1, and still others have the trip under advisement. Friends, whether delegates or members of the W. C. T. U. may join the party if they desire.

NEWS ABOUT WOMEN

London, July 17.—(AP)—Window-cleaning, singing and song writing are the three professions of Lady Dean Paul.

Ordinarily she keeps busy singing and composing songs, but conditions are so bad in the musical world at the moment that Lady Dean has accepted employment with a window-cleaning firm in which her friend, the Marchioness of Garisbrooke, is interested. Lady Dean does not actually clean windows, but solicits jobs for the firm.

"I canvass for orders," said Lady Dean. "It is hard work, but it has sufficient humor in it to make it tolerable."

Chicago, July 17.—(AP)—A tour of the country, giving public lectures in more than 50 cities, is planned by Dr. Annie Besant of London, international president of the Theosophical society, following the national convention of the American Theosophical society here August 28 to September 1. It is expected that M. Kirchnamurti, the Hindu leader of the society, will accompany her. The convention will open with dedication of the cornerstone of a $250,000 national headquarters building at Wheaton, a suburb.

Mrs. Besant was representative of India in the Congress of Nations at the Chicago World's fair in 1893, but has not been in this country since.

Paris, July 17.—(AP)—Mlle. Mistinguett, the music hall star, has some qualms about fulfilling an engagement in Berlin. The reason is that, during the war, she undertook a number of special inquiries for the French counter-spying service and succeeded in extracting some valuable information, notably in Switzerland and Spain.

The German papers, it appears, are not promising "Miss" a very enthusiastic reception, and the French "anecdotic" and theatrical papers are inclined to dissuade the Moulin Rouge star from making the voyage.

London, July 17.—(AP)—Dame Margaret Lloyd George and Lord Oxford and Asquith came face to face at one of the royal courts at Buckingham palace.

Because of the furious battle between Lloyd George and Lord Oxford and Lord Asquith for control of the dwindling liberal party, guests expected to see the fire fly. But the two old campaigners, for Dame Lloyd George also has been active on the stump for years, are too experienced to carry their political differences into social life. They chatted amiably.

Sofia, July 17.—(AP)—While King Boris, of Bulgaria, is looking assiduously for a wife to share his throne, his 24-year-old sister, Eudoxia, is seeking a husband. Unlike Boris, she has no throne or royal estate to offer—only her regal lineage and her affections. She has no money in her own name. She lives very modestly with her brother in Sofia, but, like him, finds life in a Balkan capital, without relatives or family kin, extremely irksome and lonely.

Eudoxia is quite ready to marry a commoner, provided he possesses character, means and gentle breeding.

Danish National Dish

Copenhagen, July 17.—(AP)—Food is a very serious affair to most Danes. A meal to a Dane is little short of a ritual, and a meal to him generally means a heavy meal. Every Danish woman from the queen to the semptress, is capable of preparing wholesome and tasty dishes and none would dream of marrying without a thorough and practical knowledge of cooking.

The recipe for preparing roast Saerimner med Rodkaal, the national dish, follows:

Take a nice leg of pork; score the skin across in narrow strips about one-quarter inch apart, rub with salt and place in a good brisk oven. A leg weighing 10 pounds must roast four hours and without basting if the crackling is desired crisp.

The gravy is thickened with a little flour and made a deep brown, and served with plain boiled potatoes and hot boiled red cabbage. The red cabbage is cut in very thin slices. In a saucepan (not an iron one) melt a lump of butter or lard, add a pinch of salt, 2 spoonfuls of vinegar, then add the cabbage and let simmer for 3 or 4 hours, the last hour minus the lid when the ingredients should be well stirred.

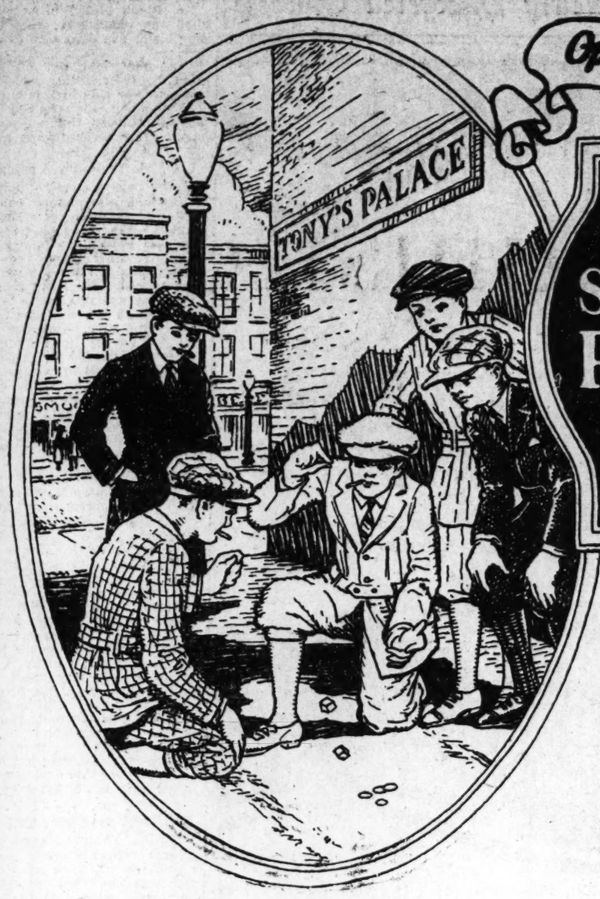

BEFORE HER BABY CAME

Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Adkins, Texas.—"Before my baby came I was so weak I had to stay in bed most of the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother in law, who is a midwife, told me it was all foolishness for me to stay in bed. She told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it would help me. She handed me one of your little books and I read it and was interested in it. I went to a drug store that night and got a bottle of your wonderful medicine. I took it until the baby was born and was able to be up and do my work. Baby is 4½ months old now and weighs 14 pounds. I have plenty of milk for her and she gains steadily. I recommend it. I am willing to answer letters and will do anything I can for any woman, for I know how I suffered."—Mrs. A. H. TSCHIRHART, R. No. 2, Box 39, Adkins, Texas.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use by women for over fifty years. It is a vegetable tonic made from roots and herbs and is sold by all druggists.

Sale of Exquisite Silk Lingerie

Teddies

Have you ever tried to describe a sunset, a landscape or a picture whose grandeur and beauty filled you with awe? Words to do it adequately simply failed you. Such is our dilemma in our effort to tell you about these silk garments! Styles of every description — crepe de chine, satin back crepe and georgette in all pastel shades — tailored models — lacey trimmed—touches of embroidery—waist-line sashes—straight lines —some hand-made throughout—exquisite creations.

Sizes—34 to 44

$4.95 to $14.75

Every woman who is an enthusiast for the novel, the dainty, the exclusive in her garments of intimacy, looks forward to this annual sale of exquisite silk lingerie with eagerness!

Weeks of careful preparation have been consumed in anticipation of this wonderful event that starts tomorrow, and the result is the most gorgeous assemblage of silk underthings ever assembled in our history.

In addition to the thousands of garments made to our special order for this event, we have secured the entire floor stock (2 or 3 of a kind) of a famous manufacturer of high-class silk lingerie, whose name we are under promise not to divulge because of the very low prices at which these garments will be sold. Included in this floor stock are the original Paris confections from which he drew inspiration for his famous productions.

Scarcely any two are alike, yet there are many sets of 3 and 4 pieces, and each piece is fully a third under its real value.

Step-In Sets

Dainty companions for the teddies —very similar, in fact, in styles, models and trims—each set the personification of daintiness and beauty —severely plain tailored models as well as those of the most gorgeous lace trims. Shown in pastel shades of Maize, Orchid, Peach and Nile. Sizes 36 to 40.

$10.75 to $12.75

Dainty Slips

Beautifully made slips of crepe de chine of the finest shadow-proof quality, in Flesh and White. In this lot are some hand-tailored models and others daintily lace trimmed around the tops and bottoms. Full range of sizes. When you see these beautiful slips you will recognize their marvelous values.

$4.95 to $10.75

Gowns

Charming, exclusive, Frenchy—these beautiful gowns of heavy quality luxurious crepe de chine and satin-back crepe, in subtle, alluring pastel shades—some in solid colors—some in combination colors — some with touches of hand-embroidery, some combined with appliqued nets, some with trims of dainty filet, some with baby Irish lace. Hundreds of models from which to select—models, styles and designs for the most exclusive and esthetic—all underpriced for this great event.

Sizes—15, 16 and 17

$7.95 to $29.75

SPECIAL—In addition to the luxurious lingerie in this sale we are including all left-overs of our own pure silk crepe de chine undie sale of last week, augmented by fresh shipments. $6.95 Gowns at $3.95, and $4.95 Teddies and Step-Ins at $2.95. Full size range.

Flag Day Address of Mrs. Underwood Of Joseph Habersham Chapter

At the flag day celebration of Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., of Atlanta, Mrs. Marvin Underwood made a most notable address on "Examples of Leadership and Influence of American Women," which is reproduced today. Mrs. Underwood is chairman of the international relations committee, and an outstanding leader in D. A. R., Woman's club and other interests of women in her home city. The address follows:

"In this era of interplay of ideas and ideals throughout the world, no more striking instances can be found than the leadership of American women along many lines in lands far from America. In Germany where the new order has called for the work of women in education, in political life and in organization activities, it is the American Y. W. C. A. leaders whom the German women take as models and as guides. In Japan, where factories are bringing thousands of country girls to be herded in great cities, it is an American welfare worker from one of the great industrial plants, like that which bakes our break and cakes, who is called to survey the field and propose a solution for acute human ills. In southern China, amid Canton's teeming millions there is going forward the first progressive movement toward better wages and working conditions. The Chinese woman who is leading it, is the widow of Sun Yat Sen, and was educated in Georgia at Wesleyan college in Macon.

"In India and other oriental countries, the new need for higher education for women has called forth seven women's colleges, founded, manned and supported largely by the college women of America. In Turkey is a most striking example of the new leadership of emancipated women. Indirectly, American influence is reflected. The Turkish women have shown a vision, a courage and a capacity that are amazing. Mrs. Adnan Bay, called Turkey's Joan de Arc, with marvelous courage and wisdom has led in the enfranchisement and emancipation of millions of Turkish men and women. Realizing that to abolish old restrictions and provide no new channels for life would lead to tragedy, she has instituted club work, relief and educational work, and a great Red Crescent society, modelled after our Red Cross. Even more striking as a personality, is the power and prestige of Ta-te-ti Hanoun, who married Mustephal Komal.

"Another example of an American woman in a position of high leadership, is the first woman member of the British parliament, Lady Aastor, who today sets the pace for women in parliamentarian action and is absolute leader in England of the temperance movement.

"Yet one more instance of the leadership of an American woman: On June 15, in Dublin, Ireland, Miss Jane Addams, of Hull house, Chicago, opened a gathering of all women's organizations in the world, who are working for world peace.

"Fortunate indeed, is the fact that these women who represent us before the eyes of the world are called from our best. They held up before the women of other lands a glorious and a glorified American womanhood. The response in the past of these women, of respect, devotion and loyalty is a testimony, not alone to the quality of American leadership, but to the heart hunger yearnings and latent capacities for a larger, better life on the part of these millions of our women.

"What a challenge comes to us to these facts, to be true to the best!"

MRS. MARVIN UNDERWOOD,
Chairman, International Relations Committee, Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., Atlanta.

Capital City, O. E. S., Honors Mrs. Cape.

Capital City Eastern Star chapter entertained at a recent meeting in honor of Mrs. Annabelle Cape, grand Ruth of Georgia. Several other grand officers were present, among whom were Mrs. Roe Mae Ashby, worthy grand marshal of the general grand chapter; Mrs. Sallie McElroy, worthy grand matron of Georgia; Will H. McLaren, past grand patron of Georgia; Mrs. Jessie Allison, grand Martha of Georgia; Mrs. Nora Lanford, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Griggs, of Marietta, sectional helpers, and little Betty Jean Shuford, of Decatur, mascot of the grand chapter of Georgia for 1926; also quite a number of matrons and patrons and other visitors.

After a short business session the degrees were conferred by Capital City's efficient corps of officers, after which a splendid program was rendered and a number of talks for the good of the order.

Mrs. Ashby, with her usual indefinable charm, gave an interesting talk.

W. F. Griffin presented Mrs. Ashby with a hand-painted scarf from the chapter. Mr. Cape presented Mrs. McElroy with a beaded bag, a gift from the chapter. Mrs. Cape, the guest of honor, was the recipient of a handsome loving cup from the chapter, Mrs. McElroy making the presentation, telling of Mrs. Cape's progress and unselfish loyalty to the order. The officers also received hand-painted handkerchiefs from the worthy matron, Mrs. Cape.

Lucky Thirteen Club Gives Farewell Dance.

Mrs. Murphy acted as hostess to the occasion and the music was furnished by the Wee Hava orchestra of the club.

CHAPTER REPORTS

JEFFERSONIA HAWKINS.

Flag day and magna charta day were fittingly observed by the Jeffersonia Hawkins chapter, D. A. R., of Roberta, when an interesting paper was read by Mrs. S. Y. Bryan. A reading on "The Flag in the Making" was given by Mrs. R. C. LeSueur, and several musical numbers were included in the program.

The meetings was featured by the presence of the members of the Roberta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy as special guests, on the occasion of the first anniversary of the Jeffersonia Hawkins chapter, D. A. R. Two new names were presented for membership.

Patriotic colors were used in the decorations and refreshments.

SUNBURY.

A notable observance of American Independence week took place recently in Winder when the regent, with members of the Sunbury chapter, rang the school and church bells in the city 11 minutes after 11, as an echo of the liberty bell, this request having been made by the state regent, Mrs. Franklin.

On Tuesday afternoon the Sunbury chapter met in the home of Miss Gertrude Rogers. The officers of the legion auxiliary and the ministers in the city were invited guests on this occasion. Further interest in American Independence week was manifested in the following program rendered: D. A. R. ritual, America, flag salute, patriotic pledge of faith in unison. Each one present gave a signer of the declaration in response to roll call. "Flag Day," Mrs. Frances Haralson; "Jefferson's Letter to Monroe," Mrs. C. O. Maddox; solo, Star Spangled Banner, Mrs. C. S. Williams; Declaration of Independence, Mrs. W. M. Holsenbeck.

The following are the officers recently elected to serve for the ensuing year: Regent, Mrs. Henry Pledger; vice regent, Mrs. W. H. Quarterman; vice regent, Miss Annie Thomas; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. S. Williams; recording secretary, Mrs. W. M. Holsenback; treasurer, Mrs. C. O. Maddox; historian, Miss Mable Jackson; registrar, Miss Beulah Ferguson; chaplain, Mrs. E. A. Starr; auditor, Mrs. H. E. Edwards; parliamentarian, Mrs. L. S. Radford.

GOVERNOR EDWARD TELFAIR.

A delightful flag day program, arranged by Mrs. Leila B. Matthews and Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, was presented by Governor Edward Telfair chapter, D. A. R., of Thomaston, which included singing the Star Spangled Banner by the members, a paper on "Making the First Flag," by Mrs. T. A. D. Weaver; another on the "Celebration of the Flag," by Mrs. Alfred A. Britt, and the "Meaning of the Flag," by Mrs. Julia Gates. Mrs. G. L. Jones talked interestingly on the "Descendants of Betsy Ross." A delightful musical program was interspersed with the historical papers.

Officers for the year are: Regent, Mrs. W. L. Jenkins; honorary regent, Mrs. Leila B. Matthews; first vice regent, Mrs. Julia Davis Yates; second vice regent, Mrs. B. G. McKinney; treasurer, Mrs. Leila B. Matthews; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. Y. Allen; recording secretary, Mrs. A. A. Britt; registrar, Mrs. O. W. Jones; historian, Mrs. Louise M. Stephens; librarian, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Harris.

PETER COFFEE.

Peter Coffee chapter, of Abbeville, celebrated flag day jointly with magna charta and Thomas Jefferson days, addresses being made on each of these subjects. Mrs. Charles Shelden spoke on the history of Wilcox county and the old Indians trails. Miss Bessie Jo Johnson, student of the Abbeville consolidated schools, who won the five dollar gold piece offered by the chapter for the best patriotic memory work, gave several patriotic selections.

A number of guests added to the pleasure and interest of the meeting. At the request of the chapter, homes and business houses displayed the flag on this day.

THRONATEESKA.

Iris Court, the beautiful home of Mrs. J. R. Whitehead, was the scene of an interesting celebration, when Thronateeska chapter, D. A. R., of Albany, observed the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The regent, Mrs. R. L. Jones, presided, opening the meeting just after the church bells and the fire alarm bells had echoed the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia. A miniature brass bell, a relic from the home of Francis Scott Key, was rung by Mrs. W. N. Ticknor in unison with the city bells.

This chapter has made a substantial contribution to the Thomas Jefferson memorial fund for the purchase of Monticello.

A pleasing and appropriate program was rendered at the meeting, including the singing of "America," salute to the flag, the patriot's pledge of faith and a reading, "Declaration of Independence," with the names of all the signers, by Mrs. Whitehead. Miss Lucy Pond gave a fine tribute to Lyman Hall and Button Gwinnett, signers from Liberty county. The program closed with singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

SERGEANT NEWTON.

Independence day celebration of Sergeant Newton chapter, of Covington, was held at the First Methodist church in cooperation with the American Legion and other patriotic organizations. A substantial contribution was made to the Jefferson memorial fund for the purchase of Monticello.

Plans are being made for erecting a chapter house during the next year, and a play, "Cupid Up-to-Date," will be staged the last of July. Mrs. W. J. Clark is chairman of arrangements. A historical pageant will be put on during the year, and a loan scholarship fund is to be created, details to be left in the hands of the educational committee for development.

SAVANNAH.

The Savannah chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held the last meeting for the summer recently at the home of the newly elected regent, Mrs. John W. Daniel.

The new officers of the chapter were introduced and reports given.

Mrs. Lowry Axley, chairman of the historical essays committee, reported that Henry DeBois had won the prize offered by the chapter to the junior high school student writing the best essay on "Georgia in the Revolution." Henry DeBois read his essay and the regent presented him with a five dollar gold piece.

Roy Tidwell, also of the Thirty-fifth Junior High school, won honorable mention. He was presented with a two-and-a-half-dollar gold piece.

A year book will be printed again this year with Mrs. Frank M. Oliver chairman.

A very interesting program of Magna Carta day and flag day were presented by the historian, Mrs. C. Buford Smith, as follows: Magna Carta, its meaning, Miss Inez Crandle; "Our Flag," Mrs. Thomas Purse; "Old Glory," Miss Florence Colding; "The Making of the Flag," Mrs. J. Thomas Wood; reading the flag code, Mrs. Walter Stillwell; "The Old Flag Forever" (poem, by F. L. Stanton), Mrs. J. R. Knox; music, "The Star Spangled Banner," Mrs. A. F. Carr; salute to the flag, chapter.

A reception was held at the conclusion of the program, and the new members were introduced.

MRS. LORIDAN'S DECITES DECLARATION.

Among the many patriotic celebrations in Atlanta during Independence week was that of Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., when a program replete with interesting events was offered. Mrs. Charles Loridans, the new regent of Joseph Habersham chapter, was scheduled for a reading of the Declaration of Independence, but to the surprise and delight of the assemblage, she recited the entire declaration, and, as the time honored and enthralling words of that grand old document fell from her lips, spoken in her clear, musical tones, they acquired a new meaning never before perceived; her hearers had a keener sense of the wisdom of our fathers, and the glory of our country, and Habersham chapter felt prouder than ever of its queenly and talented regent. So charmed was her audience that invitations poured in upon her to repeat the recitation at other gatherings, but of these she could accept only one, and again was her audience spell-bound.

Mrs. Loridans comes of a long line of illustrious ancestors and her beautiful home in Ansley Park is a cultural center where southern hospitality shines with its old-time radiance.

Conyers Chapter Holds Meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Lee and Mrs. B. F. Tucker were recently joint hostesses to one of the largest and most interesting meetings in the history of the Conyers chapter at the home of Mrs. Lee on North Main street.

The lower floor was thrown together and attractively and effectively decorated with shasta daisies and soft greens.

After a good bit of business discussed and reports from different committees and treasurer the meeting was then turned over to the chairman of our program committee, Mrs. J. R. Lee, who had planned a most interesting program. "Georgia's Contribution to Literature" was the subject. Sketches of lives of our best known Georgia poets and some of the best poems were read. Those taking part on program were Mrs. W. O. Mann, Mrs. Emory Granade, Mrs. J. P. Tilley, Mrs. W. S. Veal, Mrs. R. L. Huff and Mrs. J. R. Lee.

Then a social half hour was enjoyed, during which the hostesses and their assistances served delicious refreshments. A number of invited guests and out-of-town guests were present.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gleaton.

Have that Clear White Skin all men admire

Try This Quick, Easy Way

The skin you were meant to have—the kind of skin men admire—clear, smooth, youthful and white—it is yours as if by magic. Sallowness, roughness, muddiness, pimples, blackheads, blotches, freckles, tan and other embarrassing blemishes as if magic. Science has discovered such imperfections are merely a film which conceals your schoolgirl skin of natural beauty. Now—before your very eyes, you can dissolve that film that hides your pretty complexion. Yes, almost overnight you can actually make your skin clear, soft, white. Try this 3 Minute Test: Before retiring, apply a thin coating of concentrated Marsha Bleach Creme. No massage. No rubbing.

The secret is the creme. The next morning look into the mirror and behold the change—note the absence of pimples, blackheads and freckles. Gaze on a beautiful, soft, white skin that you can hardly believe is your own—and best of all—it's real. It's just your own natural youthful skin that is there right now but hidden. Clear White Skin—or No Pay. If after 5 night's treatment with this magic creme your pimples, blackheads or other blemishes have not banished; if your skin is not clear, soft and pink white, return the unused portion of the jar to your dealer. Instantly he will refund full purchase price. For sale at all good drug and department stores.

Richard Chapter Scholarship Fund

Plans have been completed by the Robert E. Lee chapter of the U. D. C., Richland, to mark every Confederate grave in Stewart county with iron crosses. Mrs. J. M. Kenyon is chairman of this committee and she has recently announced that many iron markers have been bought by individual members and presented to the chapter for erection.

The chapter is sponsoring a big barbecue and fiddlers' convention to be held here on July 8, which will be one of the biggest events of the summer season in this section of the state. An expert will be in charge of the contest and valuable prizes have been offered to the best musicians. Mrs. Willie Bell is chairman.

The chapter has recently appointed a committee to draw up plans and consult architects about the chapter house which is to be erected here at an early date.

Executive Board Meeting of Covington.

An executive board meeting of the Covington chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy was held at the home of the president, Mrs. W. Trox Bankston Thursday afternoon, July 8, at 4 o'clock.

Meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. W. C. Clark. Treasurer reported 81 paid members and $26.39 in treasury.

Mrs. R. E. Everitt read the names of 11 members who have recently come into our chapter as follows: Mrs. Carrie Skinner, Mrs. J. L. Epps, Mrs. I. W. Birdsong, Mrs. Flowers Greer Byrd, Mrs. Lizzie Cook Robinson, Mrs. J. O. Stanton, Mrs. Mary Gay Pitts, Mrs. E. B. Nelson, Mrs. L. D. Pritchett, Miss Mellie Pitts.

The committee on by-laws and constitution as appointed and included Miss Sallie Mae Sockwell, Mrs. E. O. Lee and Mrs. R. E. Everitt.

Motion passed to extend an invitation to the 1927 U. D. C. convention to come to Covington.

Motion passed to give every world war soldier a cross of service who expresses a desire to have one.

Mrs. E. B. Nelson was appointed chairman of the Soldiers' home box. Motion passed that the wives of all Confederate veterans be made honorary members of chapter.

At the close of the business session delicious refreshments were served.

MRS. CATOR PASSES

It is with deep regret that we learn of the passing of Mrs. L. F. Cator, of Perry. Her noble work has claimed her as the Georgia division's very own. She has ever made her life useful to the cause, was once president of the Sergeant Clinton D. Duncan chapter of Perry, and at the time of her death was a member of the executive board of the Georgia division, serving as chairman of the Confederate Veteran. It is with bowed heads that we reverence her memory and a thankfulness that she passed our way, and that the light of her high example suffused our lives with inspiration will live ever in our hearts.

Scholarship Fund Appeal Is Made.

As chairman of the Woodrow Wilson scholarship fund, I am taking advantage of our page to make an appeal to our Georgia United Daughters of the Confederacy in behalf of this fund.

This is one of the most recent and most important activities of our organization and I am sure that our entire membership is vitally interested in the success of this effort to honor one of the greatest men the world has ever produced.

From the fact that this movement was first presented in Savannah at the first convention of our own Mrs. Frank Harrold as president general by a loyal and ardent member of the Georgia division, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, of Atlanta, makes this especially of greater interest to Georgia U. D. C. and I am sure it is the desire of all to make it a success.

Therefore faithful Georgia daughters, will you not rally to the appeal of your chairman and put forth your very best effort and let us meet our pledge this year?

Some one has said that 20 cents per member to this fund will complete it. Won't you do that for this cause that means so much to the young men who are not financially able to secure this course in law and which our organization has pledged to furnish in memory of our great southern president, Woodrow Wilson.

MRS. G. P. FOLKS,
Chairman.

Mrs. Strickland Honors Tennessee Visitors.

Mrs. M. Strickland entertained at her home, 422 Woodward avenue, Wednesday afternoon in compliment to Earskin Early and Ivy Burns, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., who are in the city for a few days.

Invited to meet Mr. Early and Mr. Burns were Misses Minnie Medlin, Ida Hyden, Thelma Carter, Ina Hayes, Oris Cook, Mary Hadden, Louise Camp, Ruth Hayes, Emily Dowdy, Mrs. Cowart, Mrs. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Cathey, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dowdy, W. M. Bivins, Ernest Hooks, Carl Hayes, Arthur Camp, Ernest Lawson, Horace Singleton and William Camp.

Fulton Chapter Will Entertain For Old Soldiers

Fulton chapter, U. D. C., held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, July 6, at the Confederate Soldiers' home. A short business session was held with the president, Mrs. C. L. Anderson, presiding. The main item of the business session was the plans for the picnic to be given by the chapter to the Confederate veterans of the city and county on August 3 at Grant park. Chairmen of the different committees will be appointed during the week and all arrangements made to give the veterans an enjoyable day. The members, after adjournment of the business session, went to the chapel and entertained the veterans in the home and many visitors with a program of music and readings.

R. D. J. Lawrence, chairman of the board of trustees of the home, made and address and welcomed the chapter.

Miss Corinne Lockhart, of Sandersville, Ga.; Miss Laura Langley, Miss Pearl Hazlerigs and Miss Constance Merritt gave piano selections and each received encores. Miss Claire Hardin, the organist of Grace Methodist church, rendered several numbers, which were greatly appreciated. Mrs. Charles Maddux gave two vocal selections and led in singing several songs by the audience. Little Martha Sue Dillard won the hearts and also the applause of the veterans by her readings. Martha Sue proved herself a child prodigy by her efficient manner in rendering several difficult readings.

Ice cream and cake was served by the committee, Mrs. J. W. Kendley, chairman. The hospital was visited by several of the chapter members and they put flowers in all the wards.

Chairmen for the picnic have been appointed by the president and all are now at work and all reports are encouraging for a grand time. I invite you now to attend as my guest.

Please, if you write this up, state that this picnic is only for the Confederate Veterans of the city and county and especially invited guests of the chapter members.

Only one application for membership was made at this meeting.

Treasurer reported finances of chapter in excellent condition.

Please also request that all correspondence for Fulton chapter, No. 1,754, U. D. C., Atlanta, Ga., be sent to the president, Mrs. C. L. Anderson, 545 Highland avenue. Mrs. Anderson was elected and took office the first of January this year and the list of officers have been published several times, but many letters come to Mrs. Hollingsworth, old president.

Ten-Two Club Is Entertained.

Mrs. H. H. Smith entertained the Ten-Two Sewing club at her home Wednesday afternoon. After many interesting features of entertainment a salad course was served.

Those present were Mrs. Paul McDowell, Mrs. W. E. Vanderau, Mrs. Irby Greene, Mrs. Cliff Harris, Mrs. T. P. White, Mrs. Allen Tison, Mrs. W. M. Pharr, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Smith.

Fifth District Displays Posters Of Great Credit

The fifth district of Federated Women's clubs had an exhibit of posters at the club institute at Athens that would have again won the loving cup for the best display had a trophy been offered this year. The directors of the institute decided, inasmuch as the institute was held for the purpose of studying the mechanics of club organization and not for a demonstration of work accomplished, that the prizes for exhibits would be discontinued.

The posters of the fifth district were assembled by Mrs. R. H. Lee and Mrs. A. S. Turner, a number of the charts being the work of these two clubwomen. The posters ranged from hand-painted charts to cut-outs, each setting forth some club accomplishment or teaching some club project. They included the charts exhibited last year at the state capitol in the work to put through the educational bill. A number of the clubs in the district were represented, the largest exhibits being from Atlanta and Decatur.

The value of visual education is no longer questioned and the use of posters and charts are now an accepted part of any educational work. The State College of Agriculture was a pioneer in this work, using charts for its various instructors and lecturers and in the extension work in the field. Miss Laura Blackshear, illustrator for the college, who makes all the charts used by the members of the faculty and the extension workers, gave an interesting lecture on the making of posters to the club institute. Bulletins explaining the principles of poster making and how to place the point of interest, were distributed. These bulletins may be obtained without cost by writing to Miss Laura E. Blackshear, State College of Agriculture, Athens, Ga.

Portuguese National Dish

Lisbon, July 17.—(AP)—Caldo Berde or green soup is a daily dish in nearly all the north of Portugal and forms a very palatable and wholesome repast.

Green cabbage leaves rolled and held tightly in the left hand are used with a good piece of the roll held outside between the thumb and forefinger. From this roll, very thin slices are cut off with a sharp knife and when opened form extremely narrow, short strips of cabbage leaf.

These are placed in a bowl of cold water and rubbed between the palms of the hands. The water is changed until it ceases to have any green coloring, as the juice from the cut cabbage spoils the flavor of the broth.

Place in a saucepan some potatoes, boil them in salt and wtaer, and when boiled mash well in a potato masher, or in Portuguese fashion with a fork against a wooden spoon. The potato pulp then is mixed with the water in which the potatoes were boiled, some olive oil added and when this mixture boils, add to it the cut cabbage, leaving the saucepan uncovered so that the greens shall not lose their bright color.

Swiss National Dish

This is how a "fondue" is made. First, a good-sized earthen pot must be used, then a stock of garlic is rubbed vigorously on the inside of the pot so that it may be permeated with this flavor, being careful, however, to see that the garlic is not left in the pot. A generous quantity of white wine is then poured within and allowed to heat and shortly afterward Gruyere cheese, which is the basis of the dish, is added and allowed to melt. This mixture is seasoned with pepper and, at the proper moment of boiling, half a glass of Kirsch, mixed with a pinch of flour, is added. This gives a perfume to the dish and at the same time prevents the cheese from getting stringy. Herein lies the art of making the "fondue" as in the case of the American rarebit. Finally is added a pinch of bicarbonate of soda to make the mixture light and fluffy.

This fragrant delicacy once prepared, the guests seat themselves around a table and having previously cut their bread into narrow strips, proceed without undue ceremony to dip their bread into the common pot. Having thus obtained a stick of "fondue," they transfer it to their mouths and consume it. A bottle of white wine on the side is a great help in a proper appreciation of the "fondue."

Fourth District Activities Featured on Today's Club Page

The club page this week has been devoted to the work and achievements of the fourth district, officered by Mrs. Henry M. Bird, of Bowden, and recognized as one of the most responsive to federation duties, and a vital part of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs. The page has been compiled after several weeks of untiring effort upon the part of the president, and Mrs. E. L. Cumbee, of West Point, publicity chairman of the district, the latter having assembled copy and written to every club. The federation schedule has been closely followed with a splendid result, and Mrs. Bird keeps in close touch with every club under her direction. The club editor always receives cordial cooperation upon every request made through Mrs. Bird and Mrs. Cumbee, upon subjects relating to the fourth district. The fourth district work is being published this week so as to focus the attention of other clubwomen upon what is doing.

Officers and departmental and divisional chairmen of fourth district: President, Mrs. Henry M. Bird, Bowden, Ga.; first vice president, Mrs. John R. FOURTH DISTRICT AT LARGE TOLD BY MRS. CUMBEE.

Mrs. E. L. Cumbee, of West Point, publicity chairman, contributes the following sketch on "Fourth District at Large:"

That section of the Empire State of the south that browses along the Chattahoochee, nestles among its western foothills, and known clubically and politically as the fourth district is composed of ten counties and has a total of 20 clubs with 1,050 members.

In 1910 beneath a classic old linden tree in the beautiful old Ferrell garden, of LaGrange, through the efforts of Mrs. Trox Bankston, an inspiring clubwoman of the pioneer days, the membership of the clubs of the district met for the purpose of organizing a district federation. Among those who piloted that first memorable convention were the state officers, Mrs. John K. Ottley, Mrs. Woods White, the late Mrs. Nellie Peters Black and Mrs. A. O. Granger and Miss Rosa Woodberry. Grouped with that convention from the fourth and introduced as former state officers were: Mrs. Enoch Callaway, LaGrange, the first recording secretary of the state federation; Mrs. R. T. Humphrey, West Point, as second vice president; Mrs. Ed Lang, West Point, as chairman of Arbor day and through whose efforts the governor was induced to set aside the first Friday in December as Arbor day in Georgia.

The prominent women who have carried on as efficient presidents since its organization are as follows: 1910-1914, Mrs. Trox Bankston, West Point; 1914-1916, Mrs. Mike Powell, Newnan; 1916-1918, Mrs. Neal Kitchens, Warm Springs; 1918-1920, Mrs. Albert Hill, Greenville; 1920-1922, Mrs. Enoch Callaway, LaGrange; 1922-1924, Mrs. Rhodes Brown, Columbus, and 1924-1926 Mrs. Henry M. Bird, Bowdon.

Others from the fourth, who have been and are state officers: Mrs. Albert Hill, Greenville, recording secretary and treasurer; Mrs. W. C. Hudmon, present chairman of American homes, and Mrs. Trox Bankston, West Point, a former chairman of credentials and library extension.

Space forbids the names of the many splendid workers whose efforts have combined to make the fourth a land of delight. Since its beginning the district has gone steadily forward, sponsoring every good and worthy cause and claims as its most outstanding achievements of 1925-26.

The maintenance of the scholarship at Tallulah Falls of which Nelle Mappan, of Warm Springs, is the interesting and appreciative beneficiary. The largest amount that has ever been in the treasury of the fourth. The district gift to Tallulah of $550 paid in full. The LaGrange library, due to the inspiration of its clubwomen. The splendid work done on roads and highways at the instigation of the efficient chairman, Mrs. Alec Gill, of Woodberry. The magnificent clubhouse, now in process of building at Manchester. The tri-county fair launched and sponsored by the three clubs, Chipley, Union and Sunnyside. Carrying of same exhibits to Chattahoochee fair in Columbus, where many prizes were won. The sponsoring of the Chattahoochee Valley fair by the clubwomen of Columbus. The continuous operation of milk stations for undernourished children by the Jewish Ladies' aid, of Columbus. The art exhibit and court of awards by the city federation of Columbus. The weeks' demonstration of a model home, furnished by Columbus city federation. The pledge of $5,000 made several years ago and redeemed this year by Columbus clubs. The fourth district convention was brilliantly entertained by Columbus. The executive board meetings were held in West Point and Chipley and elaborately entertained by the West Point and Chipley club.

"TAB DAY" SET ASIDE FOR BETTER BABIES.

A committee from the Columbus Federation of Woman's Clubs has in charge annually one day in the month of May set aside as "tag day for better babies." On this day the public is asked to sacrifice something from a drink of soda water to a new dress, from a dime to a dollar for the welfare of babies in Columbus. The Federation of Woman's Clubs realizes that a well organized health work could use the money secured from tag day to better advantage for the welfare of children and turns over to the Public Health Nurse association annually the entire proceeds from tag day.

This fund, which amounted to $649.32 this year, helps to make it possible for the Public Health Nurse association to carry on a splendid piece of health work for better babies, which is educational and disease preventive and curative, which reduces illness and the death rate of both mother and baby. The prenatal mother is instructed for five months before the birth of her baby, through which period, if she is not able to have her own family physician, she has a skilled physician's advice at a free prenatal clinic and is treated if there is need for same and entrance to the hospital secured if desired.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED OF MRS. HENRY BIRD.

At the fifteenth annual convention of the Fourth District Federation of Women's Clubs, which convened May, 1924, in Bowdon, her own home town, Mrs. Henry Bird was elected president and her administration of the affairs of the fourth has been most efficient and preeminently successful.

By her untiring effort and conservatism she has kept the district in the vanguard of the federation throughout her tenure of office and holds the love and esteem of her entire organization.

Shrinking and unobtrusive in manner, Mrs. Bird is a woman of the most exalted type, having true American ideals, common sense, trained judgment and the highest Christian principles, all permeating her life of wholehearted devotion and activity. Truly she has laid at the feet of the fourth her "beneficent gifts of love and service which her coworkers deem more precious than gold or frankincense or myrrh."

Not only has Mrs. Bird given her strength and enthusiasm to this field but she is one of the outstanding women of her town and community—a real leader and at the forefront of every department of her church and patriotic organizations. Her home breathes the spirit of true southern hospitality, where she reigns like a queen indeed.

In every sphere of her beautiful life she is rendering worthy service, and from the deepest yearnings of her heart we can hear her feelingly say, "This is the wish I always wish, the prayer I ever pray, 'Let my life help the other lives it touches every day.'"

MISS FLORRIE JOHNSON,
Of West Point.

MISS BESSIE JENKINS TALKS OF CHIPLEY CLUB.

Miss Bessie Jenkins, of Chipley, says: "We just want the Chipley Woman's club to be identified with the work your fourth district is doing. During the past club year our club has handled $1,292.19. We sponsored a Tri-County fair at Chipley. Later our exhibits were taken to the Chattahoochee fair in Columbus, where we carried off the blue ribbon. We are again planning to have the fair this fall and our club members are very busy with conservation. Wire has been bought, and is on hand, to fence the town's cemetery.

"We have continued our former work of supplying all material and food supplies for the home economic class in our high school. For the encouragement of the children in our local school, 25 Stone Mountain memorial coins were given by our club to the children winning honors in the county school meet. Our big project right now and one of which we are justly proud is establishing and maintaining a tourist rest room in our town."

Columbus Reading Club's Educational Program.

Like all the clubs of the Columbus city federation, the Woman's Reading club has had to be very active the last two or three years, and has borne a part in all the activities of the federation. As to private work, the club had, of course, literary programs; that of 1924-25 being "Contemporary Affairs in Europe and America;" that of 1925-26 "Books and Other Books—a Review." In 1925 the Wilford S. Conrow exhibition of oil portraits and his lectures on the great chalice of Antioch, were sponsored.

The special philanthropic work of the club was enabling an ambitious graduate of the high school to go through the Georgia State College for Women and graduate in the professional teachers' course and making our quota for Greater Tallulah, 1925-26, while the club increased our maintenance for Tallulah, everything has been submerged in the effort to pay off the pledge for the war memorial.

Hogansville Club Organized in 1904.

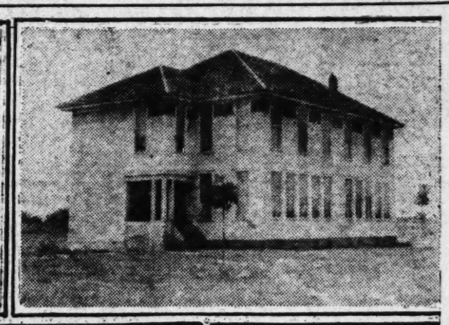

The Hogansville Woman's club was organized in 1904 and was federated in 1910. It is a source of pride to the club that it was among the first organized in the state and one of the first federated in the district. It has functioned continuously from the time of organization to the present. Mrs. J. W. Hogan is president.

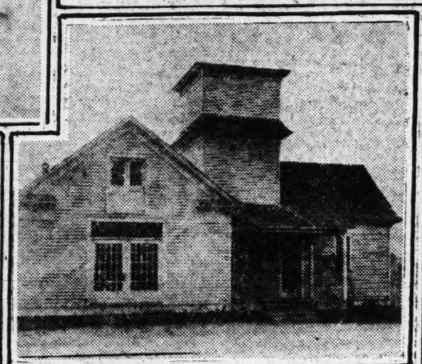

During these years the club has stimulated cultural development among the members and in the community. It has maintained high ideals and has championed every movement for religious and civic advancement.

Among the achievements of the club in recent years may be mentioned the following: One thousand dollars contributed toward new school building; window shades and electric fixtures for school; between 200 and 300 books for school library, including a set of encyclopedias of literature and other reference books; a donation of $92 to the school basketball team; a park used as play grounds for children of the town; a generous contribution is on deposit at present subject to the call of county board of health to be used toward anti-tuberculosis campaign, and contributions have been made to the Tallulah maintenance fund, Greater Tallulah, and the endowment fund.

Good Will Center Report Is Important District History

On April 18, 1895, a meeting was called at the Rankin house in Columbus by Mr. and Mrs. George B. Duy. Seventy persons were present and the Free Kindergarten association was organized and officers elected. Judge Duy was its first president and in the past thirty years its successive officers were the most devoted and beloved women in the community. Mrs. Helen Dexter, Mrs. Bettie Jordan, Mrs. E. P. Dismukes, Sr., Mrs. Fannie Dixon, Miss Mary Johnson, Mrs. E. L. Wells, Mrs. Sol Sarling, Mrs. John T. Fletcher and a group of friends animated and sustained this noble service to little children with unselfish and untiring enthusiasm. The kindergarten takes the little fretful, spoiled or neglected child of 3 years old and teaches him or her happy community life, organized play and self-control. It lays the wise foundation for future school life, for these tiny tots learn to live in harmonious companionship with other children, sharing all the activities and diversions of the charmed circle.

First Kindergarten.

The first Columbus kindergartens were for the children in the outskirts of town. They were gathered from the homes of the poor and their care by the sweet young girls being trained in normal class, inaugurated at the very beginning of the enterprise, was a beautiful revelation of what scientifically directed effort could accomplish. Many of these highly equipped, young women have made names for themselves as successful teachers in widely separated fields. Many of them are married and have their homes in distant towns, but I venture to say that not one of them has failed to foster the kindergarten idea wherever they may live.

Putting the kindergarten into the public schools was the crowning success of the association. Columbus is still far ahead of many cities of larger growth in this respect. Two free kindergartens were continued, however, to reach the children too far from the school center to go to and fro, until 1924, when the association was led to undertake an enterprise seemingly better fitted to the neighborhood needs of the people they wished to serve. The Kindergarten association has been doing welfare work on a very small scale, but when it become necessary to give up the kindergarten work as it was placed in the public school, then started the present work which we now call the Good Will Center. The Good Will Center is a social service enterprise which rebuilds and sells discarded articles in an effort to eliminate the necessity of charity by giving employment to worthy persons and furnishing many of the necessities of the home to the poor at a very low cost. It is the conversion of wasted life, hopes and future through the use of wasted material—it is helping others to help themselves in a self-respectful way without danger of pauperizing them. It is the plan of social service that recognizes the necessity for the Christian touch if anything worth while and permanent good is to be done; the practical interpretation of the gospel to the discouraged, handicapped and unfortunate. It is an effort to convince those who are tired of the old life that Jesus and the people believe in them and are ready to trust them again. It is a complete social program providing for the physical, intellectual, industrial and spiritual welfare of the people. It is turning junk into jobs.

Chance is all that most of these people want unless they have become pauperized by charity. Many of them have high ideals and do not care to suffer the evils of charity. We are trying to furnish a self-respecting chance for such people that they may not be forced to fall into the industrial scrap heap. It is far better to prevent disaster than try to gather the pieces together after the crisis. The Free Kindergarten association has made it possible for such a work to be in our midst. The activities of our work is educational, social, religious and industrial. We have one supervisor, Miss Lizzie Hall. She supervises all phases of the work. She has a Blue Bird club composed of girls, averaging attendance 20; she teaches them to embroider and other handicraft. The boys under 12 begged so hard to have something to do that she has organized a boys' club; they also do embroidery, averaging attendance 9. We also have the Camp Fire girls, attendance 12; they are very enthusiastic over this phase of the work. The Boy Scouts have organized and are quite interested in their work; they have nine members and are anticipating a trip to the camp.

Recreation is given every night in form of play, the yard being lighted, and the grown-ups as well as the children take advantage of this opportunity to come down for an hour of play after being employed all day. The Sunday school meets every Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and is well attended. There are two religious services held weekly, one Thursday night and one Sunday night by some layman; the meetings are well attended.

The industrial feature of the Good Will is self-supporting. Commodious bags are left at any friends' house to be filled with any and every kind of garment and household object in need possibly of slight repair and these are given out to be put in order and then sold. It is marvelous what transformation of the non-used articles have been made in this turnover and how many people happily occupied and rehabilitated as well as the things upon which they wrought the improvement.

The supervisor has made 765 visits in the home; through this medium she reaches the people and gains their confidence. We have had 18 public social meetings and the days of opportunity labor given to men are six. Amount spent for educational purposes (night school), $98.35. Work in the industrial department, 326 days. There are three members of the board appointed to visit the work each month. The most needed thing in the work is a shower bath. We were hoping to install it this summer, but having been crippled for lack of funds has made it impossible, however, we still have a vision of the shower bath.

The Good Will Center tries in every way to help in the activities of the Federation of Woman's Clubs and sold Chautauqua tickets to the amount of $51; sold on better babies tag day, $50; field day, $7.50. The earnest cooperation of the Federation of Woman's Clubs is solicited.

Respectfully submitted,
MRS. JOHN T. FLETCHER,
President.

Fourth District President Praises Clubwomen's Work

To the women of the fourth district:

My message to you today as your district president is "The Master Has Blessed the Labors of Your Hands."

Everywhere that you have planted the glorious banner of the federation there is some beautiful indication of your presence.

Education, music, art, home-making, child and social welfare, and a general civic pride and beauty has responded marvelously to your magic influence. Today, through the courtesy of our capable and beloved federation editor and the faithful efforts of our press chairman, you have a partial resume of your excellent work. Do you wonder your president feels drawn toward you as never before?

But these accomplishments must be enhanced by yet greater achievements in the future. We must press on. Woman's work as never before is needed.

In a true womanly sense you are needed and in the same fine spirit I know you will respond.

I cannot express to you my deep gratitude for your whole-hearted support during my administration, but "in my heart all day long there's a song," and I hope your heart sings it too. Can you guess? The song keeps saying I love you.

Tallulah's Birthday.

Let us concentrate on two points during the summer months. First, in July your federation daughter, Tallulah Falls school, will be 17 years old. You have so generously looked after her welfare in every way. She has grown by leaps and bounds. Now, like every other young lady, she needs more clothes. It requires a great deal to maintain her in her exalted position—"The Light in the Mountain." Give her a birthday party this month. Ask your friends to give her a present. Assure them she is most worthy. There is a peculiar reason why the fourth should be very painstaking with the federation child. While we can never forget that this beautiful possession of the federation was conceived in the great heart and mind of a beloved woman of the eighth, yet we can say "she came out of the fourth." I remind you that it was at West Point, that fourth district city known far and wide for its good and noble deeds and people, that the state federation in convention there actually decided this matchless undertaking. By recalling this I am hoping it will inspire a closer tie if possible, to the heart of the federation and that our gift this year will exceed any yet undertaken for federation school.

October Meeting.

Then as an important second point of consideration is your district meeting to be held in October with the Gay Woman's club as hostess. That we may in every way possible express our gratitude for their hospitality let us leave nothing undone to give Gay the honor of entertaining the best district meeting ever held in the district.

I wish for each of you a happy, restful summer and if I can render you any assistance do not fail to command me.

Faithfully yours,
MINNIE M. BIRD,
President of the fourth district, G. F. W. C.

West Point Club Sponsors Activities.

The West Point Woman's club has its clubrooms in the West Point auditorium, and the clubwomen sponsor the planting of flowers and shrubery to beautify the grounds. The pictures could not be procured for the page, nor could that of the Hawkes children's library in which this organization sponsors a rest room.

BOWDON COMMNITY BUILDS LOG HOUSE.

Since its organization, five years ago, the Bowdon Community club has been an outstanding force in promoting and carrying forward every worth-while undertaking. Practicing the highest ideals and living up in every respect to the true spirit of our great federation.

Mrs. Henry M. Bird, president of the Fourth District Federation of Women's clubs, has been president since its organization. The picturesque clubhouse is a monument to the steadfastness of the organization.

It has been completed by the ladies to serve as a rest room and library for the entire community and with the installing of the proper city sewerage the house will be opened with every comfort and convenience to the ladies shopping and visiting in Bowdon.

MRS. BLANCHARD SERVES AS TALLULAH TRUSTEE.

Mrs. Willim Randolph Blanchard, of Columbus, has been trustee of the Tallulah Falls schools since 1923 and president of the city federation of Columbus for two terms. She has been president of the Woman's Reading club for two terms, and is especially interested in public education as chairman of the Reading club education committee for many years she directed a number of scholarships in the Columbus Industrial high school and the education of one girl who was sent to the Norman school in Milledgeville until graduated. Mrs. Blanchard is an active member of the Public Health Nurse association, member of the Woman's Suffrage league, assistant commandant of the Red Cross canteen service during the world war, active in work of Trinity Episcopal Church Altar guild, and member of the Colonial Dames.

Mrs. Blanchard moved to Columbus in 1880, on the occasion of her marriage. She was Henrietta Seabrook, of Edisto Island, S. C., She is a granddaughter of William Crosby Dawson, United States senator from Georgia, and Henrietta Wingfield, of Greensboro, Ga. She is a real inspiration in her unselfish work and holds the women in interest and enthusiasm in her home city—Columbus. She is a real worker.

Mrs. Heinsohn Makes Request of Clubwomen

Will those district presidents, state officers and state chairmen who have not done so, send a typewritten copy of their reports for the year book to Mrs. R. A. Heinsohn, LaFayette terrace, Macon, at once? The work of getting the material ready for the printer is being seriously hampered by this delay. Your promptness will be greatly appreciated.

Columbus Student Club Formed By Cultural Group in 1895

By Mrs. James Callaway, President.

The Columbus Students' club has for its officers: President, Mrs. Robert E. Carter; vice presidents, Mrs. C. L. Mullin, Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, Mrs. George Burrus; secretary, Mrs. Thomas W. Bates; treasurer Miss Lula Moore; critics, Mrs. Lucius H. Chappell and Miss A. B. Redd.

To begin at the beginning, as a proper history should, the Students' club was organized in June, 1895. The initial meeting was held at the home of Miss Miriam Tillman (Mrs. Charles Drennan, now of Hot Springs, Ark.) who is remembered with affectionate appreciation as the founder of the club and remains its sole honorary member.

First President.

The responsibility of being its first president fell upon Miss Catherine Jones, whose qualities of dignity, marked ability and enthusiasm with conservatism, made her an ideal executive. The name, Students' club, was the happy suggestion of one of the charter members, Mrs. Emma Moffett Tyng, of New York and Columbus.

In May, 1897, the Students' club joined the newly-organized Georgia Federated of Women's Clubs and the second meeting of that body was held in Columbus by invitation of "the students."

I wonder if we shall ever again have so vivifying an experience as that convention gave. One hundred brilliant, earnest, purposeful women, handed by a noble aim, made a profound impression on the entire community and kindled a spirit that burned away all aims that end in self. Inspired by Mrs. McCabe, the mother of our Mrs. John K. Ottley, the Students' club took up literary work and, aided by George Foster Peabody, of New York, they placed 20 libraries of new, well-chosen books in the schools of Muscogee county.

Mrs. Groover's Leadership.

In 1903, under the leadership of Mrs. Clarence Groover, the Students' club and the merchants of Columbus established a rest room, which still serves an appreciative public. Mrs. Groover also planned and established a scholarship whereby the club maintains a student at one or the other of our state normal schools. This scholarship has existed for many years, and with the pledge to Tallulah Falls school and the building of a monument to those who served in the world war is the chief aim and responsibility of the club. It is fairly certain that our club histories are parallel and nearly identical. We all burn with the same hopes and aspirations, endure the same handicaps, have the same towering plans and the same material limitations. Most of us have small memberships and incomes derived from modest annual dues. Yet, somehow, by some miracle of finance, some art of making bricks without straw, the work of the individual club and of the city and state federations goes on; and a response is made to all worthy demands for service and money. Clubwomen have to be strong in the faith "that by desiring what is good, even when we do not know what it is and cannot do what we would, we become part of the Divine power against evil, widening the skirts of light and making the struggle with darkness narrower."

The Students' club has never changed the plan of study that was adopted as its reason for being. The books that outline the studies of 31 years form a treasured little library. Through the artistry and interest of a club husband, these programs are, with one exception, really handsome books.

Tiny Brochure.

But it is the exception that arouses the most poignant memories and deepest feelings. It is a tiny brochure, the edition of which was strictly limited to 36 copies. The cover, of plainest paper, is beautifully hand-lettered by an architect friend of the club, and the inside pages, typewritten by the young son of a club mother as he was leaving for training camp, are tied together with homely embroidery cotton. It cost the club not one single penny and bears the date 1918.

As all clubwomen did then, the Students' club gave itself that year as an organization and as individuals to the need of the world. They sold and bought bonds. They presided over conservation kitchens. They made Liberty loan speeches and were members and chairmen of every department of war work. Fortnightly an hour or two was spared for the regular club meetings, when current topics were discussed, and sometimes letters from the front were read.

During "the years that make and mar and mead" many fine members have passed through the ranks of the club. It is heart-warming to the old students to know that many of those who have gone away have in their new homes organized new clubs on the old lines, and frequently they have used the old club name. Two former students, Mrs. Charles Drennan, of Arkansas, and Mrs. J. T. Alderman, now of North Carolina, have been called to preside over the federated clubs of their adopted states. Mrs. Drennan also was president of the State League for Equal Suffrage, serving its cause most valiantly. Mrs. E. J. Lyman, a delightful contributor to magazines and newspapers, has proved a most valued member, giving us inspirational talks and original sketches.

Social Service Workers.

The club also claims for its own two well-known social service workers, Mrs. Maude Reynolds McClure and Miss Edwina Wood.

Club rosters inevitably change with the years, but club spirit is a heritage from the old to the young, of loyalty, of enthusiasm for work accomplished and an inspiration ever to carry on toward that high aim, "Education for Georgia, and Service to Home, State and Nation."

West Point Club Heralds Library As Great Factor

The West Point Woman's club was organized in 1898, federated in 1899 and chartered in 1912. Since its organization the club has been an active and influential factor in the civic and educational as well as all other development, of our little city. A small contribution from the club was the inspiration for the building of the city auditorium, and it is here the club and all other woman's organizations have their home.

One of the great accomplishments of recent years is the Hawkes children's library, for it was through the efforts of the club that this was made possible. Another potent factor in the educational life of our youth is the free moving pictures sponsored by the club. It has at all times taken a special interest in the fourfold development of our young people and through the efforts of our junior civic committee the playground at the public school has been equipped for play. Through the generosity of this committee the pupils in the high school have been greatly encouraged in their original work and some attractive plays have been written and staged by boys and girls.

The oustanding work through the years has been the beautifying of the "city of the dead," not only the supervision of the work, but the financing as well has been carried on by the cemetery chairman. The "made in West Point" exhibit was proof that many good things are found in Georgia, yea, even in West Point, which is in truth, the "best point" in the south, and the club has always made generous contributions toward the support of Tallulah Falls school. Red Cross seals are sold each year in December and the past year the chairman of this committee reported $98 received for this deserving fund. Armistice day programs are arranged each year and on this day the committee conducts the "poppy sale," all money accruing therefrom being sent to Base Hospital No. 48.

A beautiful custom inaugurated in recent years is the community Christmas tree, where the children meet and sing carols and where exercises befitting the season are held each Christmas day.

Under the capable leadership of Mrs. Hugh McCulloh, Sr., club president for last year, a Christmas tree was given to Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls. The junior membership committee organized a club for the young girls the past year which is a very promising and delightful work. This club has 30 members and is known as the Junior Progressive club. Other clubs sponsored by our club are the McDowall Study club in the high school and the Blue Bird club in the grammar school. The Camp Fire Girls is another organization sponsored by this body of women.

Credit is given to the city fathers, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary club, the school board, and trustees, and splendid faculty of the high school and every fraternal organization of the town for it is through their cooperation of broad-minded, progressive men that club membership has been enabled to "carry on."

Not only have women contributed to the advancement of the town and community but West Point has furnished county and district officers and state chairmen since its organization. Mrs. Mark McCulloh was county federation president; Mrs. J. A. Avery, recording secretary of the district, and was succeeded by Miss Florrie Johnson, who is now serving in this capacity; Mrs. Ed Cumbee, district press chairman; Mrs. W. C. Hudmon, district junior membership chairman; Mrs. John Poer, district first vice president, also now serving the district as chairman of conservation and forestry; Mrs. Ed Lang, state chairman of Arbor day (it was through her efforts that the governor of the state issued his proclamation setting aside Arbor day); Mrs. W. Trox Bankston, state library chairman and state credential chairman; Mrs. Robert Humphrey, state chairman farm and garden; Mrs. D. L. Adams, state auditor, and Mrs. W. C. Hudmon, present state chairman American homes.

Perhaps the most delightful occasion of the past year was the entertaining of the district executive board meeting in March, when over 200 visitors and members were given a luncheon at the Charles hotel. Among the distinguished guests present were: Mrs. Bolling Jones, director for life of Georgia Federation; Mrs. J. K. Ottley, president board of trustees of Tallulah Falls school; Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, treasurer of the Tallulah Falls school and now the president of the Atlanta Woman's club; Mrs. Henry M. Byrd, president of the fourth district, of Bowden, all active leaders in club work.

With the past as inspiration for service the club goes forward to greater things. For—

"It isn't the cut of the clothes we wear,
Nor the stuff out of which they are made,
Though chosen with taste and fastidious care,
And it isn't the price that we paid.
It isn't the size of your pile in the bank,
Nor the number of acres we own,
It isn't a question of prestige or rank,
Nor of sinew and muscle and bone.
It isn't the servants that come at your call,
It isn't the things we possess,
Whether much or little—or nothing at all,
But it's service that measures success."

Mrs. James M. Wallace is president of this creditable organization.

Miss Tappan Is Protege Of Fourth District.

A letter from Nellie Mae Tappan, protege of the fourth, is postmarked Warm Springs, addressed to Mrs. Henry M. Bird, and reads:

"My Dear Mrs. Bird:

"I am spending my vacation at home and having a nice time, but will be so delighted to resume work at the opening of our school September 6. I certainly appreciate the privilege that has been given me by the good women of the fourth district and I thank them most sincerely and hope some day that each and every club will know that their efforts in my behalf have not been wasted.

"I am deeply impressed with the good Tallulah Falls school is doing for the boys and girls of the student body. The pupils love and respect the superintendent, Miss Davis, and the teachers associated with her; we know they have been active in promoting our progress in every way.

"I wish personally to thank you for the interest you have manifested in me and for this opportunity to say what I have. I am your grateful little girl of the fourth district."

THE FEDERATED CHURCH WOMEN OF GEORGIA

OFFICERS—Mrs. T. L. Lewis, honorary president, 162 Ponce de Leon Ave., Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Rosa Woodberry, president, 149 Peachtree Circle, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. S. F. Southern Students Lead in Morals.

It is an inspiring thing to stand before a group of young people and get their reaction to the problems which have carried many of their elders into a vortex of clamorous discussion.

In response to an invitation to address the Young People's Service league in Eggleston hall last Sunday evening, a prayer of thanksgiving went up from my own heart that those young lives which were soon to blossom into manifold forms of civic and religious usefulness had been grounded in the fundamentals of the faith.

It was also a matter for thanksgiving that they constitute a part of our great and glorious south, which, according to the Literary Digest of July 10, has been "anathematized" by "one of the chief prophets of modernism" as the "Bible belt of the nation."

The article in question has to do with the "college student and prohibition," and there must have been in the mind of the author an interest relationship between the prohibition question and an unequivocal acceptance of the Bible as the Word of God. Why, indeed, should there be a difference of opinion in the matter? An easily shaken faith must of necessity find correspondence in an easily shaken purpose, for wherever this Word of God is denied or set at nought, the "law," whether of God or man, is not long upheld.

As the result of a questionnaire instituted by the Literary Digest which met with response from all portions of the country, the young people of the south are found to be overwhelmingly on the side of temperance, and since they are inhabitants of the "Bible belt of the nation" it may be concluded that their temperate habits are the result of a deep and abiding conviction that the consequences of sin and broken laws can only mean disaster; for where so specifically as in the Bible is the truth set forth that "the wages of sin is death."

It is a sad reflection as one follows these parallel lines of argument, to find that in many intellectual strongholds, long regarded as the country's outstanding universities and colleges, the failure of prohibition seems linked up with a growing agnosticism, where it does not descend to the place of absolute infidelity.

To the splendid young people who had gathered in that evening hour for prayer and praise, my earnest entreaty was that they hold it a glorious privilege to belong to that "south" where the "eternal verities" are kept intact, and "The Faith of Our Fathers" continues strong and steadfast unto the younger generation.

EPISCOPAL EDITOR.

Dr. and Mrs. Ayers Are Honor Guests.

Since the arrival in Atlanta several weeks ago of Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Ayers, missionaries of the Southern Baptist convention from China, a number of happy social events have been given in their honor. But none have been more delightful than the one on the evening of Thursday, July 8, given at the residence of their daughter, Mrs. Lucy Ayers Pitman. The occasion brought together many loyal friends of the highly esteemed Ayers family.

The home of Mrs. Pitman, 57 St. Charles place, was tastefully decorated and brilliantly lighted—a home already noted for its aesthetic possession of Chinese curios and handsome oriental appointments. Mrs. Pitman, since her arrival a year ago from Peking, China, has been the popular leader of the T. E. L. class of the Druid Hills Baptist Sunday school, numbering about 250, probably the largest class of its kind in the city or state. Mrs. Pitman is ably assisted in her class by a corps of officers, Mrs. Ruby De Laperriere being the president.

Those present at the reception were the officers of the T. E. L. class, the pastor and wife, Dr. and Mrs. F. C. McConnell, superintendent, Dr. Joseph Broughton, officers of the Sunday school and W. M. S. of the church, and a number of outstanding pastors and their wives of Atlanta churches. Enjoyable refreshments were served by several young girls of the Y. W. A.'s and G. A.'s of Druid Hills.

The evening was one of cordial welcome home to Dr. and Mrs. Ayers; general good cheer and Christian fellowship.

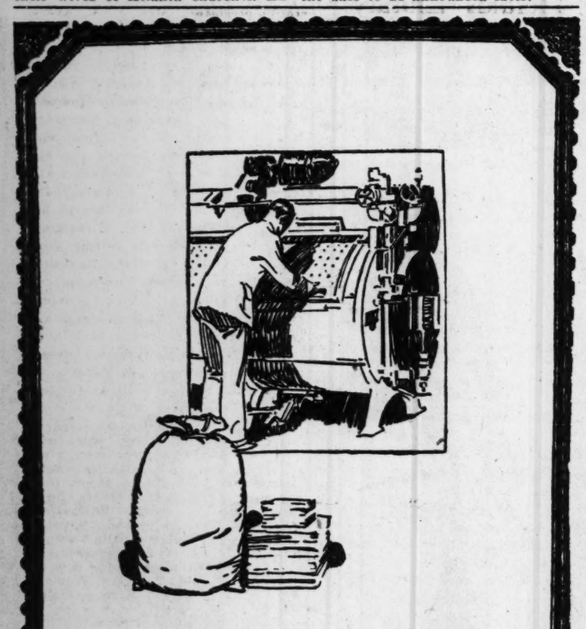

Dr. Ayers is known throughout the bounds of the Southern Baptist convention as having done distinguished service as a medical missionary for 25 years in the Warren Memorial hospital at Hwanghsien, China. All Georgia Baptists welcome him home again and rejoice that he has accepted a position in connection with the state mission work, assisting Dr. Arch C. Cree, executive secretary.

Catholic Club Holds Supper Meeting.

Thirty-five members of the Catholic Club of Business and Professional Women were present at the meeting held Tuesday evening on the roof of the Athletic club. After supper the business meeting was held in the woman's dining room.

The feature of the meeting was the reports of Mrs. C. O. LaHatte and Miss Kate Murphy, president, of their attendance at the eucharistic congress in Chicago. Their talks were of great value to the members.

Mrs. William Tellam extended an invitation to hold the next meeting at her summer home in Raymond, Ga., the date to be announced later.

Christian Church Fittingly Observes Independence Day

It is indeed but rarely that July 4—Independence Day—comes simultaneously with Sunday. And it can be so fittingly and beautiful celebrated, too. Most of the nations have only one national hymn, while we have four unsurpassed ones, the most modern being "America, the Beautiful." These exquisite words were written by a member of our own community. At the Peachtree Christian church, a unique and unusual program was given, beginning at the church school assembly hour, extending through the morning services proper. Mrs. John A. Perdue, who sponsored the program, presided, introducing the speakers as only she can, and reminiscing of the days when the Christian church first had its birth in Atlanta. The rostrum was fittingly decorated with the "Christian" flag holding sway in the center, with a red cross on a blue ground in one corner of a pure white field, on either side "Old Glory" hung in matchless majesty. And as has been said of it "it is a piece of bunting respected the wide world round. It has been through the smoke of battle, both at home and abroad, but may its future mission be to foster peace—peace on earth and good-will to men."

Mrs. Roger Wilson recited most feelingly, the beautiful and ever familiar "Your Flag and My Flag." At its conclusion she gave a brief and instructive biographical sketch of Francis Scott Key and his immortal achievement—"The Star Spangled Banner." At its conclusion the quartet choir of the church sang this song in an inspirational way. Mrs. Jesse S. Hall, then told of the ride of the dauntless Paul Rever, the decidedly popular story with "Young America." Three lovely young girls garbed in white then brought in the three compotent parts of the liberty bell, fashioned of red, white and blue flowers, and as they built it up to the stars and bars at its apex, told by why each color was chosen and for what it stood.

Mrs. Charles Loridans told interestingly of the life of Thomas Jefferson and recited that which forever made him beloved and famous of his countrymen—the Declaration of Independence.

At the morning service of the church, Dr. L. O. Bricker, the minister, rose to wonderful heights in his sermon on "Discovering America," at which time the Argonne post of the American Legion, of which he is chaplain, were specifl honor guests. Dr. Bricker possesses in a remarkable degree the rare art of word painting in such a way that one can visualize distinctly the story which he is endeavoring to portray.

Many resolutions were privately made that from henceforth we may become better citizens and Christians so that we may reflect credit on the dear land which we call our own.

Miss Garrard's Pupils Give Music Recital.

A program was rendered by piano pupils of Miss Sarah Garrard Thursday at the Capitol Avenue church. Those playing the piano were Ermond Steele, Ruth Danneman, Lucile Mitchell, Francis Pazol, Pearl Gurrin, Adel Russ, Francis Hammond, Gertrude Liberson, Emma Dale Bearden, Florence Farkas, Dorothy Craig, Mildred Thibedeau, Jeanette Rosenthal, Marion Richmon, Francis Rudisill, Elizabeth Ann Davis, Willie Mae LeCroy, Margie Nell Leptwich, Esther Rosenthal, J. A. Parker, Sarah Rice, Mollie Rice, Evelyn Rosenberg, Lucile Jones, Bertha Goldberg. Readings were rendered by Elizabeth Ann Davis, Annie Merle Jones, Lucile Jones.

Violin solos were rendered by Joseph Danneman and Hermina Baum, pupil of Mrs. William P. Greene, accompanied by Florence Farkas.

The students showed splendid technique and special mention is made of the pupils being the most regular in attendance and the best all-around students were Florence Farkas and Margie Nell Leptwich. Those making the most improvement during the year were Emma Dale Bearden and Adel Russ.

Tabernacle W. M. S. Hospital Shower.

On Tuesday, July 6, the ladies of the Tabernacle W. M. S. gave a shower for the Georgia Baptist hospital crippled ward. About 50 pieces, consisting of towels, pillow cases, sheets and wash cloths, valued at about $20, was contributed. A short program was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

Church Worker Resigns

MRS. C. A. MAUCK.

Because of failing health, Mrs. C. A. Mauck has felt it imperative that she relinquish some of the many church and civic activities with which she has been officially associated for some years. Her resignation as corresponding secretary of the Federated Churchwomen of Georgia and as recording secretary of the North Atlanta District Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will be received with deep regret by the members of these two organizations and will bring real sorrow to many of her coworkers who have learned to love and admire her through long association in church affairs. Her successor in the federation will be chosen at the board meeting on Thursday afternoon of this week.

It is given to but few women to be privileged to serve others so long and faithfully as Mrs. Mauck has done, and in so many different offices and organizations. In spite of a large and growing family, she has never failed to find time to serve in some special way in every church with which she has been associated.

In the state organization of her own denomination, she served at one time as editor of the Woman's Missionary page in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate and was for many years superintendent of supplies for the W. M. S. of the North Georgia conference. Her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Rogers, succeeded her in this office and now is serving the Advocate in the capacity that her mother did some years ago. Mrs. Mauck was, for many years, the president of Grace Church Misisonary society, and later served as president of the Druid Hills auxiliary. She served as secretary of the Oxford district, and in many other ways has demonstrated her intense love for her church and her loyalty to the cause of Christ.

During the world war, when Camp Gordon was crowded with young soldiers from all over the states, Mrs. Mauck assumed the responsibility of sponsoring one of the "Y" huts which had been adopted by the Methodist women of Atlanta. In this work she so endeared herself to the young men that they affectionately called her "Mother Mauck." Since so many of these same young men have been disabled from their war experiences, Mrs. Mauck has visited them regularly in the hospitals and has had the joy of knowing that she has been instrumental in leading some of them to know and serve Jesus Christ. As recording secretary of the War Mothers, she continued her service to the disabled veterans through this organization.

To those of us who have been closely associated with Mrs. Mauck in some lines of church activities, her resignation from these organizations is a distinct personal loss, and the work will never seem quite the same without her cheery smile and loving interest and sympathy. We sincerely trust that her withdrawal is merely temporary and that, with returning health, she may again assume her accustomed place where she has worked so untiringly.

Daily Vacation Bible School Holds Exercises.

The closing exercises of the daily vacation Bible school of the Park Street Methodist church were held last Friday evening in the auditorium of the church.

A very interesting program opening with a processional, followed by the doxology and including songs, pslams, Bible drill, memory work, salutes and pledges to the flags, offering and prayer was presented by the pupils. Delivery of certificates, introduction of the teachers, and talks by Brother Meeks and Mr. Rhodes were also interesting features. Songs by the D. V. B. S. quartet and selections by the orchestra were unusually well rendered.

The hand work was on exhibition and included note-books, basket work, tea towels, trays, glass painting, aprons and other attractive and useful articles.

The school was under the direction of Mrs. F. A. Johnson, with the following corps of assistants: Miss Bettie Hadley, Miss Martha Chapman, Miss Anne McCarley, Miss Ethlyn McCrayer, Miss Pauline Perry, Miss Dorothy Mulley, Miss Margaret Brandon, Miss Anne Russell Banks, Mrs. Banks, Miss Birdie Russell, Mrs. Jones, Miss Helen Hergburg, Miss Elizabeth Gartner, Miss Evelyn Bohler, Miss Martha Griffith, Miss Louise Powell, Miss Ruth Hill, Miss Nell Bullard, Miss Grace Zachry, Miss Nannie Jack and Robert Hill.

Executive Board Noonday B.W.M.U. Holds Meeting

The executive board of the Noonday B. W. M. U. held the last quarterly meeting for the associational year on Tuesday, July 6, at the First Baptist church in Marietta, with Mrs. E. M. Bailey, the superintendent, presiding.

The meeting opened by singing the hymn for the new year, "Jesus Shall Reign." The devotional was led by Mrs. Grady Eubanks, using part of the sixth chapter of Matthew and calling for each one present to give her favorite verse of those read. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you," was the verse most quoted.

Reports were then given by all officers and chairmen present, and a note of progress was sounded in each report.

Those present were: Mrs. E. M. Bailey, superintendent; Miss Mary Towers, recording secretary; Mrs. E. L. Collins and Mrs. J. D. Easterlin, district secretaries; Mrs. Roland Russom, treasurer; Mrs. S. H. Hall, publication chairman; Mrs. Cleveland Greene, young people's leader; Mrs. S. C. McEachern, associational mother; Mrs. Grady Eubanks, stewardship chairman; Mrs. Julius Smith, press chairman.

Mrs. M. I. Teem was a welcome visitor and added greatly to the meeting by her talks and prayers.

The annual meeting of the association will be held with the Locust Grove church, July 21.

MRS. JULIUS H. SMITH.
Press chairman, Noonday Associational W. M. U.

Briefly Told

Mrs. J. P. Nichols, of Griffin, who for years has acceptably held the office of Georgia trustee for the Baptist W. M. U. Training school, Louisville, Ky., was a welcome visitor last week to friends in Atlanta.

Mrs. Emmet Stephens, of Gainesville, Ga., and China, recently paid a visit to friends and relatives in Atlanta and will return to her missionary work in China some time in August. While in the city she was guest of her college friend, Mrs. Charles W. West, and also of her cousin, Mrs. Clifford Walker.

Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth, Ga., superintendent B. W. M. U., will preside at the annual meeting of the Noonday association which is to be held Wednesday, July 21, at Locust Grove Baptist church on the Marietta road.

Mrs. W. M. Jones, superintendent of the B. W. M. U., Atlanta, will preside at the all-day meeting of the executive board to be held Tuesday, July 27. Mrs. J. W. Awtry is in charge of arrangements for the luncheon.

The many friends of Mrs. H. W. Munger (formerly Miss Laura Lee Patrick) were greatly interested in a cordial letter from her last week in the Christian Index. Mr. and Mrs. Munger are located as missionaries in Philippines.

Mrs. T. L. Lewis, honorary president of Federated Church Women of Georgia, is still in Los Angeles, Cal., and it is a source of regret that she will not be present at the quarterly meeting on Thursday, July 22.

The mission study classes of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist W. M. S., will meet for all-day study on Tuesday, July 20, with Mrs. J. W. Wills at Gilmore on the Marietta road.

Friends of Mrs. Harry Clarke, the beloved Baptist editor of Federated Church Women, will regret to know that she is ill at her home at 894 Gordon street.

Mrs. Lucy Ayers Pitman is spending two weeks at the Southwide Baptist assembly, Ridgecrest, N. C.

The Georgia Baptist assembly at Blue Ridge, Ga., will be in session from July 30 to August 8. Many members of W. M. S., Y. W. A. and G. A. will wish to be present. Write at once to Professor C. B. Greene, of Blue Ridge, for reservations.

Mrs. M. E. Tilly, superintendent of children's work in the North Georgia conference, Woman's Missionary society of the M. E. church, south, has returned from Blue Ridge, N. C., where she was a member of the faculty in the summer school of missions with 11 denominations represented in the conference. Mrs. Tilly was made a member of the board of directors and will serve on the territorial committee.

Mrs. W. B. Richardson, secretary of the Elberton district, Woman's Missionary society of North Georgia Methodism, has returned to her home in Lavonia after visiting her sister in Decatur. Mrs. Richardson was called to Decatur by the serious injury of her daughter in an automobile accident recently.

Miss Bert Winter, rural worker for the North Georgia conference, Woman's Missionary society, of the M. E. church, south, is having wonderful results as she visits in the rural sections of the state organizing missionary societies. In the Dalton district she visited 23 churches and organized 20 of them. In the Griffin district she visited 40 churches, covering 800 miles in her gospel Ford. When she failed to reach the church in time for one appointment she met the women leaving the church and the missionary society was organized with speaker and audience sitting in Ford cars in the middle of the highway.

City Missions Discussed At Junaluska Conference

The fourth annual session of the regional conference on city missions, eastern division, of the M. E. church, south, was held at Lake Junaluska, N. C., Monday and Tuesday of the past week.

Georgia was represented by Mrs. Buford Boykin, Mrs. Maude Palmer Henderson, Mrs. A. L. Norris, Miss Bessie Allen, Mrs. Comer Woodward and Mrs. Wallace Rogers.

Miss Dollie Crim, formerly of Atlanta, now of Ensley, Ala., who is a deaconess in the M. E. church, south, was elected secretary for the ensuing year, and Mrs. B. F. Zimmerman, of Spartanburg, S. C., was elected president. Mrs. Zimmerman is a graduate of Scarritt College for Christian Workers and was for several years a deaconess serving the city mission board at Spartanburg. She now is the president of the board under which she worked before her marriage.

The first speaker on the program was Mrs. Buford Boykin, of Carrollton, Ga, whose subpect was, "What Are the Needs of My State from the Standpoint of the Kingdom of God?" Some of the things mentioned by Mrs. Boykin were: 1. Women to use the vote. 2. Children's code. 3. Homes for delinquent. 4. Social worker under state welfare board in every county. 5. Training school for negroes. 6. Bureau for negroes with negro probation officers as now being done in North Carolina. 7. Better schools and houses for negroes. 8. Shorter hours and larger wages for all laboring classes. 9. Separation from hardened criminals for persons in jail for first defense. 10. Home for feebleminded negroes and larger provision for febele-minded whites.

Deaconess Bessie Allen, of Atlanta, was the first speaker on the second day and discussed "The Responsibility of the Worker for the Success of the Wesley Community Center." Miss Allen brought out many points helpful to the missionaries and deaconesses who were in the audience. Miss Dollie Crim was another speaker well known to Atlantans. Miss Crim urged that the United States government have higher standards and stricter tests for foreigners seeking citizenship rights. Foreigners should be required to read and write in the language in which they are to vote. Miss Crim's idea of this need grows out of the fact that she is engaged in mission work among the foreigners in the coal mines at Ensley, Ala.

Members of the conference were made quite happy to know that the request filed by the conference in its 1925 meeting concerning a rest year for all workers, was granted by the woman's council and is now a law. Announcement was made by the president that in accord with the request each worker would, in future, have one year for rest and study after having served for six years continuously.

Weak, Irritable

"I HAVE been using Cardui seven or eight years," says Mrs. Alpha Simmons, of Stoneville, N. C., whose picture appears above. "I had been suffering a good deal with my back and sides. At times I thought I could not stand the strain. I was on the down-hill grade, all right. I could hardly drag one foot after the other.

"Often I suffered with the headache, and my nerves were 'all to pieces'. I was easily upset, and could not stand the least noise. I felt irritable and I know I was irritable. It made me ashamed to think that I did not have strength enough to do my housework and take care of my family. I got very low-spirited—just as dejected as a woman can be.

"I was reading one day when I came across the statement of a woman who was troubled just as I was. I sent and got a bottle of Cardui, and began at once to take it. I improved from the very beginning, and I kept on until I was well. That was eight years ago.

"I have taken Cardui several times since, and it has always helped me. Only last spring, I took four bottles, and, at the end of the last one, no one would have known me for the same weakly person who began the tonic three months before."

Dorothy Gish Plays In English Film At Howard Theater

'Nell Gwyn' Tells Story of Poor Girl Who Became King's Favorite.

A distinct novelty will occupy the feature place on the program at the Howard theater commencing tomorrow. In "Nell Gwyn," which stars Dorothy Gish, they have an international production of one of the world's most celebrated true-life love tales. The picture was produced in London by Herbert Wilcox, a young English directorial genius. The supporting cast includes three of the best-known artists on the London stage, Randle Ayrton, Juliette Compton and Sidney Fairbrother.

The role of "Nell Gwyn," known in theatrical lore as a test part for actresses, just as "Hamlet" is for actors, has been played by many of the greatest women thespians. It was last essayed in this country by Mary Pickford, who appeared in "Mistress Nell," which was produced by Famous Players in 1914.

"Pretty, witty Nelly," who started life in direst poverty and rose to be a king's favorite and the greatest actress of her time, is a character as full of life as to be a whole show in herself. Miss Gish's rendition of the role has been acclaimed by critics as one of the finest interpretations ever seen—a tempestuous character study in which laughter, passion and tears are magically blended into real entertainment.

The John Murray Anderson stage presentation, "The Bridal Veil," which will be seen this week, is said to have been designed primarily for the delectation of the feminine side of the audience. Yet it promises to appeal just as much to mere man through its romantic quality as well as the beauty of the round dozen of girls who take part. "The Bridal Veil" is a fantasy illustrated by an authentic historical review of bridal gowns from the year 1450 to the present day. It is all supposed to be the dream of a girl who finds in an antique dower chest the faded bridal veil that had been worn in each generation by one of her ancestors. One by one, the brides of 1450, 1575, 1650, 1750, 1800, 1850, 1880 and 1890 pass before her. At last, the lover of her dreams appears, and in the final tableau the girl herself is seen arrayed as the bride of 1926.

The overture for the week by the Howard Sympohny orchestra, under Joseph Littau's direction, will be "Selections from Naughty Marietta." Jane Jones Perkins will offer an organ specialty entitled, "After I Say I'm Sorry."

Then, just for the fun, the Howard will present Ralph Graves in his latest Pathe laugh feast, "Hurry, Doctor." International News also will be included on the program.

West End Theater.

This week's program at the West End theater offers to the moviegoer a wide and varied field of entertainment. Douglas Fairbanks, Bebe Daniels, the inimitable Lon Chaney and a masterpiece from the pen of Peter B. Kyne make this week's offering one that will be long remembered.

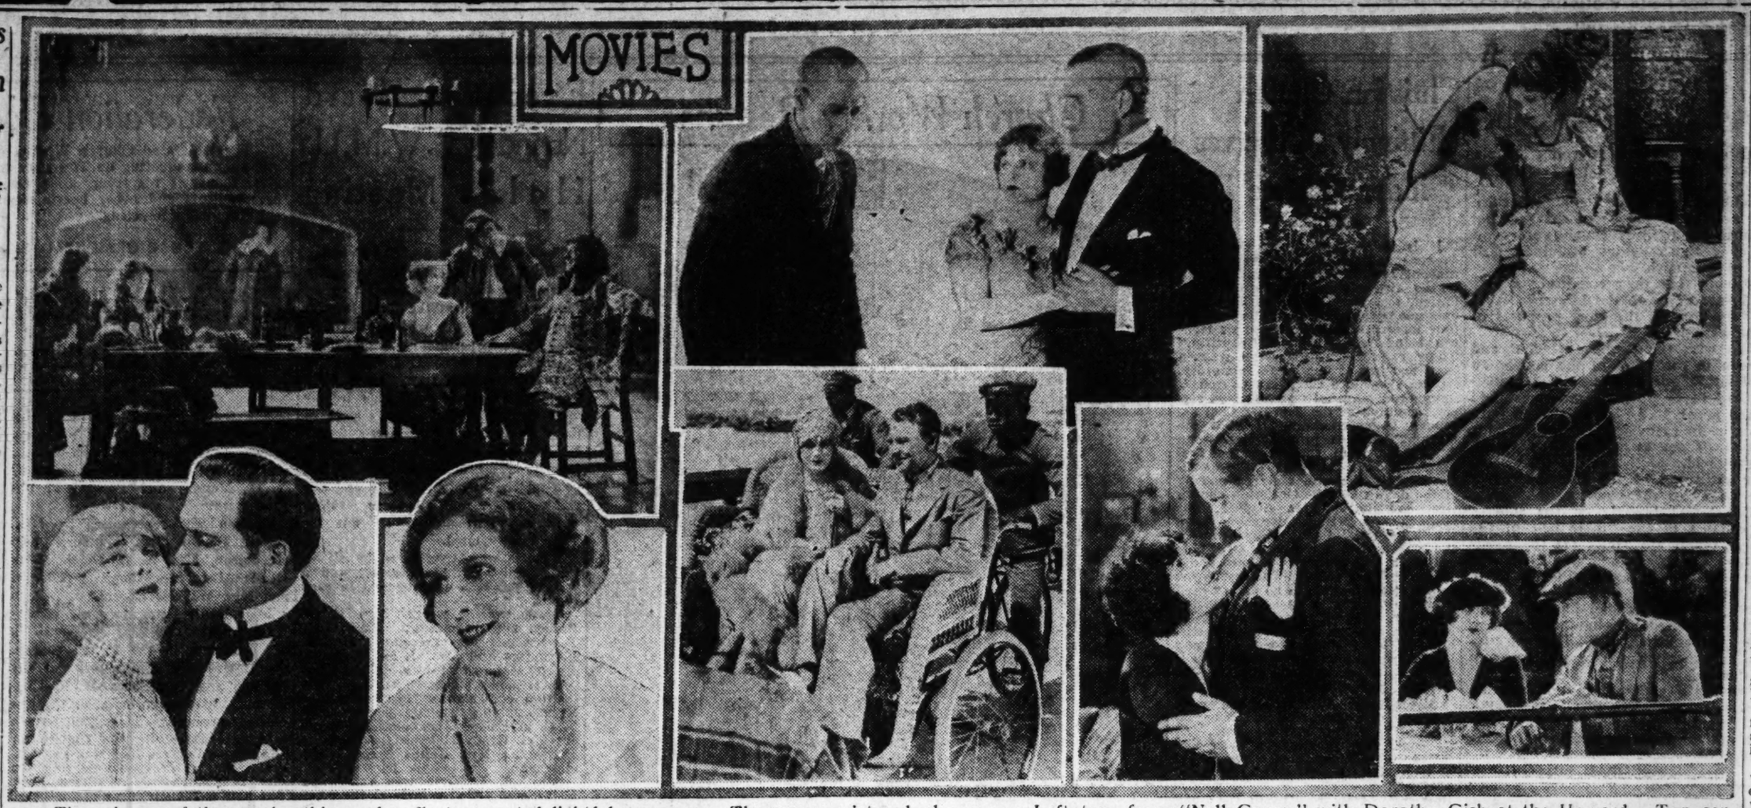

On Monday and Tuesday Douglas Fairbanks will be seen in that master success, "Don Q, Son of Zorro." "Don Q" is just an intensely appealing love story with many complications because of conspiracy and intrigue; a story replete with high adventure that gives the greatest opportunity ever for athletic prowess.

The attraction on Wednesday is "Wild, Wild Susan," starring Bebe Daniels. It is the story of a girl who gave her parents more concern in a day than her two sisters did in a year. Miss Daniels is ably supported by Rod LaRocque.

On Thursday and Friday, Lon Chaney will be seen in his master dramatic crook success, "The Black Bird." This picture is considered one of Chaney's masterpieces and his work as the deformed crook of the underworld is certainly unexcelled.

For a run of Saturday only, Peter B. Kyne's late novel, "The Enchanted Hill," starring Jack Holt, is sure to draw crowds. Kyne has written into this tale of a returned soldier and his battle among the crooks who are attempting to rob him of his land, a love story of the most appealing sort.

Motion picture making has extended to India where the Shadra Film company has organized in Bombay, with M. Gandhi as its head. The company is erecting large studios where national Indian works will be filmed. Up until recently only educational short subjects were produced in India.

The mirrors of the movies this week reflect a most delightful program. The scenes pictured above are: Left top, from "Nell Gwyn," with Dorothy Gish at the Howard. Top center, H. B. Warner, Vera Reynolds and Radcliff Fellowes at the Metropolitan in "Silence." Right top, Tom Mix at Loew's Grand in "The Yankee Senor." Lower left, Peggy Joyce in "The Skyrocket," at the Cameo. Next, the female star of D. W. Griffith's "Sally of the Sawdust," at the Palace. Lower center, Tom Moore and Pola Negri in "Good and Naughty," at the Rialto. Next scene, from "Wages for Wives," at Alamo No. 2. Lower right, scene with Lon Chaney at the West End theater in "The Black Bird."

'Good and Naughty' At Rialto Theater Stars Pola Negri

Latest Negri Vehicle Was Directed by Mal St. Clair.

Pola Negri in the role of a Cinderella girl converted into a vivacious butterfly is the spectacle offered by the Rialto theater for this week. The starring vehicle for the beautiful Pola to exercise her comedy proclivities is "Good and Naughty," the Paramount production which Mal St. Clair directed.

The comedy is "On Edge," a Mermaid ofering, and Pathe News, which scored a great popular success last week, completes the film program. Frank Turner directs the musical score.

There is a great farce situation in "Good and Naughty." Pola Negri, an assistant in an interior decorator's shop, is secretly in love with her employer, Tom Moore. Tom caters exclusively to the "upper crust" of New York, but he is not immune to having clandestine affairs with married women. His latest is with Miss du Pont, a flirtatious blond married to Stuart Holmes.

There we have the basic characters about which the story is built. Tom knows nothing of Pola's affection for him. While Holmes would like a divorce, he knows nothing of Moore's affair with his wife.

The first development is a yacht trip to Florida on Holmes' boat. Ford Sterling tries to help Tom out by engaging a show girl, Marie Mosquini, to come along and act as Moore's fiancee. At the last minute her sweetie, "Bad News" Smith, objects. Pola appears—but this time as a lovely woman and not a drab person. Marie also puts in an appearance and they are bound for the south with a cargo of dynamite.

They arrive in Florida to find every man on board in love with Pola. Tom and his affinity are quarreling and—things are terribly upset. Holmes on hearing the story of his wife's affair, only asks for one thing—a divorce—so that he can marry Pola!

But that isn't what happens. "Bad News" Smith appears on the scene. He demands his "gal" or the next best and—makes a dive for the center of the emotional storm—Pola!

Director Mal St. Clair has kept his foot on the laugh-gas pedal every inch of the way. "Good and Naughty" which stars Miss Negri, and features Tom Moore and Ford Sterling was adapted by Pierre Collings from the Irene Bordoni stage success, "Naughty Cinderella." It was taken from the French of Rene Peter and Henri Falk by Avery Hopwood.

Cameo Theater.

Coming to the Cameo Friday and Saturday is the picturization of the stage play made famous years ago by George M. Cohan, "The Song and Dance Man," starring Tom Moore and Bessie Love, a story of backstage life, and of the song and dance men who think they are the best in the world, and cling to that belief through life. In the picture, Bessie Love does a Charleston dance which has been the marvel of the country, and which has earned for her the title of "the screen's champion Charlestoner."

Wednesday and Thursday at the Cameo marks the bringing back of Peggy Hopkins Joyce in "The Skyrocket," presenting the champion matrimonial artist in a lavishly staged, gorgeously beautiful picture story of a girl shot into the limelight of public approval, to be cast back again as fate willed. Miss Joyce easily can act as well as she can marry, and the picture is packed full of entertainment.

On Monday and Tuesday the Cameo offers Bebe Daniels in "The Miss Brewster's Millions," the story of a girl who longed for riches, and then had them thrust upon her; given a million and told to spend it.

This is Norma Talmadge's method of studying the role she intends to play:

"I read and reread the story. After I am thoroughly familiar with the plot and background—long before I go near the studio—I go off by myself and think and feel out the part I am to play. In every character I wonder about the childhood of the heroine; what might have happened to her before the great moments that are shown in the picture. By the time I start work, I can only hope that I have captured something of the soul I am to interpret."

For many years an actor and a director, Emile Chautard will play the role of the temperamental director in Warner's "Broken Hearts of Hollywood." Among Chautard's achievements is the creation of the role of Jimmy Valentine on the stage, which he played throughout the world. As a director he produced the first 13-reel film entitled "L'Aiglon," for a French company.

W. C. Cohill, casting director at the New York Paramount studio, on two days' notice assembled 1,500 persons as circus spectators, enough "acts" to set a circus, barkers and all the other paraphernalia.

Alamo No. 2.

Jacqueline Logan and Baby Peggy on same bill at Alamo No. 2 Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

One of the most delightful of the John Golden plays has been adapted to the screen in the William Fox production of "Wages for Wives," which comes to the Alamo No. 2 theater Monday for three days.

This clever comedy drama deals with the insurrection of the wives of three men in a small community. This revolt comes about because of the uneven distribution of the family finances, and the situations that follow combine to make one of the most interesting and natural comedies of the season.

Jacqueline Logan and Creighton Hale head the all-star cast. They are supported by Claude Gillingwater, Zasu Pitts, Earle Foxe, Margaret Seddon, Margaret Livingston, David Butler and Dan Mason.

Frank Borzage directed.

On the same program will be shown Baby Pegg's newest picture "Little Red Riding Hood." All mothers who for some reason cannot come with their children are urged to send them to see "Little Red Riding Hood." This program will be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only.

The sets in Harry Langdon's next First National picture, tentatively called "Johnny Newcomer," will far surpass those used in any feature comedy to date. Several sequences take place in an elaborate theatre, and others in a magnificent mansion. Frank Capra is directing the Langdon film.

The Inspiration Pictures, company shooting "The Amateur Gentleman," starring Richard Barthelmess under Sidney Olcott's direction, has gone on location at the Lasky ranch where exteriors for the Jeffery Farnol story are being filmed.

Harvey Clark is at work in the role of Archer, the blustering lawyer, in "Midnight Lovers." First National is producing this picture under the management of John McCormick. Lewis Stone and Anna Q. Nilsson play the featured roles under John Francis Dillon's direction.

Playing so many whimsical roles during her screen career has provided Louise Fazenda with a "variety" wardrobe. In the last 10 years she has made a hobby of collecting and keeping these costumes.

In her new home at Hollywood she has added a large room in which her "character" clothes will be kept. Miss Fazenda rarely finds it necessary to search costume houses for "props." All she has to do is to look into her big clothes closet.

Palace Theater.

"Sally of the Sawdust" leads off the week at the Palace theater in Inman Park, starring that inimitable comedian, W. C. Fields. This big picture of circus life is a mixture of comedy, drama and pathos that combines all the elements into a really great success. Carol Dempster in the feminine lead is a particularly appealing feature and renders one of the best pieces of acting in her career. The picture plays two days, Monday and Tuesday.

For Wednesday only the Palace offers Conrad Nagel in "Dance Madness." This romantic drama of the modern younger set tells a particularly appealing story in a splendid setting.

"Madame Behave," with Julian Eltinge, comes to the Palace Thursday and Friday. In this spicy play the great female impersonator is given rare opportunity to display his full talents. Many who have seen Eltinge will be surprised at his perfection in this feminine role.

"Hands Up," with Raymond Griffith comes Saturday to the Palace and the silk hat comedian will evoke roars and screams of laughter after his usual custom in this picture.

The "prop" department of Universal City has a photograph collection which has reached a total of 8,700, all carefully catalogued and cross-indexed. These photographs are scenes taken in all parts of the world, of important streets, buildings and points of historic interest to be used as models for sets and guides to players for the correct portrayal of their parts. The pictures also can be used in the new process which enables films to be made on the lot as though they had been taken in the countries actually represented.

"Ten Commandments."

The Lakewood Amusement park airdome has booked "The Ten Commandments," famous photoplay of Biblical history and modern intrigue, for a special showing during the evenings of July 27, 28 and 29, it was announced Saturday by Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association.

The film was booked at the special request of Sunday school superintendents and ministers who will hold picnics and outings at the park during the three days the picture is to be shown. All performances will be open to the general public as well as to the Sunday school groups as the large seating capacity of the airdome will accommodate several thousand in addition to the groups that have reserved sections of seats.

Additional picnic party reservations can be made for the three days of the "The Ten Commandments" by telephoning Main 1870 or Main 4004.

Tudor Theater.

Opening at the Tudor theater on Monday is Maurice (Lefty) Flynn, in "Glenister of the Mounted," a virile, red-blooded story of the northwest, and of the Royal Mounted police, and of one of this band who was assigned to track down a murderer and not to return until he had found his man.

The search for the man forms the biggest punch of the picture, with added thrills and action when the mounted policeman faces death in a dozen different forms to capture the criminal for whom he has been sent. Romance also enters into the picture in the form of a beautiful girl, sister of the man whom the policeman was after.

For masterful action, daredevil stunts and fast-moving scenes, the picture is a gem, and for entertainment it is a wonder.

"You may have noticed that the friends who are willing to lend you money are those who have no money to lend."

Miss Hill, who was born in New York city, plays the part of Doris Mayne, a New England beauty, in the Mix story, which Eve Unsell adapted from Katharine Fullerton Gerould's novel, "Conquistador."

It is said that Miss Hill has been photographed more than any other woman in New York. Harrison Fisher has painted her picture a score of times. Her face has adorned the cover of Cosmopolitan magazine more than once.

Strangely, Miss Hill never appeared in moving pictures until she came to the west coast. It was while she was visiting Mrs. Don Lee in San Francisco that Raoul Walsh saw her. He asked her to come to Los Angeles and take a camera test. She did so—and won a coveted part in "The Wanderer." She appears as Naomi, the girl who waited.

In the Tom Mix photoplay, Miss Hill is the niece of Miss Abigail Mayne, an elderly spinster who loves Boston but detests the dust of the sprawling west. Misjudging the hero, Miss Hill leaves to return to New England—and this clears the way for petite Olive Borden, who wins a wholesome love and mammoth Spanish hacienda.

Miss Hill is a decided blonde, weighs 125 pounds, and is a trifle over 5 feet 6 inches in height. She was educated in Ursuline convent, New York, and is intensely fond of outdoor sports. In "The Yankee Senor" she is surrounded by an excellent cast, including Margaret Livingston, Martha Mattox, Francis McDonald, Alec Francis and others.

J. Russell Powell, a well known character actor of the stage and screen, has been cast for the role of the burgomaster in "The Red Mill," the next Marion Davies starring vehicle, which is now being produced on the M-G-M lot.

DANCING IS FEATURE ON LOEW'S STAGE

Fast and speedy with numerous novelties offered in quick succession "The Vaudeville Limited," presented by Benny and Elsie Barton, will be shown as the headline attraction on the new bill of vaudeville which opens Monday at Loew's Grand theater.

This big dancing act with music is another one of the real big time offerings which have been appearing at Loew's Grand in recent weeks and has scored a tremendous hit this season. The Bartons are able entertainers and producers and will bring a big company of unquestioned merit, which will include Murienne and Darle, with Marguerite and Billee Hughes and Joe McGinnis.

Some scenic effects of rare beauty are offered in the act as well as a fine musical program, which will include several violin selections. Dancing will be predominant, however, and all kinds of dancing steps will be included on the program.

Supporting the headliner will be a strong array of attractions, which will include Joe Wilston and Tex Weber. They will present their new comedy skit "It's All In the Game," which contains some comedy songs and also a pleasing ventriloquial hit.

Another strong act on the new bill will be that of Fred La Reine & Co. in a scientific novelty which is a real cyclone of fun. They offer an electrical show which contains numerous funny experiments.

Ulis and Clark will appear in a new comedy skit "Songs." It is full of ludicrous situations and lively comedy, chatter and songs.

Many musical innovations will be offered by The Braminos, the "Musical Pierrots," which will round out the new bill.

LANNING COMPANY PRESENTS 'IRENE'

Mildred Robinson Is New Star of Forsyth Company.

"Irene," one of America's greatest and most successful musical comedies, will be the offering this week at the Forsyth theater, with Mildred Robinson, new star of the Lanning organization, playing the title role. The production of "Irene" will be the biggest attraction yet given local patrons by Don Lanning and the Forsyth players, for it is a musical comedy that stands head and shoulders above the average and contains a delightful story as well as several of the most melodious song hits of recent years.

Miss Robinson has been brought from New York especially to sing in "Irene," and will make her initial appearance here Monday night. She is well known in the theatrical metropolis and has been connected with several of Hammerstein's productions, it is said.

Both Lanning and Fred Raymond will have prominent parts in the production. Lanning will play "Madame Lucy," the famous male modiste character whose comedy adds so much to "Irene," while Raymond will take the leading male role. Other favorites of the company who will be seen in the cast this week are Nellie Walker, Edna Jacques, Thelma Fraley, Emily Ross, Fred Brigman, and Frank Blyler.

"Irene" is one of those rare combinations of melody and humor that justify the name of musical comedy and that immediately establishes itself as a real and lasting hit. It is so well known to theater patrons that any summary of the story would be unnecessary, suffice to say that the leading part calls for the characterization of a most interesting and attractive young creature known as "Irene," whose rise from an errand girl in a dressmaking establishment to be the toast of New York.

Among the memorable tunes included in the score are several that have been sung and whistled all over the world, such as "Alice Blue Gown," "Castles in the Air," and "The Whole Town's Talking." These will be given an adequate place in the production this week.

James E. Eviston, producer, who heads the company, stated Saturday that this is the first time "Irene" has been attempted in tabloid form, all performances heretofore being of the complete score as originally written. In his endeavor to provide the best for local audiences during the summer season, he has revised the original so as to crowd its thrills, laughs and music into the space of about an hour and 20 minutes allowed the company. The result is said to be a great success as the new revised score preserves all the principal song hits as well as much of the story and in addition allows artists of the company a number of specialty numbers.

A complete new scenic investiture has been provided by Technical Director Rhea and Artist Findlay.

What schooling best fits youth for a career on the screen? Inquiry among players at the Fox studios showed that of 31 actors and actresses, nine had university education, four high school training, five only elementary schooling, three private tutoring and two convent bred. The others gave their service and travel in the army as their best education.

There are many portrait photographers in the movies but Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer prefers Ruth Harriott Louise, the only woman who has chosen this end of the industry in this company. She makes portrait studies of all the stars and featured players of the studio.

Tullio Carminati has had a short experience as the latest of Constance Talmadge's leading men, but he already has sized her up. The Italian, who at one time was managing director for Eleanor Duse, sees Constance Talmade thus:

"She has what the French call 'suddenness.' She can run, leap, jump and just as quickly become serious. She has two qualities seldom united —'gamineric' and 'distinction.'"

NEW PICNIC RECORD FOR LAKEWOOD PARK

Variety of Amusement and Special Rate Attracts Many.

With more picnic, dancing and motion-picture parties arranged for the next seven days than for any preceding period of the season, Lakewood Amusement park opens the fourteenth week of its 1926 season today with a jubilee singing contest between two negro churches in addition to the regular Sunday afternoon concert by the Royal Purple Elks' band and Miss Jessie Reese Calvert, soprano, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

A new policy of admitting couples to dance in the casino for $1 and evening, in addition to a continuance of the 10 cents a dance plan for couples who will include the dancing as one of the more than a score of amusements available for an evening's entertainment at the park, made the casino more popular with the dancing contingent last week and will be continued through this week. Maurice de Garland's Lakewood orchestra will play for dancing, admission to the casino continuing free to spectators.

The Wednesday afternoon children's matinee, which drew nearly 5,000 youngsters to the park last Wednesday to enjoy all the amusements at a special children's price of five cents for the afternoon, will be repeated this week. Miss Lena Lou Bowman, who was selected as "queen of curls" at the matinee, will select the most freckle-faced boy under 16 at this Wednesday's matinee to be "knight of freckles" at her court. A pair of roller skates will be given to the lucky boy.

The motion picture theater, which has been a popular attraction for the last week, will pesent two performances nightly throughout this week, a first-run feature picture of clean, wholesome outdoor adventure, and a delightful comedy, either one of Felix, the Cat's, pranks or a Cameo comedy each night. The program is changed nightly.

The full panoply of midway amusements will be in operation daily from 1 to 11 o'clock. The greyhound, the dodgeman, junior, scooter cars, the old mill stream, the whip, the airplane swing, the donkey ride, the buggy ride, the merry-go-round, the Cuckoo Inn, the zig-zag, shooting galleries, box ball alleys, automatic baseball game, motor boat, fleet of pew skiffs, the caterpillar and other amusement devices have been especially popular during the first half of the season.

Special inducements are offered to Sunday school, fraternal order, civic club and other organized group picnics for the last half of the season. Free ice water, wih tables, benches and other picnic equipment are provided by the park management. Group rate tickets to all the park amusements, or any selection from among them, will be supplied to picnic parties. Arrangements for them can be made by telephoning Main 1870 or Main 4004.

Improving One's Conversation

Talking As An Art Is Something We May All Study With Benefit.

How can one become a good conversationalist?

The question is frequently put to me by both boys and girls who are interested in developing a personality, and, through it, earning a greater popularity.

Since so much of our time is devoted to conversation, it is not a bad idea for all of us to review our "line" occasionally and ask if we are giving or getting anything worth while out of the social hours.

Our favorite topic, to the last man of us, is self, naturally enough. For this perfectly human failing our worst conversational offense is to make utter bores of ourseives, reveling in that favorite topic.

"She's a nice girl, but she talks too much; she talks about herself too much." Or, "He's a nice boy, but hear him talk——" are oft heard criticisms. Or, "What a ghastly old bore! Didn't give me a chance to get a word in edgewise."

The first rule, then, in becoming a good conversationalist is to recognize the fact that conversation is an exchange of information and ideas. A monologue it should not be.

Second is to have something worth saying and to say it as briefly and interestingly as possible. Letting flow a stream of words isn't conversation. I suppose on everybody's list of acquaintances is that trial in human flesh whose habit it is to deluge you with an unending flow of speech, at the end of which there has been not a worth while thing said.

Students of the art of conversation label such individuals as having the lowest form of intelligence and what they deliver verbally the least interesting of talk.

One of these students, Clare Tree Major, a graduate of the Academy of Dramatic Art of London, in a recently published book on "How To Develop Your Personality," emphasizes the importance of taking oneself in hand if you have reason to suspect you are drifting into one or the other of the class of dreary bores—the endless talker or the too silent member.

"If you are one of these bores," she says, referring to the too voluble, "take yourself in hand at once. Allow yourself only the most meager participation in any conversation until you can trust yourself to contribute your share and no more. The high caste Hindu takes a vow to say 'nothing which is not true, nothing which is not kind, nothing which is not useful, nothing which is not necessary.'"

Miss Major suggests that if you are addicted to overtalking, get a copy of this self-promise and hang it on your bedroom wall where it will meet your eye every day before you go out into the world. Model your conversation on this, she says, and you will save yourself a great deal of energy and gain a great deal of popularity.

"Good conversation," the author continues, "should give something to every one participating in it. It is as unfair to sit through a conversation absorbing everything and giving nothing as it is to use up all the time yourself in talk which is not vital to others. Don't be a sponge. Contribute your bit to the general conversation and you, as well as others, will gain Conversation is made interesting and useful in the exact ratio that different points of view are brought to bear on a subject, different experiences related to disprove or uphold a point.

To Be Mute Is To Be Selfish.

"If you sit in a corner and refuse to catch the ball when it is tossed to you, or refrain from tossing it back with new vigor, you are a dead weight on the mental activity of the others. You are shirking your job."

All of which means that you should talk with people, not at them. If you go through life with your eyes and mind open, it will be a strange person with whom you will find no point of contact, no mutual ground on which to pitch your conversational tent.

There is a certain type of mind that refuses to get off one track, that track invariably being a hobby or a specialty. It may be the antique furniture fiend, who knows all about old furniture, dates, makers and histories and deluges people with her knowledge. If her friends have not had the time or the impulse to gain knowledge of her hobby, she becomes a bore, if that is all she can talk about.

The popular conversationalist sublimates the desire to tell all she knows of her specialty and interests herself in the things others can talk about.

"Two pitfalls the tactful conversationalist will avoid," says Miss Major. "He will not inanely agree with every one merely to be polite and he will not run to the other extreme and allow himself to be contradictory and antagonistic in argument. To agree always simply suggests weakness, not necessarily amiability. Open and friendly discussion is one of the great joys of congenial souls."

Some people assume the attitude toward discussion they would toward a prize fight, with a knockout blow as the only possible termination. It is no personal insult if your friend should differ in some opinion. Nor is it a proof of unfriendliness that he refuses to change his opinion because it does not agree with yours.

It is extremely bad taste to contradict flatly any assertion the friend may make. To say "that isn't so," or "I don't agree with you. You are wrong," may sound quite innocent to you, but it serves to rouse a feeling of irritability in the mind of the one contradicted.

By prefacing your answer with the more tactful "I had always thought the contrary to be true" and going on to show why you thought so; or, "that's interesting, but don't you think?" etc., you allay any possible irritation.

The conversationalist that is hardest to bear is the pigheaded, perverse, obstinate one who refuses to allow the possibility of error in his own judgment and insists on trying to force his opinion on others. There is no remedy but to avoid them. They'll swear black is white—so there's no use wasting time or strength in discussion. If you suspect yourself of any such tendency, catch yourself up before you begin to feel the punishment of ostracism.

If you suspect you are falling into the habit of the aged of telling the same thing over and over again, know that your mind is getting creaky from lack of replenishment.

In order to be interesting, the mind has to be stored with information—not yesterday's but today's and tomorrow's. Make it click every day with incidents picked from your immediate life. Read not simply to pass the time—but to remember. Enrich your mind that you may always have something on deposit there to draw on as your share in conversation. Add a word to your vocabulary daily.

H. B. Warner Stars At Metropolitan In Crook Drama

"Silence" Said To Be One of Season's Most Dramatic Pictures.

H. B. Warner, the master portrayer of crook character roles, is the star of what is said to be the most dramatic picture of the year, "Silence," which plays all this week at the Metropolitan theater. He is supported by an exceptionally able cast.

"Silence" is a gripping story of a crook, who is characterized as only H. B. Warner can vivify the character of a crook. It shows his gradual degeneration, his emotions and the conflicts which tear his being. "Silence" proves beyond a doubt that "there's a bit o' good in the worst of us."

The opening scene of the picture is in the death cell of a famous prison. Inside the cell a man sits with a face as impassive as stone. The guards pace to and fro. The priest murmurs prayers. The hour of execution is at hand, and now, as all through his trial, the prisoner maintains silence when perhaps just a word would unknot the hangman's noose and open his cell door.

We are then carried back in the prisoner's reveries to a small town, such a town that you and I were raised in. A town with its gossips, its rigid conventionalities, its unfairness and the girl. There was a girl in the prisoner's life and they were married. Suddenly the husband, who is in a distant city, receives word that their marriage is annulled, and word from the wife that a child is expected.

Then that eternal maelstrom called fate envelopes the characters. We hear no more of the prisoner or the young wife until years later, the girl is married and the child, the product of her alliance with the man who is now about to take the walk to the execution chamber.

The man meets his daughter, now grown into young womanhood and the only thing that he can show her is a cheap three-card trick, the only thing he can offer her is the life of the circus, the uncertain ramblings of a crook.

Affairs rock along. A murder is committed, and the monte sharp is arrested and convicted by his silence during the trial. His silence is that of the grave and unless broken, it means certain death for him. What was the cause of his silence? Was it ever broken? Did the prisoner commit the crime, or did——? The answer to these questions will be found in the most gripping picture of the present season, "Silence," at the Metropolitan theater.

Enrico Leide and his orchestra are presenting the familiar and ever pleasing overture "Poet and Peasant," by Suppe, to open the musical program for this week. Mr. Leide is employing two themes for his musical score for the feature photoplay—for the love scenes, "Don't Be Afraid," an Ager-Yellen-Bornstein publication—for the courtroom and prison scenes, Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor." The latest popular ballads and fox trots accompany the news and comedy.

ANNA LUDMILA STAR OF PUBLIX' 'THE BRIDAL VEIL'

Those who see John Murray Anderson's "The Bridal Veil" at the Howard theater will marvel at the clever dancing of Anna Ludmila. And little wonder, for Miss Ludmila is known as one of the foremost dancers in the country. Following several years as premiere danseuse with the Chicago Opera company, she was prevailed upon by John Murray Anderson to join the 1924 edition of the Greenwich Village Follies, which Mr. Anderson devised and staged. In this production she was associated with such celebrities as the Dolly Sisters, Rosbauara, Moran & Mack, Vincent Lopez and others. How well she acquitted herself may be seen by a glance at some of the reviews of the show by the New York critics. Miss Ludmila's particular number was called "The Happy Prince," and The Evening Post declared it was "easily the gem of a show of gems." "There was Ludmila, the swallow, who danced like a nymph and pantomimed deliciously," said Alan Dale in The American, while Walter Kingsley, writing in Zit's Weekly, said that "Ludmila danced divinely."

In "The Bridal Veil" Miss Ludmila has ample opportunity to display her wonderful ability and her work has proven a sheer delight to audiences at all performances at which she has appeared on the Publix circuit.

Pay Yourself the Fortune You are throwing away

$75.00 Per Month Paid in Rent In 10 Years Amounts to $11,862.60

ARE you one of the Atlantans who are actually robbing yourself and your family of financial independence by paying rent—eternally paying for something you will never own?

Unless you have taken pencil and paper and figured it out, the actual facts will astound you.

Glance at the table below—showing in graphic manner what your monthly rent amounts to over a brief period of years, at 6% interest.

Rent Per Mon.	Total for 10 Years	Total for 15 Years	Total for 20 Years	Total for 25 Years
$ 50	$ 7,908.40	$13,965.46	$22,071.30	$32,918.56
60	9,490.09	16,759.54	26,485.56	39,502.28
75	11,862.60	20,948.19	33,106.95	49,377.84
85	13,444.28	23,741.28	37,521.21	55,961.55
100	15,816.80	27,930.92	44,142.60	65,837.12

The table shows what you are doing with your money, if you are paying rent. It shows what a staggering financial loss you face for the future, what an extravagant injustice your monthly rent check does to you and your family and those you leave behind you. Thousands of dollars tossed to the winds—enough to have bought your home many times over, found new pleasures, made profitable investments.

Will you continue to bear this irreparable loss?

Begin now to save that money by the sensational new Avondale Home-Owning Plan; begin now to make it work for you. The same monthly outlay, or less, can build up the credit side of your family ledger just as effectively as it has wrecked it for years.

These are cold, undeniable facts you can not overlook.

$1,000,000 PROGRAM!

The $1,000,000 construction program now surging forward at Avondale makes this possible. T. T. Flagler & Company, one of the South's leading building organizations, is erecting a minimum of 100 homes during the year. Other well-known Avondale builders, such as Hoke N. Smith, C. H. Black, and Wagar & Company, are at work on scores more.

Enormous purchasing power buys wholesale at absolute minimum. Architects' fees, financing costs, contingency fees and excessive contractors' profits are eliminated. On account of the volume, these builders are satisfied with one-third the margin the average builder would ask on a single house. The opportunity for you is without an equal!

Let Your Rent Money Buy Your Home!

ON THE other hand, you can step into an ultra-modern, charmingly designed and perfectly appointed home at Avondale Estates that would cost you from $9,000 to $10,000 to build yourself and which you could not rent for less than $90 or $100 a month—all for from $70 to $80 a month. Or you can get a home for $12,500 that would cost you $15,000 or more.

Glance now at this table, showing the monthly payments on Avondale homes of varying prices, and see what a remarkable contrast it offers to the one in the opposite column. These figures include all interest and carrying charges, and for the first few years are much lower than the figures quoted:

Cost of Home	1st Payment	Monthly Payment
$ 8,500	$1,000	$ 79.79
8,500	1,500	68.33
9,000	1,000	82.71
9,000	1,500	71.25
10,000	1,200	89.84
10,000	2,000	74.16
11,000	1,250	101.57
11,000	2,000	88.54
12,000	1,500	109.38
12,000	2,500	91.46
15,000	2,000	130.83
15,000	3,000	111.25

This amazing new Avondale Home-Owning Plan not only offers you a splendid avenue of escape from burdensome rent, but points your way to accumulation of a fortune—for in the years to come the money wasted on rent can be put to work for you. Make up your mind to stop this endless paying for something in which you will never have an equity—and own your home in Avondale, where every pleasure and every advantage of the multi-millionaire's country estates are available to you, at prices within your reach. You can secure full information at the downtown office—on Peachtree Street at the corner of Ellis—or at the property, without obligation in any way.
